MORE ABOUT—Youth Training

Youth Training Plan

Two years ago legislation was passed which brought into being the Dominion-Provincial Youth Training Plan, aimed at giving ambitious youths specialized training to fit them for immediate employment at no cost to themselves. It was felt that many industries were ready to employ young men and women who had special training in certain lines of work, but could not afford to train the youths for the positions. Two plans were arranged, the first an apprenticeship plan, in which a boy or girl, who knew what training they wanted and knew an employer who would hire them as soon as they were trained; the second a learner's plan in which employers would take in workers over a certain training period, during which the Government would re-imburse the industry by paying a portion of the wages while the young man or woman was obtaining the training prior to being accepted as a regular employee.

Mr. Irwin explained that in 1938, 50 boys were trained in a mining school at Haileybury and every one was placed in jobs at the mines. Five schools for the training of domestic workers were set up in the province, not only for the training of young women, but also to raise the standard of the individual taking this work, and to raise the living conditions of the girls thus employed. "In the past a girl would take almost any job rather than housework, because some employers expect a domestic to work frob 6.30 in the morning until nine at night, without a stop and with no days off. A supervisor, who takes care of placing the trained girls, sees to it that they are employed by the proper people. There were 750 girls trained and placed in jobs and at the present 135 are being trained every three months.

Reasonable Assurance

"We have been bitterly criticised in Ontario for not making greater use of this plan, but we do not train any youth unless we have reasonable assurance from an employer that he will give the boy or girl a job when the training period is over. If we were to train young people in a wholesale manner, then turn them loose without work, they would be even more bitter than they are now, and all of the money used to train them would be wasted, because they would grab the first job of any kind obtainable and probably never make any use of the specialized training which they took. In Quebec they trained 13,547 under the plan and only placed 25, out in Ontario, they only trained 1350 and today 80 per cent of that number are permanently associated with industries, because their work has been satisfactory."

Mr. Irwin explained that some of the training classes now being conducted are as follows: 25 in carpentry at Hamilton; 15 in textile art design, at Toronto; 22 at parks improvement work, at Ontario Agricultural College, Guelph; 22 in wireless and commercial telegraphy, at Toronto, which includes one from Peterborough; 42 at drafting in Guelph, and a large class in arc and acetylene welding at Toronto.

The speaker said they do not promise to turn out a fully skilled welder in six weeks, the duration of the course, but in this period, they can, by constant specialized training, given under shop conditions and with the students working the regular factory hours, eight to five, teach the boy more than he can learn in four years at a technical school. At technical or vocational school, according to Mr. Irwin, the pupil gets welding or whatever mechanical trade he is learning in hourly periods often three or four days apart, and during the interim between periods, he forgets most of what he learned before. With the rapid growth of the aeroplane industry in Canada many more jobs will be opened up for welders, he stated.

The foregoing relates only to the apprenticeship courses and if a pupil musht leave his own city to attend the schools, he is paid a living fee of ten dollars a week to cover board and clothes. At the completion of the course his train fare home is paid.

The learner's program covers a maximum period of thirteen weeks, and the maximum amount paid the employe is 35 per cent. of the learner's wages. For instance, if a youth wishes to learn a job, and the government has no facilities for teaching it, the applicant may obtain employment from a firm which would sign an agreement with the Dept. of Labor covering the training period. While the youth was learning, preparatory to accepting steady work with the firm, the government would pay up to 35 per cent of his earning to the employer, up to 13 weeks. These are maximum figures, depending on the type of work and the wages paid, and would vary according to the job. This plan is particularly suitable when an employer needs skilled workers, which are not available in the municipality, and cannot afford to train them. He would, under the plan take in local unskilled people, take advantage of the government plan for the learning period, then give steady employment to the local people who accepted the training. Otherwise the industry would be forced to bring in skilled workers from another centre.

All learner's agreements are signed with the expressed understanding that no person at present employed will be thrown out of work because the learner is brought in.

Any youth between the ages of 16 and 30 is eligible to take advantage of the plan, if their parents are financially unable to pay for training in a technical school. The plan is simple and all information may be obtained from the local Government Employment Office on King Street, where William Mellis is in charge. All applicants must register and fill out cards which are available.

"We are working quietly and effectively and doing a good job, but I realize the limitations of the plan, it cannot take care of all youth." He stated that the legislation now in existance will continue to the end of the fiscal year, March 31st, but Premier Mackenzie King intimated that the plan would be extended for another three years if public approval was forthcoming. He urged the Kinsmen and their friends to write to the Hon. N. O. Hipel, Minister of Labor, expressing approval of the plan if they wished the legislation passed at this sitting of the House to continue the program.

The speaker was introduced by Alex L. Elliott, M.P.P., who described him as a man who has an intelligent understanding of youth problems, and at the conclusion of the address a vote of thanks was moved by Dave Hubbert and extended the speaker by President Don Scott.

Among the guests at the dinner were Alderman R. M. Glover and Alderman Herb McCannan, and George A. Macdonald, former mayor of the city.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

WRITTEN FOR THE EXAMINER
By SHEPARD BARCLAY
"The Authority on Authorities"

MANY SQUEEZE PATTERNS

THERE IS HARDLY any limit to the number of possible variations of squeeze plays. All of them are of course founded on the principle that, if a player holds enough cards to guard his winner or winners in one suit, he cannot also retain enough to protect those in some other suit or suits. But the arrangement of the cards can extend over a vast range. The player who learns the main ones, including the principles that underlie them, will every once in a great while unearth a combination which is new to him, but which he figures out successfully, to his great delight and profit.

(Dealer: South. Both sides vulnerable.)

No man has done so much to make squeeze plays popular as Sidney S. Lenz, who named them that over a decade ago. This deal showed him the other day doing his usual stuff with all the old-time acumen. After his 1-Diamond bid, North bid 2-Clubs, Mr. Lenz 2-Spades, North 3-Hearts, Mr. Lenz 3-No trump, North 4-Clubs, Mr. Lenz 4-No trump and his confident partner 6-No trump. West tried a short-suit lead of the diamond 9, whereupon, seeing the dummy, the old master counted up a probable string of nine tricks in the minors. He decided to take in the diamonds first, so he could try the squeeze with his clubs in the dummy. After the diamond K won the opening trick, he took the club A, club K, diamond A, Q and J, club 10, A and Q. On the latter East had to play from his best two hearts and best three spades. If a spade, Mr. Lenz would discard a heart, win three spades and give up a heart at the end; if a heart, Mr. Lenz would discard a spade, lead a heart to the A, and then collect two spades and the set-up heart K. It was a nice finishing play.

Tomorrow's Problem

♠ K Q J 10 5 4
♥ 7 4
♦ A 5 3
♣ 3 2

(Dealer: West. East-West vulnerable.)

Against South's 5-Spades doubled, if West takes two tricks in hearts, two in clubs, leads a heart for a ruff, and then declarer then runs several trump tricks, what should East do and why?

Hastings Ladies Will Assist Free Skating

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HASTINGS, Feb. 10.—The February meeting of the Hastings Women's Institute held on Tuesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. C. Baker, was largely attended by the members and visitors. Mrs. J. A. Brown presided and Mrs. E. Richardson was at the piano for the opening ode. Mrs. C. Baker acted as secretary in the absence of Mrs. J. A. MacDonald.

The president extended a welcome to all visitors and thanked the committee council, teachers, Mrs. Dodd, and all others who assisted in making the community school concert a success. The social secretary was authorized to write a letter of appreciation to the teachers for their co-operation in providing such splendid programs.

The Legislative grant of $3.00 was received by the treasurer, Mrs. O. Phillips.

Letters of thanks were received from those who received Christmas cheer boxes. A shut-in who was too ill at Christmas to appreciate a Christmas cheer gift will now be remembered with a gift of fruit.

A donation of $5.00 will be given to Henry Scriver to assist him in providing free skating for school children at the Riverside Skating Rink

Recall School Days.

Mrs. G. Sine was convener for the program. The roll-call, a recollection of school days, was responded to by almost all the members, and many humorous accounts were related, some of days of long ago.

Mrs. G. Sine gave Lesson 2 on Buymanship. Her topic on cotton proved interesting and instructive, as she explained the kinds of cotton, where and how grown, the finished materials and the quality guides in buying sheets and pillow cases.

In order to enable the local leaders, Mrs. C. Baker and Mrs. G. Sine, to complete their lessons on the short courses, a special meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. J. A. Brown on Tuesday afternoon, February 21, at 2.30.

Interest was created as a Professor Quix contest was staged between two groups. Mrs. V. Findly, Mrs. G. Kerr, and Miss K. German on one side, and Mrs. R. King, Mrs. D. Pollock, and Mrs. C. Baker on the other. Mrs. G. Sine asked the questions, and the latter side answered the greater number.

Before a delightful luncheon was served with Miss P. German, Mrs. Throop, and Mrs. O. Phillips as the hostesses, a full hour of real entertainment was provided by the Rev. William Stocks as he gave a splendid talk on the appreciation of music and played some lovely musical numbers on the piano.

Prince Joins Peasant Throng As Endless Thousands Pay Homage To Pope Pius

Ciano, Foreign Minister, Duce's Son-in-Law Attracts Attention In Chapel By Giving Dead Pontiff Fascist Salute

(By T. C. Jordan, Associated Press Foreign Staff.)

VATICAN CITY, Feb. 11 (AP).—Prince and peasant today joined in homage to Pope Pius XI. before his bier in the Sistine Chapel where he lay in state.

Crown Prince Umberto was escorted into the chapel by the Italian Ambassador to the Holy See and thousands of rank and file Italians and foreigners climbed the long stairs off St. Peter's Piazza and passed reverently around the bier.

The holy father's body, clothed in white and wearing a priest's red chasuble, lay near the entrance to the chapel. On his head was a gold bishop's mitre. His hands, enclosed in red gloves, were folded and held a small crucifix. His feet were in red slippers.

Uniformed noble guards stood at the four corners of the bier. Papal gentlemen - in - waiting were in mediaeval costumes with great lace ruff collars. Swiss guards in bright striped costumes, designed by Michelangelo, kept the crowd moving.

In the chapel background red-gowned ecclesiastics, facing each other in long rows under Michelangelo's frescoes of the last judgment, conducted their devotions on the late Pontiff's behalf.

Majority Common Folk.

The majority of those passing the bier were the common folk of Rome. Men lifted small children to their shoulders to see the ashen face of the still figure. Peasant women, with handkerchiefs on their heads, moved in line by the side of trimly-uniformed military men and society women in silks and furs.

At 9:20 the Crown Prince arrived to pay the respects of his father, King Victor Emmanuel, to the memory of the late sovereign of the Vatican state.

Monsignor Francesco Borgongini-Duca, Papal Nuncio to Italy, and Monsignor Montini, representing the Vatican secretariat of state, met him and showed him to the presence of Eugenio Cardinal Pacelli, temporary administrator of Vatican affairs.

Cardinal Pacelli and Monsignor Vincenzo Santoro, secretary of the interregnum ruling body of cardinals, escorted by Swiss guards, conducted the Prince to the Sistine Chapel. There he knelt in a brief prayer.

Yesterday when Count Galeazzo Ciano, Italian foreign minister and son-in-law of Premier Mussolini, visited the chapel dressed in a blue minister's uniform, he gave the dead Pope a straight-armed Fascist salute. The gesture attracted attention in that corner of Rome in which this greeting is rarely seen.

Negrin To Fight Till Franco Accepts Terms

PERPIGNAN, France, Feb. 11 — (AP). — From the citadel of Madrid, the symbol of the Spanish government's resistance, Premier Juan Negrin led a new fight to-day for a "lasting peace."

A few hours after flying over conquered Catalonia in North-eastern Spain to the central zone yesterday, Dr. Negrin announced in Valencia that the Civil War would go on until insurgent General Franco accepted his terms for peace.

The seat of the government, moved successively from Madrid, Valencia, Barcelona, and Figueras during the 2½ years of strife, returned to its starting point at the besieged traditional capital.

"They shall not pass!" became once more the slogan of Negrin's government.

Peace negotiations, apparently prompted by France and Great Britain in a desire to halt bloodshed and prevent Franco's Italian legions from taking a firmer foothold in Spain, were brought into the open by Negrin's statement.

Demands Plebiscite.

He announced frankly the government's terms, emphasizing its insistence against reprisals, but reiterating also his demands for a plebiscite and guarantees of a free state.

"These are only ones capable of consolidating national sovereignty and sealing reconciliation among Spaniards," the Premier said.

Franco long has maintained that he would accept only unconditional surrender of the government.

French and British diplomats were expected to make new efforts to reconcile the two sides.

An insurgent communique announced the occupation of the northern frontier facing France was completed and the war in Catalonia ended.

In the central zone, about one-fourth of Spain's territory with 8,000,000 of the nation's peacetime population of 24,000,000, the government faced an uphill struggle against the insurgents turning on Valencia unless peace is concluded soon. Neutral observers predicted peace in Spain within a few days.

Cruise For Rest

WASHINGTON, Feb. 11.—(AP).—President Roosevelt hopes to be on the high seas by next Saturday, en route to the Caribbean for a rest and a glimpse of the United States' fleet in mimic battle. Officials say they do not believe the slight attack of grippe which kept Mr. Roosevelt in bed yesterday will interfere with the trip. He is expected to board the 9,050-ton cruiser Houston at Miami or Key West next Friday.

Detroit Uses Pro Sick Man To Put 'The Bite' On City's List Of Quack Medicos

DETROIT, Feb. 11 (CP)—Otto Fischl, the department of health's professional sick man, has been using false teeth to put the bite on illegally practicing dentists.

Fischl's job is to go groaning into the offices of medical quacks, complaining of all possible symptoms, get treatments and then arrest the quack.

His latest technique has been to hang up his false teeth over the kitchen sink and approach persons suspected of illegal dental practice.

Two dental mechanics, he said, fell for this lure and provided him with false teeth, contrary to the law. One dental mechanic said the new teeth so pleased Fischl that Fischl had decided to use them as soon as the court finished using them as an exhibit.

Japs Boast Grab Of Hainan Blow At Britain

TOKYO, Feb. 11.—(CP Havas)—The Japanese press boasted today that occupation of Hainan Island strikes a blow at Great Britain's far eastern defence system, with Hong Kong's strategic value reduced almost to nought.

The landing on the Chinese island between Hong Kong and Singapore was hailed as an "historic event" by all newspaper as the nation observed the 2,599th anniversary of the foundation of the Japanese empire.

The newspaper Kokumin, which for months has been waging an anti-British campaign, said: "Not only has the strategic value of Hong Kong—symbol of British power in China—almost disappeared but a violent blow has also been delivered to the military position of Singapore. The effects will not be temporary and will weigh heavily in the scales of Japanese diplomacy in the future."

Most paper agreed that the occupation, carried out yesterday by army and navy units, strikes not only at China and Great Britain but at the United States and France as well.

France Inquires

PARIS, Feb. 11—(CP-Havas).—French government today instructed its ambassador at Tokyo, Charles Arsene Henry, to request explanations from the Japanese government regarding the occupation of Hainan Island, which lies off the Indo-China coast between Hong Kong and Singapore.

The envoy was instructed to ask the reasons for and the nature of the occupation of the strategic island and the length of time the Japanese plan to remain there. It is understood the British government is making similar representations.

Priest Answers His Ex-Bishop

MONTREAL, Feb. 11—(CP). — From Gaspe Peninsula, Rev. J. H. Real d'Anjou sent a reply to-day to a statement by Bishop F. X. Ross of Gaspe who, on January 29, denied reports that 80 parishioners had followed the priest when he left the Roman Catholic Church after a disagreement of more than two years.

Mr. d'Anjou said, "The Bishop knows" why the priest would not reveal the names of those who followed him and eventually formed a unit of the Presbyterian Church at Fontenelle, Que. The number, however, was sufficient, Father d'Anjou said, to form the unit of the church. No names could be revealed, the statement said, until the dissident group had obtained a church and cemetery, so they might not be exposed "to the embarrassment and inconvenience of excommunication which includes, for example, denial of ecclesiastical burial. . . ."

The priest also said not one of his present flock belonged previously to the Presbyterian Church, as suggested by Bishop Ross; that they followed him from his Catholic church at Fontenelle after he disagreed with his superior over different matters, including collection of a 10-cent-per-head tax which the Abbe claimed the people were unable to pay. The statement also said the Abbe had never been approached by another church; that he and his flock chose their present denomination of their own free will.

Nine Cardinals Possible Pope

VATICAN CITY, Feb. 11.—(AP).—Names of nine Cardinals came to the forefront to-day in speculation as to who would be the next Pope.

Heading the list of possibilities in the opinion of many familiar with church affairs was Adeodata Cardinal Piazzi, Patriarch of Venice, a vigorous administrator and accomplished student.

He is 54 years old, the youngest of any on the list of prominent prospects. Politically, he he regarded as in the centre.

Others listed in the order in which many persons placed their chances of becoming Pope were:

Alfred Ildefonso Cardinal Schuster, Archbishop of Milan, 58.

Giovanni Battista Cardinal Nasalli-Rocca Di Corneliano, Archbishop of Bologna, 66.

Maurilio Cardinal Fossati, Archbishop of Turin, 62.

Alessio Cardinal Ascalesi, Archbishop of Naples, 66.

Alfa Cardinal Dallacosta, Archbishop of Florence, 66.

Luigi Cardinal Lavitrano, Archbishop of Palermo, 64.

Pietro Cardinal Boetto, Archbishop of Genoa, 67.

Eugenio Cardinal Pacelli, Vatican Secretary of State, 62.

There was speculation, too, on the possibility of some one of those least expected to be chosen being elevated to the Papacy, for that has happened many times.

Rumors ran through Rome that foreign Cardinals had decided to unite behind Rodrigue Cardinal Villeneuve, Archbishop of Quebec, and were trying to win some Italians over.

Second Blaze In Two Weeks Sweeps Block In Val d'Or

Brigade Loses Control In 3-Hour Struggle And Hotel, 7 Shops, Stores Are Razed

VAL D'OR, Que., Feb. 11 (CP) —Early morning flames swept through a half-dozen frame buildings in the business section of this northern mining town today, and more than seven hours after the outbreak firemen still were pouring water into the smoking ruins.

The flames broke out at the height of a blizzard that swept this northern mining area and disrupted telephonic and telegraphic communications for several hours. The bitter cold hindered the firemen and the blaze got beyond control after the firemen had been attempting to cut off its progress for more than three hours.

At seven o'clock the fire had destroyed the Little Ritz Hotel, the Modern Barber Shop, La Mode Ladies' Store, Ben's Shoe Shine, Cash and Save Store, Noel's Shoemaker Shop, Youneda Bread Company and Dechevrottiere Jewelry Shop.

The block, all wooden buildings, is in the heart of the town's shopping district, and for a time it appeared the flames would spread across the narrow road to neighboring stores. The temperature was below zero as the firemen, overworked during the last few days because of numerous chimney fires set by the gale, struggled with stiffened hoses. They gained control of the blaze, however, without having to summon help from nearby mining communities.

The guests from the 10-room hotel escaped without injury as did occupants of the other buildings, mostly one-storey structures.

Reflection of the flames could be seen miles away and the town's almost entire adult population jammed into little Third Avenue towatch the flames and lend firemen a hand.

It was the second serious fire in the town within two weeks. Two weeks ago to the day, fire gutted a four-storey business block.

Rene Lacoste, Canadian National Telegraph's agent, said he watched the flames gradually expand beyond control and ran over to his office to carry out furniture and valuable telegraphic equipment. His quarters, he said, were damaged.

Doukhobors Lose Peter the Second As Verigin Sinks After Operation

SASKATOON, Feb. 11.—(CP). — Peter Verigin, spiritual leader of Canada's 15,000 Doukhobors, died in hospital here early to-day. The 53-year-old Russian failed to respond to medical treatment following an operation about two weeks ago.

Verigin's death occurred before his wife and mother could reach his bedside from Grand Forks, B.C.

The leader, known as "Peter the Second," came to Canada in 1927 to succeed his father, Peter "Lordly" Verigin who was killed in a mysterious train explosion near Farron, B.C. Peter the younger was born at Bituriski, Russia, March 11, 1885.

The father led the religious sect out of Russia to Canada in 1892. Since then the authorities have had a seroes of clashes with the Doukhobors because of their nude demonstrations and internal disputes.

When Peter the younger took over the spiritual leadership of the Christian Community of Universal Brotherhood, he headed an empire valued at more than $6,000,000 with its own schools, stores and other enterprises.

A Hectic Career.

His career in the colonies was a hectic one. He was in jail on three occasions, once for perjury, another time for assault, again for vagrancy. Authorities threatened him with deportations twice but after legal battles he was permitted to remain in the Dominion.

While Verigin remained spiritual leader, he resigned as president in 1932. Other officers carried on in his name, refusing to elect a successor till 1936, when Nick Ploitnoff was chosen.

Most important battle Peter went through in the courts was staged at Yorkton, Sask., in 1932, when he was convicted of perjury, resulting from a civil suit, and sent to prison for three years.

His imprisonment was the spark which set off demonstrations throughout the Doukhobor colonies of the west. Nude parades were held, hundreds of the sect were arrested and placed in a penal colony on Piers Island, near Victoria, B.C.

Scudder was carried into a drug store by bystanders, while still unconscious, and he said one of these men must have stolen the money.

Bill Cook Wins Run At Ski Meet

Bill Cook, Finnish-born member of the Toronto Ski Club, won the cross-country race of nine miles, as the provincial ski meet opened here this morning. Bucharest Troops Foil Terrorists

BUCHAREST, Feb. 11.—(AP)—Soldiers, firing rifles and pistols in a brisk clash with Terrorists, last night repulsed what appeared to be an effort to seize the Bucharest state radio station.

An announcement of the clash was withheld until this noon, and there was nothing in a brief communique to indicate whether the attackers were outlawed iron guard conspirators who have played major roles in Rumania's recent domestic troubles.

The communique stated that one of the attack group was killed and 15 captured. Troops said the assault was easily resisted.

In darkness, the fighting occurred on all sides of the station, in a sparsely populated district four miles from Bucharest city limits.

Canada To Check Policies Of Her Banks

OTTAWA, Feb. 11—J(CP).—For the first time since the creation of the Bank of Canada as a national central bank, officers of that institution may appear before the banking and commerce committee of the House of Commons for a general discussion of Canada's financial policy.

This suggestion was thrown out yesterday by finance minister Dunning as he sought the passage of a resolution preliminary to a bill to authorize the government to borrow $750,000,000 for refunding and general government purposes.

The bill is somewhat of a routine measure, passed almost every years, conferring borrowing powers on the government, but yesterday Hon. H. H. Stevens (Con. Cootnay East) suggested it was time for Canada to take stock of its financial position and consider whether existing financial machinery was geared to modern conditions.

In reply came Mr. Dunning's proposal. He said he had not discussed it with Graham Towers, governor of the Bank of Canada, but had no doubt that officials would agree providing he were given some discretion about disclosing information which might be detrimental.

Mr. Stevens wanted to know where the government proposed to raise the $750,000,000 in Canada, the United States or in Great Britain. If in Canada, he thought attention should be paid to the already large holdings of government securities by banks and other financial institutions. If in the United States the heavy indebtedness of Canada to the country should be reviewed.

Enough From U.S.

"I am under the impression," he said, "that as a going concern Canada has borrowed from the United States just about as much as she ought to borrow, having in mind the trading relations between the two countries."

"I agree entirely," said Mr. Dunning.

"I think it is a fair statement," said Mr. Stevens.

"Not speaking governmentally, but as a people on all accounts," said Mr. Dunning.

CAMPBELLFORD, Feb. 11.— Mrs. Alexander Milne continued her lectures in the course on Buymanship at the monthly meeting of the Seymour East Women's Institute held on Thursday afternoon. The meeting was held at the home of Mrs. Jesse Locke and nineteen members responded to the roll-call. Opening with the Institute Ode and Lord's Prayer, the regular business period was dispensed with in view of the fact that the Buymanship studies had been missed at a previous meeting. Mrs. Milne dealt particularly with rayon and silk goods, and described the burning and lye tests for these materials.

After a brief discussion period the meeting was brought to a close with a delightful lunch being served by the hostess. Mrs. Henry Locke and Miss Elsie Rannie were appointed to head the program committee for the March meeting.

37 Rescued From Oil Tanker As She Piles On Rocks In Gale Off Rhode Island

Coastguards Brave Wild Seas In Surf Boat After SOS Brings Half Dozen Ships Racing To Spot On Bleak Rocky Coast

BLOCK ISLAND, R.I., Feb. 11 (AP).—Overcoming pounding seas and dense fog, coastguards today completed rescue of 37 men of the grounded Texaco tanker Lightburne, after the 416-foot vessel was abandoned leaking badly and in danger of breaking up.

The tanker's commander, Captain Wolman, and 19 other men were taken on board the United States coastguard cutter Campbell shortly after 2.30 a.m., 4½ hours after 17 others left the vessel and were taken to Block Island coastguard station.

The 6,429-ton Lightburne, due in Providence today with 72,000 barrels of gasoline and kerosene from Port Arthur, Tex., piled upon the island's rocky shore at 7.30 p.m. last night.

Sixteen minutes later an SOS picked up by radiomarine at Chatham, Mass., turned half a dozen vessels toward her, among them the steamship Thomas Tracy and the coastguard patrol boat Active, from New London, Conn. Nearly two hours elapsed before the Tracy churned its way to the scene, the first rescue craft to arrive.

Meanwhile nearly half a dozen coastguard vessels were pounding their way to the scene, the cutters Campbell, regularly stationed at Staten Island, N.Y.; the Argo from Newport, Chelan from Boston and the General Greene from Woods Hole, Mass.

The weather was raw. A 33-mile wind was whistling and a heavy swell running. The Lightburne officers' fears that the Active might not arrive in time were reflected in a message asking the Tracy to stand by.

Fear Ship to Break Up.

"May be unable to launch lifeboats in heavy seas and may break up at any time," it said.

Forty-five minutes later the men began jumping over the side into a surfboat from Block Island Station. Seventeen were carried to the Active, but the tanker's captain, mates, engineer, radio operator, and others sent word they would stay "as long as possible."

At 12.37 a.m., a few minutes after the Lightburne radioed "We are going down, looks like all hands must leave," her officers sent a message received by radiomarine saying they were "Going off now."

Radiomarine interpreted the message to mean they had been taken off at that time, but later learned the Campbell had difficulty working up close to the Lightburne and nearly two hours elapsed before all were safely removed.

All were taken to the Block Island Station except four officers, including the Lightburne's captain, who decided to spend the night aboard the Campbell and return to their vessel after daybreak to determine how badly she was damaged.

Ickes Proposes Press 'Open Up'

CHICAGO, Feb. 11 (AP). — The people of the United States have a right to know more about this country's newspapers because of the "tremendous role" they play in its political and economic life Harold Ickes, Secretary of the Interior, told the National Lawyers' Guild last night in a broadcast speech.

Mr. Ickes suggested that the press voluntarily divulge its "financial relationships," welcome criticism and keep itself under constant surveillance.

"I want it to free itself from its own voluntarily servitude," he said.

"This, he asserted, should be done not by government control but by the press itself. Government control, he added, "would be a calamity and the very idea is abhorrent to me."

"I hold that we must do everything to defend the freedom of the press for the sake of our general liberties and our democratic institutions," Ickes said.

He termed American newspapers the best and freest in the world, but contended that "owing to economic tieups, our press is not as free as it should be in a democracy."

"Generally speaking," he said, "they print much misleading propaganda, they color the news to suit themselves, they distort the news, they suppress the news, they even invent 'news.' But they also carry much news that is vital to the public weal."

$75,000 Alberta Fire Leaves 12 Homeless

BIG VALLEY, Alta., Feb. 11—(CP) —Twelve persons were made homeless and one man was injured when fire in 25 to 30-blow weather destroyed six buildings on the south side of Big Valley's main street. Damage was placed at from $75,000 to $100,000. Cause of the fire was not determined.

James Brown, the town's utility man and chief of the volunteer fire brigade, suffered internal injuries and bruises when he plunged from the two-storey vacant City Cafe through the roof of a smaller building. He was removed to hospital at Stettler, 25 miles north.

The fire was finally halted by a volunteer bucket brigade of 150 persons augmented by townspeople, farmers and residents of Rumsey, 15 miles south, and Stettler.

Buildings destroyed were Hanna Brothers hardware at an estimated loss of $25,000; N. V. Bennett's drug store, $15,000, and Louie Yen's Chinese restaurant, $3,000. Losses suffered when D. L. Oliv's department store, Miss B. Dewar's tea shop and the vacant City Cafe brick building were gutted remained to be determined.

Big Valley is about 125 miles south of Edmonton.

Saving 3 In Fire Wins Hero Award

DETROIT, Feb. 11—(CP)—Michigan's outstanding civilian hero of 1938 was John Szyszka, 23, according to a committee of the Rainbow Division of the Veterans' Association of Michigan. The committee selected the youth for the annual valor award by the Association.

Szyszka's feat came during a fire in an apartment just across from his third-storey room. He climbed out on a narrow window sill, swung across on a drain pipe and passed two children and their mother to safety, then, in an attempt to rescue a third, he was trapped by flames. He was rescued by firemen.

Honorable mention went to Charles Collard of Port Huron, Mich., who saved three children from drowning in the St. Clair river.

AMHERSTBURG, Ont., Feb. 11 (CP)—Mrs. Eliza James was 100 years old today and had only one regret. She had to give up dancing a year ago, but she danced gaily at her daughter's golden wedding three years ago.

"I do regret giving up dancing," Mrs. James said. "I never did sit in my chair long . They used to say I was the best looking woman on the floor. I can't see any harm in dancing, though I've been a Methodist all my life. I think the Lord put us here to have pleasure, not to imprison us."

She was born in Malton township, Haldimand county and moved to Leamington 50 years ago, later living in Windsor 33 miles northwest of Leamington.

Japs, Nazis Look Guam Over

Claim Scout Planes From Nazi Bases In Carolines

WASHINGTON, Feb. 11 (AP) — Representative Maas (Rep-Minnesota) said today he had "competent evidence" that Japanese and German seaplanes made several flights recently over the Island of Guam, United States possession in the Pacific far beyond Hawaii.

Evidence of such flights proved, Maas contended, that the two countries had bases in the same area, in Japan's mandated islands.

Maas is a supporter of the navy's proposal to spend $5,000,000 at Guam — less than 1,500 miles from Tokyo—to improve facilities for handling planes. Critics of the project have denounced it as a step toward establishment of a major naval base likely to provoke international friction. Navy spokesmen have assured congress no such base was contemplated, saying the proposed harbor dredging was essential to commercial trans-Pacific aviation.

Building Air Base

Maas told the House of Representatives naval committee recently he had information that Germany was placing a protected air base on one of the Caroline Islands, which formerly belonged to Germany but were mandated to Japan after the Great War. Maas told reporters he had been advised a bomb-proof roof was being constructed over a narrow harbor.

He made his statement about the reported flight of Japanese and German planes over Guam after reading published reports from Tokyo that Japanese naval spokesmen had denied Germany was establishing a fortified air base in the Caroline Islands.

"I ask now that the Japanese government permit an American commission to investigate the mandated islands," Maas said.

Latest U.S. Fighter Is Twin-Engined

MARCH FIELD, Calif., Feb. 11—(AP). — A twin-engined pursuit plane, capable of speeds above 350 miles an hour, appeared today as the United States' newest bid for a defensive air force second to none.

Major-General Henry Arnold, chief of the United States Army Air Corps, announced the new craft.

Constructed to army specifications at the Lockheed Aircraft Co. plant near Los Angeles, the ship was brought here for secret tests.

It was explained that in nose-printing the same system as is used in finger-printing a human is employed.

Worst Blizzard In 50 Years Buries Fort William

Man Freezes To Death In 7-Foot Drifts; Bitter Cold Of Alberta Moving East

FORT WILLIAM, Ont., Feb. 11.—(CP)—Scores of workmen continued today the long job of digging out city streets and rural highways, snow-piled in some cases to a depth of seven feet after the worst blizzard in nearly half a century.

Giant drifts still dotted the residential districts of the twin lakehead cities of Fort William and Port Arthur, but more normal conditions prevailed in downtown areas after 24 hours of shovelling.

One death was caused by the storm which whipped in from the southeast early Friday. John Waywishie, 60, of Shebandowan, was found frozen to death near here. He apparently lost his way in the blizzard.

Fair but "much colder" weather was promised in the forecast for the week-end. Comparatively mild temperatures ruled while the storm lashed the district throughout Friday.

Many motorists forced to leave their cars on snow-bound streets and highways planned digging expeditions to bring them home during the week-end.

Farther west, across the prairies, where the mercury has dropped as far as 50 below zero, some relief was forecast for today and Sunday.

Slowly moderating temperatures were predicted for Manitoba; "somewhat milder" for Saskatchewan and Alberta, where even the "balmy Chinook" south country experienced record low readings this week, it was to be only "moderately cold" for the week-end.

Victoria Roads Well Plugged

(Examiner Correspondence.)

LINDSAY, Feb. 11.—As a result of Thursday's storm the highways in Victoria county are reported to almost impassible in some sections. In the Kinmount district the snow is packed six feet deep in some places. They are heavily crusted and cars and trucks cannot penetrate them. Claude Austin, of Kinmount, who is in charge of the snow plough, endeavored to open the roads Friday, and was obliged to use two trucks in order to force the plough through the snow. The men in charge of the Department of Highways truck at Lindsay, which is driven by two Diesel engines, received instructions Friday morning to open up the Lindsay-Newcastle highway as well as the branch road to Bethany. In one section of the road it took the plough one hour to cover eight feet of the drifts, which ranged from six to nine feet in height. The snow was so heavily packed that he was obliged to return to Lindsay. The thaw greatly aggravated the situation, especially the side roads.

Car and Garage Burns.

During the height of the high wind at an early hour Friday morning, a fire broke out at the home of Claude Wade, Ridout street that threatened to assume serious proportions. The blaze broke out in a garage at the rear of his residence, and had gained considerable progress before being noticed. The garage and Mr. Wade's car as well as the summer kitchen were totally destroyed. The house was ignited several times and the residence of Sam How was also threatened. Mr. Wade carried no insurance.

John Crowe Passes.

The death took place in Bobcaygeon this week of John Crowe, a well known resident of the village. Mr. Crowe who was in his sixty-eighth year, was born in Kinmount and lived in Harvey township, Peterborough county, for a time before coming to Bobcaygeon. He was express carrier for the C.P.R. and also carried His Majesty's mail for a number of years. Some time ago he was injured when his horse ran away, from which he never fully recovered. His death was the result of a stroke.

He is survived by his wife, four sons, one daughter and two sisters.

Old Peterborough friends of long ago, and relatives, mourned the death of Edward Robert Mann, who died recently in Davidson, Saskatchewan, in his 77th year.

Mr. Mann was born in Peterborough on July 22, 1862, and was educated in this city, where he lived until 1898, when, with his wife and son he moved to Elgin, Manitoba. Mrs. Roseborough is now the only surviving member of a family of ten. Mr. Mann had a number of relatives near Bridgenorth, all of whom are well known in this district.

Canadian Treaty Not Hurting U.S. Dairymen

WASHINGTON, Feb. 11 (AP).—The United States State Department answering attacks on the reciprocal trade agreement with Canada, assured dairymen in New York and other border states the pact will not adversely affect domestic dairy prices.

The Departments views were expressed by Woodbury Willoughby, senior economic analyst, before the recent annual convention of the Virginia State Dairymens Association.

Many New York dairymen had expressed fears duty reductions on cheese, milk and cream granted to Canada might push down prices of those products in the domestic market. Willoughby, however, declared these fears were unfounded.

"Experience under the first agreement with Canada," he said, "makes it safe to say that the concessions in the new agreement (which became effective last month) will not materially affect the prices received by dairy farmers for their milk even in the border states, where competition from Canada is most feared."

The State Department spokesman contended the reciprocal trade agreement program as a whole was of "decided benefit" to the United States dairy industry.

Advantages Ignored.

Critics of the program, he said, have largely ignored its advantages and have 'grossly exaggerated' the significance of duty reductions on dairy products.

Willoughby said the concessions on cheddar cheese in the new agreement with Canada were the most important from the standpoint of the value of trade involved. Practically all of the cheese imported from Canada is of the cheddar type. Yet, he continued, "the simple fact is that imports always have been too small to have a substantial effect upon the price of cheddar cheese in this country and there is every reason to believe this situation will continue.

"From the standpoint of the dairy producer it is obvious that the cheddar concession can be entirely ignored."

Other dairy concessions—cream and milk—Willoughby dismissed as "even less significant to dairy producers."

Millbrook W.M.S. Completes Quilt

(Examiner Correspondence.)

MILLBROOK, Feb. 11 — Over thirty members and visitors were in attendance at the February meeting of the W.M.S. of St. Andrew's church, held on Wednesday at 3 p.m., Mrs. W. Edmund Ball offering the hospitality of her home for the gathering.

The executive had charge of the program, the group leaders not beginning, in rotation, until the following month. The executive meeting when groups will be arranged as to membership, will be at the parsonage on Tuesday, February 14, at 3 o'clock. Mrs. A. L. Sisco was in the chair for the meeting and following the call to worship Mrs. F. A. Kidd read the lesson, the leader offering prayer, after which the secretary, Mrs. Ross Edmunds, gave a report, noting, among other items, that at present there is a balance in the bank of $12.17.

Mrs. J. McKnight, Christian stewardship secretary, gave a talk on "The Stewardship of Personality," and the Temperance secretary, Mrs. J. Rowland, a paper on "How to Get Rid of the Liquor Traffic."

The supply secretary, Mrs. J. W. Hamilton, reported one quilt needed pleted, and cotton material needed for work to go on another; a letter from Markstay, in Northern Ontario, expressed the thanks of a grateful recipient of the bale of clothing sent a family that had been burned out, having been much helped by the contents.

The chair announced that the Women's World Day of Prayer, on February 24, is to be in St. Andrew's church this year with the three Auxiliaries of the village joining for the service, and the two vice-presidents were appointed a reception committee to welcome all in attendance, Mrs. Edmuund Ball and Miss E. L. Hetherington to take the prayer periods for their society.

A comprehensive report of the recent Presbyterial convention at Peterborough, was given by the delegate, Miss Hetherington, and the study book, dealing with the work of healing in Canada, was covered by Mrs. J. H. George, Miss Luella Rorke, of Japan, and Miss E. C. Hawken were chosen as the missionaries for special prayer, and a duet was sung by Mrs. Percy Stinson and Mrs. F. L. Edworthy.

The hostess, assisted by Miss Bernice Smith, served candy during the social half hour at the close.

Market Review

TORONTO, Feb. 11.—(CP)—Gold stocks displayed mild weakness at the opening today but the tone improved as the two-hour session advanced and the balance of changes over the board at the close showed a margin on the up side. Industrails were inclined to firmness from the opening and the base metals and the western oils posted about as many gains as losses. Volume was small at around 350,000 shares.

Action again was concentrated in the cheaper golds. Stadacona encountered profit-taking and the price eased down a cent or two. Gillies Lake was taken in volume at a gain of two cents and Oro Plata, Madsen, Malartic, Goldfields and Arntfield advanced. Among the medium-price golds the close was up narrowly for Sylvanite, MacLeod-Cockshutt, Preston and Hard Rock. McIntyre and Lake Shore weakened minor fractions.

52 and narrow gains appeared for the Continent, unconfirmed reports stating Belgium had taken 2,000,000 bushels of No. 1 U.S. hard winters.

Market news was generally bullish, but failed to stimulate interest by importing countries. This attitude was prompted mainly by increasing stocks of wheat afloat to Europe which at the close of the week were estimated at 39,000,000 bushels. The figure represented an increase of approximately 17,000,000 bushels since the start of 1939 and was the largest estimate since September.

Ex-Port Hope Girl Dies

MONTREAL, Feb. 11.—(CP). — Mrs. Fannie Banks Brown, 76, widow of William H. Brown, prominent Quebec city merchant and first mayor of the town of Moncalm, later annexed by Quebec, died yesterday.

Mrs. Brown lived all her life at Quebec except for a brief period at Port Hope, Ont.

Nickel was again strong around Waite-Amulet and Ventures Smelters was sold for a loss of ½ to ¾. Silver shares were dull and practically unchanged.

The market was firmer for the utilities, papers, banks and miscellaneous issues. Liquor stocks remained steady in slow trade and the senior oils were unchanged to slightly higher. United Fuel Pfd advanced two points or more to a new high for the year.

The western oil share market was dull. Home improved about five cents and Anglo-Canadian added a cent or two.

SERVICES IN PETERBOROUGH CHURCHES TO-MORROW

Lakefield Missionary and Her Helpers

Miss Fannie Northcott, Canadian missionary at the Baptist Christian Institute, at Swatow, China, shown with four native nurses. The graduate on Miss Northcott's left is a youngster she redeemed out of slavery for $25.00, when the child was eight years old. Now the girl is a graduate nurse and principal of Chinese nurses at the Christian Institute, Swatow. The girl without cap is a probationer—the daughter of Miss Northcott's washwoman—and the two others are pupil nurses, student graduates of the Women's school at Swatow. Miss Northcott is a native of Lakefield. She has spent many years in China.

Girl Redeemed Out Of Slavery Becomes Principal Of Nurses

(Examiner Correspondence.)

LAKEFIELD, Feb. 11.—A Chinese girl, redeemed out of slavery for $25.00 by a Canadian missionary when eight years old, has become Chinese principal of nurses at the Baptist Christian Institute, Swatow, China, writes Miss Fannie Northcott, Baptist missionary in China, in a letter recently received by her cousin Mrs. William Wannamaker of Lakefield.

Miss Fannie Northcott, who is a native of Lakefield has spent 20 years or more of her life in China, as a missionary sent out by the Baptist church. She is at present at work in the Baptist Christian Institute at Swatow, in Southern China.

"The graduate nearest me on the left", she writes, referring to a picture which she enclosed with her letter "is a youngster I redeemed for $25.00 when she was eight years old. She had been sold as a slave girl to a wealthy family. Now she has been educated and trained and is Chinese principal of nurses at the Christian Institute here."

"The two pupil nurses (still referring to the picture) are two student graduates of the Women's School. The probationer (without cap) is the daughter of the woman who does my washing. She is a bright youngster and I think will make a good nurse", Miss Northcott continued.

Aids Poorer Classes.

The Baptist Christian Institute at Swatow, where Miss Northcott is employed was built to meet the needs of thousands of the poorer people in the city. Many of the wealthy Chinese co-operated and gave generously with others to make free dispensary work available to the masses. The dispensary has been a blessing to many thousands who would not otherwise receive the necessary care when ill. A department of midwifery is carried on by a graduate of a School for Midwifery in Canton. Later a laboratory was installed and adds to the efficiency of the work. "Two years ago I was asked to help in the dispensary and to take on the laboratory work", Miss Northcott writes. "We are not equipped to do the more elaborate tests occasionally required—these can be sent to hospital laboratories — but the little we can do, helps greatly in relieving distress."

Teach Caring for Children

Helping the mothers to care properly for their children is one of the special types of work done in the clinic. Many of the mothers have no idea of the importance of proper food for a growing child, of the necessity for cleanliness in preparing food nor of suitable as well as cheap foods which would be available even for the poorest. Proper methods of bathing and prevention of some of the skin diseases so common in the Orient; and care of the eyes and prevention of the ever-present trachoma infection are some of the things taught to the mothers.

One Chinese woman came to the clinic almost blind with chronic trachoma, Miss Northcott relates. Daily treatment for some time and two simple operations gave her about six-tenths vision. It has been said that 80 per cent of the population, men, women and children are suffering from the disease, and one can quite believe that, Miss Northcott writes, as one treats the dispensary patients. The preventative measures taught ought to help the next generation, she adds.

Health Week At Clinic.

Recently a Health week was held at the clinic. Hundreds of people attended during the week. The various exhibits were much appreciated, Miss Northcott states, especially food, properly prepared and covered to keep the flies away, and other foods, carelessly prepared and uncovered with flies feating on it. The bathing of a baby and the simple loose and cool clothing for babies was an especially attractive exhibit for the mothers and young women.

"This gives some idea of the Institute's dispensary work. Much more effective work could be done with more adequate equipment and a larger staff. We are grateful for the opportunity to do the little we can and some few of the patients treated, do get well and strong physically and many of them come to know and love their Heavenly Father because of the efficient and effective work of our Bible woman and other members of the staff." Miss Northcott's letter said in conclusion.

Swatow is in the southern part of China, out of the war-stricken area.

Highlights On Sunday School Lesson

By NEWMAN CAMPBELL

DO NOTHING TO EXTREMES

(The International Uniform Lesson on the above topic for Feb. 19 is Amos 6:1-6; I Peter 2: 11, 12; 4: 1-5, the Golden Texa being Romans 14: 21. "It is good neither to eat flesh, nor to drink wine, nor anything whereby thy brother stumbleth.")

IN THE FIRST reference in the lesson, Amos 6: 1-6, it speaks of people that "that lie upon beds of ivory, and stretch themselves upon their couches, and eat lambs out of the flock, and the calves out of the midst of the stall:

"That chant to the sound of the viol, and invent to themselves instruments of musick, like David:

"That drink wine in bowls, and anoint themselves with the chief ointments; but they are not grieved for the affliction of Joseph."

Eating the lambs out of the flock and the calves out of the stall seemed very extravagant indeed to the shepherds of Israel, whose livelihood came from their flocks."

The idea of drinking wine from bowls, too, is quite extreme, as if wine glasses or goblets did not hold enough for these old wine-bibbers.

Peter begs the early Christians to be careful how they act and not to be unseemly in their talk or actions, because he is afraid the unconverted ones will not think much of the Christians. "Dearly beloved, I beseech you, as strangers and pilgrims, abstain from fleshly lusts, which war against the soul:

"Having your conversation honest among the Gentiles: that, whereas they speak against evil-doers, they may by your good works, which they shall behold, glorify God in the day of visitation."

In other words, Christians are to set a good example to those outside the church, so that they may the more readily accept the teachings of Jesus.

Temperance, of course, does not mean just abstaining from alcoholic drinks. It means that we should not eat too much or speak hastily and without thought, or do anything to excess.

In the days of the disciples and before that there was not the danger in drinking too much or even in eating too much that there is today. Food was simple for most of the people, and they worked hard outdoors with primitive tools, and needed more food to keep them warm and fit. There was not the danger to others, either, when persons drank too much that there is in this machine age, when one befuddled with drink may run someone down in his automobile, or get himself killed because he is too unsteady upon his feet and cannot think fast enough to get out of the way of train or speeding auto. Or, working with machinery, a man may get himself caught and badly hurt.

There are so many more ways in which a drunken person today may injure himself and others that it wise to "look not on the wine when it is red," as the Bible says. Statistics prove that drunken drivers and drunken pedestrians cause far too many accidents.

In Proverbs 23:20, it says: "Be not among the winebibbers; among riotous eaters of flesh:

"For the drunkard and the glutton shall come to poverty; and drowsiness shall clothe a man with rags."

And in verses 31 and 32 of the same chapter it reads: "Look not upon the wine when it is red, when it giveth his color in the cup, when it moveth itself aright.

"At the last it biteth like a serpent, and stingeth like an adder."

Considering all the misery excessive drinking brings, would you not think that men and women would abstain? Homes broken, children without proper food and clothes because a parent spends the money on drink.

Jeremiah, the ancient prophet, tells of taking some young men to a house and setting wine before them, and saying unto him, "Drink ye wine."

"But," they said, "we drink no wine: for Jonadab the son of Rechab our father commanded us saying, 'Ye shall drink no wine, neither ye nor your sons forever'."

Cathedral Musings

There are certain laws governing our spiritual well-being just as there are laws of health and hygiene in relation to our bodily fitness. One of the most important of these laws is that which directs the method of our attunement and communion with God. A man may be a perfect example of bodily health and vitality, he may possess a keen and brilliant intellect, but until he enters into the fellowship of God he has not entered into manhood. To "walk with God" is not a mystic dream, nor is it an experience possible in past ages, but impossible today. It is foolish to suppose, as we too often do, that there was any special period in the world's history in which the spiritual world was more accessible than at any other. We must disabuse our minds of the idea that biblical times were, essence, any different from our own times, for God is eternal and His laws do not change. There are two vital necessities in any approach to spiritual truth and attunement. One is a very real sincerity of purpose and of aspiration, and the other is to still the foolish babbling of the outer self, to cast out the thousand and one vagrant thoughts that arise and so shut out the clamour of the world and the things of this world. Only in this inner silence and solitude can the soul effectively transmit the Divine message. Only by contemplation and in deep meditation can we attune ourselves and truly pray. For true prayer is not the recital of a lengthy list of wants that God knows all about before we ask for them, it is an inner communion in which we speak to God and in which He speaks to us. It is an interaction and exchange between God and ourselves of love, affection, adoration and worship which fortifies us against the cares of this world and brings us into the Peace. It is the method the Master taught us and it is the method of the great mystics of all ages. There is nothing secret or mysterious about it. It is simply: "Be still and KNOW that I am God." Quiet the outer senses, still the insistence of the 'I', 'me', 'myself', still all thoughts of self-desire, for where self is, God is obscured and hidden, and then, in the silence of your heart will God speak. In the casting away of self, will He enter into His Kingdom within you. The Holy Rose will bloom afresh and you will be at peace, the Peace of God, beyond all understanding, Peace Profound.

A National Message

By the late Rev. W. Pascoe Goard, LL.D., F.R.G.S., F.R.E.S

A Lost Document Found.

This is another phase of the same great story. It is told by the Prophet Jeremiah, and is repeated by the author of the epistle to the Hebrews. Under the terms of the new Covenant, the knowledge of God shall become universal. It is the knowledge of Him as Jehovah, the King of Israel, and the God of the whole earth.

Under the terms of the new Covenant the nation Israel shall remain a nation before God forever.

Under the terms of that new Covenant, the law of the Lord shall be restored, and whereas the former law was written on external tables of stone, and was laid up with the ark of the Covenant in the Tabernacle, the law under the new Covenant shall be put in the inward parts of God's people, and shall be written in their hearts and they shall keep His commandments, and do them.

Let us not be mistaken. We have been accustomed to believe that we could at once keep the laws of man, made in our parliaments by our own legislative machinery, and that we could at the same time keep the laws of God.

We are now to learn that there cannot be two systems of law operative together and kept by the same people. We are to learn that we cannot at one and the same time, keep the laws of man and obey the laws of God, any more than we can serve God and Mammon at the same time. Our Lord declared, "Ye canot serve God and Mammon.

Biblical Thoughts For the Shut-Ins

By Rev. E. R. James, Toronto

GENTLENESS

The servant of the Lord must be gentle unto all men.—2 Timothy 2:24.

"A gentlewoman." An old fashioned word rarely used today.

Have you ever met a gentlewoman? Ir so, what an impression she made upon you. Her quietness, charm, low voice and utter absence of "side"; her thoughtful courtesy to every one. The writer boarded for months in the home of such a one. She was indeed a gentlewoman, though she left school at an early age and her hands were toil worn. Yet she was one of Christ's gentlewomen. She was a living example of the injunction: "The servant of the Lord must be gentle unto all men."

It is remarkable that Our Lord is never called gentle by any of the Gospel writers. Thrice the word occurs in the Bible. The psalmist exclaims: "Thy gentleness hath made me great"—Psalm 18:38. St. Paul pleads: "I entreat you by the gentleness of Christ," 2 Cor. 10, 1; and further teaches that "The fruit of the Spirit is gentleness." Gal. 5:24.

Yet Our Lord must have been gentle in the truest sense of the word for the Spirit dwelt in Him in all His fulness. The Spirit descending upon Him in the likeness of a dove taught that Me must be gentle and harmles sas a dove. He never shouts. "His voice is never heard in the streets" says an ancient prophet; a striking contrast to oriental life, which is full of noise and shouting. His actions must have been tinged with this gentleness for He attracted the leper, the outcast and children loved to be taken up in His arms. He is strong but gentle.

The word is practically unknown in the Old Testament Scriptures. For it was an age of hardship, strife and battle. Men rarely died in their beds. God revealed His truth to His ancient people according as men were able to bear it; here a little, there a little; line upon line, precept upon precept. God accomodated Himself to their conditions of life. Then in the fulness of time "the Word was made flesh and dwelt among us and we beheld His glory the glory as of the only begotten of the Father, full of grace and truth."

What impression does your life make upon your friends and acquaintances? For the Christian life is after all an experience; the experience of the indwelling Spirit changing, moulding and revealing the Christ in you. Are you hot temperd, priding yourself in speaking your mind? Some occasion when it is pain and grief to you to hold your peace, you will find the Spirit giving you grace to do so, if you desire Him. When you do speak there will be a gentleness in your tone that will cause you to marvel and you will know that the power of Christ is resting upon you.

It is your privilege to reveal to your friends that Christ is indeed gentle, that you are following in His footsteps, and you are slowly becoming a son, a daughter of God. You may be very orthodox in creed or theology but you are not revealing Christ when you are unloving, thoughtless in your spech and action. Are you conscious of a divine power giving you grace to be gentle, thoughtful and considerate of others?

LET THIS MIND BE IN YOU, WHICH WAS ALSO IN CHRIST JESUS.

Minister To Reply To Correspondent

The minister of St. Andrew's church will reply to a correspondent on next Sunday night. His letter said "in a recent sermon you spoke of the possibility of a Christian becoming a back-slider and eventually a lost soul, how then do you explain the verse John X-28, which says, "And I give unto them eternal life; and they shall never perish, and no one shall snatch them out of my hand."

The old fashioned problems of religion have a habit of coming back to us. Probably the phrase "Once saved always saved" has little meaning to many people today. To those who take religion seriously however it is a serious question.

Leslie Weatherhead of the City Temple, London, who has become one of the outstanding ministers in England said recently that the blessings of salvation can never be lost, theoretically, he said, it is possible, but in practice it is not; which means that the scriptures teach it, but in real life if does not work out that way. They always come back, says Mr. Weatherhead under some word of challenge, some call from the Christ to return. Our reply is very simple, how does he know that they always come back. Has he tabulated every case? His logic is at fault and his common sense.

Mr. Weatherhead leans towards universalism, which means that all people will eventually be saved. It is a very desirable doctrine, every one of us would wish it to be true, but the question arises, is it true?

Peter Heals a Lame Man — ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON — By Alfred J. Buescher

Scripture—Acts 3:1 to 4:22

Peter heals the lame man at the entrance to the temple, and the man enters the temple with Peter, leaping and praising God.

The people gather around Peter and John, greatly wondering at the miracle; and Peter tells them faith in Jesus has done it.

But the priests and captain of the temple detain them until the next day, but can find nothing wrong, so let them go.

They are told, however, that they must not mention the name of Christ, but they go on preaching. (GOLDEN TEXT—Acts 3:6.)

People Are Disappointed

Our parliament, a session of which costs $2,400,000, has been in session for 22 days, and for the most part it has wasted each and every one of those days. The Examiner would prefer to point to parliament as a great central body which was fully alive to the needs of this country and which was leaving all poor and small material to one side in the pursuit of greater issues which have been waiting a long time for intelligent and vigorous treatment. But it is one of those things which in truth cannot be said. Our parliament is wasting time.

It wasted days and weeks in a meaningless debate on the reply to the address from the throne. It is doing worse than wasting time in the debate on the Bren gun contract, and one might well hope that Mr. Justice Davis in his report on that contract had not turned so much of the final answering back to parliament. He seemed to have taken it for granted that cool logic and the power to reach proper conclusions was contained within the four walls of the House of Commons. Possibly by now he is aware of the mistake he made.

The debate on the Bren gun business is as political as a meeting of the local patronage committee in any given riding. The central point of how best to have Bren guns manufactured for the Canadian and British forces has been lost in the blizzard of overblown political verbosity.

The members of parliament are calling each other names; they are busy digging up what was said during some election campaign in other years; they are moved to parade their length and calibre of public service in a spirit of braggadocio which belongs to the pages of a paper-covered and not a high-priced thriller.

We believe the feeling of the people of the country is not one of anger nor yet of bitter resentment toward the course which their parliament is taking, but rather one of disappointment. And disappointment carries with it the hope for something better which has not been realized.

Soaking The Rich

Sir Edward Beatty, president of the C.P.R., said in an address that he did not believe the policy of "soaking the rich" was a sound one for purposes of taxation. Two reasons he advanced (1) if too much were taken away from a man it brought him to the place where he curtailed activity because he was finding effort futile, and (2) when the rich man is soaked he has a splendid chance many times to pass his taxation along to other people and by such process makes it harder for them. These "other people" we take it, would by that process, become the actual taxpayers for the rich man.

With the result of heavy taxation acting as a deterrent on an individual and stepping down the degree of his activity we are not for the moment much concerned, but Sir Edward is close to the truth when he says it is one thing to soak a rich man and another thing to make him stay soaked. It is quite conceivable that there are men who when they find themselves heavily taxed regard such an outlay as overhead. They are not inclined to look upon their tax bill as a contribution made by a patriot for the common cause, but it becomes to them an outlay which they are going to recover. The process of recovery may cause them to extract a small amount from a large number of consumers of their goods or services. It might possibly take the form of a little less in a pay envelope or a call for more action and more output on the part of a number of employed individuals. It could, as Mr. Beatty suggests, enter any one of a number of channels and in the end the effect would be the same—the man who had been soaked by a heavy tax would have shaken himself dry and possibly a large number of people had unknowingly or unwillingly assisted in the process.

The Death Of Pius XI.

The death of Pope Pius XI. removes a figure whose sphere of influence has been world wide, a worthy successor of a long line of notable men. The name Pius was first adopted by the incumbent of that high post in 1458. The reign of Pius X. ended in 1914, and he is remembered by Catholics as the practical parish priest who understood well the problems of those the world over who carried on the work. Followed by Benedict XV., whose election was in September of 1914, the "man of peace" found himself faced with a world at war. He it was who moved valiantly for conferences which might end the slaughter. Pius XI. succeeded in February of 1922, and it is probably true enough to say that no Pope faced times which were more out of tune with his own hopes and strong desires, and none had met with more rebuffs from national leaders.

Pius XI. was unyielding in his strong opposition to the spirit of intense nationalism on which Mussolini rebuilt Italy; he could not believe that every lad had to be a soldier; to him there was a broad line and a clear cleavage between patriotism and so intensely nationalistic feeling that a clear and fair conception of the world and its people became impossible. He had a horror of war, and he lived in times when he saw his people in distress in Russia, Mexico, Germany and even in Italy. To his own people he desired to teach above all else the universal rule of Christ. The full extent to which Pius XI. was embarrassed and beset by the Italian premier may never be known. There could be no meeting place between the two. Mussolini was and is a man of war and war preparation and all must bend to that idea. Pius XI. abhorred such a program and it is no exaggeration to say he detested the intense nationalism to which Mussolini had committed his people.

To Catholics the world over Pius XI. was not merely the high ranking personage in Rome. Through his numerous and varied encyclicals he showed the clear exposition of the workings of his mind; he encouraged the priests to have their people gather together for study and for discussion; he was not willing that they should take all for granted, but preferred a well-informed membership in Catholic churches. Pius XI. felt himself out of touch with capitalism as at present constituted and did not hesitate to say so. Through all these methods he had managed to widely diffuse his personality through the entire Catholic community. It is on that account that Catholics the world over deeply mourn their loss.

Yes—We Recommend It

Not so many years ago skating was just skating. Now and then there would be races, and apart from that there would be those with an artistic sense who could cut a grape-vine or do a figure eight on the ice.

We have passed into something which is vastly different, and it may be we are not entirely aware of how great the change has been. There are a good many of our cities now where children go and learn skating as they go to water tanks and learn swimming in the scientific way, and it is difficult enough to select any other field of physical and artistic effort which lends itself to such development in equal way.

Seldom does the Examiner use its editorial space to suggest that people go to this or that, but when thirty-five members of the Toronto Skating Club express a willingness to give an exhibition in our city on the 17th at the Brock St. Arena under the auspices of the Winter Sports Committee, then we do not hesitate to advise people to attend. The Toronto skaters put on an exhibition here previously and it was an evening of keen delight for the spectators. The visitors give their services without cost, and the Toronto Skating Club includes in its membership much of the finest talent in the Dominion. And in the world. When they appear in their own city or elsewhere the experience is a crowded house and trouble enough trying to find a seat. We take full responsibility for recommending this as one of the outstanding events of the 1939 season.

Paying For Confusion

Laws and the making of more of them is confusing. True enough, there have been laws in existence for a long time and they are often enough being changed, but the making of new laws is now at its peak. It must be.

We have so many bodies in existence to which power is given to make these laws that they are bound to be confusing. There is a case in point at the moment. Quebec is a province in the Dominion the same as Ontario or any other provincial unit. The legislature of Quebec passed legislation affecting the price which was to be charged for repairing shoes, and these prices were higher than those which had been charged when prices were regulated by the common practice of one business in free and open competition with another.

Mr. Justice G. F. Gibsone has given a ruling which sets the Quebec legislation at one side; he said it is beyond the power of the province to pass such measures; that such matters were in the field of federal jurisdiction, and that fixing prices contravened the law restricting combines in restraint of trade.

In Ontario we have a law which sets the price for services which one receives in a barber shop. In our city one pays 40 cents for a hair cut, and if a barber were to charge less he could be brought before the court and fined, and that has actually happened. The confusion of which we speak comes right here—

In Quebec a learned judge has found the legislature has no power to regulate the price which shall be charged for the repairing of shoes, while in Ontario our legislature regulates the price to be charged for cutting hair. In terms of occupation these services are in different fields, but essentially the principle involved is exactly the same — the fixed price which an individual shall pay for a service performed. We can do it in Ontario and a judge finds they cannot do it in Quebec.

In Quebec if an individual is found to be a communist, or if he is engaged in spreading the doctrine of communism then the officers can go and padlock his home or his place of business. It is possible to turn a family out on the street without a trial. In Ontario no such thing is possible and we are certain the people of this province would not tolerate it.

But it is an added illustration of the way in which we are developing a checker board system of rule in Canada, and it is because we have ten governments making laws. Instead of having laws for the people of Canada we have become so segregated that what people can do here they cannot do there. Worse still—we pay legislators for making laws and we pay learned judges for saying they never should have been made.

Surely It's a Mistake

It is reported from Guelph that those who are receiving relief in that city have been asked by the Relief committee to be tested as to their fitness for making blood donations for purposes of transfusions, and the reason for the request is stated this way: "To help repay in some measure the taxpayers who are now supporting you." An added inducement is that "an additional food voucher will be given if you are accepted."

If there had been any occasion to make such an appeal to all the citizens of Guelph there would be no cause for serious objection, but why those on relief should be singled out is rather beyond the average power of understanding.

When the appeal is based on the plea that by becoming donors of blood for transfusion purposes those on relief will be helping to "repay in some measure the taxpayers who are supporting you," it seems that relief recipients have been classed as chattels or as something not far removed from serfs.

It is difficult to believe that such an appeal has the sanction or approval of Guelph City Council. We prefer to think some person not blessed with a great supply of good judgment has taken the initiative and done something which never should have been done.

TOO OLD

(By A.R.K.)

¶ A man who looked both tired and old, was feeling rather down and cold, he wandered round alone; he didn't have a place to go, and in his wandering he was slow, he didn't have a home.

¶ He was too old to work they said, for years had touched with grey his head, could tell that at a glance; each time he went to talk to them, they said they wanted younger men, he never had a chance.

¶ He always used to work before, would turn his hand to any chore, would do what he was told; the one thing wrong with him he said, was folks had got it in their head, that he was far too old.

¶ He never made a decent wage, to save for his advancing age, at best his cash was small; and there were times although he tried, to lay a little bit aside, he couldn't save at all.

¶ And so he's wandering out today, perhaps you passed him on the way, as he might go or come; perhaps he's guilty of the crime, of asking people for a dime, you said he was a bum.

¶ I often wonder how we'd feel, if we were looking for a meal, and it was wet and cold; if all the harm that we had done, was that we lived while long years run—then found we were too old.

Lamplighter's Column

NEXT TUESDAY, February 14th, we shall be watching for the mail-man with more than usual expectation. Every one of us knows that it will be Saint Valentine's Day—a festival that your forefathers and mine have been observing for so long that we have almost entirely forgotten why we do it.

When you say "Valentine", what language are you speaking? "English, of course" you will say; or perhaps "Canadian". But you are not! To find the beginnings of this word we have to turn the pages of history back a very long way—before there was any Canada—passing by Britain in its Georgian, its Stuart, its Tudor, its Plantagenet, and even much earlier periods, until we see only a series of savage tribes, painted blue with woad, and mining a little tin in the extreme southwest which we now call Cornwall. Strange craft with purple sails would put in here to barter for the silvery metal, manned by dark-skinned, amost red, sailors, who spoke a strange tongue. If we could have been on the shore with them about this time of year, we might easily have heard—as one of the sailors looked across the sea and recalled what was going on in his native egypt—three strange words sounding like Fe-Ren-Ten—the same word that we have softened down to Valentine.

OBSERVED IN EGYPT

It was the day when Egypt decided, by the drawing of lots, who should marry whom. Once each year the young men and maidens put their names on slips of bone or papyrus and placed them in huge jars. Then the priest drew them out at random—one name from the men, another from the maids—and read them aloud. So were they married, and, of course, lived happily ever after! Marriage, then as now, was a lottery, and Egypt made no bones about it.

From Egypt the Valentine ceremonies went to Rome, and persisted there in spite of all that Christian missionaries could do. And then the Emperor Claudius put a new spoke into the wheel by forbidding marriage altogether. Rome was spreading into other countries by this time, and needed all the soldiers she could get. Married men, the Emperor decided, did not make good soldiers. They seemed to prefer to stay at home and fight with their own families in the good old way of going abroad and fighting complete strangers! Therefore marriage was abolished, and the Emperor appeared to think all he had to do was to issue a decree saying so!

The young people of Rome, however, had ideas of their own. They fell in love in the good old way, and proceeded to get married without benefit of priest or legal aid. This state of affairs so saddened the heart of a kindly, understanding old priest named Valentine that he invited all young couples to come to him secretly and be properly married. In due course the Emperor heart of it, and poor Valentine went to a Roman prison forthwith.

This kindliness and love for others did not leave him under misfortune, however, for we are told that while in jail he healed the daughter of his jailer of blindness — just as the Apostles in the early days of Christianity healed the sick, who were brought to them. After suffering in prison for a long time, the kindly old priest and "friend of lovers" was taken outside the city, beaten with clubs, and then beheaded. All that remains of him is preserved in the Church of Saint Praxedes at Rome, and the gate in the city walls through which he went to his end was called Porta Valentini, in his memory.

About this time the Christian Church, with rare wisdom, was changing the old Pagan festivals into Christian ones by substituting the names of their own Saints for the old heathen ones, and so nearly all our holidays—or holy days—had a pagan beginning. They did away with choosing husbands and wives by lottery, and set aside February 14th as the day of Saint Valentine—the day of all true lovers.

But old customs die hard, especially when they are tied up with anything so popular as love! Although the main object of the day had been changed, the old customs of the lottery still persisted, though there was no need for it. Instead of drawing lots blindly, young people sent imitation lottery slips to the damsels of their choice, and so the present day Valentine was born.

It seems odd to think, doesn't it, that all the flood of Valentine cards which will fill our mail boxes next week had their beginnings in the old lottery jars of Egypt. It has aways been so, and many a hope-chest has been started on nothing more definite than a lacy valentine, elaborately folded and decorated with doves and interlaced hearts—with that, and a little determination on the lady's part!

Perhaps it is natural for all of us to hold on to those things that instinctively we need. Love is a dominating force in life, whether we recognize it consciously or not. There is all too little of it actively at work in our every day lives, spreading its kindly, healing influence over the rough paces. A little more tolerance, a little more understanding, a little more of the love that "suffereth long, and is kind" makes life something more worthwhile,—makes every day Saint Valentine's Day, instead of remembering him but once a year on February 14th.

In Cannes, France, as the Duke and Duchess of Windsor, other international socialites sat chatting with Lord Beaverbrook, the talk turned to cuff links. The Duke displayed a fancy pair, given him by his Jewel-loving Duchess. Others showed theirs. Lord Beaverbrook stealthily pulled down his coat sleeves. When the Duchess demanded that he show his links, he sheepishly revealed a pair of safety pins.—(Time)

Letters To The Editor

Correspondents Discuss Various Topics

MUST WORK TOGETHER

EDITOR Examiner: Sir: We are glad to see some of the younger farmers 'get into print' as in the letter by 'Farmer's Son' recently. So much depends on them whether farming becomes an occupation of which we country people may justly be proud, or whether it remains 'down in the depths'.

We naturally look to our County Council for leadership to improve conditions in the country districts and too much praise cannot be given them for their efforts to extend the co-operation movement in Peterborough County. But they need the backing of every farmer in the county, and every farmer must use his head as well as his hands. We also commend the U. F. O. campaign in which the young people are carrying on an educational drive, and we should keep in mind that we must follow up theory with practice. Action must follow education or we do not get results.

There was one little point in the letter of Farmer's Son with which I did not agree and we might have a discussion over it. It takes years of hard work with both head and hands, to become a good farmer and a farmer's income should be compared only with that of business and professional men in the cities. I am afraid it is too true that the income from the work of dairying is only 5 cents an hour, and that many in similar positions in the cities receive 60 to 70 cents an hour.

It is hardly fair to compare the farmer's wage income with that of an inexperienced workman in the city. As the writer says, he was as good after being three or four days a week as after being there six months and there was nothing more to learn. He received 28 cents an hour and those wages should in all fairness, be compared with those of the average hired man employed on a farm the year around. Even allowing for board and washing, what is the hourly wage which the farmer can pay? Will someone write the answer to that?

We do not like to find fault with living conditions on the farm but we must not be satisfied with prices as they are now. We know that our city friends do not wish us to make comparisons and try hard to make us willing to take just what they offer. Even the editor of one of our farm magazines is still trying to impress on farm readers that the price of goods exported sets the price received here in Canada and we suspect he wants us to be satisfied with low prices for our produce. But it is necessary for the farmers to fight for an equalization of salaries, wages and living conditions in the urban and rural districts.

When the farmer receives about 3 or 4 cents a quart for milk delivered in Toronto and the consumer pays 12 cents a quart, it is city dwellers who make a living and profits. In the same way we farmers may be forced to set up factories farm machinery, for example, and other manufactured goods, throughout the country. These could be operated in the winter giving work to farm young men and women at wages consistent with those we receive on the farm. After a few years, with the capital paid back and no dividends to pay to unnecessary shareholders, the goods would be sold to farmers at little above cost. That may be one way to reduce costs of living in the country and make better living conditions.

WAGES AND PRICES

Editor Examiner:

Sir,—On Wednesday CBL broadcasted concerning labor relations. The subject was "Would higher wages increase the price of manufactured articles." I will give my opinion about labor.

I would not like to see the urban laborer receive the low wages that the rural man gets. A survey of the province shows that the farmer gets up to 4 cents per hour for dairying while some field crops show a loss on operation.

The average farmer works 12 hours daily for six days and rests while he does chores on the seventh. The total income for all produce sold on the average farm is about $750 which is interest on investment, taxes, rent, food, clothing, threshing etc. etc.

Of Canada's population 40 per cent are rural and these 40 per cent get 10 per cent of the wealth, whereas they should have some consideration. They are the backbone of the Nation, with all the hardships how many ask for relief from this province?

I firmly believe that the economic outlook of the country would be much better if a living wage (not high or slave wage) were paid the factory worker. I have no set wage in mind since the larger centres trend to have higher cost of living due to rent, taxes and foodstuffs.

By a not too high a wage paid to urban worker all can buy for less than if higher wages are paid and therefore buy just as much at a lower wage as when higher wages are paid because the article can sell for less since wages set the prices. Here is where the boom comes—40 per cent of population are farmers and when wages are high they have not the money to buy because farm prices do not rise fast. The farmer is the largest buyer, or at least should be; because of the machines used, also all his equipment.

Because of the unfair ratio between rural and urban incomes, the farmer cannot hire the help he should have so he does three things; (a) lets the buildings and fences get out of repair; (b) he and his family work long hard hours; (c) gets machines to do the work for him. With farm income closer to amount of city income per unit of work, this would not be the case and much of the unemployment would disappear here. Some of the machines used by farmers are so costly and used so little that he would be dollars ahead if he could get dependable men at decent wages when he wants them but a machine is at his command when needed.

I am fully aware that high wages are not the only reason that we find the country in the state it is today, but if these wages of rural and urban workers were closer then, more manufactured goods would be used and home industry could compete with the imports to better advantage—and in some cases even export. Thus unemployment decreases and since relief is one cause of high taxes, then they would fall.

The co-op. movement can do a lot to help the situation by reducing the profits kept by the manufacturer.

Here is a table to show why the farmers are handicapped:

	1929	1933	1935	1938
Single plow	$ 21.50	19.75	20.50	24.50
Mower (6 ft.)	99.00	78.50	102.50	112.75
Binder 6 ft.)	250.00	225.00	249.00	281.50

What is wrong by the above figures as farm prices are not up near the 1929 level?

I expect that some person will give the pros and cons of my ideas.

Yours with hope,
CLARENCE M. JOHNSTON.

A Bible Message For Today . . .

For they that are after the flesh do mind the things of the flesh: but they that are after the Spirit the things of the Spirit. For to be carnally minded is death; but to be spiritually minded is life and peace. Because the carnal mind is enmity against God: for it is not subject to the law of God, neither indeed can be.

So then they that are in the flesh cannot please God. But ye are not in the flesh, but in the Spirit, if so be that the Spirit of God dwell in you. Now if any man have not the Spirit of Christ, he is none of his. And if Christ be in you, the body is dead because of sin; but the Spirit is life because of righteousness. . . .

For as many as are led by the Spirit of God, they are the sons of God.—Rom. viii, 5-10, 14.

P.C.I. BASKETBALL TEAMS BREAK EVEN WITH BOWMANVILLE

Senior Outfit On Short End Of 37-34 Score

Three P.C.I. basketball squads broke even in their crucial triple-header with Bowmanville High in the Rubbertown gym; the Garnet and Grey Junior boys winning 17-16, the Senior girls dead-locking B.H.S. 21-all, and the Senior P.C.I. boys losing a heart-breaker 37-34.

The Junior boys took a 6-2 lead at the half and then managed to stave of fa last half B.H.S. rally to win 17-16 and take a firm stranglehold on first place in their grouping. It was hard, fast basketball all the way with the teams battling almost on even terms, P.C.I. having an edge in the opening half and Bowmanvile all but making it up in the last. Only nine fouls were called on the two teams, P.C.I. making one throw and the losers two. Scott, Clarke and Moore starred for the winners and Jackman and Slemon for B.H.S. The teams:

P.C.I.—Clarke (6), Scott (2), Moore (4), McPherson (4), Gillespie (1), Hall, Dundas, Kay, Moorhead.

B.H.S.—Slemon (5), McIlveen (1), Jackman (6), Morden, Crawford (2), Allin, Tamblyn, McFeeters (2).

Referee—Alex Colville, Bowmanville.

Tight Tussle

Bowmanville Senior girls had a 12-8 edge at the half and increased their margin in the opening minutes of the last period but P.C.I.'s spirited last quarter drive earned them a tie. It was a bitterly contested game the whole route with both teams checking hard and passing and shooting well on the offensive. Bowmanville appeared to have it in the bag in the third quarter almost doubling the P.C.I. score but the visitors fought back and tied it up in the closing minutes. H. Granville and B. Emmett were the homesters stars and E. Saunders led the P.C.I. forces with 16 points. The teams:

P.C.I. (21)—E. Saunders (16), R. Dalliday, J. Ottewell, E. Craig (1), M. Juby, D. Glover, L. Reed, A. Richardson, H. Beatty, J. Coleman (4).

B.H.S. (21)—K. Storey, B. Emmett (2), H. Glanville (14), M. Spencer (1), G. Wagar, D. Tapsor, D. Swale, D. Wheeler.

Referee—W. Nichols, Bowmanville. Umpire W. Sanders, Peterborough.

P.C.I.'s Garnet and Grey Senior boys had a 17-16 margin at the half in their crucial battle with the Rubbertown Senior squad, but Bowmanville came back strongly and won out in the bitterly-fought last period to tie P.C.I. for the Senior Lakeshore League leadership. Both squads gave a good exhibition of basketball after the first quarter, with the large gallery on their feet as the game went into the dying minutes with play up and down the floor at a torrid pace. Gillespie, Foster, Mason and Fagan for B.H.S. and Johnston for the losers were the stars. The teams:

P.C.V.S. (34)—Centre, Foster (10); forwards, Cutting (5), Taylor (8); guards, Gillespie (8), Johnston (3); subs, Moorhead, W. Ferguson, W. Harle, R. Ferguson.

B.H.S. (37)—Centre, Fagan (8); forwards, Brown (10), Mason (9); guards, Collville (7), Cashburn; subs, Graham, James, McIlveen (1), C. McIlveen (2).

Referee—Doc. Worton, Peterboro.

Slight Difference Of Opinion

Attempting, without a great deal of success, to settle their differences on the links, are major league baseball's champion golfer, Wes Ferrell, Yankee pitcher, and second best Paul Waner, Pittsburgh Pirate outfielder. Ferrell defeated Waner, defending champion and favorite for the event, on the 38th hole of their final round, to win back the title held in 1936. That's Ferrell on the RIGHT.

Tweed, Stirling Play 3-3 Tie

(Examiner Correspondence.)

TWEED, Feb. 11. — In one of the fastest games of the season at the local arena on Friday evening, Tweed and Stirling played to a three-all overtime game. Both teams put on a good exhibition of combination, and at times sensational goal tending was displayed by goth goalies, especially by Fox in the Stirling nets, who practically robbed the home forces of goals, as they coasted in on him time and gaina, only to have him smother the shots. One of the largest crowds of the season was on hand to witness the exhibition.

In the first period, which opened with close checking on both teams, Stirling went into a 2-1 lead. Potter after being checked inside the Tweed blue line by Tummon, recovered the puck and drove a sizzler past Reeves for the first counter. In a scramble behind the nets, Walker grabbed the puck to put the Sunocos two up on the home forces. On one of the best solo rushes displayed this season, J. Tummon grabbed the puck behind the Tweed nets, skated down through the whole team and drove the puck into the lower corner of the nets to tally the first counter.

Opening up in the second period, Courneyea scored the tying goal on a pass from Elsbury, and on another rush the two players combined again to put the home forces one up, with Courneyea registering on a pass from Elsbury.

Stirling Ties It Up.

Putting on a four-man power play near the end of the game, the Stirling boys kept Tweed in their own end of the rink, and with seconds to go, scored the tying goal from the face-off. In the overtime which was featured by one offside after another, Tweed kept Stirling pretty well at bay, and did not allow them to break into the open. Baldy Leal played his poke checking to perfection and prevented a well-organized attack being staged. No penalties were handed out in the overtime.

For the visitors, Fox with his brilliant play between the gas pipes, was the standout, particularly so when the Tweed boys coasted in on him time and time again, only to rob them of sure counters.

On the home team, Reeves played a whale of a game, and robbed the Sunocos of a higher count, and was exceptionally good on scrambles in front of the nets, on two occasions, just stopping the puck outside the posts. The Elsbury, Courneyea combination went to town on several rushes, and starred on the passing. The hefty defenceman, J. Tummon, handed them out, and on his solo rushes kept Fox on his toes during the game.

As a result of this tie, the Tweed boys have entrenched themselves deeper in fourth place, and with good fortune should reach the play-offs.

Inside Sportin' Dope

by A. WISE CRACKER

Mister Sporting Editor:

Well, Mac, this has gotta be wrot ahead of the 1st game of the group playoffs between the Trenton Flyers and the Buckaroos and so they ain't much to be said about that fracus except that the outlook is for bad ice and scrambly hockey and anybody else is likely to be the winner in that kinda going.

The loop has been 1 of the screwiest on record this season Mac and it is a good job for the teams they aint race horses or they woulda been give the saliva test long before this.

Hard To Figure

The Petes for ex. has gone down to Belleville and made the Airmen look like they had all been through a forced landing and then they come back here last Fri. nite and the home talent didn't even go through the motions of being a good hockey team on that occasion while the flyers on the other hand was slipping passes around, across and backward like a game of Chinese checkers and the Petes couldn't looked worse if the New York Rangers had been slipped in there against them. I still think our lads had what it takes to win the playoff serious and that is in spite of what the 2 teams has done against each other and how each of them has performed against Belleville Red men what has made it plenty tough for both.

Colts Even It Up

In the junior serious, old timer, the Colts pulled theirselfs up even with the Oshawa B team here the other nite by taking the heavy and smart-looking visitors into camp 6 to 2. At the go-in the Oshawa gang seemed to have the big edge so far as style and appearance went but the Colts kept battling them along and eventually pulled away and win looking back as they say on the race track. It was a game that was outstanding in 1 respect anyway for Mister Peg Hurst, Oshawa goalie and outfielder, who handled the whistle, banished 22 of the boys during the engagement. At one time Oshawa was 2 men short and later on the young Petes found theirselfs in a similar picklement. The fans didn't like some of Mister Hursts decisions and once in the final period the game had to be held up until the programs was cleared off of the ice which prompts the suggestion that if the management wants to stop that kinda thing all they gotta do is to hold up the prize draw until the end of the game and the fans will keep the programs in their pockets. They gotta hate a referee a lot before they will toss a chance to win a prize over the boards.

They're Tough To Stop

Well, Mac, the N. H. L. is beginning to square away to go round the last coroner into the straitaway and so far none of the teams has found a way to stop that Boston gang. The loop was supposed to play all season to eliminate 1 team but the Bruins has been working on another angle and they been playing all year to eliminate six other teams and they pretty well have done it, too. Personally the Rangers is my favorite outfit for they play the kinda hockey that gives the spectators the best that is to be had in the sport but my preference for Mister Patrick's Pets don't blind me to the fact that the Ross Rifles has power plus. They ain't exactly pretty but their efficient and after all efficiency counts.

Well, old timer, they don't seem to be anything more of note so then let's sound the All Clear and get away from here.

Sportfully Yours
A. Wise Cracker.

Three Tight Tilts In C.G.E. Circuit

In three postponed C.G.E. Shop Hockey League games, played Thursday night at the Brock St. rink, Wire Dept. and Switchgears went to a 1-1 tie, Machine Shop grabbed off a 4-3 nod over Cabinets, and Test Dept. defeated Fractionals by a 3-1 score. All three tussles were fast, keen and exciting, the last one being high-lighted by a fist fight between Jerry Coughlin and Phil Pryde, both getting the gate. The schedule is about over in this lively circuit now, and playoffs are due ot commence in another week.

Winners Of Major Events In 1938 Tourney Entered In This Year's Big Bonspiel

TORONTO, Feb. 11—(CP).—Although two of last year's prize winners will be absent when the 12th annual Ontario bonspiel opens here Monday, winners of major events in the 1938 turney, will be present, officials said today.

One of the 124 rinks competing, Bert Hall's great Kitchener curling four, that won the Royal York trophy, premier award of the meet, will be making a bid to repeat. Hall also captured the Royal York in 1937 and with it the grand, aggregate prize.

T. S. Graham's Torontos, holders of the grand aggregate and also of the Seiberling trophy, will compete. Ed Young's fine Toronto Royal Canadians, who met Hall in the Royal York final and lost out to Graham in a playoff for the grand eggregate, also will be gunning for major awards.

Winners of the Royal York's first round may compete for the Seiberling and Birks-Ellis-Ryrie trophies. Alex Gardiner's capable Sarnia quartet that triumphed in the Birks-Ellis-Ryre last year have entered.

But Dave Walker's Fort William four that made off with both the North American Life and Seagram trophies, open to losers in the Royal Yorks' first round, have not registered. Also absent is L. Christie's North Bay rink, winner of the Canada Dry consolation event in 1938.

Included in the entry lists are eight rinks from Northern Ontario, two from Ottawa, four from Kingston, four from Detoit, one fom Milwaukee, Wis., two from Guelph, three from Sarnia, one from Chatham, Ont., five from Kitchener and three from London, Ont.

Canadian Star Makes It Close

One of the feature performances of the Millrose games, big winter track meet held annually in New York, was the 600 yard race in which Bill Fritz, Maple Leaf representative at the last Olympic Games, and now a student at Queen's University in Kingston; forced Wesley Wallace, Fordham University, to the second best time in the history of the event, to come out the victor. The picture shows Wallace breasting the tape with Fritz right at his heels. Back in third place can be seen Jim Herbert, of New York University.

Canadians Trim Swiss Outfit To Meet Czechs

ZURICH, Switzerland, Feb. 11—(CP).—Canada's Smoke Eaters from Trail, B.C., today play a return engagement with Czecho-Slovakia, the team that has given them the toughest opposition so far in the world amateur hockey tournament.

The game will be the second of the final pool for the Canadians, who yesterday trimmed Switzerland 7-0.

Last Wednesday, in a semi-final pool game, the Czechs held the Smoke Eaters scoreless and at a one goal disadvantage for two periods. On that occasion, however, the Canadians were able to turn on the heat in the final period for two goals to keep their string of wins unbroken.

Nevertheless, the Czechs are the only team to score against Canada so far in the tournament.

Gave U.S. hard Battle

Yesterday, the puckchasers from Prague, gave the favored United States team its hardest battle of the tourney, playing stubborn, air-tight hockey until near the end of a second overtime period when the Americans got the only goal of the game.

Sixteen thousand watched the Canadians take another step yesterday, at Basle toward, holding the title that was won last year by Sudbury Wolves and the year before by Kimberley Dynamiters, Allan Cup holders all.

Joe Benoit netted the initial goal against the Swiss in the fourth minute of the opening period, Ab Cronie made it two in the eighth minute. Both were individual efforts.

In the second frame, Bunny Dame scored twice, Cronie got another and Mel Snowdon scored to make it 6-0; Mickey Brennen bagged No. 7 in the last period.

LAKEFIELD LEGIONNAIRES DROP GAME 4 TO 2 TO WHITBY

Largest Crowd Of Season Sees Great Game

(Examiner Correspondence.)

LAKEFIELD, Feb. 11—Five hundred fans, the largest crowd of the season, witnessed a spectacular struggle here Friday evening, when the Lakefield Legionnaires met Whitby in the regular Intermediate "B" O.H.A. schedule, and drapped the match 4 to 2, after giving Whitby something to worry about every second of the sixty minutes.

It was a fast game, with both teams close-checking at all times and breaking up one another's plays persistently.

Lakefield took the offensive in the first period and made a real try for counters, but Whitby was waiting for them on every occasion and the opening period ended with a scoreless tie. Lakefield's second forward line of O'Leary, Deeth and Creighton, completed a lovely combination play in this canto, when they worked the puck well up to the goal only to have Deeth's shot turned back by the all-powerful Clark, in the net for Whitby, Whitton, Blewett and Jewell all made quick tries for goals in the first, but were too closely checked to depend for their aim on anything but luck. And the fair goddess of fortune, enarmoured no doubt by the smooth Whitby lay-out, refused to smile in the Legionnaire's direction. Score end of first, Whitby 0, Lakefield 0.

Put On Pressure

The visitors went onto the ice in the second session determined to put something on the Whitby side of the score-sheet. A drive on the Lakefield net in the first few minutes, had Lakefield fans holding their breath. But Loyst, in Lakefield goal, played a great game and, given plenty of support by Burton and Chittick, held off this attack. A single-handed attempt by Whitby gave Lakefield supporters another heart attack, but the shot missed the goal by a little and and the fans breathed again.

Then Lakefield's worries really started, and before spectators realized what was happening, Thompson had pushed the puck past Loyst and the score stood at Whitby 1, Lakefield 0. Hodge, on the visitors' front line, was responsible for the second counter, and then Piper plastered in a third to make the Legionnaires look plenty small on the zero-end of a 3-0 score about halfway through the match.

Held to Whitby Zone

But Lakefield kept right on trying and in the latter part of the centre session kept the play pretty much up toward the Whitby goal. The Legionnaires reaped their first reward for persistent efforts, when Blewett broke away like a flash and landed a honey between the goal posts and around Clark, to end the second period Whitby 3, Lakefield 1.

Lakefield entered the third with grim determination to show their mettle, and it was really a pleasure to watch them perform. Blewett broke through once but his quick shot missed the mark. Then Chappell made a nice try which was turned back by the goalie, and when O'Leary finally took a pass from Burton and placed it in the net, it looked as though the Legionnaires would tie these formidable rivals for play-off honors. But Whitby was right in there all the time, breaking up plays, and when Chappell got a penalty it left the Legionnaires short-handed long enough for Watson, on the Whitby forward line, to push in the fourth counter, and give the Lakefield fans a permanent headache. Final score: Whitby 4, Lakefield 2.

The teams:

Whitby Argos: Goal, Clark; defence, L. Vipond and B. Vipond; centre, Heard; wings, Hodge and Watson; alternates, Piper, Mayne, Philips, Bagnell and Thompson.

Lakefield Legionnaires: Goal, Loyst; defence, Burton and Chittick; centre, Whitton; wings, Jewell and Blewett alternates, Deeth, O'Leary, Creighton and Chappell.

Plays Standout Game In Goal

The Petes pulled out a 6-5 win over Trenton Fliers here last night in the first of their senior "B" group playoffs, and Ray Harding (above) turned in a fine effort in the nets for the locals. He thefted the Airmen frequently with fine saves, especially when the Petes were shorthanded, due to penalties.

Combines Humbled 4-3 In Overtime As Mic-Macs Take Fiery Session

HAVELOCK, Feb. 11.—Before the largest crowd of the season at the Norwood arena, the Norwood-Havelock 'Combines' dropped a close decision to the Madoc-Marmora 'Mic-Mac' last night, the final score being 4-3, after one overtime period. The game ran along quite smoothly during regulation time, but in the overtime session the fireworks started and the fans witnessed a few choice scraps as added entertainment. With only seconds remaining to end the game a general free-for-all broke out with the result that several fans as well as players left the arena feeling the effects of well placed blows.

The Mic-Macs minus their 'kid line' of Loveless, Reynolds and Kerry, were weaker on the attack but gave a great display of defensive hockey Akey and Hall tailed Brennan all evening, allowing him very few breaks. They, along with Alexander and O'Neill were most effective for the visitors.

Hagerman was individual star of the game scoring all three of the 'Combines' goals, two of them on solo efforts. McMaster turned in a good performance in the nets, sloppy covering up by his team mates accounting for at least three of the goals.

Madoc took the lead two minutes after the start of the first stanza, when Heyworth picked up Akey's rebound to fire it between the legs of a 'Combine' player, giving McMaster practically no chance on the shot.

Hagerman notched his first, rounding the right side of the defence, to let a hard back-hand drive go at Hollingsworth, which caught the top left-hand corner of the net. The line centred by Hagerman with Ibey and G. Puffer on the wings, continued to keep the puck in Madoc territory and finally Hagerman scored again on a shot identical to his previous one; Ibey made the play for this goal. The locals drew their first penalty when Hagerman went off for hooking Hall, but good back-checking by N. Rogers and W. Rogers kept the visitors from counting. Back on the ice, Hagerman grabbed the puck in Madoc's defensive zone, worked in close on Hollingsworth and poked it into the cage, for the third counter of the period, and the Combines last of the game. This goal came one minute before the end of the period and ended the scoring for this session with the count 3-1 for the locals.

Madoc Gains One.

Going into the second stanza two goals behind, Madoc finally scored, Burridge slaming it behind McMaster on a pass from Kerr. A penalty to Brennan for tripping Johnson concluded the period, Madoc failing to score while he was off.

McMullen received a bad cut from a skate over the right eye, during this period and went off for repairs He returned for a few minutes in the third, but was finally forced out of the game when the swelling got too bad.

With four minutes remaining of the third, Johnson of Madoc was sent to the cooler for dumping C. Puffer and things looked bad for the visitors. Akey, however, tied it up on a pass from Alexander with less than a minute to go.

Roughing things up going into overtime, Heyworth went off first for holding. While he was still on the bench., Hagerman and Hall, who had been riding each other pretty hard during the last period, decided to exchange a few blows, which gave several other players and fans notions of squaring off to do battle. This fuss was straightened out shortly, Hagerman and Hall, the instigators, drawing penalties. Heyworth came back, and with each team playing a man short, Akey and Alexander again combined for the winning counter, breaking in together on the Norwood defence with only Webb back. With seconds remaining hostilities renewed between Hall and Hagerman and soon a dozen minor fights had started, fans and players streaming out on to the ice to take part.

The teams:

Madoc—Goal Hollingsworth; defense, Hall, Hallstone; centre, Alexander; wings, Akey, Heyworth; alternates, Burridge, Johnson, O'Neill, Kerr.

Norwood— Goal, McMaster; defence, Brennan, Webb; centre, Hagerman; wings, G. Puffer, Ibey; alternates, C. Puffer, N. Rogers, W. Rogers, Rattwell, McMullen.

Referees—J. Watson, Madoc; R. Ennis, Norwood.

Summary:

First Period—
Madoc—Heyworth (Akey) 8.49
Norwood—Hagerman 8.59

Norwood—Hagerman 9.09

Niagara Falls Nosed Out 3-2 By Oshawa Crew

TORONTO, Feb. 11—(CP).—Toronto Goodyears, Oshawa, Port Colborne Sailors and St. Catharines Chiefs made ready today for playoffs in the senior "A" division of the Ontario Hockey Association, while Niagara Falls Brights looked on. Sixth team in the league, Brantford, have a bye into the senior "B" playdowns.

Third and fourth places in the final standing were not decided until the last scheduled games last night, when St. Kitts bowed 7-4 to the Chiefs at St. Catharines, and Oshawa nosed out the Falls 3-2 at Niagara Falls. The Brants, who finished their schedule earlier, were entered in the major amateur division merely for experience, and won bu two games in 19.

Chiefs Make Playoff Berth

Although the Chiefs lost to the Sailors they slipped into the playoffs because Niagara Falls couldn't beat Oshawa. Had the Falls won, they would have tied with Port Colborne for third place, eliminating St. Kitts.

The league semi-finals are scheduled to begin Feb. 15, with Toronto opposing Port Colborne and Oshawa clashing with the Chiefs. Goodyears, undefeated in league competition this season, won the league title last winter after a battle with Port Colborne and were eliminated in Allan Cup playdowns.

Final standings showed Goodyears with 35 points, Oshawa, 25; Port Colborne , 19; St. Catharines, 18; Niagara Falls, 17, and Brantford, 4. Oshawa and Goodyears are favored to meet in the league finals.

A St. Catharines' rally against the Sailors in the third period, which brought three goals, proved unavailing. The Ports led 6-1 at the end of the second and added another in the third.

Art Thompson was head sniper in the Tar win with three goals. Lloyd Fitzgerald snared two and Gal Gallinger and Earl Laroche, one each.

Scored Three In Third

Sammy Phillips performed the hat trick in the third period to score all St. Kitts' counters on passes from Jack Boyd. Boyd scored the other in the second period on an assist from Speedy Groh, playing coach and a former professional star.

Oshawa took a two-goal lead early in the first period of their battle with the Falls and were never headed. Carl Maundrell scored both on passes from Lex Chisholm, league scoring champion. The final Oshawa tally came midway through the final frame from the stick of old Scotty McAlpine. He was assisted by wee Winkie Smith.

Swat Mason, former Guelph junior, scored Brights' first tally late in the first period. Steak Morrison of the Falls tied the count at 2-2 early in the second, but the Oshawa club, better opportunists, took victory in the last frame. It was one of the season's best games.

The Falls were without the services of Smack Allen, a hometown boy who once performed with University of Michigan, and Steele, speedy winger. Both were on the injured list.

Quaker Cagers Get Three Win

Quaker teams in the Ladies' City Basketball League won all three of their games this week, the Debs beating C.G.E. 10-7 on Thursday and the Aces and Maids sweeping both games from Y Gym and St. John's last night in the Collegiate gym.

The Debs took a 6-5 half lead over C.G.E. and then fought off a rally in the final 20 minutes to win out Play was very fast and exceptionally clean all the way with only 5 fouls caled in the whole game, three on the Debs and two on C.G.E. The losers had a good part of the play but the better shooting of the Quaker team under the basket spelled victory. R. Farr with 6 points was the winner's individual star, with H. Bradley the loser's high scorer. The teams:

C.G.E.—H. Bradley, J. Alexander, R. Deviine, J. Bartley, H. Harte-Maxwell, I. Houghton, R. Milburn, M. Wright, I. Shadgett.

Quaker Debs—M. Duncan, J. McLean, E. Roberts, M. McGuire, H. White, R. Farr, B Fenner, A. Laing, J. Metcalfe, A. Frizzelle.

Referee—H. Smith.

Aces Get It.

Led by H. Cole with 13 points, Quaker Aces outscored Y Gym 10-4 in each half to win 20-8, outplaying the losers all the way for their second straight victory. They had a nice passing attack and good shooting when in scoring position to lead all the way and though the losers had a good part of the play they couldn't counter enough to threaten the winners' lead. The Aces were guilty of 5 fouls to 4 for the Y team H. Cole, J. Fowler and S. Zakos were the individual stars.

Y Gym—S. Zacks, B. DeMaio, L. Ellis, S. Florence, D. Pearson, R. Sullivan, M. O'Brien, V. Sullivan. S. Zakos.

Digging Up the Local Dirt With the Odd Chuckle or Two

By CEC. PERDUE

Some of the ski oosifers here told us yesterday that the sleet and wet weather wouldn't hurt the provincial ski meet any. On account of there was enough packed snow beforehand for the various events, and now the courses are just that much faster. Bethany is okay, they state, and enough work was done on the jump at Nassau to keep it just right. The jumping will be going all afternoon, and it is the most thrilling part of the meet, to competitors and spectators. And tomorrow sees the slalom and downhill competitions at Bethany, with train service there, also, via C.P.R. Cross-country run was this morn. Welcome to Peter's borough, youse ski enthusiasts—and best of luck in your meet.

If you weren't among the 1,500 frantic fanatics at the senior "B" puck playoff last gleaming on the Rue Brock, then you missed something. That being a streamlined sizzling scrap with the Petes pulling out a 6-5 verdict. They earned it, too, and looked quite a bit better—that 6-2 margin of theirs late in the third heat being a good barometer. But the Airmen went crazy to corral three counters in a minute and a half just before the finish, and nearly gave all and sundry a heart attack. It'll be quite a serial yet, this three-in-five affair. Next joust is in Belleville on Monday.

EDDIE STARR

Eddie Starr helped himself to four scoring points with a potent stick and some hot slinging of the old battered bootheel. The young blond forward of the first line got a one-stitch slash under the chin and then began firing rubber in earnest. Honey Tompkins and Bun Kingdon each figured in on two tallies, while Creighton and Gray blasted the burnt biscuit by Goalie Gibson so fast he felt a draft. The Petes were rlying most of the route, with lots of speed and nice passing, while they checked the Airmen dizzy over most of the route. Just bothered the life out of 'em—and we're all for it!

* * *

Quite a few of the cash customers stated afterward that it was the best game they've seen this season, and the best hockey dished up by the Buckland buckaroos. Though at times they bunched up a bit and looked nearly as disorganized as their opponents. Harding was good in goal despite that three-shot barrage in close in the dying moments. And our defence and front lines worked well most of the time. Louie Lecompte, loop's leading scorer, was checked so closely he did hardly a thing all eve, Legris and McNeeley going best of the forwards. We still feel the Petes can take the Trentons, and can do it in four games—though they will have some bruising battles ere the end.

* * * * * *

Bun Kingdon provided the nicest individual piece of work of the night. When, with one Flier and two Petes cooling off in the sin box, he began to stall with the puck. Seemed to have the disc glued to his stick as he wormed his way in and around several fighting Fliers—and then, getting a break, Bun wiggled loose (still with the puck) and slammed a pass across to Gray, who tore in on an unprotected netguardian to tally. A swell bit of work and the pair got a hand. That first line of ours clicked like a costly set of store teeth, and the second front wall was almost equally as classy. A good showing.

Results of the gals' cage games here last eve are in elsewhere. Next lasses' tussle will be Tuesday when C.G.E. and Orfuns clash at P.C.I. gym, and Electrics gotta win, or else. Down at the school tilts in Bowmanville, our junior boys copped a 17-16 win, our gals hung onto a 21-21 tie, but our senior boys took the lemony side of a 37-34 score. Threepippins, eh? Tonight at the Y.M. gym, these men's frays are listed: Dominions vs. C.G.E. at seven, Quakers vs. Heclas at eight, and St. John's vs. St Paul's at nine. Whoops and hoops.

Grab-bag: Lakefield lost a 4-2 puck tussle to Whitby last eve; a nifty game, we hear....Bowmanville took a 14-12 (ouch) junior verdict over Port Hope, and Belleville junior "C" crew copped a 7-1 win ovah Havelock....Campbellford juveniles suffered a 5-3 reverse at the hands of Lindsay; dunno when the next O.J.H.A. joust is....Look like Kingston City Club to meet the Fliers-Petes' senior "B" winnah....As Lindsay defaulted to Millbrook on Monday's district puck loop game, Millbrook meets Omemee Monday in Omemee; and Aces and Omemee end it up Thursday.... Program prize numbers at the Brock last night were 11,601 and 11,887....A kid got a shiner when hit over the eye with a puck there last p.m.....Rink officials and players are plenty peeved at the halfwit who again threw a bottle on the ice; they want him arrested—Gibson claimed he recognized the guy....Ken Weldon hurt his mitt in a recent spill while ski jumping at Nassau.... And that'll be enough of this.

Wallace Point Crew Defeat Lakehursts

Wallace Point Canoe Club defeated Lakehurst 10-6 in their annual game played last night. It was a close game most of the way, the score being six all with but five minutes to go.

The Nicholls boys of Bobcaygeon starred for Lakehurst, accounting for five goals, Thibodeau notching the other.

Mortimer paced the Paddlers with six goals, Prete and Wilson dividing the rest with Connolley getting a flock of assists. Harding made sever sensational saves between the posts.

Quebec Branch Threatens To Withdraw

MONTREAL, Feb. 11 — (CP). — Ontario's bid for added voting power in afairs of the Women's Amateur Athletic Federation of Canada brought from the Quebec branch today the threat of withdrawal.

Announcement of Quebec's stand was made here last night by Irene Wall, Quebec branch president and national secretary. Miss Wall said the provincial body is "seriously considering" withdrawal unless the Dominion body and executive "live up to their minutes, constitution, and amateur rules."

Miss Wall said the move was prompted by the statement of Edith McKenzie of Winnipeg, W.A.A.F. president, that the Saskatchewan branch had been allowed to vote on the issue of granting Ontario more voting strength. Miss Wall claimed that Saskatchewan had been deprived of a vote through non-payment of fees.

At the last W.A.A.F. convention in Winnipeg, Ontario sought the added voting power and when the question was put to a mailed ballot of branches and allied bodies the result was a tie. Miss Wall announced the deadlock on January 4.

Tie Was Broken.

However, on January 30 Miss McKenzie announced the tie had been broken in favor of Ontario by the vote of the Saskatchewan body. Miss McKenzie was reported to have said that the Western branch had been ruled eligible to vote after the question of fees was waived at the annual meeting.

(From Winnipeg, Miss McKenzie claimed that notwithstanding, parliamentary procedure called for a deciding vote from the president on the matter even if Saskatchewan had not voted.)

Miss Wall questioned the right of Saskatchewan to vote when "according to the official minutes of the annual meeting held in November, 1938, she (Miss McKenzie) seconded a motion depriving them of these rights at this convention."

The Quebec president also questioned "where she (Miss McKenzie) gets the authority (if Saskatchewan are not allowed to vote) to cast the deciding vote as president." Miss Wall said these two questions would be put to Miss McKenzie and upon the answer would depend "whether or not the Quebec branch will remain with the W.A.A.F. of C."

PETES GRAB FIRST SENIOR PLAYOFF OVER THE TRENTON FLIERS

Airmen Rally Near The Finish To Make For Tight Score But Petes Earn The Verdict

The Petes took the first of the three-in-five O.H.A. senior "B" group playoffs here last night with a 6-5 win over Trenton Fliers before 1,500 noisy fans. Showing superiority over the Airmen all the way, the homesters had a 6-2 edge with three minutes of play left, when the flashy Fliers zoomed in for three quick goals just before the final gong.

It was a speedy, exciting fixtus, clean throughout, with the Petes deserving the verdict. They had an edge in speed, a slight margin on passing plays and a big bulge over their opponents in checking. The locals' checking had the visitors disorganized a good part of the game, and Gibson had twice as many shots to stop as Harding in the home cage. It was 1-1 in the first frame and 4-2 for the winners going into the third.

Harding turned in a fine game in goal, being particularly tough to beat when hs team was shorthanded. He had no chance on the last three that beat him in close ganging attacks. The local defence blanketed and blocked well most of the route, and did some neat rushing. Both forward lines fairly sparkled, after a slow start, and outplayed the Airmen throughout. Their forechecking and backchecking was a feature and held the Fliers back on their usual zig-zag passing plays. Starr figured in four goals, with Kingdon and Tompkins in on two apiece. Creighton and Gray each counted one. All the Petes went well, while the scrappy Fliers made it close near the end by refusing to quit plugging away. Legris, McNeeley and Cook stood out for them

Petes Press

McNab made Harding jump at the start with a hot stab but, when Oleskevis went off fo rtripping, the Petes pressed dangerously. McNeeley went off just before his partner got back but the locals looked bad in their power play and Gibson thefted Nichol on a good try. At full strength again, the Fliers began to turn it on but the Petes kept pace with them and play was very fast up and down, with the locals having a slight edge, shooting more at Gibson. Legris scored the first one with a slow shot from a difficult angle on McNeeley's pass, with Harding pulled out of position. Half a minute later, the Buckland boys stormed back to sew it up, Starr poking in his own rebound as they pressed around the R.C.A.F. net. Tompkins came close on another near the end.

Have an Edge

The Petes outplayed the Airmen in the second with speedy rushes and persistent checking. But again the Fliers scored first, after Tompkins hit the post, McNab backhanding a hot one in, after skirting defence. Todd went off for hooking and the Petes tallied twice fast, Tompkins sinking it on Starr's pass in close for one, and Starr counting from Kingdon at point-blank range again. Crowe was gated for boarding and the Fliers failed to cash in on it till his return. Harding thefted Legris and the Petes swarmed in again after Lecompe got the air for slashing. Gray got it for hooking, and Red Creighton whirled around defence to rifle the puck into the hemp. A Kingdom-Tompkins rush was stopped at the finish.

Lively Third

Early in the third, Starr scored on a corner passout from Tompkins. Coughlin and Nichol pulled a fine rush but missed out as the Petes tore in hard and often on Gibson, while seldom letting the Fliers by the home blue line. Creighton and Brackenbury were waved off for roughing it, and Weir went right behind them for boarding. Kingdon gave a fine exhibition of stickhandling to kill time and then passed a snap one to Gray, who tore in and tallied. With all back again, play was hot going both ways, Lecompe nearly netting one in close. They began ganging up the last 10 minutes and were dangerous but fearful of threatened breakaways by the Petes. With barely three minutes to go the visitors suddenly began clicking inside the Petes' blue line and shot in three fast goals to nearly tie up the game. Lecompte counted on Legris' rebound, McNeeley's shot glaced in off Harding's skate, and Cook took a pass from Legris for the final one.

The teams:

Fliers: Goal, Gibson; defence, Oleskevis and Cook; centre, Lecompte; wings, Legris and McNeeley; alternates, Baldwin, Johnston, Brackenbury, McNab and Todd.

Petes: Goal, Harding; defence, Gray and Gardner; centre, Kingdon; wings, Tompkins and Starr; alternates, Nichol, Creghton, Coughlin, Weir and Crowe.

Conn's Flickering Left Hook Upsets Fred Apostoli In Bout

FRED APOSTOLI

BILL CONN

In a 15 round bout, a fight that had everything, Bill Conn was awarded the decision over Fred Apostoli, at the Madison Square Garden, on Friday night.

NEW YORK, Feb. 11—(AP).—The taking of Fred Apostoli in 15 bloody, bitter rounds by William Conn—the fight that had everything.

There was cruel and vicious hitting. There was fancy footwork and fancier headwork. There were moments when they stood and let go with all they had, as the crowd came roaring to its feet and there were moments when the snarling curses of the fighters rose above the thud of leather on skin.

Finally there was the supreme jest of the boxing gods. Conn, the winner, lay flat on his rubbing table in his dressing room. His eyes were swollen, almost closed. There was was a big cut under his right eye, a smaller one under his left. He looked utterly spent. And down the hall Apostoli was stepping into his shower, unmarked and smiling wryly as his manager, Larry White, bellowed, "it's an outrage, we won that fight."

Close All the Way

Few in the crowd of 18,966 fans at Madison Square Garden last night thought so, though it had been close all the way.

Conn had a flickering left hook that jarred Fred off balance. He had a fast right cross that shook Apostoli and buckled his knees. He had eight rounds on our card with six for Apostoli and one even.

An incident that didn't last 30 seconds probably won the fight. Midway through the second, Conn came out of a clinch with blood streaming from a cut under his eye.

And Billy had his Irish up. After that it was Conn's fight. He sunk his left into Apostoli's body just under the heart. He beat him to the punch with the same hand and when the opening was there—there was that right cross. Apostoli, concentrating on Billy's body, couldn't stay in close under this withering fire and with his plan of battle stalemated he had only his great courage to rely on.

When the 10th round came, Conn, who had tired at the end of the 10-rounder he won from Apostoli in December, was still in there firing with both hands. He was growing stronger, and getting smarter.

Trenton Outfit Defeated 7-5 By Campbellford

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CAMPBELLFORD, Feb. 11—After taking three setbacks in a row Campbellford staged a comeback before five hundred fans in Davidson's arena, by outplaying the Trenton Couriers to the tune of 7 to 5, in a T.V.I. series game Thursday night.

The spectators saw sixty minutes of wide open hockey, in which the locals gave an exhibition of what they really can do, despite the fact they were still suffering from the casualties inflicted in their game with Madoc on the preceding night. Turner, who had stopped one with his face the night before, turned in a great perofrmance.

The winners collected four goals in the opening period, during which the Phillips-Couch-Blake line proved far too fast for the sturdy Courier defence combination of Lott and Heaney.

Each team counted thrice in the second stanza, as the losers followed every attack with a sortie into enemy territory to give Turner a thorough testing. It was during the second that Wilkes, sturdy Campbellford defenceman, gave the visitors their second goal of the evening, when the puck bounced off his stick into the net as he skated across in front of the goal. Hood made the pass from inside the blue line, and it was headed straight for the corner. Most of the supporters were satisfied, however, that this accident merely balanced the fluke goal scored by Don Couch, who aimed one at Steenburgh from centre ice, which bounced neatly over his stick.

The game was fast all evening, though Trenton was kept bottled up inside their own blue line during the first two stanzas. They ganged up on the locals, who settled down into a more defensive brand of hockey, during the final round. Lott and Lamorre were the most serious threats to the winners and tested Turner from evey angle.

COMFORT FOR VICTIM

BOSTON—(CP)—Returning from a two-year anthropological expedition to New Guinea, Capt. Fred Crockett explained the cannibals there eat human flesh to satisfy their appetite for meat, not because they "get any fun out of the bloodthirsty business."

Blue Grass State Glorified In Motion Picture

It is 20th Century-Fox's Technicolor production, 'Kentucky' scheduled to open Monday at the Capitol Threatre, with a cast headed by Loretta Young and Richard Greene, and including (among its more temperamental players) some of the finest thoroughbreds of American turfdom.

Announced as a great romantic story, centering on two of those proud families who for three generations have fostered one of the finest traditions of horse breeding and racing that the world has ever known, "Kentucky" reveals all the luxuriant beauty of the Blue Grass country in its natural state.

Looking at newsreels of a horse race, Zanuck was struck by the appalling contrast between black and white photography and the actual race as he had seen it. The brilliant hues of the jockeys' silks, the crowds, the colorful sheen of the thoroughbreds, the indescribable beauty of the Kentucky countryside itself—all were lost, Zanuck felt, in the lack of chromatic variation.

He decided then and there that the only way to do justice to the sport of kings was to present it in the jeweled hues of Technicolor. He already had a story in mind—John Taintor Foote's novel, "The Look of Eagles." His next step was to pick David Butler to direct the film.

With Loretta Young and Richard Greene to play the romantic leads (chosen because of their excellent work together in "Four Men And a Prayer") and with Walter Brennan in the top character role, initial filming took place in Kentucky. During the five weeks the company was on location, Director Butler shot the last running of the Kentucky Derby, the first time it has ever been filmed in natural color. And the first time the Derby is seen in color will be in the thrilling climax of "Kentucky."

Trenton "Curb Cruiser" Is Jailed For Molesting Tweed Girls

(Examiner Correspondence.)

TWEED, Feb. 11.—Harvey Bailey, 26-year-old Trenton youth, was sentenced to serve two months in jail after being convicted on two counts, one of "curb cruising" and a second of assault, when he and Joffre Lafleur, also of Trenton, appeared before Magistrate J. L. Lloyd in county police court at Tweed. Lafleur was fined $5 and costs on both counts.

Crown Attorney B. C. Donnan, K.C., read two charges against Bailey, one of causing a disturbance by stopping and molesting pedestrians and also a charge of assault. Chief J. C. Hayes of Tweed, who arrested the pair in Tweed on Tuesday night, stated the two men were in an automobile and had attempted to "pick up" two Tweed girls, who refused their advances. "The men then got out of their car and forced the girls to get in. Later I apprehended them some little distance up the street, the car having stopped when I arrived," stated Constable Hayes, who had hastened to the scene following complaints received from neighbors, who saw the men force the girls into their car. Convictions were registered in both incidents and on both charges.

Crown Attorney B. C. Donnan, introduced Bailey's record of previous convictions before he was sentenced. The accused was given two months on the assault charge, with a concurrent sentence in default of payment of a fine, on the "curb cruising" count.

Fined For Fishing

Appearing before Magistrate J. L. Lloyd in local county police court, Thomas Breen, Cyril Latta and Robert Stoker, all of Tweed, were convicted of illegal fishing, to wit by the using of fixed hooks, while fishing through the ice. A fine of $10.00 and costs was imposed in each case and paid. Game Warden Herb McCabe preferred the charges.

Suspended Sentence

Pleading guilty to a charge of obtaining goods by fraud, Fred Jeffrey was placed on a one-year suspended sentence at the local county police court, when he appeared before Magistrate J. L. Lloyd. Jeffrey is alleged to have gone from door to door asking for clothing and money to aid him and his 5-year-old daughter.

Held As Chicken Thieves

Tracked over the snow covered fields east of Milltown from the scene of their alleged crime, Lawrence Brant and Thomas Brant of Shannonville, and a Milltown youth were arrested on Thursday in Milltown by Constable W. E. Smith, on a charge of the theft of chickens.

Yesterday morning, Mr. Percy Moore, Tyendinaga, reported the theft of twelve hens from his coops. After several hours of investigation the provincial police are said to have recovered the chickens in a Milltown barn. The trio apprehended appeared before Justice of the Peace and were remanded one week in custody.

Breaks Leg In Fall

With his leg badly fractured, caused by a falling log, Neil McGreathy, 44-year-old worker near Denbigh, was rushed from north of the village on Thursday to Hotel Dieu at Kingston, the end of a ninety mile trip for the injured man.

Dr. Hunt of Denbigh, who attended the man following his injury made the journey over the rough snow roads in the bush, in as quick a time as conditions permitted. McGreathy, a resident, has been engaged in the bush near Denbigh for some time past.

St. Valentine, Lovers' Friend Once Served Term In Jail

By J. C. HOPKINS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

The gay romance and comic wit of the modern Valentine are a far cry from the love-lorn and flowery sentimentalities of the lavender-scented, lace-trimmed 18th century missive. But despite occasional vicissitudes when the custom of sending Valentines earned the epithet "vulgar" and fell into disuse, its popularity is undiminished in this practical age.

Back in the Middle Ages Valentine's Day (Feb. 14) was not merely Cupid's ally, but his progenitor. In England, Scotland and parts of France the young people gathered together on St. Valentine's Eve would draw a slip from an urn or bowl and the person whose name was written on the slip became the holder's sweetheart for the year, and marriage oftimes the happy conclusion. This practice still survived in the 18th century.

From Samuel Pepys we learn that by the 17th century the custom in England had extended to the upper classes and costly gifts were bestowed by the men upon their Valentines. In his Diary he relates: "The Duke of York being once her (the Duchess of Richmond) Valentine, did give her a jewel of about £500; and my Lord Mandeville, her Valentine this year, a ring of about £300."

Again, "Upon a payre of embroidered and six pairs of plain white gloves, laid out 40s upon her (Mrs. Martha Battern) . . . . I am also this year my wife's Valentine and it will cost me £5."

"The practice of writing verses to the chosen one apparently originated about 1667 according to Pepys: "I do first observe the fashion of writing mottos as well as names . . . What mine was I forget, but my wife's was 'most courteous and fair.'"

How It Started.

St. Valentine's connection with witch-making is somewhat obscure. He is said to have suffered under the Roman Emperor Claudius II for his unswerving adherence to Christianity on Feb. 14, 270 A.D., when he was beheaded outside the Porto Valentine (the Flaminian Gate) in Rome, now known as the Porto Popolo.

There is one story, however, which tells how he became known as the "friend of lovers." The Emperor decreed that marriage must be abolished as it did not make for good soldiers, married men being loath to leave their families in case of war. The sympathetic Valentine secretly married young lovers, for which sentimental crime the Emperor had him thrown into prison.

Most authentic theory probably is that one of the features of the old Roman feast of Lupercalia in honor of Pan and Juno on Feb. 15—that of choosing partners for the occasion by lot—was transferred to St. Valentine's feast following the spread of Christianity.

Havelock Twins Are Winners Amateur Contest

Wallace and Wayne Young, 9-year-old twin boys from Havelock took top honors at the Collegiate Auditorium Friday night when a mammoth Amateur Contest was held under the auspices of L.O.L. No. 50 of Peterborough.

Close to 800 people attended and were generous with their applause as 33 contestants vied for cash prizes in two divisions, one for children and the other for adults. Added entertainment arranged by the versatile and competent Jack Marshall, master of ceremonies, in the form of a pie eating contest and a spelling bee were also thoroughly enjoyed.

The Jarvis brothers, Archie and Ford of this city placed first in the adult section. They sang and played guitar with a yodel finale that pleased the huge crowd. George Downer, step dancer took second money and third prize went to Lou Comstock, a violinist who forsook the orthodox style of playing the instrument, holding the violin behind his head, between his legs and in many other unusual positions, while he continued to play the piece of music. The Rythm Boys' Band from the south end of the city, and consisting of a variety of home made instruments with harmonica, guitar and traps played by Don Corrin, Don DeNoble and Bernard Rose won fourth. James Halsey in sailor garb danced a sailor's hornpipe in his own style to gather in fifth money and the last prize in the adult section went to Joe Primeau, 264 Hunter street west, who sang "Will You Remember Me", the song hit of the motion picture "Maytime", made popular by Nelson Eddy. Primeau sang in a clear, rich tenor voice that was exceedingly pleasing.

Did Irish Jig.

The Young twins from Havelock did an Irish Jig and were appropriately dressed in green top hats, green waistcoats, green stockings. They danced beautifully aiding the proper gestures and shouts as they went through the dance routine. Their win was a popular decision. Second money in the children's section went to Miss Doreen Larry, a talented young artist and Joan Reed, costumed as a little old lady gave a characterization of a lady at the fair to take the third place award. Victor Cremasco, prize-winner at Toronto on the Ken Soble program, placed fourth, his sweet voice carrying to all corners of the big auditorium. Jack Flagler, a consistent winner in amateur contests and a young man who shows exceptional ability was fifth, while Donald Forde, another clever youngster won sixth prize with his trumpet solo. Honorable mention went to Thelma Zavitz in the children's section and to a trio composed of Vera Miller, Pat O'Brien and Bill Conroy who played two violins and piano, featuring old time dance music. Miss Margaret Flowers, Tom Parker and H. Keith Braund were the judges.

An unusual and highly entertaining number was given by Miss Mary Murphy of Campbellford, who gave her impressions of an amateur gum chewer. To the amazement of the audience, she stuffed 22 sticks of chewing gum into her mouth, talking all the time, on the benefits derived from gum chewing, and how it was bound to improve one's beauty. Her bulging cheeks and resulting dimples were described as most desirable, while the audience howled approval. Miss Ethelbeit Peel showed skill on the electric guitar, and Roy Murphy sang a solo, in Bing Crosby style, that was well done. Wilfred Yeatman sang a cowboy song, playing his own accompaniment on the guitar. Other contestants in the adult class were Marcelle, Carme and Marie Leahy, a singing trio; Ruth Bennett, Charlie Ibey, Bill MacDonald, James Dalton and Mrs. Brooks.

All Like Veterans

Little eBtty Bestard, looking like a character from fairyland in her neat costume, went through a tap and song routine that was cleverly done, but she failed to click with the judges. All of the children showed the poise and coolness of veterans during the acts. Those not placing and not previously mentioned in the children's section were Betty Clarkem, Burton McBride, Isabelle Morrow, Jean Harriet and Muriel Kraft, Lillian Harris, Dorothy and Jane Lowthe and Barry Shaughnessy.

Ernie F. Reid, P.G.M., Ontario East, welcomed the audience, and paid tribute to Jack Marshall, who not only arranged the program, selected the candidates, but played the accompaniment for most of them as well. "Mr. Marshall is fast making a name for himself as an expert master of ceremonies and we thoroughly appreciate the fine job he has done tonight," said Mr. Reid.

The spelling bee was a novel arrangement, in that the contestants were chosen from the crowd, and the first five tripped on the word "parole." A free-for-all spelling bee was then engaged in, with Jack Marshall stating the value of the word in money and the first one in the audience to spell it correctly was given any sum from five cents up to fifty cents for their successful effort. Rolly Krant, Joe Primeau, Harry Vass, Jim Goselin and Joe MacDonald took part in a pie eating contest with honors, a one dollar bill and the pie free, going to MacDonald. Burton McBride and three others tried their wind on inflating balloons with Burton bursting the ballon first.

E. Millard, 53 Park Street north, won one of the table model radios, given as door prizes, and the other went to Miss Loretto Sedgewick, 769 George street. Mrs. Alex Roseborough won the five dollar cash prize, drawn from the box by little Joy Edgar.

Barbeau Given Two Months Selling Liquor

A police raid by Sergt. W. E. Wigg and Constables W. A. Clarke and John Rogers on the residence of Archie Barbeau, Simcoe street, late Friday night resulted in Barbeau's appearance before Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., in police court this morning on a charge of illegally keeping liquor for sale.

The accused pleaded guilty and asked the court to be as lenient as possible.

"It's my first offence, your Worship," he said.

Crown Attorney V. J. McElderry said that he would be satisfied with the minimum under the section, two months' imprisonment and Magistrate Langley imposed senterce accordingly, sending Barbeau to jail for two months.

In the raid the officers seized some full bottles of beer and a number of empty bee bottles.

Kinmount Man Is Charged With Having

George Flaherty, the Kinmount man, who has appeared in several liquor cases here in recent months and who insists upon doing plenty of talking while the proceedings are going on, was back in police court this morning charged with having liquor in a place other than his residence.

"I am going to get a shake this time," he informed the court. "I want an adjournment so I can get my lawyer down from Lindsay to talk for me."

Crown Attorney McElderry said that in any case he was going to ask for a remand.

Flaherty was remanded until Monday, with bail fixed at $280.

Improving Technique Skier Breaks Hand

Ski jumping is not such a simple matter after all, Ken Weldon of this city has decided. Ken is the young man who won the long distance jumping championship at Cedar Springs Club the first day he had ever taken a jump.

So simple did jumping seem to him after that experience that he decided to try the much larger jump at Nassu. The first day out, wearing only racing skis—there are special skis and harness for jumpers—he took the jump in fine style a couple of times, spilled all over the landing on the third one. Undaunted, he went out again yesterday to improve his technique. To-day he is nursing a broken hand, result of one fall too many.

Police Are Asked To Cancel Appointment Young Lady Has Made With Her Dentist

They get queer calls at the Police Station, sometimes. Thus, Sergeant John Thompson, on desk duty on Friday, picked up the receiver in answer to a ring and a masculine voice said: "Please cancel that appointment for Miss So-and-So tonight." The sergeant inquired with whom the appointment had been made, and the man at the other end of the line replied that his lady friend had had a date to have a tooth pulled. Then it was realized that somehow or other the Police Station had got mixed up with a dentist office call.

After all, however, there is nothing so remarkable about that, for the police have on occasion done some successful amateur extractions. There was the historic night when a well-known local dentist, frantic with toothache, arrived at the Police Station with a pair of his best forceps and begged one of the finest to pull the ofefnding molar. And the job was done although it is on record that the dentist did more howling than any of his patients had ever been known to emit. The same policeman afterward pulled an aching tooth in an emergency job with a pair of ordinary pinchers.

John Dwyer, Veteran Lumberman Marks Eighty-fourth Birthday

The shanty days of half a century ago, when logs choked rivers in this district, are being recalled to-day by John Dwyer, Rubidge street, who is celebrating his 84th birthday.

John Dwyer worked in the bush and rolled logs down river for more than twenty years. He can remember when the lumbering industry was this district's main one, when trees that towered nine and a hundred feet in the air came hurtling to the ground to the echoing cry of "T-I-M-B-E-R!"

Those days are gone now, and with them a colorful, hard living, hard fighting group of men—a fearless race who lived life to the full. John Dwyer was one of them, and he recalled the ways when Peterborough was a centre for lumbermen, when it was a lumber town. Now he is virutally the last one remaining.

Talking of those days, he recalled a time when seven different crews for several different companies were sending logs down the Otonabee river, choking it so full that all river drivers had to join forces along the route, separate their logs later.

In the summer he operated a farm near Douro, the same one on which he had been born. Its house was of logs, had been erected by his grandfather. That house still remains, though not on its original site. More than a hundred years old, it was purchased a few years ago by a Peterborough man and moved piecemeal to North Monaghan, back of the Exhibition grounds, to be erected once more. There it stands to this day, with improvements.

Mr. Dwyer operated that 100-acre farm until about thirty years ago, after which he "worked out" at farms in the district. He has been living in retirement in Peterborough for the past seven years. A man of extraordinary physique, he carries none of the ailments that are usually found with old age. He attributes his health to an active, outdoor life.

The Whiz-Bang minstrels make their first public appearance at the Collegiate Auditorium on Monday and Tuesday, Feb. 20 and 21 and as we have had the privilege of witnessing them at rehearsal we can assure our members and friends of a splendid evening's entertainment. They have certainly put in many hours of hard work at rehearsals under the direction of Morley Plunkett and if confidence and enthusiasm count for anything it will be an outstanding success. We are sorry to inform our members that Captain Sidney Lambert will be unable to make the visit to the city to lecture at our next meeting.

Rip-Rapping Work Will Be Completed

J. J. Duffus reported this morning he had been assured that sufficient money would be included in the estimates of the Department of Public Works to complete the rip-rapping of Little Lake from George street wharf to the tip of Point Ste. Charles completing the work from the place where it was suspended last fall. He has also asked for an apropriation to clear the old piers out of Little Lake, making it safe for airplanes and for summer boating. Mr. Duffus said that when the work around the lake has been finally completed it will make one of the finest beauty spots in Central Ontario.

Friday Night Club Hears Rev. Easton

One might not realize just what standards are until they hear Rev. G. S. Easton. Introduced by H. L. Garner to the Friday Night club Mr. Easton divided standards into three classes. Permanent standards which remain the same over a long period of time, such as the measurement of length, the yard, the foot and the inch.

In the bureau of standards buildings in London there is a bar composed of different metals that do not contract or expand. This is the exact yard measurement, and from it are taken the foot and inch.

Then we also have the gold standard which does not remain the same but continually changes.

Morals Changed.

A few standards that have changed throughout the years, man's idea of the ideal woman, pronounciation of numerous words now differ, punctuation has been cut down and changed considerably. Our morals have also changed in the yast years. Not so many years ago, skating on Sunday was unthought of; now it is quite common.

Rev. Easton closed with a quotation: He that would be great let him serve and he that would be greatest let him serve all.

Frank Ephgrave moved the speaker a vote of thanks. Don Duncan gave a three-minute talk on Leon Ardi De Vince.

Poor Boxes Robbed In Hastings Church

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HASTINGS, Feb. 11. — Two poor boxes in Our Lady of Mount Carmel Roman Catholic Church were broken into yesterday and a small quantity of money taken. About ten minutes following the theft, a young non-resident was apprehended and questioned. He had a number of five-cent pieces on his person and was seen by two people leaving the church about the time the robbery was committed, but denied any knowledge of the deed.

"It's a funny thing if a guy can't go into the church to pray without being accused of thieving," he told Town Constable William Wellman. The constable ordered him out of town and warned him not to return.

The theft was first suspected when the boy had been in the church for half an hour, and was not known to nearby residents. Investigation by the sexton revealed the two boxes had been pried open.

Gets Carnegie Debut

A cousin who operates a bar and grill in New York, is responsible for the Carnegie Hall debut to be made Feb. 20, by Miss Louise Corchia, ABOVE, 18-year-old daughter of an unemployed New York furrier. Miss Corchia, according to her teacher, is capable of reaching "F" above high "C". A Carnegie Hall debut of this nature cuts a $1,200 hole in a bankroll, something quite impossible for the youthful singer, until her cousin, Sereno Corchia, offered to take care of the financial outlay.

The Rambling REPORTERS

TOWN OF DETROIT?

Just when we get to the stage of complacently feeling that Peterborough has got to be quite a place along comes something to cause a chest deflation. Thus a Detroit lawyer, writing the local police department for information in regard to a client, states that the person in whom he is interested was convicted some years ago at the village of Peterborough." There should be a law or something.—Q

Extra Money Is To Be Needed To Pay Relief

The new pumper for the fire department was taking wings this morning and floating away on a strong breeze blowing from relief quarters.

It transpires that January's relief costs in Peterborough were $2,300 more than the council's estimates, to saying nothing of both February and March, and as the prospective margin for the whole year was only slightly in excess of $3,000, it is likely that Alderman Cotton, as chairman of the Finance committee, will decide that the "factor of economic safety" has already been whittled too fine

The bad news comes from Alderman Dutton in a relay of information from the Ontario government relating to the official schedules of relief for this year. Everything would be acceptable, in so far as relief costs can ever be agreeable, if the allotment of costs for the year were on the 40-40-20 basis, but that distribution does not come into effect until April 1st, 40 p.c. to be paid by the Ontario government, 40 p.c. by the Dominion government and 20 p.c. by the municipality.

Must Pay 40 Per Cent.

For the first quarter the council had estimated its relief expenditure on an anticipated proportion of 30 p.c., but to-day's information from the Department of Public Welfare announces that the city will have to pay 40 p.c. of the relief costs for January, February and March.

Various other changes are mentioned in the circular letter. For example after April 1st there will be no government funds for transients assisted by municipalities. And the city will have to assume the entire cost of such articles as mattresses, seeds for gardening, dental aid for people on relief, and so on.

This communication from the Department tends to agree with a report the Examiner heard during the week, from a reliable source, that the Government was determined to "tighten up" on relief to those who made little or no effort to help themselves, who accepted relief as an established form and way of life.

"We have every sympathy for bona fide cases of people needing relief, and will do all we can for them, but we're getting fed up on the chiselers," it was said.

CAMPBELLFORD

Work On Outposts Is Described In Letter

CAMPBELLFORD, Feb. 11. — A moving description of the work being done by outpost missionaries was contained in a letter from Dr. Margaret Savage read before members of St. Andrew's Women's Missionary Society on Tuesday afternoon. Miss E. Buchanan read the message which contained a word of thanks for the splendid bale sent out by the society. Mrs. A. C. Connor, the president, presided for the meeting which was opened by singing "Rise Up O Men of God." After prayers had been conducted the topic of the month "Rise Up and Go Forward" was presented by Mrs. Connor. Mrs. P. B. Nelson and Mrs. Adams gave the secretary and treasurer's report respectively.

The discussion of several items of general business preceded the program presented by Mrs. Fred Rutherford's group. This was introduced by a devotional servics made up of a hymn. Scripture reading, psalm read by Mrs. Peter Meiklejohn and prayer led by Mrs. J. R. Battisby. Other items included a reading, "The Night Cometh" by Mrs. P. B. Nelson; vocal solo, Mrs. C. Milne, accompanied by Mrs. Jack Storie; a discussion on the first chapter of the study book, "Moving Millions" by Mrs. Glenn Thompson and the concluding hymn. It was announced the programme for the meeting to be held March 7th would be in charge of Mrs. Wesley Stephen's group.

Mrs. M. Keighton of Trenton spent a few days this week as guest of her sister, Mrs. T. J. McAvella and Mr. McAvella, Second Street.

Youth Leaders To Tell Story Of Co-operation

Introduced as "some of the finest young people we could get from our farms" are the speakers who are coming into Peterborough county next week to tell the story of co-operation in its basic essentials and also in some of its development in practical operation.

The "storming troupe" is composed of the following young women and men: Mrs. Leonard Harman, of King; Miss Grace Gray of Britton; Vincent Black, Rodney; Harold Ghent, Mt. Forest; Alex Anderson, Guelph; Grant Longwell, Foxboro; William Fisher of Proton Station; and Harvey MacDougall of the central office of the U.F.O.

Intensive Campaign

For two weeks, February 13 to 25, the Peterborough area will experience a more intensive co-operative educational campaign than has ever been attempted in the province. Eight young farm people from all over the province, carefully selected for their leadership qualities and experience in community work, will "storm" the countryside within possibly a ten mile radius of the city of Peterborough.

During the first week they will work in pairs, each team holding one meeting a day, making a total of 24 all told. Practially every school section in the district will have its own meeting.

During the second week the teams will divide, each of the eight members leading a "Neighbor Night" discussion in one of the farm homes in the community where the larger meeting was held the previous week. The young ladies will hold afternoon meetings and discussion conducted especially for women and young people.

What a thoroughly aroused community of farm people can do for themselves through self-help on a co-operative basis will be the theme of this new, and to some extent, experimental campaign. The recently reorganized Peterborough United Farmers' Club has taken the initiative in inviting the group to conduct their first trial in this district. Besides sponsoring this new feature in the district, the club is co-operating with the educational department of financing the course. Clarence Mann is president and E. H. Brown is secretary.

An interesting thing in connection with the plan is that the young people in charge will be entertained exclusively in the farm homes in the district and will be dependent upon local people even for transportation. The members of the group will not use their own cars.

City's Owners Of Property To Form Body?

Organization of a property owners' association is being mooted in Peterborough, reflecting the interest that has been growing out of the publicity given to the efforts of other associations notably the one in Toronto.

Fred T. Tuggey told the Examiner today he believed Peterborough sentiment was about ready to promote a branch of the Ontario Property Owners' Association which has been meeting in Toronto this week, and directing attention to the need of restoring realty to its rightful place by unburdening it of some of the taxes that have been heaped on it in recent years.

Mr. Tuggey's letter in the Examiner a few days ago dealing with the disproportion of property owners and tenants in the municipal voting lists, with the preponderance largely on the side of the tenants, has brought him many unexpected expressions of approval, among them a letter from Mayor Jamieson Bone of Belleville.

"The farmers have the right idea," said Mr. Tuggey. "They are organizing for the purpose of stirring up their own people to tell the government what they need and want, marketing regulations and so on. If property owners in Peterborough will do what has been done in other cities Ontario would soon hear from the people who own homes and are being taxed out of all proportion. The government naturally wants to see more owners of houses, and is helping in one way or another, but what is really needed is to get rid of some of the taxation that has been loaded on to property because it is handy."

Suspend Skating On Sunday Night

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HASTINGS, Feb. 11.—Sunday evening skating, fast becoming popular with the young people here, has been indefinitely suspended, Henry Scriver, rink manager, announced yesterday. The action followed as a sequel to a reported drinking party at the rink last Sunday when three young men were said to have visited the rink and consumed intoxicating beverage before the young people. Mr. Scriver is carrying out an investigation in an effort to learn their names.

DEATH AT THE MANOR

By M. E. CORNE

CHAPTER TWENTY-SIX

"PERSONALLY," Phil said, lighting another cigaret, "I'm pinning on your Richard. He looks guilty as hell to me. And I think Daphne knows it and is shielding him." Phil, Mac McIntyre and I were waiting for Mr. Horace to appear.

"Do you mean to say," I demanded, trying to remain cool and collected, "that you seriously believe those two kids, one or both, would have the brains and the cunning to carry out the murders?"

"I seriously think so."

"But the motive?"

"A million dollars is a lot of money."

"A million dollars?" I stared at him, wide-eyed. "What has a million dollars to do with it?"

"Guess that's another item we neglected to mention, Elsie," McIntyre said, apologetically. "Tell her about the will, Benson."

"Gladly." He blew a cloud of smoke into the air. "I dropped in at Middlewaite's office early this morning and had a peek at the old lady's will. Mrs. Witherspoon left to each of her grandchildren one million dollars, cold cash, and numerous securities."

"Oh!" That was all I could say. "Oh!"

"In Daphne's case," he went on, "there was a string attached. She was to inherit providing at the time of her grandmother's death she was engaged to marry or had already married Count Orsini. Er—what did you say, Elsie?"

"Nothing, nothing at all!" I tried to smile, but my lips were stiff. The motive! I had the motive! Far back in a corner of my mind a voice was shouting! Daphne's voice! "I tell you I won't go through with it! I won't! I'll do something awful! You'll see!"

"And so," said Mac, his eyes boring into mine, "and so we have at least one person in the house who had reason to wish Mrs. Witherspoon dead and out of the way."

I opened my mouth to protest, but nothing came out of it. My tongue was like cotton; it clung to the roof of my mouth.

"Say!" Phil had been wandering from shelf to shelf examining the books. "Here's a volume on toxicology!" He pointed to a thick green book wedged tightly between two smaller ones. And as his hand worked to remove it, the book slipped from his grasp and fell, face up and open, to the floor. "Good Lord!" he exclaimed. "Good Lord!"

"Well?" McIntyre spoke sharply. "Find something, Benson?"

"Did I find something!" He rushed to us and placed the volume into the detective's lap. "Take a look at that!"

"What—what is it?" I stammered.

"So!" Mac sounded grim. I jumped up and ran around behind him. The print of the page was small and dim; the words danced before my eyes.

"What it it?" I cried again, and his finger moved slowly to the center of the page and paused.

"Cyanide!" I whispered. "Cyanide! In bold, black type! And in the margin, lightly penciled, there was a small check mark! All at once my legs gave way at the knees.

"Easy, kid!" Phil caught me in his arms. He carried me to the arm chair I had occupied.

"You see, Elsie," Mac said softly, "someone in this house knows all about cyanide. I think maybe that someone had been studying up on it for a long, long time."

"I see," I said, and suddenly I was incredibly weary. I did not want to hear any more about poisons or murders. I wanted to rise and to go away from the Manor, thousands and thousands of miles away. I closed my eyes.

"Brace up, baby!" Phil implored. "We have work to do!" He slapped me on the shoulder and moved backward. There was a crash and a chair tottered on its legs and fell sideways. A firecracker exploded in my brain.

"Phil! Mac!" I cried. "I have it!"

"Huh?" They stared at me. "Have what?"

"That chair crashing — remember I told you—the chair in the salon—night before Mrs. Witherspoon died—" I was so excited I could not wait to finish my sentences.

"The one that changed positions?" Phil questioned.

"Yes. Don't you get it? It was the murderer who upset the chair! He was pasting the poison to the hood!"

"So as to kill off anyone who happened to want a shampoo and a wave, I suppose?" Phil said nastily.

"What! Oh!" My excitement oozed and died. "Oh, I did think—" I was disappointed to continue.

"Don't feel badly," Mac said kindly. "There's something in what you say. I can't at the moment, name the reason for the murderer's presence in the salon that night—for I'm convinced that it was the murderer—but I do know that he wasn't baiting his trap then. According to your account of Sunday's events, you used all four of the driers without fatal results until Mrs. Witherspoon passed away."

"Yes, that's true." I admitted, felling very much like a deflated inner tube.

"Therefore X knew to the second when the old lady was to have her beauty treatment."

"Yes."

"Let's reconstruct this thing!" He became brisk and businesslike. "For a reason unknown X visits the salon in the middle of the night previous to the ball. You interrupt; later X steals away. In the morning you open the beauty parlor; all day long you wark on first one and then another of the women in the house. And all day long the driers are in perfect and harmless condition. No one is overcome by cyanide fumes.

"At eight o'clock you shampoo Mrs. Witherspoon's hair and set the wave and carry her to the first drier. You turn the switch; you discover that the drier is out of order. And you remove the old lady to the second drier. O. K. so far?"

I nodded.

"When during the day were you absent from the salon?"

"Let me see—I went to my room for lunch. I was there about an hour. In the evening I dined below stairs. That took another hour."

"Below stairs for dinner, eh? So that gives X sixty good minutes to jimmy the driers and attach the poison. Sure you weren't out at any other time?"

"Well—" I lowered my lashes. That fatal half-hour I had spent in the pantry with Phil. I had omitted this incident in my story of the murder and the events leading up admit my guilt, and besides had I not promised Mr. Horace to say nothing of my lapse? I plunged on: "No—no, I wasn't out of the room at any other time."

"So!" Mac shifted in his chair and I shot a quick glance at Phil. He was frowning. I shook my head slightly. He must not give me away! His right eye closed briefly. I breathed a sigh of relief. I was safe!

Stage Euchre Party

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CAMPBELLFORD, Feb. 11. — Mrs. Jack Ackerman and C. W. Palliser headed the scoring at a euchre party staged under auspices of the L.O.L. on Wednesday evening. Lucky door prizes went to Mrs. Jack Jeffs and Percy Bartley. Arthur Redden, who with other officers of the lodge sponsored the affair, announced a further euchre for Februar 22. At the conclusion a delightful lunch was served.

MAYBE STILL LUCKY

GUILDFORD, England—(CP). — On Friday, January 13, the bride wore green, walked under a ladder, married the man, one of a family of 13, she had met 13 months previously, and there were 13 witnesses of the ceremony.

DOROTHY DIX

DEAR MISS DIX—You said in a recent article that the love of husbands and wives is made up of a combination of sex attraction and congeniality and gratitude. All right. Here's my problem: Am 30. Have been married ten years. Always been cynical about love. Now the mystery. Expected to get tired of my wife and cease to care for her, but through the years while I waited for love to end I have loved more intensely. The love I thought would die has grown more deep. I can't be near her without wanting to give her some little caress because just to place my fingers in her hand makes me feel that everything is right with the world. And her shining eyes tell me that she feels that way also. Why is it that every day a greater measure of happiness is ours instead of antipathy? What is wrong with us that our feeling for each other grows infinitely more dear when by all the rules it should diminish.

ALEXANDER THE TENTH.

ANSWER:

I should say that there is nothing wrong with you. On the contrary, that everything is completely right and that you and your wife are darlings of the gods who have had the rare good luck to be mated as well as married. And I can think of nothing more cynical than that you have observed that phenomenon so seldom that you think that a husband and wife who still love each other aften ten years of matrimony are a problem case. Goofy or something.

Your marriage is what every marriage should be. Every husband and wife should have an attraction for each other so basic, so much a part of their natures that it increases as the years go by. They should be drawn closer together by the thousands of mutual interests that they share. They should be more congenial as they learn to adapt themselves better to each other. And their love for each other should be deeper and deeper all the time because it has in it the memory of so many sacrifices that each has made for the other.

Sometimes this happens. I have heard an old man say of his old wife: "I thought I was in love with Jane when I married her, but the feeling I had for her then is nothing to my devotion to her now. If she had died when she was a bride; I should have grieved for her deeply and sincerely, but I should have got over it and been happy again. But, if I should lose her now, everything that makes life worth living would be gone. I should be as maimed and helpless as if I had lost half of my body. You see there are forty years of comradeship between us. Forty years of finding out how good and sweet and wise and unselfish she is. And that is what makes old love stronger than young love."

It is a strange thing that so many people regard marriage as a gamble and seem to think it is a matter of pure chance whether their love for each other dies or survives. It is stranger still that so many husbands and wives say that they have nothing in common when they have the most vital of all interests in their struggle for success, in their children, in their dependence upon each other for everything in life. And, strangest of all, that they do not realize that nothing else in the world is so worth striving for, nothing can bring them such rich rewards in peace and happiness as keeping their love for each other alive.

For if our marriages are a success nothing else matters much. And if our marriages are a failure nothing else matters much, either. Lucky those who find their heavens in their homes.

* * * * * *

DEAR MISS DIX—I am a high school girl of 17 and I want some advice about how to be popular with boys. I want to know how to handle the opposite sex. I understand the fundamentals of the technique, but I don't know how to apply the details. I know how to be physically attractive, but I don't know how to talk to a boy. I don't know how to ask a boy to come to see me. I don't know what to say in regard to dates. I don't know how to ward off undue physical liberties. I don't know how to develop an acquaintance into a friend. When a man asks me: "Who is your boy friend?" I turn pink, and say: "My mother won't let me have dates." And through sheer pity my mother has to back me up, though she would like for me to have boy friends as much as I would. In a word, how can a girl who is dumb about boys learn to be wise? SOPHOMORE.

ANSWER:

There are some girls who are self-starters and others who have to be given a shove to get them going. Why this is thus, nobody knows. It is just that some girls are born with the come-hither look in their eyes that makes every man who sees them want to get up and follow, while other girls have to be willing workers to make a lad give them a second glance. Still it can be done, and Heaven rarely refuses to aid the wise virgin who keeps her lamps filled and burning.

Now as to your own specific case: Inasmuch as you say you are pulchritudinous we can score that on the credit side and, believe me, that is nine points in the game. Your trouble seems to be that you have not been able so far to attract the attention of boys and make them aware of your existence. There are two ways to overcome tnis. One is to get your mother to entertain for you. Boys will always go anywhere where there is good food and amusement. Bait your hook with Sunday-night suppers, with music and dancing and theatre tickets and the fish will bite. Boys who have partaken of your hospitality are bound in decency to show you some attention. Girls who have eaten your angel's food have to include you in their parties. And before you know it you will have become one of the gang.

Another way to break into the charmed circle is to pick out the most popular girl and use her as a decoy. Many a homely girl gets going by being the shadow of a pretty girl.

Never never tell a boy that he is the ONLY one and that your mother won't let you step out. No boy wants a girl that no other boy wants, nor is he going to brave the stern parent to go to see a girl when other girls have welcome written on the doormat.

Just tell the boys that you are looking them all over before you make a choice when they ask you who is your boy friend, and look as if you didn't care and could take 'em or leave 'em. These are general suggestions that will help, but you have to work out your individual method with each different boy.

You, Too, Can Write Stories That Sell

Congratulations to Mary! A Hollywood agent saw her first story in a magazine—and here it is produced in the movies. A success, the preview shows.

Yet how easy it was! Mary knew she had the germ of a plot when her friend Jane gave up a thrilling career to marry an old beau.

From that "germ" she built up her plot from incident to incident by asking herself, "Now what would these people do next?"

Her characters became flesh-and-blood when she learned the trick of painting them through tyical words and actions—impulsive Jane "slapped on a red-feathered hat." Cautious Joe "drawled 'But, honey, do you think it's wise?'"

To make descriptions bright, vivid, Mary learned to refer to synonym books as professional writers do. Jane's room was "topsy-turvy," "jumbled."

Know such tricks of the trade and you bring the simplest story to life. Learn from our 32-page booklet how to build plots, write sparkling dialogue, description. What publishers want in short stories, articles. Editors' "black-list" of errors.

The Stars Say . . .

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Sunday, February 12.

Sunday's horoscope is a favorable one for all cultural and social or affectional activities, although there is a menace of excesses, extravagances, and impetuosity, as well as over-zealous indulgences. A danger of litigation because of such rashness or want of reserve and restraint is apparent.

Those whose birthday it is may look for a year of auspicious conditions in domestic, social and emotional affiliations, provided a tendency to indulgence, extravagance, and acts of turbulence and impulse is curbed. Overconfidence, optimism, and want of sufficient restraint might bring about legal entanglements.

A child born on this day may be gay, light-hearted, irresponsible and self-indulgent, acting through impulse and waywardness. And while being genial and generous, its indulgences may find it running counter to authority.

For Monday, February 13.

Monday's astrological forecast is for a definite swing away from long static and unproductive conditions, with a pronounced upturn to all property values and lagging investments. While this promises a stabilization of the fortunes, there also are snares and pitfalls to be prepared for by vigilance and sagacity.

Those whose birthday it is may anticipate a trend away from stagnations and crysallization of the affairs. There is definite promise of an up-swing in investments and property values, with fortunes gaining much stability and security. However, there are portents of sinister omen through fraud, cheating, treachery and collusion to sweep this away unless unusual vigilance and sound tactics be exercised.

A child born on this day may be versatile and resourceful, with much stability of character and steadfastness.

GOODNIGHT STORY

By MAX TRELL

"Have you ever been to far-away places, Mr. Punch?" Hanid and Knarf asked their good friend the other evening after the children had left the playroom.

Mr. Punch, who was sitting on the steps of the little Play-House, where he lived with his wife Judy, smiled pleasantly. His eyes twinkled as he answered: "When I was young I travelled all over the world. I've been to the farthest-away places you can think of. I've even been to Egypt."

"To Egypt! Where's that?" Hanid asked.

"It's in Africa, if I still remember my geography. In fact, it's right at the top of Africa. Egypt's a very old country. It's famous for lots of things such as the River Nile and the Sahara Desert—"

Something Sweet?

"Sahara Desert?" Knarf repeated. "Is that something sweet that you have at the end of dinner, like apple pie?"

"Oh, no!" said Mr. Punch. "You're thinking of dessert. A desert is a big stretch of sand. It goes on for miles and miles—just sand."

"My goodness!"

"And," said Mr. Punch, noddingly, "the most remarkable sight to see in the Sahara Desert are the pyramids!"

"Oh! we've seen pictures of them!" the two shadows exclaimed.

"Well, when you go inside (for you can go inside) and it is nighttime and the stars are out, you find yourself in a large room. There aren't any windows, but there is a narrow opening like a long tunnel which slants up to one of the outside faces of the pyramid. And if you look through this opening you see the sky and one star. And do you know which star it always is?"

"Which star is it?" the shadows asked eagerly.

"The North Star—the star which always stays in the north and which sailors steer by. Yes," said Mr. Punch, "I've seen many interesting things in my travels, but I think the pyramids of Egypt are the most interesting."

W.M.S. Will Mark Golden Jubilee

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CAMPBELLFORD, Feb. 11. — Forty-one members were present for the February meeting of St. John's Women's Missionary Society, held here Tuesday afternoon, when a nicely arranged program was presented by Mrs. A. D. Bennett's group. The meeting, which opened with a devotional period, continued with the presentation of monthly reports by the treasurer and secretary. Sixty-seven calls had been made by the visiting ladies during the month of January, it was stated. Mrs. G. A. Kingston and Mrs. Chappel were appointed visitors for the month of February.

The report of the flower fund was presented by Mrs. C. W. Palliser. Since the month of March marks the fiftieth anniversary of the W.M.S. here, it was decided the occasion would be appropriately celebrated with a special entertainment. Members were advised that February 24 would be the World's Day of Prayer, and that this year all members of the local missionary societies would be expected to attend the service held at the Anglican church that afternoon.

An interesting feature of the program was the devotional topic, "The friend who cometh near to us," read by Mrs. Mitchell and a further paper entitled "Unity" and prepared by Rev. R. C. Tait, a former pastor here, read by Mrs. G. A. Ironside. The program opened by singing a hymn and the responsive reading of a psalm. The balance of the program included the study chapter in two parts, "Church Mission work in Motreal," by Mrs. A. J. Armour; the Fred Victor Mission in Toronto, Mrs. C. Turner; vocal solo, Miss Monica DeCarrol; piano solo, Patricia Ironside.

We Noticed

....Although the origin of St. Valentin'e day seems never to have been definitely settled, popular belief prefers to ascribe it to a certain St. Valentine, of whom it is said he wore an amethyst upon which was engraved a cupid, thus making the good saint responsible for the fact the amethyst is the February birthstone.

....Valentine verses were written as early as 1415, when Charles, Duke of Orleans, taken prisoner at Agincourt, amused himself with poetic composition to while the tedium of his imprisonment. In the 18th and 19th century messages were written by hand on heavy gilt edged paper and often were made more elaborate by cutting the edges of the paper with scissors.

A talk on television was given by Colin Jack, and a musical program included two lovely piano solos, "Spring Shower" and "To a Wild Rose," by Miss Jean McLeod; a delightful violin solo, "Play, Fiddle, Play," by Menzie McLaren, and vocal solos, "My Task" by Ashford, and "The Brown Bird" by Hayden, sung in clear, sweet voice by Wilma Lackie, accompanied by Miss Marguerite Rome.

Miss R. Home Speaks Of Period Furniture.

In early European days the chair was considerd a symbol of authority, and indicative of its owners' position in society, not as a piece of furniture upon which one might sit with ease, Miss Ruth Home of Toronto told Lyceum Club Art Association members Friday afternoon at their meeting in the Y.W.C.A. Green Room.

Miss Home, who is official lecturer and guide at the Royal Ontario Museum in Toronto, traced the evolution of the chair from its first inception down to modern times. Slides were used to illustrate her descriptions of period furniture, which began with the Italian chair of the 16th century. The reason this type of chair does not fit into modern furnishings, Miss Home explained, is because chairs in the middle ages were made for luxury, not comfort. It is the sort of chair in which you are supposed to sit upright and dignified. It was only the important member of the household who sat upon a chair, she said, the others stood, squatted, or sat upon benches.

It was about the time of Charles the First that upholstered chairs came into fashion, and during the reign of Charles the Second the feminine influence began to make itself felt and chairs took on a more graceful and slender design, the extrem lightness and vivacity of design reaching its height about the middle of the 18th century, when the keynote of the time "never to be serious" was shown in the type of furniture. This lightness of design gave way gradually to the rather austere design of the last of the 18th century. By this time furniture no longer registered prestige in the community, but had become subordinated to the individual, and was now considered part of the background for the home.

In modern designs the first requirement is usefulness. The modern man, Miss Home remarked, wants something attractive and comfortable, but if it can't be both, it must be comfortable first. At the same time our lives outside our houses are sufficiently stimulating and sufficiently nerve-wracking that we want something that is very quiet, and so today pattern is gradually being removed from our house; pictures are being gradually removed from our walls, and instead of detail, we have masses, and home now has become a haven of rest.

Mrs. Fred E. Hooper presided at the meeting, and presented the speaker.

Fashion's Fine Handwork

By ALICE ALDEN

Fine handwork distinguishes many of the newest and loveliest frocks. Delicate fabrics are lavish with embroidery and soutache braid. Tiny sequins outline print designs, and the lace is stiffened, its pattern outlined by traceries of cire braid. At a recent luncheon style show at the Ritz-Carlton, the lovely evening frock shown here played a starring role. It is a Joani model, fashioned of hundreds of yards of tri-colored, shirred lace appliqued in pattern onto black net. It's lovely in a "still life" study, highly effective in motion on the dance floor.

Silver Service Presented To Wm. Buttar

COLDSPRINGS, Feb. 11.—More than thirty years' faithful service as superintendent of the Sunday School of St. Paul's United Church here was recognized at the annual meeting when William Buttar was called to the front and presented with a silver tea service by Norman Gibson, while Mrs. Leslie McIntosh read the following address:

"It is not given to many to hold for so long a time and with such conspicuous success, so exacting a place as you have had in the superintendency of the Sunday School. We are reminded today that it is now nearly a third of a century since you first took office. Nor is it offered to many such rich opportunity as has been yours as leader in religious education in our community.

This task you have done so well and faithfully that today we, members of the church and the Sunday School unite to honor you with our thanks and our congratulations.

Some of the boys and girls under your care in the beginning are now grown and in far distant places; others, remaining here have entrusted to you their children born in this strange new world of change and confusion.

We honor you today because of these years of faithful service, and because you have built yourself into the spiritual life here, so that every home is the richer; we honor you because you have maintained faith unshaken in the great unchanging principles of our religion. In you is found a worthy successor to those who in past days laid godly foundation here, and whose piety and godliness have given this community so fine an inheritance.

We trust, then, that you will accept the gift which this day we offer you as a token of our sincere regard for you personally, and of our appreciation of the work which you have done in our midst as superintendent of the Sunday School.

We trust too that you may have still many years of service in the church, and that both you and Mrs. Buttar may be spared to long years of health and happiness."

Signed on behalf of the church and the Sunday School,

T. M. Wesley,
A. E. Eagleson,
N. W. Gibson,
R.W. Brooks.

The gift and address were suitably acknowledged by Mr. Buttar. George Davidson has been apointed superintendent to succeed Mr. Buttar.

The annual meeting of the church was held at noon, the Women's Missionary Society providing the dinner.

Rev. T. M. Wesley, B.A., presided at the meeting. The treasurers of the various departments gave satisfactory reports and the church treasurer showed a balance on hand of four hundred dollars.

It was announced that the Camborne charge, comprising the three churches, Coldsprings, Bethel Grove and Camborne had raised nearly one thousand dollars for missions.

Branch Notes

ST. JOHN'S, LAKEFIELD.

There was a very good attendance of members at the corporate communion and breakfast which was held on Sunday. After the communion service at the church the members assembled at the Parish Hall, where twenty-one partook of a breakfast. The members of the Teen Age Branch of the W.A. also held their corporate communion and breakfast at the same time.

On Tuesday evening seven members attended the 'Hunt Night' at All Saints' Parish Hall in Peterborough. Miss Mae Dever and Mr. Clifford Hurl represented Lakefield in a dialogue entitled 'The Man of Letters.'

On Tuesday evening, Feb. 14th, Major and Mrs. Mason have very kindly loaned their beautiful home, "Uplands," to the A.Y.P.A. for the purpose of holding a euchre party and dance. All fellow members and their friends are cordially invited to attend.

ST. GEORGE'S BRANCH

About 26 members of the branch enjoyed a sleigh ride on Thursday evening going along country roads and reaching Zion Hall about 9.30. After the members had forsaken some of their heavy clothing a game of cards started the evening's entertainment.

The members who could not stand the cold weather and the ride went by car. Supper was served by the senior branch of St. Mark's W. A. After supper the members enjoyed an hour of square dancing and round.

Then everyone bundled up and through hail and wind started for home, arriving there in the early hours of the morning.

ST. MARY'S, MANVERS

The meeting of St. Mary's A.Y.P.A. was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Smith on Wednesday evening taking the form of a Valentine party. Harold Page took charge of the opening exercises. The Rev. A. R. Holden conducted the business session. Bob Rird had charge of the program which included a story with the phrase "You be my Valentine" appearing in the various lines. Games were played and the post office box opened and the interesting cards were distributed, which caused much pleasure to the young people.

A sumptuous lunch was served. A hearty vote of thanks was given the host and hostess and family for their very kind hospitality.

ST. LUKE'S BRANCH

The lecture on Wednesday evening under the auspices of the A.Y.P.A. was very well receives. Dr. Lewis apparently knows his birds and the branch was fortunate in getting him. The meeting on Thursday, the 15th will be a Valentine party when the branch will have as its guests, St. George's A.Y.P.A. The committee is arranging a good program, so come along. Due to an error last week the donation to the Women's Guild was $5.00 instead of $20.00.

PETERBOROUGH DISTRICT

The annual stunt night was held on Tuesday in All Saints' Parish Hall with the four city branches and Lakefield entering. The stunts were varied and the judges, Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., Miss C. McCarthy and Dick Lush had a rather difficult time in picking St. Luke's as the winner.

The district extends its thanks to all those who entered the contest and also to Miss Earnshaw and her committee for their splendid efforts, to the judges and to All Saints' for the use of the hall.

Military Ball Is Colorful Affair

The Prince of Wales Rangers' Ball on Friday night was a colorful and interesting affair. Two hundred and fifty attended, and were received by Lieut.-Col. R. T. E. Hicks-Lyne and Mrs. Hicks-Lyne, Major and Mrs James Turnbull and Major and Mrs. G. Raymore Scott.

In the Officers' Mess the lovely gowns of the ladies and the regimental uniforms of the men made a striking picture against the clever fuschia and gold light and ceiling drapings. The same regimental colors were used effectively behind the orchestra stand, where panels of gold were done in a modernistic design of fuschia and silver. Inspiration to dancing feet was lent by the gay music of Jerry Wooll's orchestra

When you have to pack a pleated skirt or frock, try this plan: Lay the garment flat, smoth the pleats into their proper position, and slip a hair grip into the hem to keep them in place. Then fold the skirt or frock to the necessary size. At your journey's end the pleats will emerge flat and in perfect shape.

CONSTIPATED? Help BIG BOWEL!

Don't Upset Whole Bowel Tract, Just Move Body Waste Those Last Few Inches

Most constipation occurs in the big bowel (marked X), right when waste has almost reached the point where bowels should move.

So it's only sensible—when constipated, draggy, headachy—to take a laxative that works where the waste has jammed; one that won't upset other parts of the bowels, or the whole intestinal tract.

Doses like calomel do most of their work on the other end of the bowels, more than 20 feet away! Salts flush from end to end; may leave you weak and worn-out. Oils act chiefly on the small intestine.

To relieve constipation fast, make sure your laxative works first where the waste has piled-up! That's the action you get from Chocolate Flavor Cascarets. They work on the big bowel—move waste those last few inches, bring blessed relief overnight. They can do this because each tablet contains cascara, said to give nearest to natural action of any cathartic, which acts to cleanse the big bowel in 10 to 12 hours.

Try this sensible form of relief. Each foil-wrapped Chocolate Cascaret tablet is a gentle, effective dose, pleasant to take because of the fine milk chocolate flavor. All druggists, or write Dept. P-4, "Cascarets," Windsor, Ont., for free sample.

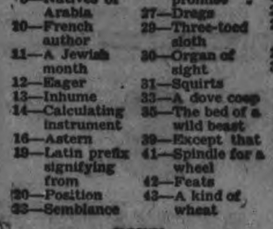
BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

WRITTEN FOR THE EXAMINER
By SHEPARD BARCLAY
"The Authority on Authorities"

GET OUT OF THE WAY!

KEEP YOUR WITS about you and notice what your partner is trying to tell you. If he has bid a suit and then during the play extends a high-low signal to you, he surely is trying to give you some sort of a message. If you don't manage to read it, or if you take too long to realize what he is screaming at you, disaster is likely to befall your side.



(Dealer: West. East-West vulnerable.)

West opened here with 1-Diamond, East bid 1-Heart, South 1-Spade, West 2-Clubs, North 2-Spades, East 4-Clubs, South 4-Spades, West 5-Clubs and North sacrificed at 5-Spades, which East doubled. To make the set profitable, in lieu of a vulnerable game, it would have to be of four tricks, or in other words, six tricks must be taken.

West peeled off two heart tricks, two clubs and then shifted to a third round of hearts, which South ruffed. As three spades were being run, West, a quite canny player, saw a possible danger arising, so when he discarded diamonds used first his 9 and then his deuce. East got the idea then and threw off his diamond Q. Declarer suddenly realized what he should do. Hoping that East originally held the diamond king-queen alone, he did not first lay down his ace, but led a small diamond. Sure enough, East had to win it and had nothing to return but a heart or club. He picked a club, so declarer discarded a diamond from his own hand and ruffed the trick in dummy. He then cashed the diamond ace, and finished with trump tricks, having lost only two hearts, two clubs and one diamond. If he had run another round of trumps, so East could have discarded the diamond K, he would have lost two diamond tricks.

Baronet At Six

LONDON, Feb. 11 (CP Cable).—A six-year-old English schoolboy has been made a baronet, it was announced last night, because his father died a few days before the kings New Year's honors list was published.

His Majesty intended conferring the baronetcy — hereditary knighthood — on J. W. Hills, long-time Conservative member of the House of Commons, but Hills died December 24. The King now has conferred the title on Hills' schoolboy son, Andrew Ashton Waller Hills, whose mother will be styled Lady Hills.

Six Essentials Are Necessary For Successful Farming Former Manitoba Minister Says

Six essentials to the successful maintenance of farming in this country were outlined by D. G. McKenzie, former minister of agriculture in the Manitoba government, and chairman of the National Farm Chemurgic council. He was speaking to representatives of the county and city, councils, the exhibition board, and every service club in Peterborough, together with other representative citizens, at the Kiwanis club's luncheon at the Empress hotel on Friday afternoon. The meeting was the most widely attended this year.

The government must maintain quality production on farms, the speaker said; must ensure protection through proper grading and inspection; must reduce farmers' costs of production-transportation, credit, equipment costs, labor; must develop wider markets; must foster aggressive advertising and sales promotion; must find new edible and inedible uses for farm products. This six-fold program was essential to the welfare of the entire country because, he maintained, agriculture is Canada's basic industry and around it is weaved the success or failure of the country in general.

Mr. McKenzie was introduced by E. B. Fowler as a Kiwanian and Scotsman, a westerner thoroughly familiar with the problems of the west. "We need to know the problems of the west, particularly in view of the things some politicians are saying," Mr. Fowler declared. A man born and educated in the west, Mr. McKenzie was a graduate of the Manitoba Agricultural school. He had a varied and successful career and in 1935 he resigned as minister of agriculture for Manitoba to become head of the United Grain Growers' association and chairman of the National Farm Chemurgic council.

Disposing Of Surplus

The problem of disposing of surplus agricultural materials is the most important facing this country today, the speaker said. Far more grain is being produced than can be consumed by the world's population, and today there is a surplus of 300 million bushels for which there is no apparent use. Mr. McKenzie contributed this condition to insane nationalism in Europe, racial hatreds, armament manufacture, the "self sustaining" policy of European countries, and the loss of freedom of people in those lands. "People have lost the privilege of saying what they shall eat and where they shall buy their food," he said. "Germany has gone further than any other country in regulating the eating habits of her people." He pointed as evidence of this contention to the revival of the whaling industry by Germany, said that seven fleets are now operating. Whale oil to the tune of 91,850 tons had been brought back by Germany by these boats as a substitute for butter. She reduced her imports of fats by 20 million marks.

"The first result of that sort of action is the complete break-down of world trade," he said. "We no longer deal by the gold standard but by the barter system, as evidenced recently in Mexico." Markets have lost their stability as a result.

He reviewed the disastrous times that befell agriculture from 1930 to 1934, the gradual price recovery from 1935 to 1937, and the backward trend in 1938. "In the course of that one year we are being asked to subsidize the Canadian farmer to the extent of $50,000,000 and have a carry-over of a hundred million bushels of wheat in spite of the fact that last year was no bumper crop. It is possible that in the years that lie immediately ahead of us, we will develop in agricultural marketing a problem rivalling that of the railroads?" he asked.

All Benefit From Farm Wealth

Agriculture last year created a wealth of more than one billion dollars—wealth that is new, that exacts no interest, that need not be repaid, he said. The manufacture, the laborer, the wholesaler, the retailer, the mortgage and financial companies, all benfit from that wealth. And so the question of farm income becomes of vital import to the people of Canada, he pointed out.

"The basic steps toward making jobs in Canada is to produce the things that will be sold. We must find ways to increase the volume of actual physical goods and all materials that have to be produced, hauled, stored, transported, refined, manufactured, processed, packaged, transported again, wholesaled, retailed, and delivered. All along the line these goods must be inspected, handled, and rehandled. There are the processes that make jobs. The whole structure rests on physical goods and are the only sources of these are the mines, the forests, the lakes and rivers, and chiefly agriculture.

The rural dweller produces, the urban dweller transports, processes and sells; each is the necessary complement of the other. Their mutual interests can only be served by joint, cooperative action. There is no room for class against class in the Canadian set-up, he maintained. Each group must recognize the difficulties confronting the other, he said, outlining agriculture's difficulties as those of production, rehabilitation, and marketing. "These are national problems and require national consideration," he said.

He frowned upon reduced production of grain in this country. Only result of such a plant—because the farmer must turn his efforts to other branches of agriculture—would be to shift the problem to the cattle and dairy branches, he claimed.

Best Hard Wheat

Canada will always have a guaranteed market for her wheat because she has the best hard wheat in the world, and because Great Britain must depend upon her food for requirements in view of possible war, he said. In addition to enlarging this market, new industrial markets must be obtained, he said. Industry and science are joining with agriculture at the present time, to develop an ever increasing use for farm products. Such is the work of the National Farm Chemurgic council. He revealed that the Ford Motor Company uses immense quantities of wool, leather, cotton, corn, flax, sugar cane, soya beans, lumber, rubber, and other products in its work. "Products from approximately 500,000 acres of land are used by Ford each year," he said.

In the United States entire houses have been erected from waste agricultural materials; 2,000 service stations are serving gasoline containing alcohol manufactured from 1,500,000 bushels of grain. One American research man has predicted that in twenty years every man on relief now may be employed just because of advances in agriculture made through chemistry. Large sums of money are being expended to increase uses of agricultural products, many new uses are being discovered every week. In this work he saw the salvation of the marketing problem facing agriculture.

WILHELM WIRTZ

BARON VON COLLENBERG

One of the paradoxes of present day Mexico, is the increasing power of the Nazis, despite the power of the Cardenas government, which is the most democratic that Mexico has ever seen. Germany controls about 6,500 Germans in Mexico through the "Centro Alman," which in turn is controlled by about 400 Berlin-supported, highly organized Nazi party members. Maron Ruedt von Collenberg, German minister, although a conservative at heart, is forced to kow-tow to the Nazis. Wilhelm Wirtz is top man of the Nazi organization in Mexico and is head of the German legation, while Dr. Henrich Northe, councillor of the German legation, leads the Centro Alman.

Waterworks Department Shows Profit Of $1,140.87 For Year

The Utilities Commission presents in another column a statement of the Waterworks Department showing the receipts and expenditure for the year 1938. It will be noted that there was an operating profit of $789.06 to which is added interest earned on investments and from the bank, making a total profit for the year of $1,140.87.

During the year the Commission, as a result of the increased building activity, experienced a busy construction program. Fifty-six new services were laid, mostly to new houses. About sixty services that had been standing idle for some years were turned on to serve new houses.

The 12 inch cast iron main on Barnardo avenue was extended to Wolseley street and along the latter to Benson avenue. This will result in better water pressures in the district.

The 6 inch main on Bonaccord street was extended from the C.N.R. tracks to Monaghan road. This main was laid as a result of a request from the City Council and the Nicholls Park Trust so that water could be supplied to the Jackson Park summer Fresh Air Camp.

Water consumption for the past year was only three million gallons more than last year. The average per day being 2,714,482 gallons. On June 23rd 4,700,000 gallons were pumped during one of the hottest days of the summer.

The quality of the water delivered to the consumers left very little to be desired. It was absolutely free from bacteria or taste and the color was good.

The most serious emergency to the waterworks system occurred on July 26th when a miniature cyclone struck the plant. A large number of trees were blown down and the power supply wires were demolished. Power was off at the Filtration Plant pumps for sixteen hours but as the reservoir was full at the time of the break, water was available from storage for supply to the citizens.

Some years ago the Commission felt that the citizens generally were not visiting the Filtration Plant as much as could be desired and in order to attract them to the plant an electric fountain was installed. The success of his action was evident and as a further attraction a natured life sanctuary was established and added to from time to time.

There are now on exhibition bears, raccoons, a deer, angora rabbits, wild ducks and geese, white swans and pheasants of several kinds. There are also two alligators which are rare in this locality.

The small cost of maintaining the Park and its attractions is, in the opinion of the Commission, of little consideration compared with the pleasure it has given to so many of the citizens.

The Commission is happy to say that the Waterworks System has met al lthe demands on it has supplied an ample amount of pure attractive water to its consumers at a reasonable charge.

Annual Meeting Apsley Church

(Examiner Correspondence.)

APSLEY, Feb. 11.—The annual vestry meeting of St. George's Anglican church was held on Monday evening with a good attendance.

A pot luck supper was served at 6.30 p.m. and was voted a great success. The business meeting was held after in the new room behind the Parish hall.

Rev. F. McMulken was in the chair and opened the meeting with prayer. Rev. F. McMulken, in a short address, thanked the wardens and other workers for their splendid cooperation in the past year. He also gave splendid reports on all the different organizations of this parish: The Ladies Guild, Junior W.A., Junior Boys' League and the choir, under the able leadership of Mrs. G. Kilborn, organist.

Wardens' Report

Rector's warden, W. Everett, then read the financial statement, which was encouraging. He was chosen by Rev. F. McMulken for the same post this year and Herb Lean was voted in again as people's warden. Chesel McColl was chosen lay delegate, with F. Tanner as alternate. The rector expressed warm thanks to all who had faithfully assisted in any way to carry on the work of the church, finding in every way the business details had been quite successfully managed by the various officers. The meeting closed with prayer. Games were played for a while and a social time enjoyed.

Labor Move Lost To Reduce Cost Of Living

By J. F. Sanderson
(Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

LONDON, Feb. 10—(CP Cable).—An ambitious scheme by the Labor Party to regulate the prices of practically all articles of everyday use was defeated by the House of Commons to-day, 138 vote to 81.

The Bill, sponsored by G. S. Woods, had the object of establishing a consumers' council to enable the Board of Trade to regulate the prices of certain commodities. It was designed to reduce the cost of living and give the consumer value for his money.

Mr. Woods said many laws on the statute book were designed to maintain prices for producers, but consumers were not protected. He claimed British milk prices are the highest in the world and that the Government's regulation of the bacon industry had resulted in higher prices and reduced volume.

Conservative members attacked the Bill as unworkable and as example of "despotic, buresucratic control."

Ronald Cross, Parliament Secretary to the Board of Trade, rejected the measure on behalf of the Government. He said he did not believe any board should have the power to compel people to pay set prices for almost every article of common use.

The proposals, Mr. Cross said, "are so all embracing that they would be suitable for war time or for a dictator but are not suitable to a democracy in a state of peace."

LAKEFIELD

Valentine Party Is Planned By Y.P.U.

(Examiner Correspondence.)

LAKEFIELD, Feb. 11. — Final arrangements for a Valentine party on Tuesday evening were made at the weekly meeting of the Y.P.U. of Lakfield United Church held here on Tuesday. Robert Spence conducted the recreation period, after which the president tok the chair for the business session. Medames D. MacMillan, J. R. Hull, H. E. Moore, and William Millage were named as a committee in charge of refreshments. Misses Helen Kelly, Lois Yale, Constance Orr, and Deona Shearer were named as a decoration committee. Ralph Jackman was appointed to take the receipts at the door. Wellie Garbutt, Donald Yale, and Ralph Jackman were appointed to arrange for a Y.P.U. skating party in the near future. Robert Spence was instructed to convey to Fairview Y.P.U. an invitation to be guests of the Lakefield Society on March 14.

It was decided that the roll-call system used last year would again be put into operation. Clayton Bullock acted as chairman for the Christian Fellowship program, and called up Don. Yale, who read the Scripture, and Rev. Mr. Kelly, who led in prayer. Mrs. Butcher rendered a vocal solo, "Jesus is all the world to me," and Rev. Mr. Kelly played a cornet solo, "Drink to Me Only With Thine Eyes" and "It Goes like This, That Funny Melody."

After a second hymn Rev. G. F. Kelly presented the topic, taking as the subject, "The Bible." He stated that there are many different Bibles, all accepted by different groups. There is the Hebrew Bible, i.e., a Hebrew rendering of the Old Testament; and the Roman Catholic Bible which contains, in addition to the Old and New Testaments, a collection of books known as the Apocrypha. Then there is the Greek New Testament; the Authorized Version of the Bible; the Revised Version of the Bible; the Twentieth Century New Testament; Moffatt's translation; Weymouth's translation; Goodspeed's translation; and some others less well known.

"Which of these books should we accept as our Bible?" Rev. Mr. Kelly asked.

"The Authorized edition—the translation of King James, which was produced in 1611—provides a beauty of language and diction which is unsurpassed, and it is therefore suitable for public worship. But for private reading, it is my conviction," Rev. Mr. Kelly continued, "that the Revised Version, besids being more accurate, is more readable. Moffatt's translation reads like a story-book, enlighteoning and illuminating. Much of the Authorized Version is still imprisoned in a phraseology which is meaningless to our generation, and the modern English translations are much more understandable."

Canada's indebtedness to the United States would have to be paid in goods and over 50 years Canada had an average adverse balance of trade with the United States of about $200,000,000. If that continued the debt was almost certain to increase rather than decrease.

Social Credit theories had a certain foundation which was worthy of thought but Mr. Stevens admitted frankly he could not understand their application. Challenged by C. H Layderyon (S.C. Calgary East) to say what he would offer as a substitute for Social Credit principles, Mr. Stevens replied he had certain ideas but doubted if it was worthwhile expressing them then.

"If tomorrow I were in the position of the minister of finance," he added, "I know certain steps I would take which I believe would be helpful."

"Let us have them," said a member.

"I am not prepared to give them at the present time," said Mr. Stevens.

Bren Debate Adojurned.

The house assumed a more tranquil mood yesterday as the controversial Bren gun debate was adjourned until Monday. The only speaker on that subject was Grant MacNeil (C.C.F. Vancouver North) who charged Defence Minister Mackenzie with evading the issues raised by resorting to attacks on the opposition in his Thursday night speech. Mr. MacNeil repeated his demand for an inquiry into the Inglis Company contract for 7,000 machine guns by the public accounts committee.

Without opposition Health Minister Power obtained second reading of a bill to extend the health department's power under the food and drug act to cosmetics, disinfecting materials and articles and materials used in diagnosis. These powers relating chiefly to the regulation of advertising to prevent misleading statements and to the protection of the public against dangerous ingredients.

Tribute to Pope Pius XI was paid by Justice Minister Lapointe, representing Prime Minister Mackenzie King, and Hon. C. H. Cahan, representing Conservative Leader Manion, at the opening of the sitting.

Once Toast Of Vienna Actress Odilon Dies In Poverty

Vienna, Feb. 11 (AP)

HELENE ODILON, foremost actress of the Austrian stage in the early 1900's, died in poor circumstances yesterday in a home for the aged at nearby Baden. She was 74.

The former actress, once the toast of Vienna's gilded youth, toured the United States in 1902 appearing in the plays of Hermann Sudermann. She suffered a nervous disorder which forced her retirement from the stage at the age of 46.

Special Grant Of $3,000 Is Made To City

A special appropriation of approximately $3,000 has been assured to the council in a letter received Monday night from the Department of Public Welfare. It confirmed confirmation of consideration promised by Hon. Eric Cross to an appeal made by Mayor Hamilton and Alderman Dutton representing the city's relief department. The Government's assistance for 1938 had been made on monthly basis estimated early in the year from the probable requirements for relief in Peterborough; but, employment conditions declined during the year with the resulting increase in relief costs.

The committee had explained these facts to the Minister, and suggested that for the last quarter of the year the Government's grant should be increased on the basis of 70 per cent. of the actual relief disbursements. Since then the Department decided to accede to Peterborough's request, and the grant for the last three months of 1938 is $9,200 instead of about $6,000, a difference of approximately $3,000 above the Government's estimated assistance for the year.

Paris In White Costs $130,000

PARIS, Feb. 11—(CP)—If Parisians were delighted to have a romantically "white" Christmas the first time in 19 years—they lost enthusiasm when the price was published the other day.

In true French fashion which believes every problem must be solved intellectually if not practically, they put a number of scientific and mathematical experts to work upon the street cleaning after the snow came. Their idea was to dissolve it.

According to their estimates Paris has 20,000,000 square yards of sidewalk and street; the snow lay six inches thick—that gives an approximate total of 2,800,000 cubic yards of snow to dissolve.

More scientific and mathematical gymnastics and it was decided that 18 tons or 26,000 pounds of salt would be needed to do the job. Too much said the authorities and they compromised on half that quantity of salt together with 10,000 pounds of sand.

More than 3,000 extra workmen were hired to scatter the salt so that the final cost of the job came to more than 5,000,000 france ($133,000). For four days the streets were a thick slush of snow, salt, sand and oil.

Madrid Again Under Shellfire

Negrin Back In City Hurries Up His Fortifications

PERPIGNAN, France, Feb. 13—(AP). — Spanish insurgent guns, hurling shells into the heart of Madrid, brought the civil war back today to the ancient capital, where the government was striving to rally its dwingling forces.

Government dispatches said more than 100 shells fell in the crowded central streets of Madrid Sunday, killing 16 persons and wounding 23. Steady repetitions of the bombardment were feared. Insurgent air raids on government cities caused more than 100 deaths at Jativa, 40 miles south of Valencia, and 20 deaths and injuries to 55 at Alicante. Valencia also was bombed.

The central Madrid-Valencia zone had been quiet while the insurgents carried out the campaign in northeastern Spain, which started December 23 and ended last week in the conquest of Catalonia.

Premier Juan Negrin of Republican Spain presided at a Cabinet meeting yesterday in his new Madrid quarters. A proclamation to the nation was published, calling for the union of all classes to carry on a resistance like that which besieged Madrid has shown since November, 1936.

Out For Independence.

The proclamation reiterated the government's war aims "to assure the independence of Spain and prevent our country from being drowned in a sea of blood, hatred and persecution."

Insurgent General Franco has insisted on the unconditional surrender of the government.

Communiques from both sides today lapsed back into the laconic phrase, "nothing to report on any front"—indicating a new phase of reorganization had begun for a final and decisive struggle in the centre of the country, the scant quarter of Spain that Franco does not control.

The insurgent command, however, was known to be withdrawing its crack divisions from the north and resting them in preparation for a fresh offensive in the central zone. The government was hastening for its work of fortification.

When and where the insurgent hammer would fall next was a military secret, but it was expected by border observers to swing toward Valencia, rather than the fortress of Madrid.

Gananoque Fire Costs $50,000

GANANOQUE, Ont., Feb. 13. — (CP) —Workmen dug through the ruins of four shops to-day as residents of this Eastern Ontario town counted a $50,000 loss from fire of unknown origin that broke out early Sunday. The blaze happened almost on the 30th anniversary of a $100,000 blaze that laid low many of the town's most valuable business properties.

The Smith building, a three-storey brick structure a half-century old, suffered extensive damage. It housed four of shops that suffered, a pool room, tobacco shop, barber shop and the Red and White stores, operated by Harry and Arthur Smith, owners of the building.

A Dominion Stores branch, on the main floor of an adjacent building, was also damaged by smoke and water. Firemen from Kingston were called, but before they travelled the 30 miles between the towns, Gananoque fire fighters had the fire unde. control. A biting wind and extreme cold hampered firemen, as their spray-drenched clothes froze and held them stiff.

WindsorBandit's Crime Spree Costs 9 Years

WINDSOR, Ont., FGeb. 13 — (C. P.). — John Cote, 20, was sentenced to-day to nine years in Kingston Penitentiary on each of six charges arising from a crime spree here the week-end of January 28, and five years on a charge of conspiracy. All sentences will be concurrent.

Cote was charged with having a gun illegally, two charges of attempted armed robbery and three charges of armed robbery.

The conspiracy charge arose from a gas station holdup here on January 27 when he "held up" Roy Strickland, the sole attendant, and escaped with more than $70. Strickland has pleaded guilty to conspiring with Cote to stage the holdup and share the loot. Strickland was remanded to-day until Wednesday for sentence.

After the successful Friday night crime, Cote allegedly launched a headlong, reckless personal crime wave. He held up six people during the next night, shooting one, Moses Cohen, in the leg as he fled from an attempted holdup.

Got Less Than $2.00.

All robberies netted a total of less than $2 and were staged in a six-block area. Cote, nearly drunk, blindly evaded the hurried police net flung around the scene of each robbery.

Cote told police he was so fearful he would be arrested, that on Sunday night he decided to throw the police off the scent by shooting himself and saying he was shot in attempting to capture the hold-up artist.

Cote was found unconscious in a snowbank early on Monday morning and taken to hospital. He said he had struggled with the bandit and had been shot in the shoulder. Police arrested him immediately after he left the hospital the following Thursday, and they said he confessed two days later to the complete story.

Crown Attorne James Allan in Court to-day said Cote's criminal record extended back to when Cote was 12.

Cars Kill Five In Ontario Toll Of Nine

2 Guelph Girls Die As Mother's Car Crashes Into Train

TORONTO, Feb. 13. — (CP).— Week-end accidents in Ontario left a death toll of nine. There were five highway fatalities, while one man died in his flaming bed, another was struck by a train and the frozen body of a man was found in his automobile. A baby was scalded to death.

Two-year-old Leona Egan died in hospital to-day at London from the effects of burns suffered yesterday when she tumbled backwards into a bowl of boiling water. The baby was playing near the bowl on the floor in the Egan home.

Early Sunday a search party found the frozen body of John Rae, 55, in his car two miles from his home near Rockwood. Rae, widely known in Eramosa, where he served several years on the township council, had been shopping at Rockwood Saturday and was reported to have been in good health. A search was started when he failed to return home Saturday night.

Arthur Pargeter, 75, bland and an invalid, died in his bed at Port Perry when sparks from his pipe ignited the bed clothing.

Police are investigating the death of Michael Graham, 65, of R.R. 2, Newmarket, whose body was so badly mangled identification was difficult after it was found by a passing motorist at the roadside two miles south of Bradford Saturday night. Coroner L. W. Dales ordered an inquest.

Twelve-year-old Austin St. Croik of Trenton was en route home from having delivered newspapers to the Royal Canadian Air Force station when a car driven by George Way of Trenton collided with the rear of the boy's bicycle. Police said there was no reflector on the rear fender of the cycle, but that the front forks carried a combination headlight and rear light. Way said blinding headlights prevented him seeing the boy.

Wife Had Premonition.

Seth Rimmer, 49, of New Toronto, had just completed checking freight on a train at a siding when he apparently stepped in front of the Toronto-Sarnia flyer 350 yards west of the C.N.R. station at New Toronto Saturday night. His wife said today she had a premonition in a dream of his death. "I knew there was bad news coming," she said. "I had the same kind of dream before both my father and mother died in England a year ago."

Mrs. W. F. Boles of Guelph was given a good chance today of recovering from injuries suffered Saturday when her two daughters, Ila, 18, and Frances, 10, were killed as the car the mother was driving was carried 90 feet by a C.P.R. train after a collision at a Guelph level crossing. Mrs. Boles was tossed clear of the car and was unconscious several hours. Officials said there was a clear view of the crossing.

William Daniel Warner, 79, a Grimsby fruit grower, was killed a mile west of that town when struck by a car while crossing the road after seeing friends off on a bus. The car, police said, was driven by Harvey Easson, North Grimsby.

Warner and six of his seven sons served overseas in the Great War. All returned safely.

Because of the greatest shortage of potatoes in Ireland since the famine year of 1847-48 "spud" prices have doubled in Cork.

Prefers Officer's Word To Convict's Gen. Williams Clears Wilson

TORONTO, Feb. 13 — (CP). — Major-General Victor Williams, Provincial Police Commissioner, exonerated Provincial Constable Alex. Wilson of charges brought against him by Melville Campbell, bank robber, now in Kingston Penitentiary, in a report delivered to-day to Attorney-General Gordon Conant.

The report recommended immediate reinstatement of Wilson, suspended while a formal inquiry was made, and Mr. Conant said: "I am instructing that Wilson be reinstated".

Campbell, during his trial at London for the robbery of a Mount Brydges, Ont., bank, said he had paid a Provincial Constable for information. He was sentenced to eight years and General Williams, as a Commissioner under the Constables' Act, was named to investigate the charge.

General Williams went to the Penitentiary to take Campbell's evidence and 14 specific charges were made against Constable Wilson, attached to the Criminal Investigation Branch headquarters staff. Pending the outcome of the investigation, Wilson was suspended.

14 Charges Laid.

The charges of Campbell included incitement to crime, conspiracy to commit crime, keeping criminals informed of police movements, and accepting money from him (Campbell) to use influence to get him a lighter sentence.

The report reviews each of the 14 charges and finds no evidence was adduced to support any of them. General Williams so renders his judgment and findings.

"Wherever Wilson's word comes in conflict with Campbell's word, I believe Wilson," says General Williams after pointing to the convict's long record.

Campbell's first charge was that the day after the Mount Brydges robbery he, through his brother, Howard Campbell, paid Constable Wilson $350. Evidence at the inquiry was that Wilson was not in Windsor at the time the alleged payment was made there. Howard Campbell denied his brother's story.

Gunmen Loot Toronto Shop For Third Time Escaping On Foot With $75 Cash

TORONTO, Feb. 13.—(CP)— Two gunmen held up the Ellis hosiery shop at 1308 Bloor street west today and escaped with $75 from the cash register. A woman clerk, Mrs. Bridgewater, was alone in the shop just after opening when the bandits entered. The pair escaped on foot.

Ellis hosiery shops, scattered about the city's main business areas, have been the scene of numerous holdups. Recently a man was sentenced for the holdup of two of them. He used a toy pistol.

Mrs. Grace Bridgewater was preparing the weekend receipts for deposit in the bank. Two men entered and locked the store door behind them. As Mrs. Bridgewater came from the back room they motioned her back. One man walked behind the counter. The other jumped over it.

"All right, sister, we'll take all you've got," one man said as he spied the money Mrs. Bridgewater had been counting.

It was the third time Mrs. Bridgewater had been held up.

Airliner Vanishes In Alaska With Five Aboard

Planes And Coast Guard Cutter Begin Hunt On Bleak Rocky Shoreline

JUNEAU, Alaska, Feb. 13 (AP).—A Marine Airways plane, with five persons aboard, which disappeared as it fought a storm on a flight from Kietchikan to Juneau, was sought by land and air.

Last word from the plane, a Fairchild pontoon ship, was received at 2.15 p.m. (5.15 p.m. E.S.T.) yesterday, when Pilot Lon Cope radioed he had encountered a storm off Grand Island in Taku Inlet, only a few miles from his destination. The plane left Ketchikan at 11 a.m.

With Cope were John Campbell, insurance agent; E. E. Earl Clifford-an and George Chamberlain, all travelling salesmen.

When the plane failed to arrive at Juneau the United States coastguard cutter Haida sped to Stephen's Passage, 15 miles south of here, where it was believed the ship might have been forced down.

The cutter reported after her arrival she could find no trace of the craft. Guardsmen maintained a watch throughout the night for flares.

Pilot Sheldon Immons, who searched while bringing a load of passengers from Ketchikan to Juneau, said he could find nothing. He reported a heavy wind in the area and said icing conditions were bad.

Pilot Alex. Holden, manager of the Marine Airways, also searched the area on a scheduled trip from Tulsequah, B.C., to Juneau, and after discharging his passengers, returned to the area.

3 Escape Jail By Pounding Hole In Roof

Governor At Milton Mum On How Cells Are Opened

MILTON, Ont., Feb. 13—(CP) (.— Three men broke out of Milton jail during the night, and made their escape.

The prisoners are: Richards Sharpe, 21, of Toronto, Harry Matthews, 28, of Simcoe and Joseph Lazzo, 30, of Hamilton.

Police of the surrounding district were supplied with a description of the men and warned to be on the lookout.

Governor Frank McNiven said the escapes were discovered at six o'clock this morning. Then men were locked in their cells on the second floor at 7 p.m.

Th governor said the men broke from their cells and pounded a hole in the jail roof and escaped through it. From the roof they would go to the jail wall and then jump 20 feet to the ground.

Eleven prisoners were in the jail. Governor McNiven would not say how the men escaped from their cells.

Sheriff W. J. L. Hampshire said he had been informed jailers made their rounds at 10 p.m. and the men were in their cells. The three who escaped were the only ones on the second floor. Eight other prisoners were beneath them.

Matthews was serving three months definite and two months indeterminate for car theft; Lazzo was awaiting trial in Burlington on forgery charges. Sharpe was charged with passing worthless cheques in Hamilton, Brantford and Streetsville.

Shots Finally Stop Them

MILTON, Ont., Feb. 13—(CP).— Richard Sharpe, 22, who escaped from jail here today, was arrested Saturday after a two-and-a-half-mile chase in which two shots were fired. Credit for his arrest went to Miss Alma Hegwill, Streetsville, on whose father Sharpe allegedly passed a $12.50 worthless cheque.

Sharpe was also wanted in several other municipalities on fraud and false pretence shorges.

A worthless cheque was passed at Streetsville store two weeks ago. Miss Hegwill made inquiries of bus drivers running between Toronto and Streetsville and was informed the man who passed the cheque was seen from time to time at the bus terminal here.

Miss Hegwill went to the bus depot Saturday morning and saw Sharpe. She believed he answered the description and boarded the Burlington-bound bus as Sharpe did. She followed him to a bank in Burlington but had difficulty convincing the management she was not an accomplice.

Police were notified and Chief Lee Smith gave chase to Sharp, firing two shots before he halted the fugitive.

Chief Smith said Sharpe wrote out three cheques at the Burlington bank but made no attempt to cash them, tearing them up when bank manager C. S. McKellar approached him.

$200,000 Quebec Fire Fought In 35 Below

AMOS, Que., Feb. 13.—(CP)—An hotel and seven stores were destroyed today by fire that raged for five hours in the heart of this northwestern Quebec mining centre's business section. Early estimates placed damages at close to $200,000.

Firemen, hampered by low water pressure and 35 degrees below zero weather, battled from three a.m. until shortly after eight o'clock before bringing under control the third fire of major proportions in this district in two weeks. They continued to pour water on the grotesque ice-coated ruins throughout the morning as gusts of wind threatend to carry sparks to nearby biuldings.

There were no injuries reported despite the fact some 20 guests in the hotel had to flee in night attire. Gordon McLachlan, who escaped from the building with only a dressing-gown, told The Canadian Press M. Groleau, hotel manager, discovered the fire and personally supervised removal of all the guests from his 40-room building.

The blaze, third of serious proportions in this district in two weeks, was believed to have started in the kitchen. Flames spread rapidly through the two-storey frame building and jumped to adjoining buildings on both sides.

Low water pressure during the first two hours hampered firemen. At 4.50 a.m. the town's power failed and the community was in darkness except for lamps and glow of flames.

$30,000 in Liquor Lost.

A drug store, owned by Dr. Andre Bigue, on the west side of the hotel, was destroyed with stock valued at close to $50,000, and $30,000 worth of liquor in a Quebec Liquor Commission store on the east side also was lost. Dr. Bigue and his wife are in Ottawa.

H. Arcand's pool room, the Lacroix bakery, a haberdashery, and the Radio Cafe all fell before the marching flames, and Joseph Scan, lan, whose apartment was above one of the stores, was driven to the street before he could save anything. Most of the moveables were taken from the safe, but everything in the pool room and haberdashery and bakery was lost.

For a time it was feared the telephone building, two doors from the cafe, would be destroyed, but firemen, working desperately despite the bitter cold, believed they could stop the flames from spreading farther. Destruction of the telephone building would cut off outside telephone communication.

Odel Lebel, who only recently took over management of a jewellery store in the hotel, estimated his loss at $5,000, while Wilfrid Poitras, owner of a barber shop in the same building, counted loss of $2,500. The hotel, apart from the guests' personal belongings, was valued at $35,000.

Heat from the flames cracked windows in buildings across the street and panes of glass in the Roman Catholic Church nearly a block away were shattered.

Weather Flier Soars 3 Miles In Gale, Disappears, Driven Backwards

SPOKANE, Wash., Feb. 13—(AP) —Airmen and ground patrols joined today in a search for Roy Shrecks, 36, who rode his plane three miles up into a stormy sky Sunday morning and failed to return

Shreck, official United States weather bureau flyer, who every night for three years, in good weather and bad, has gone high aloft to obtain meteorological data that others might fly more safely, was last heard from at 1:20 a.m. yesterday.

Then his wife heard his voice over short wave radio reciver. She said he told the airways communication station here that he was up 15,000 feet, headed into a wind so strong that his plane was moving backward. He reported, she said, that his ship was laboring under a heavy load of ice and that, though blinded by fog, he was coming down.

He did not return to the airport. Attendants at the field said his gasoline supply was sufficient for only four or five hours.

Use Gas On Mob

RANGOON, Burma, Feb. 13 (AP). —Police used tear gas today to disperse unruly crowds as a bomb blast signalled the spread of Mandalay disturbances to the Burmese capital. Two persons were wounded by the bomb which exploded while the House of Representatives discussed Mandalay riots in which 24 were killed Friday. Police concentrated on the surtee bazaar, Rangoon's chief market, where pickets endeavored to halt business.

Runaway R.A.F. Balloon Heads North Towards Germany

London, Feb. 13 (AP)

THE Royal Air Force abandoned a chase today for a London barrage balloon which broke from its mooring yesterday and headed over the North Sea toward Germany, trailing more than 100 feet of steel cable. Planes had been dispatched to hunt for it. Two other balloons broke loose but were recaptured.

Britain Mum On Rebel Recognition

Laborites Furious As Debate Blocked On Issue

By J. F. Sanderson
(Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

LONDON, Feb. 13—(CP Cable.)— A move by the labor party to start a general debate in the House of Commons on the possibility of Great Britain recognizing the Spanish Insurgent administration was blocked today by Captain Fitzroy, Speaker of the House.

Prime Minister Chamberlain at question time declined to give assurance that the government is not contemplating recognition of General Franco's regime as the sole Spanish authority.

He said France and Great Britain are in close touch with each other on the whole Spanish situation which, he added, is changing rapidly.

The prime minister also declined to give assurance that parliament will be consulted before recognition is made.

The prime minister's statement brought shouts of indignation from the labor party, which is stoutly opposed recognition of Franco.

Arthur Henderson, labor front-bencher, who had asked the original question on recognition, attempted to change the order of business so a debate on recognition could be held.

As a matter of "urgent public importance," he wanted a debate on the board question of recognizing General Franco while the Spanish government continued to function.

The speaker ruled against him.

Raids Disobedience

Replying to another question, the prime minister said the British government had received assurance that the bombing of Port Mahon, on the Balearic Island of Minorca, while the "mercy ship" Devonshire was in harbor was due to "disobedience of orders and is very much regretted."

This declaration came from General Franco's senior naval officer at Majorca, a sister Balearic island, where Italian planes which carried out the raid were based. H.M.S. Devonshire took insurgent officials to Minorca to arrange its surrender to the insurgents The island had been held by the Spanish government since the outbreak of the war.

The prime minister said Count San Luis, civil governor of Majorca, was taken to Minorca on the Devonshire to negotiate a peaceable surrender of the island.

The only purpose of the British government was to avoid unnecessary bloodshed, but while the cruiser was in port Mahon insurgent planes made six raids.

Protests had been made to General Franco but none, the prime minister told Mr. Henderson, to Italy. The British government "took no part in the negotiations and was not referring to the terms of surrender under which the insurgents took possession of Minorca late last week.

Britons Pressed To Till More Land

WINCHESTER, England, Feb. 13 (CP).—A sweeping land development program to solve Britain's farming problems is advocated by Lord Addison, a former Labor Minister of Agriculture.

He told a meeting of the Hampshire branch of the National Farmers' Union that during the past seven years more land had gone out of active cultivation in Great Britain than all the land under crops and grass in the whole of Hampshire and the Isle of Wight. And in that time 100,000 workers had left the land.

Calling this situation "a terrible national danger," Lord Addison outlined a land development policy embracing these points:

Arable cultivation should be raised from 12,000,000 to 17,000,000 acres;

Wheat production should be doubled;

At least 7,500,000 acres of grass land should be restored by modern methods to double its meat and milk production;

Milk production should be doubled for liquid consumption and for butter-making combined;

Production of eggs, vegetables and fruit should each be increased by at least 60 per cent., and

Production of meat should be increased by at least 25 per cent.

Sharpshooters Of 2 Forgotten Spanish Corps Hold Rebels Off Last Bit Of Catalonia

PRATS-DE-MOLLO, France, Feb. 13—(AP). — A tiny bit of Northern Catalonia where a few hundred men sat huddled around camp fires in the snow-covered Pyrenee to-day was still Spanish territory.

These "forgotten men" of the 11th and 17th Army Corps camped on the Spanish side of the mountains and the government tri-color still flew over one mountain hamlet in Catalonia, the rest of which has fallen to the insurgents.

The shivering, hungry troops, chiefly anarchists, said Baget—a mountain hamlet connected with the rest of Spain by a smugglers' trail—remained "government." A handful of sharpshooters held of the insurgents there.

The 11th and 17th Army Corps, they said, missed their share of the glory in the Spanish Civil War. Time and time again, said the guardsmen, the 11th and 17th were outflanked because other army corps were defeated and each time they were forced to withdraw from their positions.

London Murder Of Irish Girl "The Black Butterfly" Is Laid To I.R.R. Bomb Gang

Stiletto Slaying Is Suspected Vengeance For Betrayal Of Sabotage Secrets; 19 Men And Girl Go On Trial For Bombings

LONDON, Feb. 13 (AP).—The stiletto slaying of a comely Irish girl known as "The Black Butterfly," in her fashionable London apartment, gave Scotland Yard a clue today in an effort to run down a "ring" behind a series of bombings attributed to the outlawed Irish Republican army.

Detectives assigned to the case disclosed that the victim, 22-year-old Irish Mary Heath, had been killed some time Saturday night because she betrayed sabotage secrets of the I.R.A.

A mysterious telephone call to police disclosed the crime. They were told to go to the girls address—in Dover Street, Mayfair—and there they found her scantily-clad body. She had been stabbed several times and there were bruises on the throat.

Police sought a man with whom she was seen Saturday, the day she attended an Irish-English rugby match in London. In her flat was a rosette of green and white Irish colors she had worn at the game.

Close Check On Crowd

Because of fears of explosions at the game, detectives mingled with the crowds, on the look out for suspicious parcels. Persons newly arrived from Ireland also were inspected closely at docks and railway stations.

At work on the case was Sir Bernard Spilsbury, noted Scotland Yard pathologist. He spent two hours last night in Miss Heath's luxurious green and cream colored bedroom.

Detectives took photographs of the room and the body, which lay face downward on the floor. The girl had rented the flat a fortnight ago. Neighbors were able to give police little information about her.

A special court session was called at the Bow Street police station today to hear charges against 19 men and an 18-year-old girl accused of having explosives "in their possession or under their control" in connection with bombings which have occurred in various parts of England the past month.

Police maintained day and night guards at key transport and communication centres.

Brazil shipped 77,000,000 pounds of coffee to the United States in a recent month.

(Examiner Correspondence.)

LAKEFIELD, Feb. 13. — Richard Alford, well-known farmer and auctioneer of Lakefield, died suddenly at his home here about 11 o'clock on Saturday evening, at the age of seventy-three years.

Born in England, Mr. Alford came to Lakefield at the age of four and has lived in and around the village ever since.

For many years he was proprietor of the restaurant on Regent Street now owned by H. J. Brown. Then Mr. Alford moved to the farm in Smith, where he resided until a few years ago when he retired from farming and took up residence in Lakefield once more.

Although Mr. Alford had been ill on Thursday last, his death on Saturday evening came as a shock to his many friends.

Funeral arrangements are not yet complete.

Railroader Passes

SHERBROOKE, Que., Feb. 13. — (CP).—John H. Walsh, 78, former general manager and vice-president of Quebec Central Railway, died here yesterday.

One of the pioneers of railroading in the province of Quebec, he rose from office boy to the vice-presidency and general directorship of the Quebec Central.

During the Great War he was a member of the administration of the Canadian Railway War Board, and he took part in many national patriotic movements.

"Good night!"

"Boys," said Mr. Picobac pushing back his chair, pipe clutched firmly in one hand, the other up-raised, palm outspread, "I've got a wife. I've got a home. And what's more, I've got a half-pound Lok-Top Tin of Picobac Tobacco at home. Do you think I would trade a mild . . . cool . . . sweet smoke and a quiet evening in my own home to stay out late and play poker with you fellows? Not for a million dollars. Good Night!"

"Come on," urged the crowd. "We'll stake you."

"That's different," grinned Mr. Picobac, resuming his seat and striking a match. "I'm forty cents in the hole."

Picobac is the pick of Canada's Burley Crop, grown in sunny, southern Ontario. For sale everywhere.

"It DOES taste good in a pipe!"

British Steamer Rams And Sinks Pirate Junk But Has To Tow Gang 10 Miles On 2nd Raid

SHANGHAI, Feb. 13 (AP) — One Chinese was killed and ten others were reported to have jumped into the Yangste River and drowned yesterday when the British coastal ship Alexandra was attacked twice by the same band of pirates.

Five other Chinese were wounded in the attacks, the latest of rapidly increasing acts of piracy in China's Japanese-controlled waters.

The Alexandra rammed and sank one of the two junks used by the pirates. The other escaped when the British gunboat Gnat approached.

A few hours later the pirates boarded the Alexandra as she lay at anchor and threatened the British master, J. T. Inch, and members of his crew.

They dismantled the ship's radio and forced the crew to tow their junk ten miles before releasing the ship.

New Woman Councillor To Let Husband Have Seat Next Year

Toronto, Feb. 13 (CP)

MRS. GEORGE H. MITCHELL, elected Saturday as deputy reeve of ward three, North York township, said today she expects next year that her husband will succeed her on the county council. Mrs. Mitchell won the council seat vacated when her husband was disqualified by the courts after he won the election.

Disqualification of Mr. Mitchell was because he was not on the assessment roll, his property being in his wife's name. Mrs. Mitchell says this will be changed by the time the next election rolls around.

Mrs. Mitchell will be the lone woman among more than 60 men councillors.

Brotherhoods Hold Joint Services

The Brotherhood of St. James United Church, numbering thirty-three men, visited the Mark Street United Brotherhood Sunday afternoon and conducted the regular worship service of that body, presenting a helpful and inspirational men's service that was thoroughly appreciated by the men of the Mark Street Brotherhood, the president and the teacher, W. Powell and C. Robb extending the welcome and thanks of the Mark Street men.

Harry Welch, president of the St. James' Brotherhood, capable conducted the service, which consisted of a solo by Harold Lee; a quartette by H. Turner, H. Lee, W. Wood and E. Lee, and prayer by Mr. Littlefair.

The address, entitled "The Building of a Brotherhood," was given by Rev. F. W. Cralk, being most fitting and inspirational, the speaker taking for his text 1st Peter, 2 and 17, and clearly outlining the true requirements, especially that of character, for the building of a successful Brotherhood, deeply touching and challenging men to higher ideals of living.

An anthem was also well received and directed by Ashton Fife, pianist of St. James'. Benediction was pronounced by Harry Welch, president of the St. James' Brotherhood.

William Shea, 88, Dies At Hastings

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HASTINGS, Feb. 13—Succumbing to illness of a month, William Shea, 88, died at his home here Saturday. Although he had been a state of failing health for almost a year, he was able to take occasional walks over town prior to taking sick. He was one of the oldest residents of this village.

The late Mr. Shea was well known throughout this district and in the city of Peterborough. He farmed near Norwood for a number of years until 1907, when he moved to Peterborough to become a motorman on the street railway in that city. He was thus employed until his retirement in 1923. For the past twelve years he has resided in this village with his daughter, Mrs. A. J. McKenty. Each summer he was a familiar figure on the bridge here, as he pursued his favorite pastime of fishing.

The late Mr. Shea was known as a man of quiet disposition and was held in high esteem by all who knew him. His death removes from this district one of the pioneer stock, who figured in the moulding of a prosperous farming community. His wife, Bridget McCarthy, predeceased him twenty-two years ago.

Surviving are two daughter, Mrs. A. J. McKenty of Hastings and Mrs. J. H. Moore of Hanover, Ont.; one brother, Jeremiah Shea of Hastings; four grandchildren, Stafford and Neil McKenty of Hastings and Geraldine and William Moore of Hanover.

Funeral services for the late Mr. Shea were held this morning in Our Lady of Mount Carmel Catholic church here.

Workhouse Looms For Girl Stowaway

NEW YORK, Feb. 13 (CP)—Loretta Eccleston, footloose 20-year-old Hamilton, Ont. girl found as a stowaway aboard the liner Queen Mary, may wind up in a British workhouse when the ship reaches Southampton, officials of the Cunard White Star said here today.

Line officials said that beyond a report that the Canadian girl had confronted ship's officers several hours out of New York Saturday, they had no further details. The Queen Mary is due in Southampton Wednesday.

Usual procedure in the case of stowaways is to request their parents to make good the round-way passage and if it is paid the stowaway is granted passenger status and return is facilitated.

In the event the passage money is not made good, the stowaway is turned over to British civil authorities, who have begun to look on stowaways as a "serious nuisance." Recently two United States girl-stowaways were sentenced to two weeks in the workhouse before being returned.

No word has been received from the Hamilton girl's parents as to whether they will pay the return trip fare, Cunard officials said.

Market Review

TORONTO, Feb. 13.—(CP)—In the absence of leadership from New York where Lincoln's birthday was observed, the Toronto stock market concerned itself mainly today with a group of cheaper golds and among these the tone was firm to strong. Other index groups were inclined to ease off slighly but losses were small generally. Heavy turnover of some of the juniors lifted aggregate volume to around 650,000 shares.

Trading was fairly active in the cheaper golds, notably Stadacona, Augite and Slave Lake, all selling at higher prices, while the action was slow in the senior groups. The New York market holiday undoubtedly was a factor in the small turnover of interlisted issues.

Industrial and Western Oil stocks were down a little at noon, golds were narrowly higher and the Base Metal issues remained unchanged. Steels and Utilities were the weakest of the industrials. Senior golds held steady.

Wright-Hargreaves, Macassa, Perron, O'Brien and Lamaque were gold gainers. Smelters firmed a point and International Nickel lost nearly a point. Home and Okalta posted minor losses and other western oils were steady.

A Friendly Session

KINGSTON, Ont., Feb. 13—(CP).—Mayor H. A. Stewart has called a meeting of city council tonight but it is not for the transaction of business. The meeting will be in the nature of a "get-together," the mayor said, to discuss informally "several matters I think should be discussed this way."

Cardinals Shape Up Rites To Choose Pope

VATICAN CITY, Feb. 13 (AP)—Thousands more passed the bier in St. Peter's Cathedral for a last view of Pius XI today as the congregation of cardinals began formal preparations for the conclave which will choose a new pope.

Foreign cardinals who will participate in the election continued to arrive and today the congregation received the man charged with enforcing the secrecy of their gathering, Prince Don Ludovico Chigi-Albani. Prince Chigi acted at the election of Pius. Members of his family—as marshals of the papal conclave—have had the responsibility continuously since 1712.

Those who went to St. Peter's today gathered under a heavy gray sky which drizzled rain and darkened the square.

Only a few hundred persons were waiting at the cathedral gates when they were unlocked at 8 a.m., but many troops were in the square in expectation of another mighty crowd.

Those who came early stayed for the funeral mass, the second of nine successive daily services, which was again sung before the giant catafalque twice the height of a man, at the far end of the nave from the great bronze doors.

Archbishop Pietro Pisani, canon of the Basilicia, celebrated the mass today.

The solemn chanting echoed faintly through the vast cathedral, its gloom relieved but slightly by a few clusters of feeble electric bulbs high in the ceiling and the flickering glow of candles from the sides of the altars.

Steady Shuffle of Feet

The only other sounds were the steady shuffling of feet past the pontiff's bier, an occasional cry of an infant carried in a parent's arms, and the constant urgings of guards to the crowd to move forward.

Tomorrow at 4 p.m. the body of the pontiff will be taken from the open bier, placed in a triple coffin and entombed in the crypt on the great basilica where Pius will lie among scores of past Popes, Kings and prelates.

The first coffin is of cypress with a great cross of walnut on its lid; the second of lead, and the third of oak. At the feet of the pontiff will be placed a brass tube containing a scripe of the eulogy recited at the burial ceremony and medals in gold, silver and bronze coined during his pontificate.

Cardinals, bishops, the papal household and diplomats will be present at the ceremony in which the body will be placed in the first coffin, which in turn will be fitted into the second and thence into the third.

Amid the elaborate manifestations of sorrow, the College of Cardinals met.

Form Ushers' Club At Campbellford

CAMPBELLFORD, Feb. 13—For the primary purpose of creating a greater interest among young men in the work of the church Rev. B. Simpson Black, of St. Andrew's church, has announced his intention of forming a young ushers' club.

At the initial meeting held in the church on Friday evening an "enthusiastic group of young men" were on hand to hear Mr. Black explain to them the purposes of the club. Although the chief work of these young men, so far as the church itself is concerned, will be to take up the collection at the morning and evening services and to escort members of the congregation to their pews, it will also have its social angle, for Mr. Black plans to have the group gather at least monthly for a supper which will probably be served by members of the Ladies' Aid and here the young men will have further opportunity to hear both discussion and addresses on church problems.

Ratepayers Question Status Of Councillor

A ratepayer of Smith Township directed this question at the Council to-day:

"Is Ernest Scott, on the voters' list as a farmer's son for 1938, eligible to qualify for the position of councillor?"

"This is just a friendly question that I would like to ask the councillors for my understanding is that a farmer's son who is not on the list as owner of property is not eligible to qualify as a councillor although he has a perfect right to vote."

We Noticed

. . . There were lots of wonderful shirts and blouses topping ski trousers or slacks among the costumes at the ski dance Saturday night. Most of the shirts were plaids in bright and dazzling shades, and socks ran the color gamut from A to Z.

✧ ✧ ✧

. . . Stunning was the garb worn by last year's Snow Queen—burgundy slacks tucked into socks of an emerald green and topped with a soft wool sweater of the same shade.

✧ ✧ ✧

. . . One of the girls went for contrast with white cap, scarf and ski boots breaking the rich brown of her ski suit, and another wore trousers and jacket of a deep blue, and a bright, wide sash wound several times about her waist.

✧ ✧ ✧

. . . Tyrolean suspenders were worn on a white costume with a parka daintily and warmly lined with white fur. Other smart sport costumes included a black, full-skirted wool suit embroidered with bright flowers. . . . a skating skirt and three-quarter length coat of red velveteen . . . green trousers topped by a tailored yellow jacket and tie.

Fashions

A gay little spring print crepe silk dress in "Versailles" gold background that you can wear north or south. It is one of the World's Fair mural colors that looks so charming 'neath your dark winter coat. Wear it with or without its brief matching bolero jacket. It's such an easy dress to sew. It cuts in one-piece from neck to hem. The fullness is held in with the belt. . . adjusted to suit your own figure. The model also inludes a vee neck version and pockets. It's also a nice pattern to use for cottons, linens, sheer pastel woollens, etc.

Style No. 2944 is designed for sizes 11, 13, 17 and 19 years. Size 15 requires 4¼ yards of 39-inch material with ¼-yard of 39-inch contrasting and 1½ yards of binding.

The Boy Who Wonders Why He Is Not a "Hit" With Girls Needs To Do a Bit Of Self-Analysis—Check Up On The Advice Here Given

BOYS, if you want to make a hit with girls: Don't be sloppy. Don't look like something the cat brought in and expect a girl to be proud to step out with it. Women put even more stress on appearances than men do, and a girl likes to be proud of her boy friend. She doesn't want to be ashamed of him and have to explain how it happened.

Don't be conceited. Don't act as if you were God's gift to the female sex and a girl was being blessed beyond her deserts when you condescended to show her some attention. Not many girls have any appetite for humble pie, and it makes them hopping mad for a man to adopt this Boy Scout attitude of doing-a-kind-thing-to-a-poor-little-girl.

Don't be a dummy. Don't sit up like a graven image and expect her to work like a dray horse entertaining you. The great, silent men may make a hit in the movies, but they make girls very, very tired in real life.

Don't talk about yourself and your personal interests exclusively. Of course, you are terribly good-looking and all the girls fall for you; you are a great and marvelous genius, but by the time you have monologued about yourself for a couple of hours a girl is liable to get plenty fed up on it. Nobody but your mother wants to hear the details about everything you do.

A girl is willing to lend you her ears, but she doesn't want to give them to you for keeps unless you are talking to her about herself. That is a different story. You will never bore a girl as long as you make her the topic of your conversation.

Don't be either a piker or an easy mark about money. Don't let a girl work you by making you spend money you can't afford. Don't let her hold you up for six birthdays a year. Don't let her get away with a hinting campaign about wrist watches and jeweled bracelets for Christmas. But, on the other hand, don't be one of the cheap skates who make a girl feel that he begrudges every cent he spends upon her.

Better a sandwich and beer supper given with a grand air of nothing being too good for a girl than a feast at a de luxe restaurant where the boy adds up the bill three times and wrangles over the price and holds out on the tip.

Don't tell every girl five minutes after you meet her that she is the one you have been looking for all your life, and where has she kept herself hidden that you never met her before, and that there is something so different about her from all other women. It is old stuff that every girl has heard a hundred times. It gives her a pain in the neck instead of a thrill in the heart. The quick-worker lovemaker is regarded by girls as only a peddler of hokum. They see him as a figure of fun, not as a hero of romance.

Don't be bossy. Just because you date a girl up now and then don't feel that you have a right to tell her whom she may go with, what kind of clothes she may wear and how much lipstick she shall use. That is a privilege a man has to pay for by marriage.

Don't adopt a superior attitude toward women and regard all girls as fools who are only permitted to live through the undeserved kindness of men. The young women who graduated ahead of you in college and who work side by side with you in offices suspect that your views of their sex are green with jealousy.

Don't forget your manners in dealing with girls. Even the most modern of them want to be treated with mid-Victorian chivalry. Don't paw. Don't make a girl pay for 50 cents' worth of attentions with $5 worth of familiarities. Most girls are choosy about the men they kiss and like to pick 'em out themselves.

Don't fail to treat a girl as if she were a lady. That always makes a hit. It is so unexpected and novel in these days.

Spruce Up Furniture With Trim Slip Covers

Make the Simple Pin-On Way

How does your sofa look—just so-so? Easy to spruce it up with a lovely new slip cover of your own making.

Smart these days to use a material patterned so you can match pieces in a continuous, stunning design. The clever slip cover in our picture has a swag pattern in jade green on a chartreuse yellow ground. Seams are bound in green and for that extra decorator's touch, the skirt is scalloped—edged with fluffy fringe.

To make—just work the pin-on way. Begin by smoothing fabric down the back and over the seat, as the small sketch shows. Work with the material right side out for bound seams. Leave 4 inches for tuck-in between back and seat. Pin fabric in place and cut, allowing 1½ inches for seams.

Next, fit arms, sides and back. Your cover will look trim, truly professional if you take little darts where the arms curve and the back rounds—cut paper patterns for front sections of arms.

Each step—fitting, finishing, trimming—goes easily with the help of the diagrams and instructions in our 32-page booklet. Tells how to make slip covers for all types of chairs, sofas. Color schemes, fabrics, smart styles.

Send 15c in coins for your copy of HOW TO MAKE SLIP COVERS to Examiner, Home Service, Peterborough. Be sure to write plainly your NAME, ADDRESS, and the NAME of booklet.

Do You Know?

Tarnishing on the neck or arms from gold or silver costume jewelry may be prevented by first coating the jewelry with colorless liquid nail polish?

✧ ✧ ✧

The waffle iron should be given a good cleansing at least every sixty days? Make a thick paste of three tablespoons of baking soda and two teaspoons of water, and apply with a thick brush.

✧ ✧ ✧

The leaves of a rubber plant may be kept green and glossy by sprinkling a little sweet oil around the roots of the plant every few weeks.

✧ ✧ ✧

When making berry pies, mix with the fruit measurement for one pie about two tablespoons fine quick-cooking tapioca to make a clear thick juice that should not run out during baking and that will serve neatly.

Parents' Day Observed At Convent

Open house for parents, so that they might see what students are accomplishing in the various departments under the new course of study, was held during annual Education Week by many Peterborough schools. Wednesday, February 8, was a day to be remembered by the pupils of St. Mary's Convent, who were keenly interested in their parents' visit to see the work.

The parents were met by members of the Girl Guides who escorted them to the different classrooms where the teachers welcomed them, and they heard varied programs. Exhibits which indicated more clearly than reams of writing could how the new course of study correlates original angles were on display in each room. Included in the demonstrations, which brought forth much interested comment, were needle-work displays, a history of the city and of the school, a health play, projects, murals, choral reading and folk dancing.

Following their visit to the classrooms, parents were conducted by the sisters to the room where ladies of St. Peter's parish served tea from a lace-covered table centred with an Italian pottery bowl filled with daffodils, snapdragon, narcissus and fern. Ivory candles in silver holders lighted the table, at which Mrs. T. J. Ryan and Mrs. K. Sheehy presided. A number of eighth grade girls in uniforms assisted very efficiently, and during the tea hour short musical numbers were played by Miss Agnes Mayock and Miss Marion Downer.

Tested Favorite Recipes

(By MARY MOORE)

There is enough of the "save-it-for-a-snowy-day" in all of us to understand my hesitancy in using up all my canned fruits and vegetables before the winter gets well started. But by this time I use from them with a lavish hand. I always can cherries, but never know how to use them up—once we have jellied cherries, once we have a cherry pie (another of those gastronomic atrocities that sit so poorly on the stomach but taste like heaven in the mouth) —and once you can have (for we've had ours).

Puffy Cherry Cobbler

Use either one No. 2 can of cherries, or if you canned your own 1¼ cups of cherries and ¾ cup juice and pour this into a saucepan and add ⅓ cup sugar, 3 tablespoons quick-cooking tapioca and 2 tablespoons butter. Stir until well mixed then cook 5 minutes. Pour this into 8 x 8 casserole or baking pan. Beat the yolks of 2 eggs until they are thick as possible, then add 6 tablespoons sugar to them, 1 tablespoon at a time, beating them each addition until sugar disappears. Fold in ½ cup sifted cake flour very lightly. Add ¼ teaspoon salt to the whites and beat until foamy but not stiff, then add ¼ teaspoon cream tartar and beat until stiff but not dry. Fold the whites into the batter very carefully. Pour over cherries and bake at 350 deg. Fahr. for 30 or 35 minutes or until sponge batter springs back when touched. Serve hot or cold. If some juice is left over makes a nice sauce when thickened.

Intelligence Test Features Institute Meeting

(Examiner Correspondence.)

ROSENEATH, Feb. 13—A question drawer, the questions ranging all the way from enquiries about hot supper dishes to the permanence of the upswept hair styles; a roll call "May Favorite Kitchen gadget," and a discussion on historical research, were featured at an Institute meeting on Thursday afternoon.

The meeting was held in the town hall with Mrs. Harold Taylor as hostess, and Mrs. B. Thackeray, president in the chair.

The question drawer was led by Mrs. J. W. Pacey. The secretary, Mrs. Frank Brown, called the roll, and Mrs. Lily Turner led the discussion on historical research.

Kitchen gadgets, reigning in favor, included articles from rubber scrapers to electric ice-boxes.

The secretary-treasurer presented a financial statement showing a profit of approximately $38.00 resulting from the January dance and euchre. Mrs. Austin Sherwin reported eighteen had attended the short course in sewing, and Miss Ruby Blodgett announced the class had presented the instructress, Miss E. Collins, with a gift at the conclusion of the course.

Mrs. L. Tucker announced the expenses of the meat cookery demonstration, $4.10, had been met by collection.

Letters acknowledging gifts of fruit and candy were read by the secretary. The receipt of $3.00 legislative grant was announced by the secretary-treasurer.

Following a discussion regarding an open meeting in March, it was decided on motion to have a social afternoon, each member to bring a guest. Progressive euchre and crokinole will be played. Mrs. Austin Sherwin and Mrs. L. Turner are the committee in charge.

Mrs. W. Smith presided over a short program. Mrs. M. Radley and Miss Ruby Blodgett arranged contests Mrs. J. W. Pacey read "I'm Going on Strike"; the pianist, Mrs. E. Carew, lead in community singing and Mrs. Smith, the contributor, read "The Town Called, Don't you Worry"

A vote of thanks was tendered the hostess and she and her daughters, Mrs. E. Carew, and Miss Leila, served afternoon tea.

Gaiety Keynotes Ski Club Dance

Gaiety and informality were the keynotes of the Peterborough Ski Club dance Saturday night in the Legion Hall, and upwards of four hundred young people, many of them in colorful ski costume, and dancing in heavy socks, bead-embroidered slippers, or ski boots, swung merrily out to the rhythm of Jerry Wooll's music. Ski club members, bubbling over with good spirits and the success of the afternoon's meet, joined hands and "tumbled in a ring," marched round single file, hand on each other's shoulders, or executed solo dances in a style of their own.

Evergreen boughs hung about the hall were a natural background for the life-size silhouettes of skiers who glided around the walls. Miss V. Davidson, convener of the dance committee, did the clever drawings, and her committee included Mrs. Eric Westbye, Miss Dorothy Finnie, Miss Helen Cole, Mrs. Fred Bradshaw, and Miss Isobel Reid.

In the receiving line were Mr. and Mrs. R. T. E. Hicks-Lyne, Mr. and Mrs. W. A Richardson, Mr. and Mrs. Eric Westbye, Miss V. Davidson and Mr. Sid Black.

Among those present were the Misses Anna McKenzie, Alice Pruner, Florence Barry, Pat McCarrell, Helen Cole, Dorothy Gavine, Helen Banks, Isobel Shadgett, Patricia Connolly, Irene Graham, Viva Shear, M. White, B. Foley, Marg. McCarthy, Pat Drapak, Nan Manbeck, Laura Chartren, Barbara Blade, M. Neilson, Isabel Reid, Vi. Britnell, Ruth Farr, Marion Harvey, Mr. and Mrs. S. Where a Fine Hurts

Thomas Telfer, 19, lives at Knolwood Park, which is actually part of the city of London. He is the owner of a radio and an inspector called to see if there was a license. There was not. So Thomas Telfer along with several others had to proceed to court and there learn he would have to pay a fine and costs amounting in all to $5. He said he could not pay the fine and two weeks was allowed to try and raise the fine. If he does not get the money he will probably have to go to jail.

Thomas Telfer told his story in court. In his father's family there are nine and they are being supported by the combined earnings of the father and Thomas, and their earnings are about $22 per week, and in some weeks less than that. A $5 fine may not trouble some people at all, but in a home like that where there is about $2.44 for the support of each individual in the family it is not difficult to believe that a $5 fine is not far removed from being a hardship. We cannot see where our constitution would suffer or our respect for our laws would decrease if in such a case there was something like suspended sentence brought into the picture.

Classifying Thieves

Probably there is no use trying to classify thieves as mean, meaner, meanest. It is too hard to tell just where to apply the superlative degree of the word.

Eugene Scudder was struck by a car in Detroit and his leg was fractured. He was knocked unconscious and some people on the street carried him into a corner drug store while the ambulance was on the way. The day after when he was able to ask about his worldly possessions he made the uncomfortable discovery that some person had taken $41 from his pocket while he was unconscious.

Call that the meanest thief if you will, but wait. There was a triple highway fatality near Canboro, in the Hamilton district, and Mrs. Sarah Schihl of Streetsville was one of the unfortunate victims who lost her life. Police have been working on the case and jail sentences have been already imposed because $5 and a gold watch were removed from the person of the dead woman. So if you use the word "meanest" in one case what have you left to apply to the other?

Not The Right Place

Fred Avery, who is in charge of the Ontario Government's Youth Training Plan, believes the blame for communism in this province rests with the employers. If people are working and happy they will not be communists; therefore industry must put youth to work and particularly it must cease looking to immigration to provide specialized workers.

Industry is a sort of general term, but it refers to industrialists, and industrialists are after all just people. The industrialist may be in any one of a number of lines of business. He makes something which he believe he can sell and he employs men to work for him. If he finds he can make more units and keep on selling them he will do so, and that in turn is the reason why he will employ more men. If he gets his production to the point where it is greater than his ability to sell then he is overstocked and cannot keep on employing the same number of people. At all times he is under the stern necessity of seeing to it that his position is sound financially. If his judgment is bad, if he employs too many people, if he produces beyond his capacity to sell, then he and all those associated with him are going to suffer.

Industry being what it is, bound up with hard rules of success or failure, it cannot start employing men because Mr. Avery suggests it should. If a manufacturer could put on more men he would do so, but he must first know what he is going to do with what they produce. Merely calling upon manufacturers in general to employ more men does not seem to be grappling with the problem at the right place. If more orders were coming in then more men would be employed. The manufacturer or the industrialist will make more goods if he can sell them. Otherwise he will not. If he followed any other plan of work he would probably have to go out of business entirely.

Safer And Wiser

A mother and her son were driving in the family car on a road in Western Ontario when they came across a girl looking for a ride. It was the suggestion of the mother that they stop and take her along. Fine. But when the journey was over the mother happened to look in her shopping bag and found her purse had been stolen and there was $10 in it and some papers which she desired to keep.

About the same time Louis Foris, a tobacco worker of Corinth drove to Aylmer to a moving picture show. On the trip home he picked up a couple of youths who wanted a ride. When they got in the car they went to work quickly. Possessed of a gun they took charge of Foris, bound him and finally dumped him in a barn after robbing him and left him in that place to freeze or get loose as best he could.

Such incidents should be brought to the attention of drivers of motor cars. They might well turn them over in their minds when they are wondering whether they will give some thumb-jerking stranger a ride. The driver does not know who he may be accepting as a passenger. It is safer and wiser to keep right on going.

Rather a Long Period

The Toronto Star, in dealing with a letter from a reader, uses the following method of approach in furnishing argument and reply:

"A citizen who has read the Star for about thirty years asks, as might be expected under the circumstances, a series of intelligent questions."

Of course that was considered the right way in which to make a reader feel pleasant; something like driving a spike in a subscriber's coat tail and then clinching it so he couldn't possibly get away. The technique is deft even if old. There was a book agent who called here one day and informed us he was calling on only a few of the leading citizens and he had somewhat the same plan as the Star.

It is not always safe to assume that such a method will produce the required results. Is one to infer for instance that it is necessary to read the Star "for about thirty years" before being able to ask an intelligent question?

Not Worth The Price

Ald. Percy Quinn of Toronto has—or had—an idea. Being in the City Council he has become seized with the desire to secure more revenue. It seems to hit a good many people the same way, but when the idea struck Ald. Percy it whacked him soundly in the solar plexus or some such place. We were not around at the moment but he must have taken the full count of ten.

When he got around to explaining his idea it was just this: People driving into Toronto should be required to pay 25 cents, and he would have folks stationed at toll gates at all the entrances raking in the money. Ald. Percy could not see anything more wrong in this than the provincial government collecting toll on gas at every service station in the province.

Entering Toronto from the east, one has the option of going in by way of Fleet Street or via the Danforth and Bloor. Even when away from home and feeling in a slightly expansive mood we find it hard to see a quarter's worth no matter which way one may turn. If Ald. Quinn had added a rider to his idea saying he was having a little joke then we might appreciate his humor. Otherwise Ald. Percy has had just another Toronto idea, most of which do not amount to a great deal.

Where The Blame Rests

If the opinion is abroad to any extent that there is actual dishonesty in public affairs in this country then there is no need of long searching to find where some of the belief originates.

Hon. Charles Dunning, Minister of Finance, announced in the House that he would shortly apply for a $750,000,000 loan, the proceeds of which would take care of previous loans which were nearing maturity. The minister announced that all details would be provided when the resolution came before the committee of the whole house.

Hon. H. H. Stevens, who made some reasonable comment on the general idea of borrowing, then proceeded with the remark: "I wonder if we are providing the government with a mighty handsome election fund."

That remark was given wide circulation; it was printed in many newspapers. Now what would the average reader think after seeing it? There was the statement plain as mud that the government in arranging this large loan was planning it so that sufficient could be taken out of the proceeds to provide an adequate election fund for the Liberal party. So if public men complain at times that they are unduly criticized, and if people have the opinion at times that there is crooked work in the political mulberry bushes, the reasons are not hard to find. Mr. Stevens provided one of them.

The popularity of ski meets will probably be regarded in some other countries as a sign that Canadians are letting things slide.

A Hamilton girl has been discovered as a stowaway on the Queen Mary. She probably had the idea that nothing was too good for a girl from Hamilton.

There was a bit of controversy at Kitchener regarding the rate paid by Hydro to men digging post holes. The figure is 36 cents per hour and any one who has ever dug a post hole will consider it ought to be higher.

NOTE AND COMMENT

It is related that Spaniards do not longer feel terror when bombers fly near. Probably many of them can longer feel anything.

Mayor Bone of Belleville says we need a new political party in Canada, and we could draw up quite a list of things which are more needed.

Germany's new battleships are named according to the letters of the alphabet and it seems to us we get soup now and then made on the same system.

President Roosevelt is going to ride 9,000 miles on a cruiser in order to have a rest. That distance ought to take him far enough to see the new frontiers of U.S. in France.

Paris had six inches of snow recently and it cost $133,000 to sprinkle it with salt and sand, after which it turned into slush. We can get slush here and plenty of it without spending a red cent.

Ernest Franklin of Picton made some kind of a record when he balanced three billiard balls on top the other in 15 minutes. A man as smart as that ought to go to Ottawa and see what he could do about balancing a budget.

Hon. Ian Mackenzie when somewhat roused in recent debate began to speak in Gaelic. When a man has something hot to get off that is a good idea because the rest of the folk would not know what he was saying.

Divorced parents in Montreal are fighting for custody of two sons, each of whom is worth a million dollars inherited from the grandfather. It looks like another of those cases where wealth has not brought happiness along with it.

A Negro in court in South Carolina was accused of selling moonshine whiskey, but this charge he denied, explaining he had merely swapped some of it for money. It must be rather delightful to hold court in a land where such fine distinctions can be drawn.

The weather man may speak of cold days to come if he so prefers, but after having seen the small boys playing marbles along the street on the way home from school the sting has been taken from his threat. Spring is on the way.

Tom Mooney, who was recently released after spending 23 years in prison, announces he is going to be divorced from his wife. She was pictured weeping on his shoulder when he got out of prison, so they must have renewed the old quarrel after the photographers went away.

Hon. W. R. Motherwell, former Minister of Agriculture, speaking on farming, told a Toronto audience: "We have to get back to the old-fashioned doctrine of earning our dollar before spending it." Mr. Motherwell said much else, but in that one statement he brought a fairly substantial bit of truth to the surface.

Betty Grable, wife of Jacky Coogan, had an operation for appendicitis, and it was stated Coogan was hastening to the hospital and "Betty was waiting for him happily." It is well to know there are some people in existence who feel that way about it as soon as they come out of the operating room.

Mrs. Eliza James of Amherstburg, on her 100th birthday, regretted she had to give up dancing when she came to be 99. She's always been a Methodist and a dancing one and danced somewhat at the golden wedding of her daughter three years ago. Perhaps she'll feel like stepping out again when some of the great-grandchildren have their silver anniversaries.

THE RED MAN

(By A.R.K.)

¶ When Red Men roamed around this land, the way they lived was simply grand, the freest sort of men; for they could travel here and there, 'twas pretty much their own affair, they'd no inspectors then.

¶ If Red Men craved a tender deer, they did not stop to scratch the ear, they'd just pick up and start; they did not have to sit and wait, and try their best to calculate, the legal season's part.

¶ Assessors never came their way, nor listened to their hounds at bay, nor asked about a nag; nor did they grab a Red Man's dog, and tie him firmly to a log, until he bought a tag.

¶ The Red Man picked a goodly spot, and there his little tent he sot, and there his folk he'd greet; inspectors came not out his way, nor did they hold him up to say, you're too close to the street.

¶ He went around just when he'd wish, to catch himself a string of fish, in days of heat or frosts; no warden came upon his way, no cadi would rise up and say, I fine you ten and costs.

¶ Perhaps we're better off today, and do things in a modern way, I should feel glad within; and yet the Red Man in his day, could go his own unfettered way—and no one pestered him.

Discussing The Hospital Vote

HOSPITAL DEBENTURES

Editor Examiner;

Sir,—Permit me to use you paper once again to voice an opinion on the above question. No doubt an extension is needed but why put the taxpayers to such an expense at the present time, when wages are not even enough for the majority of the working people to live on. What with the increased wages of the school teachers (which I did not think was at all necessary) the men who are taxed to pay their (teachers') salaries had to take three: 10 p.c. cuts on their wages during the depression and have not had any of it back yet, and the relief is on the taxpayer's too. They can't take blood from a stone. They ask for $395,000 to be placed over a period of 30 years at $21,000 a year that makes in all $630,000, a big difference of $235,000, almost double. The taxes are put on the people who sacrifice a lot to own a home of their own and if they can't pay their taxes their homes are taken away from them.

I was in the hospital myself a few years ago for an operation and it was found necessary for me to have a semi-private ward for which we paid $3.00 a day, $21.00 a week, and that is a lot of money from a working man's wages. So I hope the hospital question will be put off until the men are earning better wages to pay for it.

ONE OF THE TAXPAYERS.

RE HOSPITAL

Editor Examiner:

Sir,—Your editorial in Fridays Examiner, does not quite give a fair view of the matter. From reading your editoral one gets the idea that the citizens of Peterborough, were the only persons to benifit from the will of Mrs. Nicholls, whereas this (at least as far as the hospital is concerned) in not the case, not by a long way.

While you advised the citizens of Peterborough city to mortgage their homes to the extent of almost $400,000.00 are you aware that the people who use the Nicholls hospital are not the citizens at all, but that 52 per cent of patients in this institution come from outside the city, and only 48 per cent from the city? Why, then, should Peterborough city residents pay the whole cost of an extension to the hospital?

Do you not think it would be fair if the County of Peterborough were to pay a percentage (depending entirely upon the proportion of patients who came from the county) of the cost?

We are invited to provide hospitals, so that the people from out of town may have the best of medical and other care, at LESS THAN COST, and Peterborough city to pay the difference.

And if the deputation from the Hospital Board, which waited upon the council the other night wished to give the people an unbiassed view of the matter, why did they CONCEAL the fact that although the people of Peterborough city are being asked to foot the whole bill for the hospital, that less than half of the patients come from the city?

Would it be possible that they did not wish the people to know that such is the case? It is hard to believe, but it looks like it.

Well, Mr. Editor, You may write all the editorals you want, and the council may, if it sees fit put this vote to the people, but the taxpayer will not be the goat this time. As the old proverb goes, you may lead a horse to the water, but you cannot make him drink.

Yours truly
"PAY YOUR OWN WAY"
Peterborough Feb. 11

JUST A SUGGESTION

Editor Examiner

Sir,—If we are going to have a new hospital, and I am sure we need it, is it too much to suggest that we should remember the way in which we received the one which we have at present. Mrs. Nicholls realized that money was something she was holding in trust for the use and good of other people. How many of our great parks would we have had if she had not made provision for them?

Have we not people in our midst today who might like to have a share in placing a newer and better hospital in the place of the present Nicholls? It is not well to say there is no money in Peterborogh because I happen to know there is. Would it not be a splendid thing for some of our people who have more money than they need to come together and create a fund which would account for at least a part of the construction funds? I am sure also there are organizations in the city which would gladly do what they could to help this along.

It might be divided by rooms in the hospital, and it would be known in advance what a room would cost. If some people were able to provide for a room that would be fine, and an organization might bring together the efforts of its members to do the same thing. In that way we would be able to lesson the cost to the people and get away from having to pay interest on such a large sum of money and it would also make a community effort out of it. I am taking the liberty of making this as just a helpful suggestion, because I want to see the plan succeed.

PETERBOROUGH MOTHER

AN EDITOR'S WIFE.

——Friends of the Rebel will be sorry to hear that in consequence of slipping on an icy spot while crossing a street intersection on January 14, the wife of the editor sustained a compound fracture of her right leg. She is now out of the hospital and making good progress toward recovery. In addition to being married to us, the "Missus" has certainly been getting more than her share of the bumps for some time. She has undergone four major and one minor operations; two years ago she was badly injured in a car smash-up, and now this!—The Rebel (Calgary).

We Are Paying For This

THE Examiner has stated frequently that the debating which is taking place in the House of Commons is not good. Proof of that claim is furnished in the following excepts taken from the official unrevised reports of House of Commons Debates. The question under discussion was the Bren gun report:

ORDER—ORDER!

Mr. McLEAN (Melfort): What did the judge say about that? He was charged with investigating the issuing of shares.

Mr. WALSH: I would ask the hon. member for Melfort to go down and read the evidence. It is all downstairs. This report contains only the briefest reference to the evidence, which fills thirty or forty volumes.

Mr. McLEAN (Melfort): On a point of order, the hon. member who is addressing the house referred to me—

Mr. WALSH: Mr. Speaker—

Mr. DEPUTY SPEAKER: The hon. gentleman is raising a point of order.

Mr. McLEAN (Melfort): The hon. gentleman has referred to me and has asked what I have to say about that statement. My thought is that I would like to know what was said by the commissioner who was charged with the investigation—

Some hon. MEMBERS: Order

Mr. WALSH: I have referred the hon. gentleman to the evidence, and this is all in the evidence.

Mr. McLEAN (Melfort): My point of order—

Some hon. MEMBERS: Order.

Mr. McLEAN (Melfort): I find that the commissioner was charged to inquire fully—

Some hon. MEMBERS: Order.

Mr. DEPUTY SPEAKER: I would ask the hon. member for Melfort (Mr. McLean) to state his point of order briefly.

Mr. McLEAN (Melfort): Yes sir. The commissioner was authorized "to inquire fully into the preliminary discussions and negotiations leading up to and the completition of the said contract—"

Some hon. MEMBERS: Order.

Mr. DEPUTY SPEAKER: Order. In my opinion that is not a point of order.

Mr. McLEAN (Melfort): I will demonstrate the the point of order to the house if you will permit me to quote ten more words.

Some hon. MEMBERS: Order.

KEEP ON WISHING

Mr. WALSH: Read the evidence.

Mr. YOUNG: My hon. friend unfortunately has not read the evidence—

Mr. WALSH: Yes, I have.

Mr. YOUNG: —and if he had he would not be able to interpret it properly. I have been in this house for some time, but during this debate I have seen the most astounding exhibition that I have ever seen since I have been a member of this house.

Mr. WALSH: Mr. Speaker, I rise to a point of order. I wish to have certain words spoken by the hon. member deleted from the record.

Mr. McLEAN (Melfort): Keep on wishing.

Mr. WALSH: The hon. member stated that I would be incapable of understanding what I read.

An hon. MEMBER: That is a well known fact; it does not require any proof.

Mr. Howe: Let the hon. member state his experience in stock transactions.

Mr. SPEAKER: I do not think the point raised by the hon. member is a point of order.

Mr. WALSH: Well, I do, Mr. Speaker. I am sorry if there are so many hon. gentlemen who do not seem to understand anything.

CALLED IT COMEDY

Mr. BRADETTE: I ask the hon. leader of the opposition now, if the Bren gun contract were cancelled, can he tell us where he would get the Bren gun made more cheaply?

An hon. MEMBER: Sure.

Mr. BRADETTE: Then go ahead and tell us.

Mr. DOUGLAS (Weyburn): What is the cost at the present time?

Mr. BRADETTE: It is stated in the contract.

Mr. DOUGLAS (Weyburn): It is not.

Mr. BRADETTE: I beg the hon. gentleman's pardon, it is; and that just shows how unfair hon. gentlemen are in their criticisms. They criticize the price when they do not even know it. They criticize the contract when they have not even seen it. The contract states that for the first 1,000 guns the price is to be $487; for the next 3,000, $314; for the next 6,000, $294; for the next 2,000 $294.

Mr. MACKENZIE (Vancouver): They never heard of that before.

Mr. BRADETTE: No, they never heard of that before.

Mr. DOUGLAS (Weyburn): Is that all they cost?

Mr. SPEAKER: Order.

Mr. DOUGLAS (Weyburn): On a point of order, Mr. Speaker—

Some hon. MEMBERS: Order.

Some hon. MEMBERS: Sit down.

Mr. SPEAKER: The hon. member cannot ask a question except with the permission of the hon. member who has the floor.

Mr. DOUGLAS (Weyburn): I was given his permission, Mr. Speaker, and I ask him now, will he give the total cost?

Mr. BRADETTE: I am sorry I cannot hear the hon. gentleman.

Mr. DOUGLAS (Weyburn): I asked, what is the total cost?

Some hon. MEMBERS: Sit down.

Mr. SPEAKER: Order. I would remind the hon. member that the house is not in committee, and he cannot ask questions without permission.

Mr. BRADETTE: In this discussion—

Mr. STEWART: Comedy!

AND MORE TWADDLE

Mr. BRADETTE: I was five years in opposition, Mr. Speaker, and I believe I could say that—

Mr. LENNARD: You may be there again.

Mr. BRADETTE: I want the hon. member to speak louder.

Mr. LENNARD: You will be there again.

Mr. BRADETTE: Well, I do not think the hon. member is a very good prophet. I never opposed a government of the day just for the sake of opposing it.

Mr. SPENCE: The hon. member is a perfect saint.

Mr. BRADETTE: I want the hon. member to get up and repeat what he said just now, so that he may show his face to the house. We can easily see their line of conduct. Last week there was a Conservative caucus, and I believe hon. members opposite, in their action in opposition, are following the principle of their leader. This is the press report which was published in the newspaper Le Droit of February 2, 1939. The heading is as follows:—

Some hon. MEMBERS: Order.

Mr. SPEAKER: Order.

Mr. PELLETIER: One of the members of this group tried last night to read a quotation from a newspaper, but he was not permitted to do so. The same ruling should apply to all hon. members.

Mr. BRADETTE: I am satisfied to state simply the contents of the article. It says that the Conservative party is very happy about the present depression in Canada.

Some hon. MEMBERS: No, no.

Mr. BRADETTE: There it is in black and white. And so the party follows implicitly the policy of its leader.

Beware lest any man spoil you through philosophy and vain deceit, after the tradition of men, after the rudiments of the world, and not after Christ. Patient: Well, I eat three times a day, doctor, but it amounts to about one meal; I live at a boarding house.

Another Friend

SHE INHERITED her husband's estate but her attempts to manage, as she felt he would have done, had been more than worrisome . . . unfortunately, her trustfulness in un-asked-for advice of a relative had been more human than wise. To her, the remainder of the estate seemed pitifully small when she called and asked us to take it in care and do whatever we could for her. She had heard about the protective attitude of a Trust Company in money matters and turned to us for shelter. We are thankful, we were able to salvage a fair measure of income for her and now we take a friendly pride in her gratitude. She is a frequent caller for she has found that we are no more than a group of men and women with the same human qualities she meets with in her own circle of friends.

Trust Company Service is not mercenary and friendless. Its increasing growth implies many worthy features. Ask for our booklet.

Communications: from the Rural Ratepayers' Association of the township of North Monaghan with the following: "The association is desirous to have the Councils of South Monaghan and Otonabee Townships co-operate with the Council of North Monaghan in an endeavour to have the City of Peterborough discontinue the dumping of sewage into the Otonabee River, as this is not only a public nuisance to the residents adjacent to the disposal plant but also to the property owners along the river bank. For 25 years the Township of South Monaghan has from time to time entered complaints to the City of Peterborough against their system of sewage disposal, and it was moved by Reg. Perrin and seconded by H. C. Barnard, that this Council agree heartily with the step taken by the Rural Ratepayers of the Township of North Monaghan.

Mr. Hooper, of the Department of Highways, addressed the Council on the benefits of the Good Roads Association to the municipalities who took advantage of this assistance.

Abolish Statute Labor.

Looking Back
On This Date

Today is the anniversary of the end of as adventurous a voyage as was ever taken by British folk in search of comfort and liberty. It was on this date in 1862 that the schooner Margaret, with several hundred Scots from Nova Scotia, arrived at Auckland, New Zealand, after a voyage half round the world.

Originally part of the thousands of Scots forced out of their homeland by the landlords who preferred grouse and other game to human beings, they had reached Nova Scotia under the leadership of a remarkable young theological student, Neil McLeod. But he did not find the climate to his liking and he ordered his congregation to gather their effects and travel with him to Ohio, in United States, intending to make his way up the St. Lawrence and so to his planned destination.

But things turned out otherwise. The Ark, on which they travelled, was wrecked by a storm in St. Ann's Bay, C. B., and it looked to them as if it were meant that that should be their home. So they settled down and soon founded a fine community. Years passed. In 1851 a letter came from Australia from one of their number who had sailed away long before, telling them what a fine country there was, how mild the climate and how cheap the land.

McLeod decided to take his people to the antipodes. They built the schooner Margaret and set sail. Storms and calms made the journey long, but eventually they reached West Australia. This was not good enough for the pastor, who went on to Melbourne. This he found a "maelstrom of sin", as a result of the gold rush, and so he ordered the journey to be resumed. Eventually the Margaret reached Auckland, where they were welcomed and given land grants at Waipu.

Today a flourishing people keep alive the memories of their fathers and grandfathers who sailed from Nova Scotia. They look more to old Scotland than to the Canadian Scotia; but some of the families have traditions about Pictou and St. Ann's, which they treasure. Even some of the younger generation speak Gaelic, while all have the northern accent which indicates the source of their origin.

A monument at Waipu to Rev. Neil McLeod is a centre of the settlement, and when stray Canadians "go under" and visit New Zealand, they always go to Waipu to meet the Scots who had been Nova Scotians before they were New Zealanders, and now and again descendants of the McLeod expedition come to Canada and look about St. Ann's and visit the church founded by their much loved pastor.

Goodnight Story
By MAX TRELL

Suzi, the China doll, loved her beautiful new house. It was two stories high with a beautiful blue-shingled roof and a tall chimney. Inside there was a parlor with curtains in front of the windows; a kitchen with a stove a sink and shelves for dishes. And there were bedrooms upstairs.

And there was a porch in front of the house, a door which opened and shut, and a real door-bell. Only no one ever rang the door-bell. None of the toys in the playroom could come to visit Suzi in her beautiful new house. They couldn't get there even though it was near. All they could do was to look at it from the other side of the room, across the railroad tracks where the toy locomotive stood.

Poor Suzi!! How lonely she felt sitting in her big new house! How she wished she could have company!

Only Visitors

Hanid and Knarf, the shadows of the children, were the only ones who could come to see her. They sat in her parlor on her brand new sofa and tried to cheer her up.

"All the toys would come to see you if they could," Hanid said.

"But they can't walk," Knarf said. "They can only go where the children take them."

Suzi knew that the shadows were right. Through her window she could see Punch and Judy, and Mary-Ann, the rag-doll, sitting in a corner on the other side of the room. And General Tin, the tin soldier, was standing on guard with his musket over his shoulder by the playroom door. And there were

They tried to cheer her up.

Jub-Jub, the monkey, and Jack-in-the-box and all the other toys.

Knarf Has Idea

"If only there were some way of getting them here," Suzi sighed.

For a moment or two Knarf and Hanid were silent. Then suddenly Knarf exclaimed: "Oh! I have an idea! I know how to get them here"

Do you know how Knarf did it? He put them all on the toy locomotive, and started it up and it rolled and clattered along the tracks right up to Suzi's front door!

How happy everyone was! How they loved the new house! What a delightful time they all had! Would you ever think that toys could enjoy themselves so much?

And at dawn, before the children got up again, Knarf put them all on the locomotive and took them all back to their places.

Glorifying the Male of the Species

"Solomon in all his glory was never arrayed like one of these" is the text for today. It was inspired by display of new fashions for men at the convention of the Merchant Tailor Designers Association and the National Association of Merchant Tailors in Philadelphia. Here are two of the streamlined sports models (without rumble seat) which made a hit. AT RIGHT, Raymond Twyeffort models the Joseph coat, (and has it many colors) contrasting slacks, sport shirt and a new straw hat, called Hanoki, with fancy pugaree band. At LEFT, Frank Aurora wears another Joseph coat without collar and a new sport tyrolean with cord.

DEATH AT THE MANOR
By M. E. CORNE

CHAPTER TWENTY-SEVEN

MAC WAS going on: "Now we'll reconstruct what we can of the second crime. The night before Mrs. Horace died, did you hear sounds in the salon?"

"Not a sound," I told him.

"And she was your first customer the following morning?"

"Yes."

"And Daphne knew that she was the first?"

"Oh, why," I walled, "must you bring her into it? I know she is innocent!"

"And the three driers were still out of order?" He ignored my outburst.

"They were. I reported them to Mrs. Greely, but the electrician never came to fix them."

"Hum! I must see the housekeeper about that."

"All of which gets us where?" demanded Phil, turning fidgety.

"Don't be in a hurry, son," admonished Mac. "Rome wasn't built in a day! Hank and Pete will be here shortly. I want to get a clear picture of these things in my mind before they set to work."

"O.K., master mind."

I inquired: "Who inherited the rest of the estate?"

"Mr. Horace," Phil said. "He is to take care of Miss Henrietta during her lifetime. Outside of that he gets four or five millions to play about with as he pleases."

Four or five millions! There was not that much money in the world! "But it's too late—" I spoke my thoughts aloud.

"To late for what?"

"Oh!" I blinked my eyes rapidly. "I was just thinking that he is too old now to become a famous scientist."

"Scientist!" Mac pounced on the word. "What's this?"

"Why, it's nothing! Just a remark he made in my presence. He wanted to be a great doctor and scientist when he was young."

"And why didn't he?"

"I don't know." I wondered what Mac was getting at. "He has a laboratory upstairs—"

"A laboratory? Good God, girl!"

"Good God is right!" echoed Phil. "Elsie! Don't you know what a laboratory is?"

"Naturally!" My smile was wintry. "A laboratory is a place where experiments are made. Why"—I broke off—"why poisons—"

"Exactly," Mac said dryly. "Poisons!"

Then the door opened and Mr. Horace came into the room.

"I am sorry you had to wait so long." He addressed us collectively. "I was detained."

"Perfectly all right." Phil went to him and extended his hand. "I'm Benson of the Times.

"How do you do. May I ask the reason of your visit?"

"Certainly, Mr. Witherspoon. I came to get a story for my paper, but" — he added as Mr. Horace seemed about to speak—"I really came to introduce a great friend of mine"—indicating McIntyre—"who is a famous detective."

"Detective?" Mr. Horace looked befuddled.

"Yes," continued Phil, "a detective. You may not have realized, Mr. Witherspoon, that the members of your household are under suspicion of murder. Chief Ellis, although an honest and intelligent officer of the law, is making no headway in the case—"

Mr. Horace interrupted: "But I understood there was no case!"

"You were mistaken," Phil said quietly, and told briefly of the findings of himself and Dr. Didmore.

When he had finished speaking Mr. Horace looked as old as time. He groped for a chair and sank heavily into it. "What can your detective do?" he said at last.

Mac McIntyre stepped forward: "I have no wish to intrude upon your grief, sir," he said respectfully,"but for your own sake, and the sake of your family, this business must be cleared up. Miss Ritter is under a cloud of suspicion. She has hired me as a special investigator. I should like very much to have your permission to work in my own way in and about the Manor."

"I see." Mr. Horace sighed. "Suppose you find one of the guests or—or one of my family guilty?"

"I can play no favorites," Mac replied. "The guilty party, whoever he is, must pay the penalty."

"I see," Mr. Horace repeated, and made an effort to pull himself together. "Perhaps you are right," he said slowly, "perhaps you are." He arose. "With Miss Ritter's permission, I should like to retain your services for the family."

"Oh you have my permission!" I cried, and he thanked me gravely.

"You will excuse me now?" he said.

"Of course." Mac bowed. "I will talk with you later when you are feeling better."

"Thank you. I shall be at your service." And returning the bow, Mr. Horace walked slowly from the room. As he made his exit Chief Ellis entered.

"What's going on here?" he demanded, looking from one to the other of us.

"Just a friendly conversation," McIntyre told him.

"Doc Didmore tells me we have a murder on our hands, after all. That right?"

"I'm afraid it is."

"And so you rushed out to warn the household!" Ellis accused him. "You had no business to do that!"

The Chicago detective shook his head. "I came out : talk with Miss Ritter. However, I've been hired as private investigator for the Witherspoon family. Mr. Horace has turned the case over to me."

"Has he?" Ellis was not pleased. "Thinks he'll pull the wool over my eyes, eh?"

"Nothing of the kind!" Mac denied. "There's no need for you to feel hurt. We can work together."

"I don't need your help." Ellis would not be placated.

"No? Well, something tells me it's going to be tough sledding finding the guilty party."

Ellis disagreed. "A routine case," he insisted. "Simple as A, B, C."

"Got your warrant all made out, eh?" Mac kidded him.

"Never mind!" The chief of police was not in a joshing mood. He went to the door and stuck his head into the corridor. "Karns," he called to his unseen assistant, "round up the members of the household and send them in one at a time." He turned and sat down, waiting.

"Any objections to my sitting in?" asked Mac.

"Well"—Ellis hesitated, but the chance to display his talent before such a noted audience was too much for him—"you can stay," he said, "but the other two go out."

"Hey!" Phil objected, "I'm the press!"

"O. K., Benson. Miss Ritter please wait across the hall."

McIntyre intervened. "Elsie is going to act as my secretary. Her short-hand notes will be invaluable."

"I'm a swell stenographer," I put in eagerly, and hoped and prayed I would be able to remember my long-neglected business school training.

"Oh, all right." He consented to my remaining. "Sit over there and keep quiet."

"I will," I promised meekly, and retired to the spot he indicated, picking up a pad and pencil from Mr. Horace's desk.

Karns returned to report: "They are all in the drawing room," he said. "Who will you have first?"

"Send in Mr. Horace," directed Ellis, and took his stand before the fireplace.

Mr. Horace entered, looking, if possible, more bewildered and more upset.

"Now, Mr. Witherspoon," the chief began, "I want to ask you some questions. I understand you have already heard of the discovery of cyanide in your wife's body"—Mr. Horace nodded—"and of our suspicions regarding the death of your mother—"

"My mother!" Mr. Horace lifted dazed eyes to those of Ellis. "I wasn't told—"

"No?" Ellis glanced to McIntyre. "I'm sorry to be the bearer of bad news, but the fact is, we have reason to suspect that Mrs. Witherspoon, senior, was also poisoned. I have put through an exhumation request to the proper authorities. Before long we will know definitely whether or not we have one or two murders on our hands."

The little man turned quite pale. 'You are geing—to—to disturb my mother's grave?"

Ellis flushed: "I'm sorry, but I'm afraid we must. Surely, if your mother was murdered, you want to know it? You want to avenge her death?"

"Avenge!" Mr. Horace passed his hand across his forehead. "Don't think me heartless or lacking in family pride, Mr. Ellis, but I am afraid vengeance does not appeal to me. Were it left to me, I should drop the matter. All this publicity —policemen running through the house—my guests and my family subjected to questioning—I don't like it! Vengeance cannot bring the dead to life. Let them lie in peace."

"That's all very well," Ellis agreed, "except for one thing: the living!"

"He means," interrupted McIntyre smoothly, "that when a man commits a murder he becomes a murderer. To quote an old adage, a man who has once tasted blood is apt to figure that he may as well be hung for a sheep as a lamb. In other words, Mr. Witherspoon, he will kill again—and again!"

"You are afraid that the murders will continue?"

"Exactly." Mac crossed his long legs and leaned forward. "Somewhere in this house," he said slowly and distinctly, "there is a killer! And somewhere in this house there is a man or a woman who knows the identity of this killer! Oh, he or she may not be aware of this knowledge," he amended hastily, as Mr. Horace seemed about to speak, "but sooner or later something will happen to remind them of it. Something will recall this hidden and unsuspected knowledge to mind. And when that happens — well — a man who has killed once does not hesitate to kill again!"

RATHER lively conditions are to be expected on the basis of this day's astral operations. There may be sudden developments calling for changed plans or objectives, with writings, documents or business contracts involved. These require discretion and wise adaptation; be wary of strangers or strange situations. With precaution there may be many advantages and some definite progress through new opportunities or speculation.

Those whose birthday it is will find that much depends upon their own astute and vigilant management of their affairs during the year, in which sudden and unusual opportunities may arise for attaining high objectives. Change in plans and environs may be advantageous, but be prudent with strangers and careful with all papers. Not too hazardous speculative enterprises should thrive.

A child born on this day may be efficient, ambitious and adventurous, and should carve a successful career for itself, possibly through unusual and progressive ideas or by speculative enterprises.

England's Man Of Mystery Wields Tremendous Power

By CHARLES A. SMITH
Central Press Canadian Correspondent

LONDON, Feb. 13.—Introducing Sir Horace J. Wilson, England's man of mystery and the nearest approach in English post-war politics to the famed Colonel House of the Woodrow Wilson era in the U.S.

He is not in the cabinet. He is not a junior minister. He is not even a member of parliament. He is just a civil servant bearing the somewhat prosaic title of chief industrial advisor to the government.

In reality, however, he wields tremendous power and influence. Standing always at the elbow of Premier Neville Chamberlain, the most powerful boss English politics has seen for a quarter of a century, he is in effect deputy boss of England.

His advice extends far beyond industry. It embraces foreign affairs. It takes in its stride military strategy. It covers imperial defense, armaments, general European politics, and world affairs.

Indispensable to Premier

His enemies call him the "office boy" but others do not like the appellation. They insist it is not a true description. For Premier Chamberlain is Wilson's devoted adherent. He listens to his opinions, agrees with his decisions, uses him to carry out his plans.

The world at large first became aware of Sir Horace during the important conversations that preceded the Munich agreement. He went everywhere with Premier Chamberlain, accompanied him on his famous aerial jaunts to Germany, and even became a special messenger for the Premier when it became necessary to convey urgent letters to Hitler.

Yet Sir Horace has long been reckoned as one of the most powerful men behind the scenes in England.

Premier Stanley Baldwin liked him, and frequently consulted him on many matters other than industrial affairs. When Chamberlain succeeded him. Baldwin recommended Wilson as a man worth leaning on.

$15,000 Annual Salary

Sir Horace draws a salary of $15,000 a year. Pale complexioned, with mild blue eyes, he is clean-shaven and dark haired. He walks with a stoop, dresses unobstrusively, and altogether is the perfect illustration of the better paid English civil servant. Usually he looks his full fifty-six years.

SIR HORACE WILSON

Married, with one son and two daughters, he made his mark at the ministry of labor, where he was principal assistant secretary from 1919 until 1921, and permanent secretary from 1921 until 1930, when he was created chief industrial advisor to the government.

He spends most of his time in London, and when not in Whitehall lives in quiet De Vere Gardens, in the Kensington district of the capital.

Occasionally, at week-ends, he drives down to a remote cottage he owns in the Chailey district of Sussex county. The cottage is furnished like an office, with files, desks, and telephones. As soon as he arrives there, Sir Horace begins his week-end of relaxation by sitting down and starting work again.

When he finds time, he likes to travel. It is only natural that his one club should be the travellers, and his sole hobby work.

"NERVES" SHE CALLED IT

Losing interest—losing friends—she never went out any more—always too tired. "Nerves," she thought — but it was her kidneys, the filters of her blood, that needed attention. Delay meant danger. She took Dodd's Kidney Pills at once. The improved action of her kidneys helped to clear away blood impurities and excess acids. Fatigue, headache, backache, lack of energy, disappeared. 117

St. Thomas Church Of Millbrook Reviews Splendid Past Year

(Examiner Correspondence.)

MILLBROOK, Feb. 13.—The largest attendance for several years featured the annual vestry meeting of St. Thomas' Anglican Church, held on Monday at 8 p.m., with the Venerable Archdeacon William Simpson presiding.

The meeting had been postponed for one week owing to unfavorable weather conditions, and in his opening address the Archdeacon expressed his warm appreciation of the interest in parish affairs evidenced by the number present, and of the hearty and practical cooperation which he had received throughout the year, and dealt in detail with many aspects of the affairs connected with the church and the parish. The centenary of the Toronto diocese, which occurs this year, and the plans under way for the Synod meetings, were also discussed.

The Warden's report was given by Mr. L. H. Winslow, and showed the finances in good condition. Reports from the various church organizations were all of a most encouraging nature and were given by the following:

The Woman's Auxiliary by the president, Mrs. C. M. Westmacott, showing all pledges met, and a bequest from the estate of Mrs. Wilks which had enabled the society to invest in a one thousand dollar bond, the yearly interest from which will be a welcome addition to the funds;

The Altar Guild by Miss B. M. Turner, B.A., the president, mentioning among other things the provision of flowers for the altar, on special occasions;

The Women's Guild by the president, Mrs. L. H. Winslow, a substantial gift of money to the church Management Board being a feature;

Attendance Goes Up

The Sunday School by the superintendent, Mr. R. Stone, elaborating on increased attendance and interest, with the installation of some new teacher, all financial obligations met, and a balance on hand in beginning 1939;

The choir financial report was presented by the treasurer, Mr. E. H. Barnes, and that of the St. Paul's cemetery committee by the rector, in the absence of the treasurer, J. J. Clarke. Both were quite satisfactory.

R. L. Fallis was re-appointed as rector's warden, and L. H. Winslow as the peoples' warden. To the list of sidesmen the name of J. E. Allen was added, and the delegates to the Syod are: Dr. H. A. Turner and R. I. Fallis; auditors, T. H. Collins and G. F. Burton; Vestry clerk, E. H. Barnes.

The cemetery committee and the advisory board were re-elected with the change that J. E. Allen and H. M. Trick replace John Dawson and J. J. Clarke.

R. Stone expressed a desire to be relieved of his duties as superintendent of the Sunday School, and the consideration of this, and the appointment of a new superintendent, if necessary, was left with the rector. A special vote of thanks was extended Mr. Stone for his many years of fine service in the Sunday School, and also in the choir, and other church activities. The absence of G. F. Burton, who is a patient in the Christie Street Hospital, Toronto, and of Mr. George Fowler, who was unable to be present, was noted and special votes of appreciation were passed, and will be mailed to them.

A vote of special appreciation was unanimously extended to Archdeacon Simpson for his steady, considerate work not alone as rector of the parish of Cavan, but also as Archdeacon of Peterborough.

The Wardens, the members of the Vestry and the rector expressed their deep sense of obligation to Miss Muriel Smith for ther reliable work as secretary-treasurer, before the meeting was dismissed with the blessing.

Cardinals Shape

Achille Cardinal Lienart arrived from France and Michael Cardinal von Faulhaber from Germany Sunday. Most of the Italian Cardinals and Rodrigue Cardinal Villeneuve, Archbishop of Quebec, were here, and others were en route.

The election conclave can start not earlier than Feb. 26 or later than March 1.

Much Speculation

Speculation increased on the choice of a successor and some diplomats thought there existed the possibility of a long conclave. Italians have been most prominently mentioned but shoulda deadlock develop among them, church informants said a compromise might result —election of one of the older cardinals more isolated than his younger colleagues from present world events.

This was done in 1878 with the election of Pope Leo XIII.

Should a deadlock lead to a similar choice this time, it was possible the cardinals might choose the dean of their college, 87-year-old Gennaro Cardinal Pignatelli di Belmonte who was considered for the papacy after the death of Pius X and Benedict XV.

The name of Cardinal Villeneuve continued to be mentioned prominently as successor among foreign observers but Italian circles held there was scant choice of his being selected.

WARM PUPPIES.

Women shoppers at the market on Saturday made enquiries from a dog salesman as to whether the dogs in the large box were cold. They were assured by the owner that he had warmed four bricks, wrapped them in paper to retain the heat and placed the bricks in the straw on the bottom of the box. The bricks were plainly visible but the dogs were shivering.

McClure was poisoned over the weekend and the traffic officer is offering a reward of $25 for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the guilty party. NO HOT DOGS.

Spectators at the ski meet on Saturday at Nassau went hungry because the canteen-manager forgot to bring out the hot dogs. When the error was discovered a boy was sent to telephone, but he returned in a half-hour saying he couldn't find a phone. The manager of the canteen then jumped into his car and started for Peterborough, but there was only one road out of the large field and cars were arriving in a solid string, so the manager was bottled in and could not even get his car on to the highway. The weiners finally arrived as the crowd was well on its way home.

Dew Worms Feature Police Court Case

An echo of last summer's fishing was heard in a police court case Saturday morning when an application was made before Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., for a court order, compelling a landlady to hand over clothes belonging to a former boarder which she had been holding because she claimed he still owed her $20 on a board bill of $140.

The fishing came into the picture when the boarder claimed that while staying at the home of the defendant he had on a number of occasions picked dew worms which defendant and her husband had later sold and that he understood that he was to be given an allowance of $18 or $20 for this work.

The landlady denied that any arrangement had been made with the complainant but admitted that he had picked some dew worms and that these had been sold and she and her husband had received the money for them.

Magistrate Langley suggested the matter might be settled by the complainant paying the defendant $5 in return for the handing over of the clothes and this was decided on, an order by consent being given.

Regd. J Chandler appeared for the complainant.

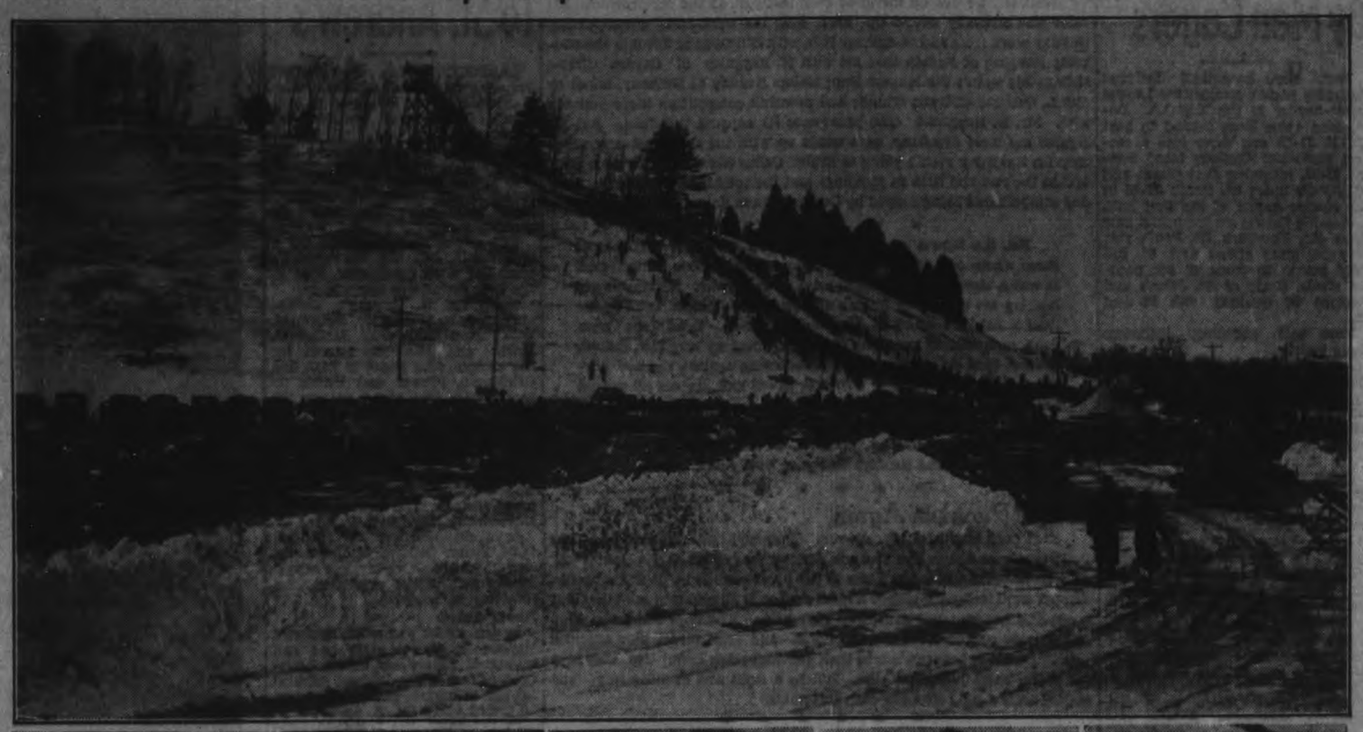
Records Tumble At Ontario Championship Ski Meet Over Week-end



Ontario championship skiing attracted a crowd of several thousands at both Nassau on Saturday and Bethany on Sunday. The greatest meet in the history of this city, it was run under ideal weather conditions. Some idea of the monster crowd that witnessed jumping events at Nassau can be gained from this picture, which shows the jump towering in the distance, the hundreds of cars parked in the foreground.

Skiers from left to right at BOTTOM are L. Georgas of Owen Sound, who won the combined championship in Sunday events by placing first in slalom, second in downhill; Celius Skavaas of Toronto, who won the combined championship in Saturday events, placing second in the cross country, first in jumping; H. Call Meeting Of Farmers For Saturday

Eventual organization of Peterborough county farmers as proposed at the January sessions of the county council is the objective of a general meeting of farmers which the agricultural committee of the council decided to call for next Saturday afternoon at the Court House.

The idea has been born of the continuing an pressing problems of farmers, an the action or the effort proposed by Peterborough county council, regarded as an experiment that is arousing interest elsewhere in the province, is a reflection of the opinion of the members of the county council that farmers must realize they have got to do more in their own behalf if their group necessities are to receive the attention they require.

Every member of the Agricultural Committee was present at Saturday afternoon's meeting in the office of Frank C. Paterson, agricultural representative. They were Reeves Jas. Gifford, chairman, W. A. Anderson, Robert Martin, Allan B. Mann, John McColl, Deputy-Reeve M. H. Johnston and Warden Milby. This committee's plans for next Saturday afternoon are an expression of the county council's readiness to get out of the rut of routine affairs such as roads and bridges, and endeavor to do something to set their economic house in order.

As elected representatives of the farmers of this county they are proposing a county-wide organization which possibly might become affiliated with the Ontario Chamber of Agriculture, and now they are going back with their idea to the farmers themselves. Some meetings and discussions since the first of the year have been suggesting formation of a body to include delegates from all the established agricultural organizations in the county, and what the committee is striving to do is to crystallize that sentiment in the hope that it will bring farmers together, united in their own interests, articulate, non-political, and creating a vital sense of individual responsibility to the corporate or community cause.

It is generally recognized that the committee of the county council are not entering upon an easy undertaking, and that its success depends on the response of the farmers themselves. The project has already been given a great deal of thought, and the proposed meeting for next Saturday is going to be watched with keen interest.

Second Annual Cheese Meet Needed

Virtually a second annual meeting of the Peterborough Cheese Producers' Association will be held here on February 23 at 2 p.m. to validate, according to its constitution the appointment of a representative to the zone group who are authorized to name one of the five members of the Ontario Cheese Marketing Board.

George A. Elliott of Norwood, president of the association, was actually named to this post at the meeting some weeks ago when he was re-elected, but it happened that he was appointed by the association members generally, whereas the only persons entitled to vote on that appointment are the cheese factory delegates, one from each factory.

The procedure according to the Cheese Marketing Act requires in the first place the appointment of a representative of each cheese factory. In this district there are twelve. They in turn appoint a county or district representative who is associated with similarly designated delegates in a zone group. The counties in the Peterborough zone are Hastings, Peterborough, Northumberland and Prince Edward. Their representatives appoint one of their number who becomes a member of the Cheese Marketing Board, which is composed of five men, representing the five zones into which the cheese producing area of the province has been divided.

The system is not only constitutional but it is esssentially democratic, the selection of a Cheese Marketing Board being ultimately the responsibility of the cheese factory patrons.

RABBIT HUNT ON.

Members of the Peterborough Fish and Game Protective Association have voiced approval of an organized rabbit hunt in the near future if a sufficient number of hunters will take part. No definite arrangements have been made so far, and every one who would like to take part in such an event should drop a line to Fred Marshall, president, or to any other member of the executive.

Lakefield Council Reviews Tenders For Village Cop

(Examiner Correspondence.)

LAKEFIELD, Feb. 13. — Tenders for the position of combined village constable, assessor, works commissioner, weed inspector, sanitary inspector, and caretaker of the memorial hall, will be considered at the second regular meeting of the village council to be held in the Memorial Hall here this evening.

The appointment and the drawing up of an agreement with the province in regard to maintenance of the connecting link through the village will be the main business of the meeting, according to Clerk H. T. Hill. It is possible that a village tax collector will be appointed at the same time. The fact that a collector was not asked for in the tenders, leaves the council free to assign the position to a man other than the constable appointed, if they so desire.

Campbellford Merchant And Wife Mark Golden Wedding Day

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CAMPBELLFORD, Feb. 13—Fifty years of married life were marked on Sunday when Mr. and Mrs. Thomas J. Horkins, of this town, celebrated their golden anniversary.

Mr. Horkins is himself the oldest active citizen in Campbellford, having passed his 84th milestone on June 22nd last. His keen mind holds a wealth of information about the early history of Campbellford, both as a village and later as a town. He was born here only a short distance from the general store, which he has operated since 1877. As a boy in public school he recalls the huge timbers being floated down the river. These finally gave way to logs and the supply became exhausted the lumber mills closed down.

He received his first training as a clerk in T. Hurley's general store in the village of Hastings after graduating with highest honors from the Campbellford public school at the age of fourteen. On his return from Hastings he built his first store on the southeast corner of Bridge and Rear streets, and from here he conducted his first general store, selling everything from men's clothing to machinery.

He operated his business from this store until 1895, when he built again, this time on the southwest corner of Bridge and Rear streets and has been there from that day to this.

Mrs. Horkins, whose maiden name was Mahoney, came to Canada from Geneva, N.Y. as a girl, and was one of the first teachers at the Trent River school. They were married at Norwood by Rev. Father Conway.

Flaherty Fined After Battle In Liquor Case

George Flaherty of Kinmount was disappointed when his counsel, Ivan Moore of Lindsay failed to put in an appearance in police court here this morning to defend him on a charge of having liquor in a place other than his residence but George put up a verbal battle on his own account that at least entertained the large Monday morning crowd of court frequenters. In the long run, however, he pleaded guilty and was fined $100 and $4.50 costs with the alternative of three months in jail.

When the case was called by Magistrate E. A. Gee, Flaherty was at first inclined to ask for another delay. He could not understand why his lawyer was not there. "Ivan and I were overseas together and I am sure he would come down and say a word for old Flaherty," he said.

Later the accused intimated that he might plead guilty if he were assured that he would get leniency.

"You can't make a bargain with the Crown," Magistrate Gee advised him.

"I know all about the Liquor Control Act," said Flaherty in answer to a question from the magistrate. "That is one thing I do know about."

Finally he entered a pleas of guilty and the Crown Attorney said that he would be satisfied with the minimum whereupon Magistrate Gee imposed a fine of $100 or costs or three months

"That's not lenient," protested Flaherty.

"That's the minimum under the section," explained the magistrate. However Flaherty still looked dubious so a copy of the act was taken over to him by Detective Sergeant Meagher.

"I should have my glasses to read this," said the accused.

"Here, take mine," said Magistrate Gee and the spectacle were handed Flaherty who put them on and started to read. When he came across something about six months' imprisonment, he stopped and handed the book back, as the magistrate reminded him that he was being given only three months in jail as an alternative to not paying the fine.

LAME BACKS

Provincial Traffic Officers McClure and Broughton along with several motorists are nursing lame backs and aching muscles today, an aftermath of heavy work at Bethany yesterday when traffic snarled on the one way road. One line of cars had to be pushed up a long hill and others had to be lifted off the road to permit oncoming traffic to pass. Those who took the train were comfortable.

Thrills Of The Nassau, Bethany Runs Attract Thousands Of Fans For Crowning Ski Meet Of Winter

A week of intensive preparation, made doubly hard by a temperamental weatherman wound up in a blaze of glory for the Peterborough Ski Club last night when the Provincial ski championships were completed under conditions described by contestants as ideal. Four new champions were ushered into the skiers' hall of fame, and local contestants headed by Jack Holland, although not gaming top honors, acquitted themselves nobly against the cream of athletes in the realm of skiing from a parts of the province.

Starting Saturday morning the cross country run, a gruelling contest staged with wind conditions unfavorable was completed without mishap, and on Saturday afternoon at Nassau, the weatherman relaxed his stubborness to provide weather that although not particularly pleasing from the spectator's viewpoint due to the biting wind, was ideal for the competitors. The Class A jump was in great condition, if anything a little too fast. The jumpers whizzed down the incline at a speed that made perfect take-offs difficult, and many of the top rank jumpers were over-shooting the landing slope, getting distances well over 120 ft. mark, for which the jump was built. For instance, Jack Landry, classy performer from the Laurentian Club at North Bay, sailed 131 feet before the skis hit the snow, but the slope where he landed was not steep enough to permit balance and he went into a spin.

Wonderful Support.

Warmed by the indomitable optimism of the Ski Club members and wishing to show their appreciation, local citizens turned out close to 4,000 strong for the jumping at Nassau in the afternoon. Ted Chalmers and a gang of volunteers had the Nassau field well ploughed, and parked the hundreds of cars in orderly lines south of the jump. It was the first time in the city's history that the Ontario Ski Championships had been held here and the officials from the Canadian Ski Association and Zone officials were lavish in their praise of the clockwork arrangements efficiently carried out.

It is estimated that close to 500 automobiles crowded into the large field and easily one hundred more dodged buying tickets and parked on the east side of the river along the road. Many spectators because of the cold watched the events from the comparative comfort of their cars and all had a splendid view of the proceedings.

Welcomed By Mayor Hamilton.

Mayor James Hamilton stood on the platform of the sound truck, owned by Red Foster of Toronto and extended a cordial welcome to the public and contestants alike. "I wish the best of luck to all those jumping this afternoon and I hope you have 20 league skis, and soft landings," said His Worship.

Sigurd Lockeberg, of Ottawa, chairman of the Technical Board Canadian Amateaur Ski Association and the leading authority on ski technique and technical problems, relating to skiing in Canada, also spoke briefly. "I can see by the elaborate and most complete arrangements that the Peterborough Ski Club has made that you intend to stay in the sport of skiing and this beautiful jump is something to be proud of."

60,000 Eggs Needed For Local Hatchery

The egg market received a seasonal stimulant this morning with the opening of the Bray hatchery, which will absorb about 5,000 dozen in its artificial aid to nature's slower system of reproduction. The hatchery came into the market last week buying eggs from selected flocks, but the first "settings" were not put into the machines until this morning. Culling is for standard disqualifications and for laying qualifications. Barred Rocks are the most popular breed in the experience of the local branch of the Bray institution, but the eggs of about twelve other varieties are also used. Blood testing of flocks is one of the protective measures employed in the selection of eggs for hatching.

The Rambling REPORTERS

HELP YOURSELF

Indians evidently have memorized two laws, the first is that "God helps those who help themselves" and the second dovetailing nicely with the first is that "Possession is Nine Point of the Law." Last week a well known Ennismore farmer was fox hunting and his dogs had two nice ones on the run. It happened that the foxes headed in the direction of the Curve Lake reservation and hunter and dogs were only a few hundred yards behind when shots rang out. The farmer arrived just in time to see his day's work disappear over the horizon in possession of some other hunters at that time making speed not even the hounds could equal.

Power Lacking To Handle Large Problems

"Our Federal system lacks the force to deal properly with such matters as unemployment insurance and work and wages and our national government lacks the power to speak for a united Canada," declared Leslie R. Frost, K.C., M.L.A., of Lindsay in his address on "Government in Canada" at the men's forum in George Street United Church on Sunday afternoon. Submitting that it was not the cost of over-government that was the most serious matter but rather the lack of unity of command, Mr. Frost suggested the amalgamation of school sections, the abolition of county councils and the delegation to the Federal government of power to deal with questions of national importance and scope as possible steps in dealing with the existing situation.

The speaker was introduced by President C. H. Elliott who was chairman during the session.

His address was a thoughtful review of Canadian history, a study of which he said was essential if the present problems of governments were to be properly understood. He traced the developments in Canada from the first settlement by the French, the conquering of the country in 1760 by the British, the passing of the Quebec Act in 1774, the Canada Act in 1791, the act of union in 1841 and of the British North America Act in 1867 and showed how these things had led up to the situation as it existed today, with nine legislatures supreme in their own field and Quebec jealous of the minorities rights it had been given by the British North America Act.

Less Self Needed

Mr. Frost declared that what was needed in Canada at the present time was more country and less self and less party. Democracy, he said was inclined to be selfish and had made the most progressive steps when its existence was threatened. Thus Confederation might never have been brought about if it had not been for the fact that the international situation dictated that such a step should be taken.

The speaker gave it as his personal opinion that it would be almost impossible to abolish provincial legislatures but he thought that progress could be made in the direction of limiting the authority of those legislatures to more or less local problems, leaving such questions as unemployment insurance and work and wages legislation to the Federal authority.

DOMINIONS, QUAKERS AND ST. JOHN'S COP "Y" HOOP GAMES

Congrats For Comeback King

Don Meade, a successful comeback if ever there was one, receives congratulations from a rival jockey after another of those "Meade rides three more winners" days that have become so common at Miami's Hialeah Park during its current winter meeting. Eddie Arcaro, one of the continent's best himself, is the well-wisher. Meade was suspended three years ago but since his reinstatement in Florida at the beginning of the year has been the No. 1 sensation of the turf.

Jeff Heath Swung For Singles But Knocked Out Home Runs

President William Harridge of the American league was sitting in the grandstand at Miami, Fla., three years ago watching the students of a winter baseball school being put throught their paces when up came Leslie Mann, one of the instructors and a former big leaguer. Two months before he had returned from Japan whither he had taken a team of American amateurs for a series of games.

"One of the boys I took to Japan," he said, "is destined to be one of the greatest hitters in the history of the league. His name is Jeff Heath."

"Presume you already have him signed up for a big league club?" was the question shot at him.

"No. Billy Kamm beat me to him. He will wind up in Cleveland."

Such was the introduction of John Geoffrey Heath, Cleveland outfielder, whose parents were both in England and who, himself, was born in Fort William, Ont. He worked out with New Orleans that spring, but an infected hand retarded his progress to such an extent that New Orleans let him go to Zanesville, O., where he proceeded to burn up the mid-Atlantic league with his hitting. He then joined the Indians, his first major league game being one in which Bob Feller struck out 17 Athletics, a contest not easy to forget.

Entrance Delayed.

Jeff was supposed to play with Cleveland in 1937 but when Tommy Henrich was declared a free agent, Heath went to Milwaukee to replace the outfielder now with the Yankees. Again he batted like a fiend but not until last spring did he really become an Indian regular.

It was not until last August that his parents finally saw him play as a professional. It was abut that time that Jeff said: "I am feeling my way. I know I can hit big league pitching, but for the present I am going to concentrate on making singles rather than home runs. Perhaps later on I will go after the long drives, but right now my ambition is to advance or score the runners."

Only 10 American league batsmen drove in more runs," Jeff sending 112 tallies across the plate. It was right after he said he would be satisfied with singles that he began to hit home runs, and wound up the season with 21.

Heath's parents settled in Seattle where Mr. Heath has a hardware business. Geoffrey went to Garfield High where he also starred as a full back. Fifteen colleges made overtures to him. Jeff, however, knew they wished him to play football and that was one game he did not intend to play any more for he had suffered injuries to both ankles and figured one more accident would unfit him for a baseball career he had planned. Jeff turned to amateur baseball instead.

It was while he was playing sandlot baseball that he was discovered by George Burns, who was a member of the Cleveland Indians, the year the latter won the American league pennant and world championship. George wrote to Cleveland. Billy Kamm was Cleveland's coast representative. Billy received a wire to go to Seattle and look over this boy Heath. It did not take Kamm long to discover that Heath was all that Burns had written and when he left Seattle he carried Heath's signature to a New Orleans contract.

"I may not be any Averill, Kreevich or DiMaggio in that outfield," said Heath last August, "but I know I can hit and perhaps in a year or so I will be giving some of the batting celebrities a battle for the honors."

He wound up the 1938 campaign with a mark of .343 for 126 games. Jimmy Foxx, batting champion of the league, was the only batsman at bat 40 0times or more who beat him out. Only three sluggers beat him out in total bases. He topped the circuit with 18 triples and it may be that Leslie Mann's prediction that Heath will be one of the greatest hitters in the game will be verified.

Fast Basketball Is Dished Up By Men Cagers

Fast, hard basketball featured Saturday night's Senior City League triple-header at the Y.M.C.A. Dominions came from behind to beat C.G.E. 21-15 and move into a second place tie; Quakers laced Heclas 31-21, retaining first place; and St. John's upset St. Paul's 31-26 in the closing games of the first half.

Scoring figures for the initial half show Jim Thorburn, St. Paul's star forward, away ahead with 84, full fifty points in front of his nearest rivals, Craig of St. John's and Jakafby of Quakers with 34 and 33.

First half standing, including these games:

	W	L	F	A
Quakers	4	1	120	91
St. Paul's	3	2	163	131
Dominions	3	2	113	127
St. John's	2	3	106	109
Heclas	2	3	111	99
C. G. E.	1	4	66	122

C.G.E. took a 10-7 lead in the first half of their opener with Dominions, but led by Vince Holmes, the others won in a last quarter drive 21-15 to move up even with St. Paul's. In the closing twenty minutes, Holmes' 9 points and some fine play making by the Dominion guards gave the winners an edge in the scoring 14-5. Holmes was high scorer for the winners and Grose and Wolstenholme starred at guard with Cadd and Holmes the pick of the winners. The teams:

C.G.E. (15)— Centre, Cadd (7); forwards, Edmonson, Holmes (5); guards, Cameron (1), Archibald (2); subs, Broadley, Williams.

Dominions (21)—Centre, Hamil; forwards, Hunter (2), Holmes (9); guards, Wolstenholme (3), Grose; subs, Csumrick (2), Dundas (5), Rennie

Referee—Curly Krug. Umpire—Walter Ferris.

Last Half Drive.

In a last half drive led by Kingdon and Jackafby, Quakers outscored Heclas 19-9 to win 31-21 and retain their first place margin over St. Paul's and Dominions. Good play-making and fast, hard basketball made it a good game to watch, but poor shooting in the first half kept the score down, with Heclas fighting back from a five point deficit to tie the score at the half 12 all. Jakafby with 9 and Kingdon with 8 led the led the Quaker attack and Moorhead and Sedgewick were best for the losers The teams:

Quakers (31)— Centre, Jakafby (9); forwards, Kingdon (8), Ward (5); guards, Gunsolus (2), Thomas; subs. Ash 1), Patterson (6), Galley.

Heclas (21)— Centre, Moorhead (8); forwards, West, Dougherty (3); guards, Sedgewick (8), White (2); subs, Turner.

Referee—Waite Ferris. Umpire, Curly Krug.

Big Upset.

St. John's took a 17-8 lead in the first half and fought off a last period St. Pau's rally to which they were out-scored 18-14, to win 31-26 in the year's biggest upset. The winners got the jump on St. Paul's in the opening half and quick breaks and long passes beat the losers' defence often to pile up a 10-2 lead in the opening five minutes From that point on they were in front all the way, despite a desperate St. Paul's rally in the dying minutes that cut down their lead to 5 points. Ascott, Dyer and Gillespie led the winners, with McPherson, Thorburn and Marsh best for the losers. The teams:

St Paul's—Centre, McArthur 2); forwards, Thorburn (15), Pulkinghorn ;1; guards, Marsh (4), McPherson (4); subs., Gemmel.

Oshawa Juniors Play Colts Here

Oshawa Juniors and the Peterborough Colts clash here again tomorrow (Tuesday) evening at 8.30 o'clock in the Brock St. rink in the third game of their home-and-home double serious. Each team has two home games in this short schedule, first one being in Oshawa—with the Motor City gang winning out—the second here, with the locals victorious, and the third here tomorrow. Fourth may be Thursday in Oshawa. The team finishing on top goes into provincial junior "B" puck playdowns, the loser being eliminated. But if they should tie their four games, a deciding tilt would have to be ordered.

Fans saw a lively hard-hitting battle here last week between those teams, no less than 22 penalties being handed out. Both squads are big, fast and full of fight. They play classy and well-matched junior hockey. The Colts claim they can take Oshawa now and will eop another win on local ice Tuesday, but the brawny visitors will be tough to take. It should be a fine fray and ought to draw a good crowd of hockey fans to cheer the Peterborough boys along.

Digging up the Local Dirt With the Odd Chuckle or Two

By CEC. PERDUE

Well, sir, we tied up the loose ends last p.m. as the big provincial ski meet was officially wound up here over the week-end. Cross-country Sat'day morn from and to Armour Hill, with Bill Cook of Toronto the winnah; jumping at Nassau that aft with H. Bagguley of Ottawa first—though his wasn't the longest leap; slalom Sunday at Bethany, taken by one L. Georgas of Owen Sound; and downhill competition there yestiddy also, Mr. B. Heggtveit (you pronounce it) copping the duke. But ski figures are most deceiving, so it winds up with the combined championship for Saturday events going to M'sieu Cellus Skavaas of Toronto (second in the run and fifth in jumping) and the combined title for the Sunday competitions being copped by Georgas, Owen Sound Greek.

* * * * * *

But the figures are in elsewhere and tell their own tale to those whose coat d'arms is skis rampant on a white background. It was a thoroughly successful meet in every way, big crowds attending the affairs at Nassau and Bethany—though 'twas colder than a banker's heart at the jumping events. Conditions were good, competitions keen and the marks hung up very fair, indeed. Several local ski stars made a fine showing against the best performers in the province. Officials, skiers and visitors all agreed the meet went over with a bang and they expressed surprise at the fine Nassau jump, the swell hills at Bethany and the ambitious spirit of the local Ski Club members. It was a big affair here and Peterborough came through this year with flying colors.

Junior Puckists Again

Next puck fray here is tomorrow (Tuesday) when Oshawa and our Colts tangle at 8.30 in the Brock in another important O.H.A. junior "B" tilt. Each squad has taken a win in the home-and-home double schedule. Winner here tomorrow stands a swell chance of eliminating the other this week, and heading into provincial playdowns. The boys will be battling like billy-be-blowed from start to finish—and don't forget they amassed just 22 penalties between 'em in their previous clash here. Yep, they play for keeps, these junior puckists. It'll be a tight and exciting fray, and should draw a good crowd of cash customers.

The senior "B" Petes are off tonight for Belleville to mix with Trenton Fliers in the second of their three-in-five group playoff serial. While the locals looked a lot better here last Friday, they didn't win by any one-sided score, and the Airmen are liable to turn around and take tonight's tilt. One never knows about these long-time hockey rivals—games seesawing back and forth between 'em like a sailor rolling back to his ship after a successful shore leave! A number of Petes' followers are planning on going down, as these games are well worth seeing. Next one here will be Thursday p.m. at the Rue Brock.

A Letter From Al

Comes a letter from Al Gratton in Montreal. Says he never played hockey with a finer gang than the Petes and slips in a word of praise for the official work done by Tommy Miller and Cliff Cadd. Says Al: "The office staff asked me out for a hockey game against one of our Montreal customers and I turned out to be the star of the game, so you can imagine how long our competitors and my teammates had been off skates!" He says to tell the boys here he's still playing with 'em, even if only in spirit—and that he may see them when they go into the playdowns. When, as and if—eh, Al?

Pick Hines' pack in Baltimore has started off its third cup series of the season in good style. The Orioles went fine the first third of the season, but slumped badly the next section. They play three series for cups during the winter in the U.S. amachoor loop. The birds of Baltimore took a 6-4 win Sunday over Hershey for their third straight nod in this serial, the Rovers not going so well — though they have a big lead on the all-around standing, owing to a strong start. Bill Calladine is still up around the sniping lead, and may get a pro offer by spring, while Ned Vitarelli is playing good steady hockey. The Orioles changed goalies and added two new forwards from Ontario, so they ought to go oke from here on in. Hines is well-liked by puck fans in that town.

As The Playoffs Near

Some southend hockey chatter, as playoffs arrive. Several games slated for the Sacred Heart rink tomorrow in the twilight, King Edward and Red Aces meet at six, while Canucks and St. Peter's clash at seven in postponed bantam tilts to end their schedule. At eight, Maroons meet Canucks in the second intermediate game of the two-in-three playoffs, Maroons copping the first. King Edward and Canucks have a sudden-death juvenile joust at nine, winner to meet St. Peter's in finals. Postponed midget melees in this circuit will be announced later.

Once again the senior men basketeers staged three stirring duels in the Y.M. gym on Saturday night before a flock of fans and fanettes. Dominions did a 21-15 job on C.G.E., Quakers yanked out a 31-21 verdict over Heclas, and St. John's surprised all and sundry with a 31-26 decision over the startled St. Paul's squad. Sniping leadership still rests easily in the mitts of Jimmy Thorburn ,nobody else being within six kilometers (it's the ski influence) of him. Next cage contest is an L.O.B.A. gals' fray tomorrow eve at 7.45 betwixt C.G.E. and Orfuns in the P.C.I. gym.

CURLING

By HERB MARTIN

Ray Best, George Cairns, Cyril Giroux and Dave Grant are in Toronto to-day curling in the 12th annual Ontario bonspiel.

The playing for the Neil trophy is one of the outstanding competitions in connection with our club; and this year we believe under the new system it will be more popular than ever.

In previous years a whole day had been set aside for these games and a very small number of our boys could get off work to play in the contest. This year the committee has decided to play all games in the evening. A double-header each evening from the start until the winners are declared.

The 'spiel will commence on the evening of Monday, February 20. Entries must be in the secretary's hand on Friday, February 17. The draw will be made that evening and will be printed in the Examiner of Saturday, February 18. This is just the rough outline. Will have more details later.

The draw has been made for the annual "Front End" games. Each rink is made up of leads and seconds only. All players are asked to look on the notice board and become acquainted with the personnel of their rinks, so as to be all ready when the games are called.

The winning rinks at Saturday's bonspiel were skipped by George Robertson, Charlie Westbrook and Ev. Thomas.

London skating rinks are crowded.

In the junior game, St. Andrew's stepped in at the start and had registered four goals before Lakefield tallied. Then Wilkest counted for the homesters to finish the secon period 4 to 1 for St. Andrew's.

In the third, the Lakefield team rallied and held the visitors to one goal while Dobbin and Foster each counted for the Grove, to end the match 5 to 3 for St. Andrew's.

All Saints Win Church Contest

All Saints Bantams of the Church League took a 5-2 puck win over George St. at All Saints' rink Saturday. Wellwood tallied the first two for the losers, but All Saints got four in the first heat and one next time out. Lee counted two and Hill, McDougall and Hotrum one apiece. Most of the Anglican scores were soft ones, the winners' main strength being in their defence. Lacey had to retire in the third with a cut under the eye, Edgar replacing him. The win puts All Saints in top place. Teams:

All Saints: Goal, Lacey; defence, Hotrum, Lee; centre, Burns; wings, Mason, Wheeler; subs, McDougall, Hill, Edgar, Clapham.

George St.: Goal, Quirt; defence, Wellwood, Morrow; centre, Greatrix; wings, Burnham, Carter; subs, McCurrach, Parr, Kingdon, Young, Powell.

Equals Season's Scoring Mark

One of the brighter sides of a somewhat drab National Hockey League picture in Montreal this year has been the play of left wing Toe Blake, ABOVE, who has turned in one good performance after another and capped his efforts by running in four goals in a game against Americans as he and his fellow Canadiens took a 5-2 decision. His four goals equalled this year's mark for scoring in a single game, set a month previously by Syl Apps of Toronto Maple Leafs.

5 Famed Canadien, Maroon Aces Continue To Shine As Pilots

By Jack Mitchell
(Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

MONTREAL, Feb. 13 — (C.P.)— Natty business suits replace the brilliant-hued uniforms and polished shoes the gleaming skates as these Flying Frenchmen and marauding Maroons of a better era continue to play major roles in the game that once accorded them stellar-billing under the big-top.

Making the roster of coaches in Quebec's two senior amateur hockey circuits resemble more a selection for an all-time, all-star National League squad are the names of Aurel Joliat, Sylvio Mantha, Archie Wilcox, Clint Benedict, and Albert Leduc included in it.

Veterans of the not-so-far-off days when Montreal's twin entry was a power to be respected in the major circuit, they have returned to old seats on the players' bench, but younger legs now respond to their experience gained in many Stanley Cup campaigns.

Some have come back hoping to shape new careers, others simply to remain a part of the game, but each has met with success. With the schedule of none yet completed, all five of their clubs already are assured of berths in the post-season playoffs.

To Archie Wilcox, squarely-built defenceman of Maroons and later Boston Bruins, goes the palm for the best record to date in the new field. Last season Wilcox, who operates a trucking business in Montreal, piloted Sherbrooke to the championship of the Provincial Senior Hockey League, while this season his Valleyfield Braves are considered the boys to beat in the same loop.

Successful, too, are Albert Leduc and Sylvio Mantha, teammates on the defence for the Canadiens through a colorful decade crowned by Stanley Cup conquests in the season of 1929-30 and again the following year.

Into the Playoffs.

In his first attempt at coaching, Albert the Battleship has placed Lachine Rapides in the P.S.H.L. playoffs while playing a little himself and also acting as rink manager for the suburban city of Lachine. Meantime, his erstwhile silent defence partner Sylvio, has whipped together a powerful aggregation in his second year with Montreal's Concordia outfit in the rival Quebec Senior Hockey League.

The two that best arouse the memory of local hockey in its heyday of intra-city rivalry at its peak, however, are frail little Aurel Joliat and eagle-eyed Clint Benedict.

The Mighty Atom, who patrolled left-wing for only Canadiens during a career that stretched through 14 seasons, numbered among his mates the great Howie Morenz and the one-and-only Georges Vezina, both since passed away. Aurel, a grocery retailer now, coaches Verdun Maple Leafs in the Q.S.H.L., and there are those who would consider him a capable successor to ex-pilot Cecil Hart of the Canadiens.

Perhaps it was the goal-tending wonders of Clint Benedict, first with Ottawa Senators and later with Maroons, that spurred those old-time Canadiens to great heights. Clint was the backbone of a great Senator squad that rode to three Stanley Cups and later he led Maroons to the world championship in 1926.

Lately returned from England, Benny heads Sherbrooke in the P.S.H.L., and under his guidance young Zeke Ferley has improved from a raw rookie into one of the loop's best netminders.

These five are retired from active competition now, these and others of their time, and the change has been felt in the teams they led to greatness. The barber-poled Senators and the roistering, rampant Maroons have passed from the picture completely, while the Canadiens are no longer the colorful flying dervishes of old.

Yunnan Province in China will spend nearly $25,000,000 in improving its rural irrigation system.

"SKAVAAS AND GEORGAS COP COMBINED SKI TITLES HERE

Ontario Meet A Huge Success With Keen Competitions And Four Champions Declared

Celius Skavaas of Toronto and L. Georgas of Owen Sound won the combined championships at the provincial ski meet held here over the weekend. Bill Cook of Toronto finished first in the cross-country race, starting and finishing in the city Saturday morning, with Skavaas second, H. Bagguley of Ottawa was first in jumping Saturday afternoon at Nassau, Skavaas placing fifth. Longest jump was by J. Landry of North Bay, 131 feet, but he fell. Georgas headed the list in the slalom event at Bethany on Sunday, while B. Heggtveit of Ottawa was first there in the downhill competition.

Skavaas' combined total of points was 631.5 getting 360 in the cross-country and 271.5 in jumping. Georgas amassed 129.5 points with 78.9 on the slalom and 50.7 in the downhill. He and Heggtveit were alternately first and second in the Sunday competitions viewed by a huge crowd under ideal weather conditions. The jumping also drew a big crowd despite a cold wind—and the jump was lightning fast. D. Hall of Ottawa suffered bruises in a fall.

Judges were Fred A. Hall of Toronto president of the C.A.S.A.; Sigurd Lockeberg of Ottawa, chairman of the C.A.S.A. technical board; and Al Wilson of Toronto, chairman of the Ontario ski zone technical board. Members of the Peterborough Ski Club acted as clerks, times and other capacities to put the big meet over in the finest fashion.

Cook is First

In the 15 kilometer race, Cook came in first breathing easy in an hour, 24 minutes and 25 seconds. Skavaas did the tough course of over nine miles in an hour, 28 minutes and 15 seconds. Third was Vladimir Havlicek, Toronto, one hour, 31 minutes and 33 seconds. He was trailed by D. Hall of Ottawa in an hour, 42 minutes and 56 seconds. W. G. Kingsmill of Toronto was fifth in an hour and 52 minutes. T. Dubroy of Ottawa failed to finish.

Following are the jumpers' standings:

An Ace On Skis

A few years ago Berger Ruud, ace Scandinavian ski jumper, came over to this continent and won various meets with his fine performances. This year it's Reidar Anderson, ABOVE, of Norway, who's copping crowns here, there and everywhere. Handsome Reidar's best performance was in the United States championships at St. Paul where he took the title with leaps of 193 and 197 feet.

Bonspiel Brings 118 Rinks To Toronto Ice

TORONTO, Feb. 13—(CP).—The 12th annual Ontario bonspiel swings into action here today with 118 rinks competing, a few below the usual number, due to last minute defaults. Quartets in the curling tourney are from every section of the province except northwestern Ontario with four from Detroit and one from Wilwaukee.

Fresh from victory in his district British Consols event, Bert Hall will take his Kitchener four into the first draw of the main Royal York trophy, of which three draws are scheduled today.

Hall, winner of the Royal York the past two years and of the grand aggregate in 1937, will be gunning for this third successive victory in the premier competition. He first meets M. E. Watts of Stouffville.

Winners in the Royal York's initial round are eligible for the Selberling and Birks-Ellis-Ryrie trophies. T. S. Groham's Torontos that won the Selberling and also the grand aggregate award in 1938 has broken up for varying reasons but Graham himself is competing. He is vice-skip in J. M. Rothschild's Torontos.

The Birks-Ellis-Ryrie victor of last year, Alex Gardiner of Sarnia, is in today's draw, encountering C. A. Buehnergard's Norandas.

Third draw of the day will see Ed Young's Toronto Royal Canadians meeting W. P. Sims, Markdale. Young was runner-up last year for the Royal York and grand aggregate.

Losers in the Royal York first round go into the North American Life and Seagram trophies. But Dave Walker's Fort William crew that triumphed in both these events last winter is not competing. Also absent is L. Christie of North Bay, winner of the Canada Dry Consolation trophy.

Test Crew Wins Over Machinists

Test department nosed out a 3-2 C.G.E. Shop Hockey League nod over Machine Shop at the Brock on Saturday in a nifty fray. It was 1-0 for the losers in the first, but tied at 2-all as the second finished. Creighton and Langton counted for the losers; with Pryde, Tollington, and Archibald scoring for the other crew.

Creighton, Jones, and Langton stood out for Machinists; as Boyle, Tollington, and Archibald shone for the Test. It was an upset in a thrilling tilt, bitterly fought, with both goalies shining in a hectic third heat. Machinists ganged up plenty in this frame, but Boyle knocked them out. The teams:

Test— Goal, Boyle; defence, Gray, Tollington; centre, Primeau; wings, Archibald, Pryde; subs., Aikey, Blanchard.

Machinists — Goal, A. Jones; defence, Curtin, Pearson; centre, Creighton; wings, F. Jones, Langton; sub., Murduff.

Referee—Red Creighton.

Leafs Booed as Canadiens Tie Them Then Win 4-3 In Montreal; Rangers Whip Bruins By 3-2

By Jack Calder
(Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

The lowdown on Boston Bruins — just in case you hadn't guessed—is that Manager Art Ross is scared to death lest they hit the skids in playoffs again after out-distancing the National Hockey League field in the schedule.

It was a sad, sad fate that befell the "Broons" last spring, when, after losing only 11 games all season, they dropped ingloriously from the money series with three straight losses to Toronto. Now the big Boston machine is being built up again as an almost sure thing and Ross can be excused for trying to insure the club against slip-ups come playoff time.

New York Rangers, almost certain to play the Bruins in the first round of the Stanley Cup series, plastered a 3-2 beating on Ross' worries last night at New York. The Bostons still lead by eight points but their boss has the jitters about what might happen when the best-of-seven series between the first and second teams opens the cup series.

Two weeks ago Ross got the idea Ray Getliffe and Charlie Sands of his first forward line weren't giving everything they might give, so he sent them down to the International-American League farm at Hershey. Last night he decided they had learned a lesson sufficient to keep them going through the playoffs and recalled the pair, sending back to the Hershey the youngsters he had called up to replace them, Red Hamill and Terry Reardon.

Leafs Add Three Points

The league's third and fourth teams moved a little closer to the Bruins with weekend successes — not too close for present comfort, but close enough to bring playoff wrinkles to Ross' brow. The third-place Americans scored a 1-0 victory over Detroit Red Wings at New York last night. Toronto's fourth - place Maple Leafs picked up three points in two games with Canadiens, salvaging a 3-3 tie at home Saturday and coming from behind three times to earn a 4-3 victory at Montreal last night.

Earl Robertson

It was the third-year Ranger line of Alex. Shibicky and Neil and Mac Colville that caused Ross all the worry at Boston. Shibicky scored a goal late in the second counter, got another in the third, and so did Neil Colville with the aid of his brother to complete the Ranger total. Bruins drove back late—too late—with goals by Milt Schmidt and Porky Dumart in the last four minutes.

Americans, recovering form after a brief slump, were outplayed much of the way in the dull New York tilt, but Goalie Earl Robertson threw back the best of the Red Wing threats. Sweeney Schriner got the lone goal midway through the third on a power play, aided by Lorne Carr and Art Chapman. Defeat left Detroit in sixth place, a point behind the idle Chicago Black Hawks and four above Canadiens.

Stirring finishes by the visiting clubs marked the Toronto-Montreal encounters. The Leafs were booed heartily by the home fans when the Canadiens came from far back to gain Saturday's tie, but they showed new evidences of fight in overtaking the Habitants three times at Montreal.

Drillon Shows Off.

Gordon Drillon's parents came all the way from Moncton, N.B., to see him go, and he waited until Sunday to turn on his best scoring heat. He pulled Toronto level at 2-2 in the second period, then bagged the winning goal with three minutes to play.

Gord. Drillon

Pep Kelly, Nick Metz and Syl Apps interspersed the quiet moment at Toronto with second-frame goals. Herbie cain scored for Canadiens before the period ended, and, after Wilf Cude had kept them in the game with sensational goal-tending, Babe Siebert and Johnny Gagnon got the tying goals with four minutes to play in the third.

The doings at Montreal were livelier. Rod Lorrain put the home club ahead in the first and Gus Marker tied the score in the second. Canadiens were awarded a goal when Drillion threw his stick at Cain as he headed goalward, but the Leaf wingman made up for that with his first goal. The third chapter had just begun when Siebert put the Frenchman up for the first time, but Drillon and Apps aided Bob Davidson in tying the count and Apps helped Drillon to the winner.

TIMBER MENACED

FREDERICTON—(CP).—Two destructive forest insects, the bronze birch borer and the beech scale, have become a serious menace to the birch and beech stands of New Brunswick, reported R. E. Balch, head of the Dominion entomological laboratory here.

Remember When—

The comeback campaign of Max Schmeling, dethroned world's heavyweight champion, suffered a setback five years ago to-night when Steve Hamas blasted out a 12-round decision over the German. Schmeling's campaign, however, seemed crowned with success in June, 1936, when he knocked out Joe Louis, but the Brown Bomber answered with a one-round knockout last summer.

Trail Captures World Hockey Title

BASLE, Switzerland, Feb. 13.—(CP).—Canada renewed its lease on the world amateur hockey championship today, while Trail Smoke Eaters, the uncanny crew from British Columbia, relaxed at the end of a trail of triumphs.

The Allan Cup holders yesterday defeated the United States 4-0 and clinched the world title at the tournament in which 14 nations started play on the pool system 10 days ago.

The victory kept for the Dominion the supremacy it established last year through the Sudbury Wolves and the year before with Kimberley Dynamiters.

The Smoke Eaters warmed up for the tourney with a 22-game exhibition series in the Netherlands, Germany, Czecho-Slovakia, Poland and Germany, winning all games and scoring 147 goals to 17 by the opposition. Then they breezed through the world tourney, scoring 38 times to a single counter from the competition.

The United States took second place in the championships.

Czecho-Slovakia and Switzerland, other two teams with Canada and the United States to enter the final pool, are playing off today for the European title.

Standing of the remaining teams starting with fifth place was as follows: Germany, Poland, Hungary, Great Britain, Italy, Latvia, Holland, Belgium, Yugoslavia and Finland.

Benoit Gets Two.

In the Canada-United States final, Joe Benoit rapped in two goals, while Bunny Dame and Jimmy Morris each tallied once.

Setting a furious pace in the first period, the Smoke Eaters establish a substantial lead by scoring three times.

In the seventh minute, Dame and Benoit combined on a play which had its culmination when Joe swept the puck past Ed Maki of Marquette, Mich., the American goalie. Thirty seconds later, Benoit went plunging down centre ice with the puck again and this time too, he beat Maki.

It was Benoit's partner, Dame, who not more than a minute later, rapped in the third goal.

In the meantime, Maki had been warding off a barrage of shots from all angles. He made four spectacular saves before letting in Dame's shot.

Thirteen minutes of high-pressure hockey was played in the second period before Jimmy Morris scored, with Johnny McCreedy and Dick Kowcinak assisting.

Maki, assisted by a powerful United States defence, withstood the furious attack of the Canadians for the rest of that period and throughout the next. The Americans had no chance to play an offensive game.

Nash And Brown Lift Title In Badminton

KITCHENER, Ont., Feb. 13—(CP)—Ontario's championship tournament is now history, the badminton spotlight turned to the Dominion meet in Toronto early next month. Most of the provincial winners will try for national honors but there will be one notable exception—Mrs. W. R. Walton, Jr., of Toronto.

The former Swift Current, Sask., star, who successfully defended her Ontario title here Saturday, will not be on hand in Toronto to defend her Dominion crown. Mrs. Walton, who defeated Ruth Robertson of Ottawa, 11-3, 11-1, in the provincial finals, will leave shortly to compete in the all-England championships.

Keen interest will be attracted to the men's dubles event in the Canadian meet, where Jack Nash and Colin Brown of London, Ont., will attempt to add the Dominion title to the provincial honors they gained Saturday. By defeating the present Dominion champions, Rod Phelan and Jack Sibbald of Toronto, 16-18, 17-14, 15-12, in the provincial finals, the London pair will demand attention in play for the national stakes.

Storey Is Beaten

Phelan had more luck in the singles and dethroned his fellow-townsman, Jack Storey, in straight sets, 15-13, 15-13. Showing surprising endurance Phelan finally swept aside the younger Storey to regain the title he had held twice previously.

Paired with her sister, Margaret, Ruth Robertson made up for her defeat at the hands of Mrs. Walton, by successfully defending the women's doubles crown. The Ottawa sisters, also Dominion champions, downed Mrs. Walton and her Toronto partner, Mrs. J. Gilmour, 12-15, 17-16, 15-3.

Sibbald shared in the championship glory when he paired with Miss Kay Biette of Toronto to retain the mixed doubles title. Afte being swamped in the first set in their final match with Mary Spohn and Doug Kennedy, Waterloo pair, the champions rallied to win 2-15, 16-6, 15-6.

Of a loved one gone to rest,
Who will always be remembered
By those who loved him best.

—Ever remembered by Wife and Boys.

ins was elected to the school board, on which he served for twelve years, retiring in 1909 to run for councillor. The late William Dozsee had been returned for mayor by acclamation and Mr. Horkins headed the polls in the contest for councillors. Asked why he did not continue to take an active part in the municipal life, a field in which he has always been keenly interested, both in Campbellford and Seymour, Mr. Horkins replied, "Well, in a nutshell, it was due to the pressure of my own business which I felt required all of my time."

He has, however, been active in the work of the Seymour agricultural society, having served as vice-president, president and later as chairman of the sports committee, an office which he still holds. Both in his work as storekeeper, machinery salesman, piano salesman and automobile dealer, he has become known from one end of the county to the other. Always up before seven, his motto has been early to bed and early to rise, and his own experience with hard work and regular habits indicate one of the best plans to live a long life. His father, who died at the age of eighty-one, worked the day before his death and his mother lived to the age of 87.

Mr. and Mrs. Horkins celebrated their anniversary at the home of their youngest son, Thomas B. Horkins, and Mrs. Horkins on Sunday. Six of their seven children are living. Dick, the oldest, served as a doctor in the great war, when he was killed in France. The others, all present at their anniversary belebration, were George of Detroit, W. B. Horkins, Toronto, Dr. Harold Horkins, Detroit, Mrs. V. Kelly of Detroit, and Mrs. Cook of Chicago.

David C. Stuart Celebrates 81st Birthday

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CAMPBELLFORD, Feb. 11.—"If I had my life to live over again I'd live it exactly as I have lived it," declared David C. Stuart, last surviving member of the Stuart family which came to Canada from Leitram County, Ireland, seventy-nine years ago. He boarded ship with his parents and ten brothers and sisters at Dundalk, Ireland, and spent a month on board before they landed at Montreal, from where the family continued to Trenton, where they made their home. Mr. Stuart celebrated his eighty-first birthday on Monday and still maintains his Irish wit and humor and is possessed of the health and vigor of a man many years younger. Still possessed of all his faculties he takes a lively interest in politics and is a clever conversationalist for when his knowledge of a subject foreskes him his wit stands him in good stead.

After getting his early education at Carrying Place near Trenton, Mr. Stuart married his late wife, the former Able Valleau, who died fifteen years ago. Although he spent nearly sixty years on the same farm near Codrington, he always regarded farming as his secondary interest, which was invariably superceded by an unquenchable thirst for politics and municipal life. He spent more than thirty-five years in the Brighton Township municipal council, serving as councillor for three years, later stepping up from second to first deputy-reeve and later as reeve.

County Commissioner.

When the county council was formed he served as a county commissioner for fifteen years. An Orangeman for sixty years and as a member of the Little Briton Lodge at Codrington, he recalls a "Twelfth Celebration" in 1879 when he rode on horseback with fifty others to Trenton. His interest in the L.O.L. carried him through the various offices of Master, District Master and County Master.

For the past five years he has been an honorary member of Brighton Lodge No. 29, A.F. & A.M. and has been presented with a gold medal significant of the fact that he has been a member for fifty years.

Mr. Stuart also holds an enviable record as rural mail carrier on rural route No. 1, Codrington, a position which he held for nearly a quarter of a century and from which he retired in December, 1937.

In politics he is "an old time Tory," although he rather warily admits having one voted for the U.F.O. government, and for his religion he looks to the Anglican church, of which he is a member.

OBITUARY

ETHEL CAMPBELL MOORE.

Old residents of this city will regret to learn of the death of Mrs. Ethel Campbell Moore, widow of William Lyall Allen, former hardware merchant of Cobourg, at her home on Sunday.

She was the daughter of the late William Henry Moore, K.C., prominent Peterborough lawyer for many years, and one time chairman of the Peterborough Utilities Commission. The family used to occupy the house now owned by Thomas Ephgrave on London Street.

Funeral will be held from the family residence in Cobourg on Tuesday afternoon at three o'clock, with interment in Union Cemetery, Cobourg.

fortunate in the facilities that are available in the natural skiing country which is close by. There is a ski factory right in your own city, and hundreds of young men who are giving promise of developing into contenders for Dominion ski laurels. I am sure the citizens of Peterborough will find that skiing will not only be beneficial from a health standpoint but will also help business materially," said Mr. Lockeberg. He expressed the hope that in the visible future Peterborough may be successful in having the Dominion championships, and in closing paid tribute to the fine work of the Peterborough Ski Club and wished them every success.

Lt.-Col. Hicks-Lyne Greets Crowd.

R. T. E. Hicks-Lyne, dynamic chairman of the Peterborough Winter Sports Committee, who along with J. J. Dorris of the Chamber of Commerce has given impetus to all winter sporting activities, voiced a welcome and called on Mayor James Hamilton to place the crown on the head of Miss Anne McKenzie, making her Queen of the Snows for 1939.

Miss McKenzie faced the microphone with a smile that not only won her many friends but brought silent plaudits from the battery of news camermen and an Associated Screen News photographer. In a few words she thanked those who had bestowed the honor of Queenship on her and wished the contestants luck and new records. Then she proceeded to cut a ribbon stretching across the Ski jump and the meet was officially underway.

Eric (Toby) Westbye, president of the Peterborough Ski Club was called to the microphone and added his words of welcome to the crowd, at the same time thanking the citizens for their support at the meet.

First Aid Men On Duty.

Fully equipped and ready for any mishap, five membears of the St. John Ambulance Brigade were on hand under the direction of Leo Tompkins, Divisional Superintendent, and several times during the afternoon were called on to administer to spectators and skiers who received minor injuries. The first one to receive attention was Mayor James Hamilton, who cut his finger as he climbed out of a car.

Thirty-five girls gaily togged out in smart costumes sold badges to spectators as the cars drove through the gate into the field, while Provincial Officers McClure and Broughton of Peterborough, with Constable Kennedy of the Lindsay detail, kept the traffic moving in orderly fashion. Inspector James Reid and Constable Clarke of the City Police were on hand at the jump to assist members of the Club in keeping the run-out stretch clear of spectators.

Bethany On Sunday.

Hundreds journeyed by specia. C.P.R. train and by car to O'Brien's Hill, a mile north-west of Bethany village, for the downhill and slalom events on Sunday afternoon, and they found ample parking space and a wide-awake farmer who had a canteen set up where hot coffee and hot dogs could be purchased. The fast downhill course was lined with spectators, many of them from the surrounding countryside who were watching the speedy athletes in competition for the first time. Small boys who found it difficult to get a clear view of the course overcame the obstacle by climbing trees and had grandstand perches. No admission fee was charged at Bethany.

County Constable Thompson, of Bethany, was a prominent figure at the Bethany events and was voted a regular fellow by all those who had occasion to meet him. He not only entered into the carnival spirit but was a tower of strength when any of the cars slipped off the road into the deep snow. He gave valuable assistance to the officials in charge of the events.

Shortly after five o'clock Sunday afternoon the special train arrived back in the city and the Ski meet faded into history, while members of the Club fatigued and bewildered by a week that several times threatened to spoil all their hard work, relaxed and enjoyed that feeling of satisfaction that comes from a job well done.

Skiing Enthusiasts Form New Club At Campbellford

Campbellford, Feb. 13.

ALTHOUGH a hard crust on the snow rather hampered attempts at skiing there were fourteen local enthusiasts on hand Sunday afternoon to inaugurate the ski club being formed by Keith Bailey.

The party travelled south of the town for their initial outing and from the results of the meeting it is felt there will be little difficulty in getting the club going as more than forty have indicated their intention of being on hand for skiing next Saturday and Sunday. Owing to the lateness of the season it has been announced that all those who pay their membership this winter will be regarded as paid up members for the succeeding year.

Switchgears Lose To Fractionals

Switchgears dropped their first game of the C.G.E. Shop Hockey League series on Saturday in the Brock when Fractionals yanked out a 5-2 win. Completely outplayed by their scrappy rivals, the losers fought hard, but could not pierce the stout defence of Crowe and Coughlin. It was a clean but hard game, with plenty of heavy bodychecks by the winners' rearguard, turning in the best defensive work of the loop to date. It was 1-0 in the first for the winners and 4-2 going into the third. Crowe and Coursey got two each for Fractionals, with Johnston denting the twine for the other. Thompkins and Jobe counted for the other side, Coursey, Crowe, Coughlin, Clarke, Thompkins, and Leggitt were all outstanding. Teams:

Switchgear — Goal, McNabb; defence, Mowry, Leggitt; centre, Tompkins; wings, Jobe, McDonald; subs., Mackay, Abraham.

Fractional — Goal, Clarke; defence, Crowe, Coughlin; centre, Coursey; wings, Johnston MacMullen.

Referee—Red Creighton.

O.J.H.A. Contest On For Lakefield

Lindsay has an O.J.H.A. contest tonight in Lakefield, while the local juvenile entry, St. Peter's, play in Campbellford on Thursday. The O.J.H.A. wants this district to declare a winner by this week, but it will probably be another week before a group champion is known. The winner of this section may be drawn against the Picton - Collingwood winner in the first round of the Ontario juvenile playdowns, though this is indefinite as yet.

LONG RECORD SPOILER

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

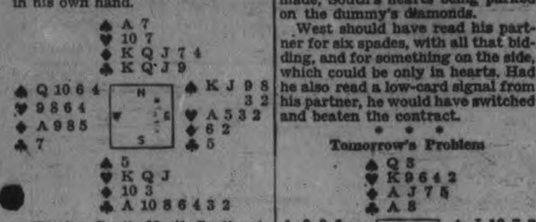
WRITTEN FOR THE EXAMINER

By SHEPARD BARCLAY

"The Authority on Authorities"

OBEY THAT SIGNAL

ON PLENTY of hands, the entire foundation for the defensive play is based on the size of the card played by third-hand on the opening lead. Seldom should its message be violated. If it can be read as the lowest held, the player is usually asking for a switch to another suit as soon as his partner gets the lead. If it can be read clearly as higher than his lowest, it generally asks for a repeat of the same suit. If it is non-committal, the partner is asked to base his actions on trying to develop tricks in his own hand.



(Dealer: South. North-South vulnerable.)

South opened the bidding here with 1-Club, considering that his great length justified a shading of his top-card strength. North answered with 1-Diamond, East injected 1-Spade, South bid 2-Clubs, West 2-Spades and North forced with 4-Diamonds, in view of his club fit. East bid 4-Spades, as an intended sacrifice, and South passed to see if his partner wanted to double it. When North instead showed a fit at 5-Clubs, South got over-ambitious. He would have done well to pass the 5-Spades which East now essayed, to see if his partner wished to double, but instead he ambitiously bid 6-Clubs.

Perhaps that flamboyant call was justified by his confidence in the defenders' proclivity to mistakes. West led the spade 10, though the Q would have been the choice of most sound players, but that was unimportant. The ace won in dummy, a club was cashed and a diamond led. West won, led another spade, and the contract was made, South's hearts being parked on the dummy's diamonds.

West should have read his partner for six spades, with all that bidding, and for something on the side, which could be only in hearts. Had he also read a low-card signal from his partner, he would have switched and beaten the contract.

Tomorrow's Problem

If South gets to 7-Clubs on this deal, would you double in the West?

Honey, Potato And Apple Supply Grows Scarce On Market As Farmers' Stocks Dwindle

Barber Wraps Customer And Snips On As Truck Crashes In

Toronto, Feb. 13 (CP).

BURT HANDFORTH'S barber shop was boarded up today but business went on as usual. Handforth was cutting a customer's hair last night when a driverless truck crashed through his plate glass window. Unruffled, Handforth went on with his cutting. His last customer had to wear an overcoat because of the draught. Handforth said the damage was covered by insurance. Jack Matthews, Toronto, could not explain how his vehicle moved from its parking place up the street.

Stocks of honey, potatoes and apples are beginning to show the declining effects of supplying consumer demand since last summer and fall. That is not a "scarehead" statement from the producers to stimulate business and prices; it is only the comment of farmers on Saturday's market referring to the fact that the months of continuous selling are beginning to reflected on the stocks that are left on hand.

Otherwise it was just another mid-winter market day, and just about the coldest of the season. For once the sting of a fairly cold week was felt on the final day; and 20 minutes or half an hour of mooching about the outdoor market was enough chill for the whole day without going looking for more of it on the windy slopes of Nassau (Smith township).

And that carries a reminder of a message from a farmer about the coolness of the atmosphere in the market hall. "All they've got in that stove are green slabs," he said pointing to the stove at the north end of the hall. "The women right around here are frozen, and I don't know how they stand it sitting along the north wall. If they had badminton bats they might dash about a bit and work up some warmth, but this isn't badminton day; at least not yet. This is just market day, and when we come in only one morning a week the city should at least put on a fire of hardwood logs."

So that request from one of the rural neighbors has been carried out, and possibly there won't be another sharply cold Saturday this season for an improvement in the temperature.

Prices Steady.

Eggs were again fairly plentiful, selling from 22 cents a dozen up to 26 cents. Butter ranged from 23 to 25 cents. One woman said she sold her basket at 24 cents a pound. The price eased down to 23 cents towards the end of the morning, but for the regular customers the price was generally around 25 cents.

Chickens sold from 20 cents up, and hens from 18 to 20 cents. Top price for chickens was 25 cents, and there was a considerable quantity at 22 cents.

Potatoes were steady at $1.40 a bag. H. Falls quoted that price for White Winters; but at the opening of the session the price was $1.50, asked. Arthur Stinson's vegetable list included the following: Carrots 20c a pk.; cabbages 5c each; onions 30c a pk. or $1 a bus. Parsnips and beets 25c a pk.

Harold Doig quoted turnips at 3 for 10c; onions $1 a bus.; carrots, beets and parsnips 15 cents a 6-quart basket. J. D. Hanley also asked 30c for onions. His carrots and parsnips 20c and 25c a peck.

Orono Fruit Farm's display included two attractive showings of Spies and Greenings at 40c a peck; Snows 35c; McIntosh Reds 40c, Russets 25c.

Norman Moncrief's McIntoshes are holding theirs longer than the same variety of apples from the lake front. His price was unchanged at 45c for No. 1 quality. His Spies were 25 to 45 cents; Talmans 40c; Delicious 25c to 40c; Greenings 25c and 40c.

Allan Brown was back with the honey men. His price for clover honey was 30c for two pound tins and 50c for four pound sizes.

The offering of fresh meat was ample. The prices quoted by George Mullen were: Beef 11c and 13c; pork 14c and 16c. H. R. Gill's prices were: Beef 12c and 14c; pork 14c and 16c; baby beef, 14c and 16c; mutton 12c and 14c.

Hastings Deanery Talks Business

(Examiner Correspondence.)

BONARLAW, Feb. 13—The combined meetings of the rural deaneries of Hastings and Prince Edward held at St. Mark's church on Thursday, were well attended, there being but one absentee. At 10.30 a.m. there was a celebration of the Holy Communion. Rural Dean of Prince Edward Deanery, Rev. A. B. Payne, was celebrant, assisted by the Rector, Rev. Canon W. G. Swayne. This was followed by a quiet hour conducted by Rev. A. S. McConnell of Stirling. Rev. Canon Smith (Super) of Trenton, presided at the organ. At 12.15 p.m. the ladies of the congregation served a sumptuous dinner in the school room, for which they received a hearty vote of thanks from the members of the deaneries.

At two p.m. business was resumed. Rev. F. C. Beazer, of Roslin, read an excellent paper on preaching. The deaneries then met in separate sessions for consideration of local business. In Hastings deanery the resignation was received from Rev. W. G. Hope Swayne, of Tweed, as secretary owing to his removal from the deanery to the rectory of Merrickville and Burritts Rapids. Sincere regret was expressed by the deanery in the form of a motion. Rev. F. C. Beazer was appointed secretary in his stead.

The deaneries then united for a discussion of the form of the statistical reports and recommended certain important alterations and improvements.

A happy and successful meeting was closed with the benediction by Rev. Canon T. Austin Smith, after which a cup of tea and light refreshments were served by the ladies.

Ways Of Financing Relief Costs Vary In The Prairie Provinces

WINNIPEG, Feb. 13—(CP)—Larger centres in Manitoba and Saskatchewan have financed their portion of the heavy unemployment relief burden during the past 10 years through loans and debentures, but in Alberta most of the cost has been paid out of current revenues.

Cost of direct and indirect relief, including financing, in the 10-year period ending December 31, last, was heaviest in Winnipeg, with approximately $34,600,000, of which the city's share was $14,800,000. Dominion and provincial governments paid the remainder.

Figures for other cities, with their share in brackets, were: Regina, $11,-119,462 ($3,689,422); Calgary, $9,881,-833 ($3,848,666); Edmonton, $8,358,-919 ($3,420,600); Saskatoon, $5,182,-225 $1,602,290); Moose Jaw, $4,265,-932 ($1,501,824); St. Boniface, $2,100,-944 ($675,437); Lethbridge, $1,459,-983 ($728,412); Brandon, $1,204,081 ($406,422); Prince Albert, $661,964 $218,448).

The above amounts cover costs of food, fuel, clothing, shelter, health services, administration charges, public works programs and interest on loans and debentures. Cities shoulder all cost of administration, hospitalization, medical, dental and optical care and financing.

Alberta's System.

In Alberta no money has been borrowed for relief since 1935. Prior to then Calgary issued $250,000 in debentures and borrowed $1,200,000; Edmonton borrowed $1,200,000, and Lethbridge $50,000. Remainder of the cities' shares came out of current revenue.

The Dominion government gives Alberta a monthly grant-in-aid of $125,000, or 35 per cent of the monthly expenditure in the province for direct relief. The province pays solvent municipalities 60 per cent of the cost of such material aid and 50 per cent of the cost of indigent relief and all costs of relief for single homeless unemployed. Payments are made to municipalities each month.

Number of persons on relief in Edmonton at the end of the year was 8,351, or 848 fewer than a year ago; Calgary, 8,496, a drop of 2,318; Lethbridge 1,125, or 227 fewer.

In Saskatchewan payment of the provincial government's share of cost is made usually about three months after the cities have borrowed and spent the money. Financing the government share costs Regina $10,000 annually, and when all costs are considered the city bears approximately 33 per cent of the entire load.

Public works in Regina cost $1,-848,500 and the city's share, $800,000, was borrowed. Regina has borrowed $2,526,000 for relief purposes and expended out of direct taxation in 10 years $1,282,410, an average of 3.2 mills on the tax rate for each of those years.

The city has repaid about $110,000 of money borrowed and fixed charges paid to date on the capitalized portion of relief expenditures amounted to $510,935. Number on relief, about 8,650, is fewer than a year ago, but higher prices and increased relief quotas have increased cost.

Since 1933 Saskatoon has issued debentures to take care of the city's share of relief and the relief debenture debt, of which $40,000 has been redeemed, now stands at $994,-000. Average interest rate on Saskatoon's total debt is 5.08 per cent. About 4,813 persons are now on relief, a decrease of 500 from a year ago.

Up to the end of 1937 Moose Jaw issued $894,381 in debentures for direct relief and the public works program, but last year the city's share of direct relief costs was paid out of current revenue. Approximately 4,502 persons are now on relief, 532 under a year ago.

In Northern City

In Prince Albert 47.4 per cent of the 2,192 persons on relief, 139 more than a year ago, came into the city in 1930 and since principally from

Pipes Set Afire To Wall In House

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HASTINGS, Feb. 13.—A chimney fire at the residence of Walter Dodd at noon on Friday threatened to cause serious results when the pipes became red hot and set fire to the wall where the pipes enter the chimney. When John Quinlivan and Gilbert Herrington, passersby, entered the house, Mrs. Dodd was alone with two children, and unable to do much to extinguish the blaze.

They used buckets of water to put the fire out on the wall and used fire chemical on hand in the house to extinguish the chimney fire. Herrington said the pipes were red hot from the first elbow off the stove to the chimney, and that he thought they would fall down. Walter Dodd arrived home a few minutes later from work after the fire had been put under control.

St. Peter's High Publishes School Magazine

A prediction that Cupid's dart will soon find a resting place in the breast of Rt. Hon. R. B. Bennett, Canada's No. 2 bachelor who is now in England is contained in an article on current topics in "The Net," a school magazine compiled and printed for the first time by the pupils of St. Peter's School.

In the publication Joseph Armstrong, deals with the forthcoming visit of Their Majesties to Canada and in brief references to Prime Minister Mackenzie King whom he rates as Canada's No. 1 bachelor and to R. B. Bennett, the reporter says "We wonder if at last Cupid may score a hit with Mr. Bennett when he is settled in his new surroundings.

The magazine is dedicated to Most Rev. Denis O'Connor, D.D., L.L.D., Bishop of Peterborough on the ninth anniversary of his appointment to head of this diocese. The name "The Net" is significant of the grand old Fisherman whose name the school bears. School colors of garnet and gold are used in the front cover and the school motto "Through Trial to Triumph" is also inscribed on the face of the front. George Booth, a fifth form student is editor-in-chief and the ambitious publication reflects credit on the staff of budding journalists.

Vivian Sullivan is art editor, John Corkery, sports editor, and Margaret McColl covered the social section. Nora McCarthy assembled the material from the correspondents in the different forms and prepared it for the book and many other pupils contributed interesting and well written articles.

Joseph Gilman extols the beauty of the Kawartha Lakes district as a tourist centre, while Jean McColl relates the story of a dream she had with ancient Rome as the locale and all of her class-room colleagues holding places of honor in the civic life of the ancient community.

Short stories, humor, verse and editorials are all given proper place in the magazine.

In another article Miss Nora Corkery interprets the recent visit of Premier Chamberlain and Viscount Halifax to the Holy See as a favorable influence for world peace. She explains that while visiting the Vatican, the Holy Father presented the visiting statesmen with golden medals bearing likenesses of Saint Thomas More and Saint John Fisher. Jack Dorris lauds Chamberlain for his astute handling of the difficult situation that exists on the European front in an article dealing with foreign affairs.

The officers of the Literary Society all of whom worked hard to complete the magazine are as follows,—Clayton O'Donoghue, president; Dorothy Grady, vice president; Gerard McAuliffe, secretary; and Paul Hickey, treasurer. Francis Hogan and Eugene Gordon handled fourth and third forms respectively.

City Council Votes 7-2 On Hospital

Will Submit Bylaw Protestant Ratepayers Vote Likely April 15

On a division of 7 to 2 the city council decided last night to submit to the qualified Protestant ratepayers a bylaw authorizing the issuing of serial debentures in the amount of $395,000, payable in thirty years, for the construction of an extension to the Nicholls Hospital.

Those who voted for Alderman Dutton's motion, seconded by Alderman Glover, were Alderman Bradburn, Cotton, Wilson, McCannan Glover, Dutton and McIntyre.

Mayor Hamilton did not call for contrary votes, but those who did not show their hands with the affirmative pronouncement were Aldermen Gordon and Stocker.

E. F. Mason, pesident of the Hospital Board, E. B. Fowler, secretary, and J. F. Morrison, another of the members, listened to the council's discussion of their project, and at the conclusion Mr. Mason suggested that the vote be taken on Friday, April 15.

"You're not superstitious about Friday," Alderman Gordon commented.

Details of the bylaw were left to a committee composed of Mayor Hamilton, Aldermen Cotton and Bradburn.

Alderman Gordon was suggested by Alderman Bradburn as a member of the committee.

"The chairman of the Legal Committee should be on the committee."

Alderman Gordon said, "and besides I've given an opinion disagreeing with the decision, and I don't want to be on the committee."

Timeliness Questioned

Members of the council expressed their appreciation of the service rendered by the Board of Management of the Nicholls Hospital, generally agreed that a new building was a pressing need, and at the same time raised the question as to whether the business conditions of this year were opportune for the taking of the vote.

In reply Mr. Fowler pointed out that for the three years from 1937 to 1939 inclusive, Peterborough's retiring debentures amounted to $733,000, with an addition $348,000 maturing in the next three years, making a total of $1,581,000 being paid off by the end of 1942. The remaining $600,000 debenture debt applied to the two paying utilities of the gas and water works, assets that would provide for the outstanding liability against them.

Gift of $600,000

Alderman Wilson made the striking statement that the bequest made by the late Mrs. Charlotte Nicholls to the hospital represented $1,000 a month for fifty years, a total of $600,000, with her endowment fund still intact. The people had the hospital "handed to them for nothing," Alderman Wilson said.

Alderman Gordon was the first speaker when Mayor Hamilton introduced the request which a deputation from the Nicholls Hospital Board presented to the council a week ago. He said that the 3,500 Protestant ratepayers who were entitled to vote on the bylaw would have to assume the responsibility of the $395,000, or nearly $113 each. According to his figures the interest would amount to $480,000 and the principal almost $400,000, a total of $800,000. On the basis of a 4 per cent

Il Duce Will Pay Tribute To Pope Friday

VATICAN CITY, Feb. 14 (AP).—Premier Mussolini and the Italian royal family will pay funeral tribute on Friday to the Pope, who re-established peace between the Vatican and the Italian state.

The Fascist Grand Council, King Victor Emanuelle, the royal court, and the diplomatic corps will attend Mass for Pius XI. on that day, proclaimed one of national mourning.

The Pope's Nuncio, Mgr. Francesco Borgongini-Duca, will celebrate the Mass in the Church of Sant Andrea de la Valle.

Pius was the first Pope to whom the Fascist government had been able to pay its respects since Mussolini had not yet come to power when Benedict XV. died in 1922.

Vatican prelates and Fascists recalled that the Pope, in his Christmas Eve message to cardinals, although criticizing Fascist racial restrictions on marriage and its treatment of Catholic action, paid his respects to Mussolini as "an incomparable Minister."

For the third day the public swarmed into St. Peter's for a view of the body of the Pope before the burial this afternoon.

Although the column of visitors was somewhat smaller than yesterday a check indicated it filed past at the rate of 5,000 persons an hour.

Million See Body.

Hundreds of thousands had passed the bier when the doors closed at midday and the Vatican estimated that 1,000,000 persons had seen the body since Friday — the largest throng that ever had seen a Pope's body in death.

The public was permitted to enter the Cathedral this morning but only the dignitaries of church and state were admitted for the burial service this afternoon (10 a.m. E.S.T.)

The third of the nine daily funeral masses was sung while this morning's faithful filed slowly into the Cathedral.

Deep in the grottoes under the Basilica, a freshly prepared niche awaited the triple coffin prepared for the body of the Pontiff, who had said he hoped some day to find "sweet repose" there.

Piux XI is the third of five Popes since the unification of Italy to be buried in the cryps of St. Peter's. He is the first since the Lateran accord ten years ago, which he helped bring about and which freed the Pontiff as "prisoner of the Vatican" and brought Italian recognition of Vatican sovereignty.

6-Ton Elephant Dies

BUFFALO, N.Y., Feb. 14—(AP).—Big Frank, six-ton elephant said by Curator R. Marvin Perkins of the Buffalo Zoo to have been one of the largest and oldest elephants in captivity in the United States, died last night. The huge pachyderm, 10½ feet tall and 45 years old, had been in the Zoo here since 1900.

Pontiff Is Laid To Rest In St. Peter's

Only Princes, Priests High Dignitaries Attend Ceremonies

VATICAN CITY, Feb. 14.—(CP)—Pope Pius XI was carried to his final resting place beneath the floor of the great cathedral of St. Peter today.

Only princes of the church, Vatican dignitaries, priests, and members of the Vatican diplomatic corps were present.

The gates of the Basilica had been closed at noon. More than 500,000 people had passed by the bier of the Pontiff and scores of thousands stood bowed or kneeling outside this afternoon while the private burial service was in progress.

The Pope's remains were laid in the spot he had often designated as the place he wanted to be buried, near the tombs of Pius X and Benedict XV. The tomb of Pius XI is adjacent also to the last resting places of three descendants of James II, the last Stuart king of England—the Old Pretender, the Young Pretender, and Henry Cardinal York.

Tomb In Grotto

His tomb is the subterranean grotto of the Basilica, under the great central altar where only a Pope celebrates Mass.

At this altar, during his 17-year Pontificate, Pius had officiated at the church's most solemn and moving ceremonies. Hundreds of thousands of the faithful had watched him there—first in robust health and recently weakened by illness as he performed his duties as Holy Father of the Catholic world.

This afternoon the Vatican Chapter, comprising all the canons of St. Peter's met in the Sacristy and proceeded to the Chapel of the Holy Sacrament, where Pius still lay in his open coffin.

Upon their arrival at the bier, the noble guards who had stood watch since the lying-in-state began, withdrew. Chanting, the canons blessed the mortal remains of the Holy Father. The catafalque was then lifted and a procession was formed composed of the canons, flanked by noble guards and Swiss guards and escorted by priests carrying torches. After them came the relatives of the Pope, prelates, and the Vatican nobility.

Hitler Launches Ace Warship Of 35,000 Tons

HAMBURG, Feb. 14. — (AP) — Chancellor Hitler today gave Germany's new 35,000-ton battleship the name of Bismarck, the iron chancellor, declaring Bismarck stood forth among all others who helped create the "preconditions for the present day greater Germany."

Hitler said destruction of the German fleet after the Great War "even today grips painfully at our hearts" and shouted that national socialism "tore the nation out of its rut and led it to new domestic and foreign successes."

For these successes, he said, the nation owed deep gratitude to those creating the preconditions for the third Reich. He declared Bismarck "not only created the German Reich of his day, but also the conditions on which the present great German state of people could be reared."

His speech was heard by 50,000 cheering officials and spectators at the Blohm and Voss shipyards where the christening ceremonies were held.

The christening was performed by Countess Dorothea von Loewenfeld, granddaughter of Bismarck.

Salutes the Workers.

Before mounting the platform Hitler stood facing and saluting the workers who built the new vessel. He also stopped to greet invalid war veterans who were given seats next to the official guests. A company of marines was reviewed by the chancellor as he approached the speakers' stand.

"From the very day of our taking over power," he said, "there began a re-creation of German defence forces with the aid of which security of existence was to be vouchsafed our people. As the sharpest instrument of war it is to take under its protection the peace of true justice."

The largest fighting ship ever built by the Reich, the new craft is 790.68 feet long and 118.11 wide. It will have accommodations for eight 14.96 inch and twelve 15 centimetre centimetre guns along with anti-aircraft weapons.

Bren Contract Faces Probe By Committee

C.C.F. Move Adopted Unanimously; Mackenzie Scored

OTTAWA, Feb. 14.—(CP)—Long and bitter debate over the Bren gun contract has ended, temporarily, in the house of commons and will be transferred to the public accounts committee to which the whole question was referred by a unanimous vote. Today the house will take up the new Canada-United States trade agrement.

On two divisions last night the house first defeated 149-26 a Conservative amendment that the contract be referred to the committee of the whole house with instructions to consider its cancellation, and then adopted unanimously main C.C.F. motion to send it to the public accounts committee.

Again last night the veteran former secretary of state, Hon. C. H. Cahan (Con. Montreal St. Lawrence-St. George) called for the resignation of the "defiant, recalcitrant and incompetent" minister of national defence, Hon. Ian Mackenzie.

If Prime Minister Mackenzie King did not immediately demand Mr. Mackenzie's resignation he would be failing to recognize the intent of the report submitted by Mr. Justice H. H. Davis of the supreme court of Canada, who investigated the contract, Mr. Cahan declared.

Rogers Defends

Labor Minister Rogers was the only cabinet member to take part in the debate yesterday. He could find no basis for any member demanding cancellation of the contract nor any precedent for asking parliament to take action with respect to it before it was submitted to the committee.

No good argument had been advanced to illustrate how the contract could have been let in any more efficient method considering the pressure and urgency of the need for Bren guns, Mr. Rogers declared. The matter of policy as to letting munition contracts might be considered later and was a fit subject for debate but in this instance there was every justification for the action taken.

Political Patronage.

Earlier in the day Conservative Leader Manion repeated his condemnation of the contract as being political patronage and urged the gov-

Coldwater Rats Bring Call For Pied Piper

COLDWATER, Ont., Feb. 14—(CP).—Coldwater could use a Pied Piper of Hamelin, or even a breed of ferocious cats—anything to rid the town of its rats!

Since last October there have been between 60 and 70 cases of toxic jaundice in the town, according to Dr. R. C. Wade, who addressed the Coldwater Women's Institute yesterday. He traced the disease either to "dampness or to the rats which infest the Coldwater River." None of the jaundice cases proved fatal.

Today Dr. Wade explained that the text-books say toxic jaundice can be spread either by dampness or by infection from fleas carried by the river rats.

Coldwater River is a shallow-stream running through the business section of the town. It carries sewage waste to the bay and has long been a matter of grave concern to the health authorities. Merchants experience much difficulty protecting their produce and goods from marauding river rats who come up the sewers.

Coldwater is situated between Orillia and Penetanguishene.

Favor Sweeps

VANCOUVER, Feb. 14.—(CP)—City council yesterday voted to petition British Columbia and other interested members of parliament to seek legalization of hospital sweepstakes under Dominion-Provincial control. The resolution recalls the British Columbia Legislature approved a motion favoring such sweepstakes at its last session and that several years ago a Vancouver plebiscite on the question returned 25,735 votes in favor and 9,774 against.

Drew Goes To Legislature Upon Acclamation In Riding Of Simcoe East

Less Than 25 Attend Event In Midland Hall As Nominations Are Closed; Tory Leader Files Papers In Person

MIDLAND, Ont. Feb. 14 (CP).—Col. George A. Drew, Ontario Conservative leader, was elected by acclamation to the Provincial Legislature for Simcoe East when nominations for a by-election in the constituency closed at 2 p.m. today.

Col. Drew filed his nomination papers in person. Less than 25 persons were in Midland Town Hall when Returning Officer A. A. Ingram declared nominations closed, ending the slight chance remaining an opponent would appear to contest the February 21 by-election, necessitated by the retirement of William Finlayson.

Mr. Finlayson resigned his seat to enable Col. Drew, elected to succeed Hon. Earl Rowe as party leader at a convention in Toronto last December, to lead the 23-man Conservative opposition in the Legislature.

Premier Hepburn had announced no official Liberal candidate would be nominated to oppose the Conservative leader.

Col. Drew told a campaign meeting at nearby Victoria Harbor last night he was determined to continue his campaign even though he was given an acclamation.

2 Of 3 Fugitives Return To Jail

MILTON, Ont., Feb. 14 (CP).—George Lazeo of Hamilton and Harvy Matthews of Simcoe walked into Milton jail this morning and surrendered to the authorities.

Both men escaped from the jail some time Sunday night or early Monday morning, and had been the objects of a manhunt which extended all over Southern Ontario.

The two young men were accompanied by Lazeo's father. The pair reached Hamilton during the night and went to Lazeo's home. The parents advised the fugitives to return with them to Milton at once.

They were locked in the ground floor cells. It was from the second-storey tier that they escaped yesterday by breaking through the roof.

Provincial police said that Richard Sharpe of Toronto was still at large. They added that they had not yet questioned the men who surrendered.

Matthews was serving three months definite and two months indefinite for theft of a car. Lazeo was awaiting trial in Burlington on charges of forgery.

Sharpe was arrested Saturday at Burlington. Police said he had been trailed from Toronto by Alma Hewitt of Streetsville, who claimed she recognized him as the man who passed a worthless cheque on her father a fortnight ago. Miss Hewitt followed Sharpe when he boarded a bus.

Runaway Schoolgirl Found In North

TORONTO, Feb. 14 — (CP). — Cold and hungry and without money Elva Muir, 15-year-old Toronto schoolgirl who ran away from home last Wednesday, was found yesterday by Canadian Pacific Railway police at Chapleau, Ont. Her mother, Mrs. E. C. Muir, supplied money for a ticket back to Toronto and to-day she is home again.

Elva ran away because a picture of her appeared in newspapers naming her as "Mrs. Russell." The photograph was taken at the Union Station when the Spanish veterans arrived home, and, as a joke, her friend, Frank Russell, told reporters that Elva was his wife.

The girl was teased so much at school over the picture that on Wednesday morning she disappeared.

Czechs Startled By Warning From Germans

PRAGUE, Feb. 14 (AP).—Leaders of the Czecho-Slovak government were startled today by a warning against their treatment of the German minority still within the borders of the republic.

Ernst Kundt, who was Nazi Leader Konrad Henlein's right-hand man before the cession of Sudetenland to Germany last October, advised the Czecho-Slovak government in a speech last night to learn a lesson from the events of 1938.

He declared the position of Germans in the republic is "unbearable" and said life has been made deliberately harder for them. His statement surprised government officials, who thought relations with Germany were straightened out and that the policy of friendly co-operation would not meet further obstacles.

The German press lately has been printing scattered reports of alleged Czecho - Slovak discriminations against Germans in the republic. Kundt's speech was published in Berlin newspapers under the headings, "A Warning by Kundt" and "Nationality Rights Only on Paper?" No comment was offered.

Toronto Objects To 30 p.c. Relief

TORONTO, Feb. 14 — (CP). — A protest against the decision of the Ontario Government to reduce its contribution to municipal relief costs will be made by the Board of Control it was decided to-day.

The Board was informed the city will be required to pay 40 per cent. of the relief costs for the first three months of this year and 20 per cent. for the balance of the fear. Some other contributions to dental and other services given the unemployed are also being reduced by the Government.

Others to Stop at 30 Per Cent.

KITCHENER, Ont., Feb. 14 — (CP). — Kitchener and other municipalities will refuse to budget for more than 30 per cent. of relief costs for the first three months of the year, Mayor Gordon told City Council last night.

He made the announcement following receipt of information from Hon. Eric Cross, Provincial Minister of Public Welfare and Municipal Affairs, that municipalities must budget for 40 per cent. of relief costs for the three-month period.

"I wired the Mayor of Belleville, president of the Ontario Mayors' Association, and to-day received a reply telling me that municipalities will stick by our resolution not to budget over 30 per cent. If we figure up all items we would be paying 55 or 60 per cent. instead."

He added he hoped the Government would "play ball with us," declaring the city would pay 30 per cent. in the first three months and 20 per cent. afterward.

Women Excused

SANTA FE, N.M., Feb. 14.—(AP)—Mrs. Louis Coe, New Mexico's only woman senator, told her colleagues "most women don't want the responsibility of jury service added to them any they already have," so the senate promptly killed a bill to put women on juries.

Man Sworn In For Jury Duty In Manslaughter Trial Is Found Deaf So Clerk Swears In New Jury

Bertrand Craig, 571 Harvey street, threw a bombshell into proceedings at the trial of Alfred Hudson, Lakefield, charged with manslaughter, when he stood revealed as being deaf, a few minutes after he had been sworn in as a juror. Lawyers and the presiding judge went searching through law books for some means whereby the man might legally be dismissed, and eventually the entire jury was dismissed and a new one selected. The trial was delayed for nearly an hour.

When Mr. Justice Green learned of the juror's deafness he called down in loud tones to the man, telling him the must inform the court when he was unable to hear the evidence.

"Can you hear what I'm saying?" His Lordship called the man.

"No, I'm afraid not," was the answer.

His Lordship searched through statutes to find a precedent for such an occurence, and the trial was delayed for close to half an hour.

He found that a juror afflicted with deafness incompatible with carrying out his duties, was absolutely disqualified. But the law carries no provision for such a case, he said. He said he had very grave objections to continuing the trial and expressed the opinion that were it to go on, he felt any decision reached might be invalidated.

Both attorneys agreed the man was incompetent and that he should be taken from the jury His Lordship ordered him to stand down and five other members of the petit jury to be called.

V. J. McElderry, K.C., Crown Attorney, said it was his opinion that the entire jury should be dismissed and chosen anew. Such action was taken

Hudson, Lakefield truck driver, was arraigned on a charge of manslaughter that arose as a result of a collision on October 25 last, between a C.N.R. tender and a truck allegedly driven by Hudson. The accident occurred on Water street, north of Hilliard street, and Joseph Meagher, yard foreman, was killed as a result.

The petit jury is chosen from lists submitted by local selectors in all the townships and communities in the province, Mr. McElderry and Mr. Carley said later. It is the duty of such men to see that the men they pick — who should be known to them—are in possession of all their faculties. Lawyers when a jury from these men is being chosen, take for granted that no man is deaf, blind, or in any way incapacitated.

The jury finally chosen consisted of Vernon Skitch, Garfield Torrance, George Coward, F. J. Reid, Maxwell Rogers, Murray Fraser, Frank Whitehouse, W. J. Regan, George Bolton, Roy Taylor, William Archibald and H. S. Routley.

Outlines Case to Jury.

In his opening remarks to the jury, Mr. McElderry described the C.N.R. tender on which Joseph Meagher was standing when he was killed. A platform is situated at the front of the tender on which employees may stand, he said. A driver approaching the interesection has a clear view of the railroad track for about 150 feet, "with a few modifications," he said. In addition, he said, a row of windows lie on the north and on the west sides of the Lillico building near the track. He said he would bring out evidence that lights from cars could be seen from the tender through these windows.

He revealed that Hudson has only the vision of his right eye, the left being of glass.

Identifies Plan.

J. W. Pierce, provincial land surveyor, opened the Crown's case. He identitfied a plan of his own, of the intersection at which the accident occurred. He said that from a point 150 feet south of the intersection a person would be able to see the entire length of the railway track as far as a bridge more than 500 feet distant, with the exception of obstruction caused by two apple trees and one elm tree.

Windows in the Lillico building occupy virtually all the west wall, he said, and others are placed on the north side. There is nothing in the interior to obscure vision through those windows for a per-

Irish Author Shrugs At Ban Of His Film

NEW YORK, Feb. 14 — (AP). — Liam O'Flaherty, Irish author of "The Informer" which won the 1935 best-film award in the United States, to-day shrugged at a ban by the New York State Board of Censors on the French-made film of his novel, "The Puritan."

The Board charged the movie was "indecent, immoral, inhuman, obscene, sacrilegious, tending to incite to crime and tending to corrupt morals."

In answer to this, O'Flaherty remarked:

"Obviously the picture has been banned by what I call a religious racket in the church. They think this picture would interfere with their revenues."

The novel, he said, was a psychological study of a man who kills a woman.

O'Flaherty said "Fascist forces" banned the film in Germany, Italy, Poland, insurgent Spain and Russia, but that it was doing well elsewhere throughout Europe."

Half British Seamen Prefer Pay To Grog

LONDON, Feb. 14 (CP-Havas).—Half of Britain's Jack Tars scorn grog, an Admiralty spokesman said today in discussing a decision to increase the percentage of rum in the navy's traditional ration of spirits.

Fifty per cent. of the men prefer the allowance of three pence they receive if they forego the daily drink, he said.

Before 1740 sailors in the navy received neat rum as a standard beverage, but in that year, as a measure of temperance reform, Admiral Edward Vernon, in whose honor was named George Washington's estate, Mount Vernon, ordered the rum to be diluted with three parts of water.

The new ration was called "grog" after the admiral, who had been nicknamed "Old Grogram" from a cloak of that material which he was in the habit of wearing in rough weather.

Last year a number of sailors asked that their grog be stronger, and after months of consideration the Admiralty has authorized two-water rum.

Tree Yields 2 Cords Wood, 5 Coons, Bee Nest And Honey Adds Bear Hide To Booty

LINDSAY, Ont., Feb. 14.—(CP.) Roy Campbell and Duncan McIntosh of Uphill, north of here, totalled their results for one day's work last night and found they had 2 ½cords of wood, five coons, 60 pounds of honey, a swarm of bees in winter hiding, a weasel and a bear.

This is how it happened according to Campbell.

The men were cutting wood a mile and a half north of Uphill and felled a huge maple. They began sawing it in lengths when a squeaking sound caused them to stop. Looking in a hole in the centre of the tree, they found five racoons. After imprisoning the coons the men continued sawing. In a few minutes they ran into a cache of honey in the tree and hive of bees in winter hibernation. The honey was scooped up and the sawing completed. On their way home a weasel crossed their path so they shot it and added it to their booty.

One of the pails had a leak and a trickle of honey could be seen along the trail. A bear found the honey and was lumbering after the two Uphill men and its lack of caution cost brum his life.

Withone shot of the rifle McIntosh dispatched him.

French Cabinet Split On Spain

PARIS, Feb. 14—(AP).—A split in Premier Daladier's cabinet was reported in political quarters today to have arisen over the question recognizing insurgent General Franco as ruler of Spain.

Ministers meeting at 10 a.m. (5 a.m. EST) under President Lebrun at Elysee Palace were expected to delay a definite decision on sending an ambassador to Burgos, the insurgent capital.

After Franco's conquest of Minorca and Catalonia last week, installing insurgents all along France's Pyrenees frontier and Mediterranean communications lines, France considered collapse o. the Spanish government almost inevitable.

Foreign minister Georges Bonnet was understood to have agreed in principle to early recognition of Franco in an attempt to win the new Spanish regime away from its Italian-German supporters. This strategy was said to have been developed in discussions with British foreign office officials.

The decision of the Madrid-Valencia government's premier Juan Negrin, to carry on the civil war at Madrid, however, appeared to have stiffened the stand against early recognition in some quarters, however.

A rightist wing of the cabinet, which often has opposed Bonnet's policy of appeasing the dictators, made known its opposition to immediate recognition of Franco.

Georges Madel, miniser of colonies, and Cesar Campinci, naval minister, among others were understood to be insisting first on formal assurances from Franco of a dismissal of Italian and German forces from Spain after the war.

Damage Action Is Settled Out Of Court

A civil action on behalf of James Doran, 12-year-old Peterborough boy and brought by his mother, Mrs. Mary H. Doran and William D. Killen, his uncle, against Roy Bick was settled out of court Monday for $5,000. Hon. G. N. Gordon appeared for the plaintiff.

The suit was for $10,000 and costs and arose out of an accident at the corner of Monaghan Road and Charlotte street on December 10, 1937. Doran was a passenger in an automobile travelling north on Monaghan Road and driven by John McNulty. Bick was proceeding west on Charlotte street. The two cars collided and young Doran was severely injured, has been in hospital a great portion of the time since.

His Lordship reserved judgment on the apportioning of settlement.

Legal Snag

A legal snag, struck in an apparently routine action may result in Mrs. Gwendolyn Martin of Peterborough losing her action for divorce, heard Monday by Mr. Justice Ainslie Greene, at the assizes of the Supreme Court.

His Lordship said he was satisfied that grounds for divorce had been proved together with all other requirements, until the point of domicile was raised. He adjourned the case sine die in order that more positive presumption might be brought forward.

The action was taken by Mrs. Gwendolyne Martin against Harold Anthony Martin, and was uncontested. It was brought out in evidence that Martin had been born in Newfoundland, the couple's marriage had taken place in Nova Scotia. They had resided in Hamilton, and later in Peterborough, where they became separated. Martin has now returned to Newfoundland.

Mr. Justice Greene pointed out that a man's domicile is the province in which he was born. A change of domicile must be made deliberately. He claimed that Martin's action in returning to Newfoundland was strong evidence that he had never considered himself as other than a resident of Newfoundland. In such event the Supreme Court of Ontario would have no jurisdiction.

"The law unfortunately sometimes imposes a great hardship on women, forcing them to go great distances after their husbands in order to obtain divorce," he commented.

T. J. Carley, K.C., appearing for Mrs. Martin, argued that the man had made an assignment in Nova Scotia, that he had made no mention to his wife of returning to the east, that the cuople had intended building a home in Ontario when they had sufficient money. His Lordship agreed that had they erected a home a different light would have been thrown on the question of domicile.

Toronto Girl Assault Victim Badly Injured

TORONTO, Feb. 14 — (CP). — Brutally assaulted as she walked across a vacant lot early to-day, Dora Deer, 18, is in a critical condition at St. Michael's Hospital. Six stitches were required to close wounds about her mouth. In addition the young woman has head and body injuries.

Miss Deer was returning from a dance and had left two girl companions to cut across the lot.

She told police that a man came up behind her, placed his hand over her mouth, dragged her a considerable distance and assaulted her.

She believes she was unconscious for some time. When she recovered she ran to her home. Her father called police and the girl was taken to the hospital. The girl's mother is dead and she is the third youngest of eight children.

Miss Deer told police her assailant was tall, with broad shoulders, and wore a navy blue coat and grey fedora.

According to Lorraine Giroux, one of the other girls at the dance, Miss Deer had noticed a man following her when she got off the street car. She started to run, but the man broke into a run, too, and overtook her.

Miss Deer's face is badly disfigured.

William Shea Is Laid To Rest

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HASTINGS, Feb. 14. — Solemn High Mass was sung in Our Lady of Mount Carmel Roman Catholic Church here yesterday marking a final tribute to the memory of the late William Shea, who died at his home here on Saturday morning. Father Walsh of Peterborough was celebrant, Father McAuley of Campbellford, deacon, and Father Carrol of Norwood, sub-deacon. Father Costello, pastor, was master of ceremonies. Despite the inclement weather, a large number attended the funeral services to pay thir respects to the memory of the late Mr. Shea, who was a devout Catholic.

In his sermon, Father McAuley dwelt for a time on the death of His Holiness Pope Pius XI. Even he as head of the Roman Catholic Church on earth must depart from this life through the channel of death, Father McAuley said. "We should not meet death as the end, but rather the beginning of a new life which lasts for eternity. Each of us must some day leave this world, and the destination depends entirely upon ourselves," he said. He referred to the late Mr. Shea by saying he was a noble Catholic who attended his church duties well.

Pall-bearers were: Phillip Fitzpatrick, Norwood, Raymond Walsh, Peterborough, M. A. Shea, T. A. Walsh, T. H. Lynch, Walter M. Fowlds, Hastings.

The remains were placed in the vault at Our Lady of Mount Carmel Cemetery.

Mt. Pleasant Couple 45 Years Married

(Examiner Correspondence.)

MOUNT PLEASANT, Feb. 14. — Mr. and Mrs. John F. Handley are celebrating today (St. Valentine's) the forty-fifth anniversary of their wedding, at their home in Mount Pleasant.

Mr. and Mrs. Handley were married on February 14th, 1894, at the home of the bride's parents, the late Mr. and Mrs. David Finley, on the Third Concession of Emily, known as the "Finley homestead," in the presence of seventy-five guests.

Miss Lena Finley, now residing in Peterborough, was bridesmand, while the late T. Walter McLean supported the groom. The officiating clergyman was the Rev. W. McCann of Omemee.

Mrs. Handley is the only daughter of the late David Finley and Mary J. Jackson, and the third eldest of a family of five: Humphrey Finley, Sonya; Albert Finley of Emily; Everett Finley of Cadillac, Sask., and Burton J. of Chicago, U.S.

Mr. Handley is the second oldest son of the late Watson Handley and Jane Sheppard, and was born on January 10th, 1863, in Mount Pleasant. Arthur Handley, a younger brother, resides in Walhallo, N.D.

Mr. and Mrs. Handley have resided in Mount Pleasant for the past forty-three years, and before church union were regular attendants and supporters of the Methodist Church. Mrs. Handley is one of the charter members of the Mount Pleasant branch Women's Institute.

Mr. Handley owns and operates the foundry in the village, being a machinist by trade, and is the sole worker in it, in spite of the weight of years, he retains much of the vigor and resource of his younger days, and does a very considerable share of work, including the repair work of the community.

son driving north on Water street, he said.

A train moving 7 miles an hour would require 10 seconds to travel 100 feet he said in answer to a question of Mr. McElderry. A truck travelling 20 miles an hour would require 4½ seconds, he said.

In cross examination by T. J. Carley he admitted that 150 feet south of the crossing would be about the centre of the Lillico building.

"Then it was not correct when you said that from a point 150 feet south of the tracks one could see 500 feet along the tracks?"

"No, it was not correct. I did not measure it."

He revised his figures, said the distance should have been about 125 feet. At that point one would be able to see a distance of 500 feet, he said.

"You have said that there was nothing to obstruct the view through the windows of the Lillico building?"

"Yes."

"That was in daylight?"

"Yes."

Mr. Carley asked the witness whether he thought vision would be good at night through the windows into the darkness beyond, if windows in the plant were lighted. Mr. Pierce thought one would not be able to see anything beyond.

Dr. H. N. Young said he had been called to the scene of the accident, found both legs and one arm fractured on Joseph Meagher.

Under cross-examination, he said there was a great delay in the arrival of the ambulance.

Jack Peterson identified pictures taken of the tender and truck following the accident.

The court adjourned at 12.20 to re-open at 2 o'clock. The lengthy adjournment was to permit the jury to visit the scene of the accident.

Drew Refuses To Take For Granted An Acclamation In Simcoe

MIDLAND, Ont., Feb. 14 (CP)— As the deadline neared for submission of nomination papers in the Simcoe East provincial by-election today, Lieut-Col. George A. Drew refused to take it for granted that he would be given an acclamation.

The Ontario Conservative party leader told a campaign meeting at Victoria Harbor last night he was determined to go ahead as if an election were to be forced. It was his first speech of what promised to be a spirited campaign until Capt. W. J. Osborne Dempster of Toronto announced his withdrawal from the race last week.

No other likely candidate loomed before today's nomination meeting here, however. Mayor James Mackie of Midland, mentioned as a possible Independent nominee, announced last night he did not "desire to place any obstacle in the way of the leader of the opposition in taking his seat in the legislature.

Announcing his withdrawal last week, Capt. Dempster said he had been assured a "local man" would oppose Col. Drew in the polling next Tuesday. But the only other man whose name has been mentioned widely, Frank Tissington of Orillia, has expressed repeated reluctance to run.

In his Victoria Harbor address, Col. Drew re-iterated previous attacks on Mr. Hepburn's attitude in Dominion-provincial affairs on the Dominion government's award of the Bren gun contract to the John Inglis Company of Toronto.

"Mr. Hepburn has made it quite clear that if he has his way Ontario will not diminish its powers in any way," he said. "But I believe exactly the opposite. The ideal and purpose we should work for is a strongly united Canada, cutting down any unnecessary power of the provincial government. The issue will be whether we are one nation or nine."

Rural Co-operative Action Is Aim Of Farm Leaders

(Examiner Correspondence.)

LAKEFIELD, Feb. 14—"To promote community education with a view to rural co-operative action, is the task undertaken by eight young farm leaders, who, sponsored by the United Farmers of Ontario, have come to the Lakefield farm area to try to help the people on farms to better conditions in agriculture," Mrs. Leonard Harman, of King, Ont., told a good representation of farm folk of the community here Monday night, when she addressed a public meeting held in the Memorial Hall, Lakefield, under the auspices of the Junior and Senior Institutes.

Community Education

"We have come to try to help the people to promote community education, with a view to rural co-operative action. We are discussing farm organization with a view to bettering conditions in agriculture, for we believe that farm conditions affect the whole country."

"We believe in building farm organization on the sound basis of community education," Mrs. Harman continued.

A good representation of farmers from the Lakefield area were present at the meeting at which Miss Grace Gray of Britton, Ont., and Mrs. Harman were the speakers.

Study Groups

After brief talks outlining their ideals and their plans, the speakers divided the audience into half-hour study groups, when the problem of community education and the need for farm organization in this area was discussed. There were four groups and some of the problems discussed were over-production, faulty distribution and the problem of marketing.

Those present expressed a desire for community education, and thought it could be carried out. Mrs. Harman stated after the meeting, by a series of "Neighbor Nights," when a few neighbors would gather together for an evening to discuss farm problems. First there would be singing and games; then a short talk by a leader; and then study groups of six or seven persons each followed by a ten or fifteen-minute open forum, and a light lunch. "These neighbor nights are working out successfully in places such as in Kent and York Counties, Mrs. Harman stated.

"Though no definite plans have yet been laid for a neighbor night, there may be one in this area soon," Mrs. Harman said in conclusion.

Delicious refreshmets were served by the Institutes at the close of the meeting.

Alfred Hudson Faces Charge Of Manslaughter

A Grand Jury yesterday afternoon returned a true bill against Alfred Hudson of Lakefield, charged with manslaughter as a result of a railway crossing accident last October 25 in which Joseph Meagher, a yard foreman, was killed. The case against Hudson, only criminal case before Mr. Justice Ainslie Greene of Ottawa, will proceed today at the current assizes of the Supreme Court.

In his address to the grand jury Mr. Justice Greene expressed himself as being in favor of their continuance, described the protection afforded by them as "one of the precious rights of our judicial system."

He said he had learned of criticism that had been levelled at grand juries by persons and groups who claimed they were too expensive to maintain. He pointed out that recently by an amendment to the Ontario Statutes a grand jury could not inspect public institutions which had been previously inspected within six months by a grand jury, without the consent of the presiding judge. In the case of Peterborough County buildings such inspection had taken place within six months and His Lordship instructed the grand jury to dispense with their inspection unless members had some definite complaint in regard to one or more of them to lay before the court. He made exception of the jail, instructing them to examine it if they found time Monday but not to do so if it were going to cause their returning for another day.

F. D. Kerr, K.C., as senior member of the Peterborough Bar Association, welcomed Mr. Justice Greene to Peterborough. This is the first occasion on which His Lordship has presided in Peterborough since his appointment to the Supreme Court of Ontario two years ago. Mr. Kerr said that the name of Greene was a familiar one to the older members of the bar. He assured His Lordship of the co-operation of all members of the Peterborough bar in assisting the court to reach its conclusions by presenting cases after diligent study. In reply, Mr. Justice Greene said that judges of the Supreme Court appreciate the aid given them by counsel, pointed out that all solicitors are officers of the court.

Charles Shaw was elected foreman of the grand jury, and members were: Frank Bowness, H. Buck, John Coones, F. J. Hickey, H. Kemp, W. G. Ovens, Noel Rishor, G. Payne, J. W. Richmond, G. H. Roper, E. M. Turner and Lloyd Whittington.

Apart from minor purchases by mills and intermarket spreading between Chicago and Winnipeg, trading was quiet and routine. Absence of offerings contributed to the firm trend. Liverpool closed ¾ to ⅞d higher.

W. Hendren Is Reappointed Chief Constable

(By Staff Reporter.)

LAKEFIELD, Feb. 14.— Wallace G. Hendren was re-appointed chief constable and general factotum on five other jobs for another term by the Lakefied Council Monday night after applications from eleven persons had been received. The salary will be sixty dollars a month with a week's holidays and the duties do not include tax collecting, arrangements for which will be made at a later date.

Deliberations on the choice of a constable were brief. When the council went into committee to open tenders, Mr. Hendren was asked to withdraw and the clerk read eleven applications, ten from the village and one from Hall's Bridge, and after all had been read, Councillor D. B. Miler moved, seconded by Councillor Earle Edwards that the application of Wallace Hendren be accepted.

"Are there any other motions," asked Reeve Scriver. There wasn't, because Councilor Charlton was evidently quite willing to second the Miller motion if Edwards had not done so and this just left Councillor Graham who voted on the motion, making it unanimous.

"I can't see what good there was in calling for tenders," remarked the Reeve and added to Councillor Miller, "Do you mean Constable Hendren will work along the same plan as he did last year."

"Yes, so long as he is satisfactory to the council. If he fails to deliver, he can be discharged."

Fireworks Smothered.

"No doubt some of the Council feel that I have something against Wallace Hendren," said Reeve Scriver. He was lax in the discharge of his duties on different occasions and that was my only grievance. There was nothing personal in it. I wish to know at this time if this Council intends to tolerate any laxity this year."

"If he does not deliver he can be fired," answered Councillor Miller.

"Why were complaints about this laxity never discussed in council last year?" asked Councillor Graham.

"They were always hushed up,'" retorted the Reeve.

"I was advised that gasoline was stolen from the fire engine about the time Mrs. Scobell was drowned," said Councillor Miller.

"Yes, and the Fire Chief knew who stole the gasoline but there was never anything done about it."

At this point Reeve Scriver and Councillor Miller tangled in a bit of an argument on whose duty it had been to see that the guilty person or persons were brought to justice, but when the discussion was finished the gas stealing episode was still hanging in the air.

Many Jobs.

The work of the Chief Constable will include besides police work, assessor, works commissioner, weed inspector, sanitary inspector and caretaker of Memorial Hall. He will not do any tax collecting and final decision on this point was not disposed of, although it was suggested that the clerk do the work at an increase in salary of $5 a month.

Others who tendered for the job and their salary demands are as follows: Robert Chittick, $720 a year; William Hamblin, $720 a year; Taylor Crowe, $720 year plus uniform; Henry Harbison, $600 a year; Romeo Leonard, $720 a year; Arthur Payne, $365 a year; W. A. Nixon, $900 a year; Carson Webster, $900 a year; Bruce Garvey, $780 a year, and Wallace Hendren $720 a year.

Arthur Payne gave the council members a few chuckles when his application was read as follows: "I am of no use for anything, so I figure I would make a good cop. $1 a day is enough for al lthe work there is to do. I will promise to do as little as possible and have my hand in the ratepayer's pocket as far as any of you."

Cut In Salaries.

A by-lay was passed which reduced the Reeve's stipend each meeting from $4.50 to $3.00 and which sets forth that in future payment will be made only for the twelve regular meetings and the statutory meeting in December. The councillors will receive $3 for each regular meeting and the December meeting, a total of $39.

Previously the members of council received payment for every meeting throughout the year, including special and committee meetings. The by-law was given its final reading on motion of Miller and Graham.

Dog By-law Passed.

In future dog taxes will not be included in the general taxes but will be collected by the assessor as he makes his rounds. The ratepayers will have until May 31 to pay the tax. The license is $2 for a dog, $4 for a female and ten dollars for a kennel of registered dogs. The by-law sets forth also that a dog must not run after cars or bicycles nor annoy pedestrians, and if complaints are received the dog can be destroyed.

The tax roll for 1936 was accepted and taxes amounting to $17.92 owing to the municipality by Baptie Brothers was written off because the lands in question had reverted to the village at a tax sale. The 1936 tax roll shows $20.35 taxes unpaid while in 1937 there is $431.44 and in 1938 $2,445.10.

Canada Rich In Most Industries With Peterborough Area As Leader

(Examiner Correspondence.)

TRENT RIVER, Feb. 14.—Fishing was the first of all Canadian industries, said Mrs. James Longmuir, addressing the Women's Institute

When Cabot discovered North America in 1494 for the British Crown, he found its Atlantic coast already well known to the Basque fishing fleets, who had found on the Grand Banks the greatest fishing territory the world had ever known. Indeed from the early days to the present hour, the fishermen of Europe and America have vied with each other in catching cod fish. So Cod Fish Land was the first name Canada ever had. Canada ranks fourth in the fishing countries of the world.

The fur trade in Canada goes hand in hand with the fisheries. Man has of late revolutionized the fur industry in two ways. Firstly by dyeing the cheap furs such as muskrat and rabbit so that they resemble the aristocrats of the trade, thus putting furs within the reach of all. This industry is only in its infancy. Statistics tell us that lumbering was one of our basic industries. Certainly it was the basis of all our forefathers' activites in pioneering. More than a million square miles, still covered with forest, form a wonderful and perpetual heritage if preserved.

The manufacture of artificial silk is an important industry made possible by the output of rayon factories and is largely utilized by the textile industries of Canada.

Although this is the age of electricity, coal and steam and wood remains as the basis of our civilization. Few people stop to think that a tree which took three hundred years to grow, may be burned or cut down in a few minutes and with a modern world demanding more wood, if we do not call a halt to waste we may yet face a woodless world.

Agriculture Leads.

We need hardly be told that agriculture is the most important of all industries. It has been said the farmer, who creates a crop where none has been before, is economically the world's best man. For years Canada has been called "the granary of the world, exporting more wheat than any other country in the world; the hay crop is equally as valuable. The growing and disposal of oats, barley and rye is also very important, and potatoes are grown in every country in the world. The raising of horses, sheep and swine is also very profitable and the dairy industry and the raising of beef cattle are of the very highest importance. We find Canadians very close to the land, and Canada, above all, a farming country.

Mining bulks large in the picture of Canada to-day. The ore from Blairton mine was handled under extraordinary difficulties: It was carried by rail to Trent Bridge, thence by boat to Harwood, then by rail to Cobourg, whence it was conveyed across Lake Ontario to Rochester and thence to Pittsburg to the smelters. At the present time a gold mine is operating at Cordova. The best talc mines in the world is flourishing in Madoc township. Radium, that rarest of minerals, is found in Haliburton and refined in Port Hope; also at Deloro, arsenic and arsenate of lead are produced in wonderful quantities to kill our potato bugs. Since every known mineral is found in Canada, who may dare to foretell the future?

It has been said that the twentieth century is Canada's; if it be so, it will be largely due to the pioneer spirit of the prospector, who has unlocked the treasure vaults of the north, the last frontier of the white man's world. In some industries such as the production of automobiles, cottons, leather goods and rubber tiers, the raw materials are imported but Canadian raw materials are used in manufacturing the chief products such as paper, pulp, flour, lumber, butter, cheese and honey. Many of these products are manufactured at our doors, so near in fact that perhaps we do not appreciate their importance.

Any twelve year old girl in Peterborough county will tell us that Canada leads the world in nickel production. But how many know that some of the best canoes in the world are made in Peterborough; that honey produced within a mile of Westwood won highest honors in competition with the whole British Empire.

We search the world for romance and forget that in Otonabee two enterprising pioneers changed the face of all Canada by preserving and perpetuating the famous Red Fife wheat.

And last of all, there is the truly forgotten industry of home-making. In every street, in every Canadian city, town or village, on every side line and concession, men have built houses, and women have made homes. In these homes are being reared the next generation of Canadians. Canada's most important product.

The Stars Say . . .

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Wednesday, February 15.

Much progress and enterprise are presaged for this day, both by lunar and mutual aspects of major planets. There may be surprising developments, arising suddenly, probably born or new ideas, audacious initiative or the quest for novelty and high adventure. Strange exploits or experiments in connection with the promotion of important projects are possible, but at the same time stubborn obstacles, opposition, setbacks, and postponements may temporarily dishearten.

Those whose birthday it is will find themselves launched on a very active, enterprising and progressive year, with much of the unforeseen and surprising indicated. There may be radical change, with high adventure or romance calling for new fields and probably novel experiences. However, there will be obstruction and opposition seeming to block the wheels, this coming from elders or conservative minds.

A child born on this day may have original and unusual talents, with a spirit of high adventure and innovation, probably into strange or unique realms. It also may be deeply studious and profound.

Police Dig 8 Hours But Find No Bonds

HAMILTON, Ont., Feb. 14. — (C. P.). — Aided by a youth charged with theft of the securities, eight Provincial Police dug for hours yesterday along the sides of Hamilton Mountain in an unsuccessful search for some of the $80,000 worth of bonds stolen last October 7 from a Jordon tSation bank.

The youth, Victor Selenuk, 20, of Hamilton, was brought from Kingston Penitentiary where he was serving three years for theft from a bakery. Three other persons have been arrested on charges of receiving stolen goods.

Police said Selenuk told them he had hidden the bonds in a hole in a tree on Hamilton Mountain. He accompanied the offcers there and after poking into the tree said, "They're gone."

A search around the tree revealed no trace of them.

Recovery of $20,000 worth of the bonds was reported when George Tishen, Bernard Triester, and Kathleen Eluk were arrested here last Wednesday. Police said the bonds were thrown into the snow from the Eluk home.

Agriculture Class Tries Microphones

KEENE, Feb. 14. — The literary meeting of the Agriculture Course opened on Friday with everyone singing "O Canada." The boys of the class directed the program for the afternoon. Alan Eason gave an interesting talk on the pioneer days of Keene, showing lantern slides of Keene in the early days.

The boys who have been learning to talk over a microphone during the past few days made use of it by entertaining the audience with jokes. Yvonne Draper gave a vote of thanks to G. Shaw for his great interest in the teaching of mechanics and leading in singsong. Mr. Shaw has finished his term in Keene. The program came to a close with the singing of the National Anthem.

8,000 Calls Are Placed Daily At Campbellford

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CAMPBELLFORD, Feb. 14.—The story of the telephone was dramatically unfolded in talking pictures as a feature of the noon day luncheon of the Rotary Club on Monday.

Sixty-three years ago on March 10 Alexander Graham Bell gave his first demonstration of what was then known as the 'impractical toy,' recalled Rotarian C. B. Shaver of Peterboro, who itroduced the picture by giving some idea of the vast amount of work behind the scenes to make modern telephony possible.

There are an average of 8,000 calls a day placed in the Campbellford exchange which serves some 800 subscribers. And there are approximately six long distance calls placed each day in the same office through which it is possible to have telephone communicattion with thirty-eight million other subscribers in all parts of the world.

On June 3, 1875 Bell gave his final demonstration of the telephone which he established communication with an assistant situation two floors below in the same building. The device used at that time was closely associated with the telegraph key with which he had been previously experimenting. Shouting into the device it was possible to make out rather indistinctly the words which were spoken simultaneously into the diaphram.

The construction and ultimate use of the vacuum tube which plays a vital part in both radio and telephone communication was vividly shown with diagramatical drawings accompanying each step in its manufacture. The tube designed for broadcast purposes is water cooled and develops 100 kilomats of electrical energy.

When They're Careful

Traffic Inspector Edward Dunn of Toronto reports that in 41 days there was only one person killed in traffic accidents in Toronto, and that is the best record in ten years.

One might conclude that conditions had been ideal to bring about such a desirable showing. But that was not the case. Motoring conditions were about as bad as could be because the streets were covered with ice in many places.

And because the streets were bad the drivers of cars went about carefully. They were first of all trying to save themselves from trouble, and they were going slow. And because they were doing that they were increasing the margin of safety and thus a record was made.

And right there is the answer to the slaughter on streets or on highways—careful driving.

It's a Healthy Sign

The extent to which young farmers are meeting to discuss their own problems may not yet be fully grasped by people living in urban centres. The Examiner receives a number of letters in the course of a week and admittedly those which come from the rural section show a keener grasp of a given problem than do others. They reflect the experience and the conclusions of those who have a practical knowledge of their problem. If they have any attack to make then they know in which direction to bend their bows and direct their shafts.

It might also be somewhat of a revelation to urban dwellers to listen to some of the debates which go on through the winter months in the villages and rural sections. A short time ago two young men were in this office and the public library looking for material which had a bearing on the subject of decentralization of industry and population, and they were digging deep and well and long in search of information and statistics.

And all that in turn is good for farming because it means that the coming generation of farmers is going to be well informed on a broad range of facts which have a direct and an indirect bearing upon the practical working of a farm and the proper disposed of the farm's products.

These young people are living on farms and they have found that conditions are not right. They know they work hard enough and they know in many cases their acres produce well enough but they are also able to see that there is a too great gap between farm effort and farm results. That central point in each county, the office of the Agricultural Representative, is responsible for the condition we have now, where so many young people are asking questions and then putting themselves in the position where they can themselves supply the answers. And right there we see the hope for the future because the farmers are going to take their own problems in their own hands.

Bren Guns To Lipstick

Debating at Ottawa has been hard going for a good many days. It seems that all members of parliament suddenly knew all about the Bren gun. They had never seen one; they had never been shot by one, but what they knew about it was profound to the point of being impressive. It is well indeed there was no Bren gun in the chamber, particularly one loaded and ready for purposes of demonstration.

And then the debate changed for a day to something or other in connection with the purity of cosmetics and the dangers to which people would be exposed if the purity happened to be missing. Mrs. Black, the member from Yukon, was moved to participate in the debate when some of the members started talking about flappers and lipstick. She pulled up the blind for a moment and recalled that the girls had always been plastering something or other on their faces even in the days which have long since departed. Mrs. Black recalled the time when she used to use rice powder and corn starch for a little titivating (that word is taken from Hansard) and she admitted with frankness that if she desired to use a little lipstick today she would go ahead and use it.

Then the question bent off at an angle to include the protection of the consumer and some of the male members (what garrulous old boys they must be) wanted to know who was the ultimate consumer of lipstick, the lady who used it or the individual who afterward came in contact with it.

So it was that cosmetics, lipsticks and compacts paraded through our stately House of Commons, bringing a degree of peace and quiet which had not been known in the days and hours when the Bren gunners were cluttering up the premises with words, sentences and paragraphs which were too great to be flung out of anything with less capacity than a trench mortar.

Hardly a Coincidence

The war in Spain is not over and the royalists are going to keep on fighting. Until there is some form of government recognized there will be the present state of confusion. It will not be known to what extent Franco is going to come under the power of Italy or Germany, or to what extent he is going to name his own terms and method for the future.

Back of all this there is a question which has not been answered and probably never will be, but it remains a question just the same—to what extent is there an understanding between Japan and Germany and Italy?

In order to get the reason for that question it is well to look at the succession of events which have happened:

The beginning of the Italian invasion of Abyssinia was in 1935.

The outbreak of the Spanish civil war was in 1936.

The Japanese invasion of China has its start in 1937.

The German acquisition of Austria and part of Czechoslovakia was times for 1938.

It would be asking a great deal to suggest one should believe the sequence of all these movements had been merely a coincidence. It looks too much as though they were all part of a plan previously arranged and previously known to all concerned. That is why there is room for doubt as to what form of government is going to be adopted by or forced upon Spain. That question may well have been considered along with the other moves.

Our Unemployed Senators

The Canadian Senate took an adjournment on January 18 because there was nothing for it to do. When it gathers again today it will find that the enforced vacation for the best part of a month has not made any great change in the situation. It will be found there is nothing for the Senate to do.

The Senate does not become active until legislation is sent on to it from the House of Commons. In the Commons this session there has been no legislation passed because the members have been delivering addresses. They did that for more than two weeks on the address in reply to the speech from the throne, and then they had more days of it when the Bren gun contract was under review. And in all that there is not a day's work for the Senate. Not even an hour's.

Complaint of the Senate is that on toward the end of the session members of the Commons settle down to business and start getting measures ready faster than the Senators can deal with them. They fairly grind them out at a speed which leaves the Senate members puzzled by the pace.

We pay our Senators the same as we do members of the Commons, but so far we have had no value this session because the Commoners have been taken up with that great indoor pastime of making speeches.

Not a Fair Statement

George C. McCullagh, publisher of the Globe and Mail, distributed bouquets and censure to Canadian papers in his most recent radio address, and in one place made use of this phrase;

> "It might amaze the Canadian public to know that the Canadian newspaper industry is so out of touch with the country's life that its creature news service, the Canadian Press, is still restrained by one of its own rulings from carrying as news any speeches given over the radio."

The Globe and Mail is a member of the Canadian Press, and it has representation on the Board of Directors. The statement as presented by Mr. McCullagh, does not tell the case as it exists and gives an entirely wrong impression of the working of the Canadian Press and its services. The Canadian Press wire is in the office of the Examiner and it is here for the purpose of bringing to this paper news of the outside world. There are representatives in every news community in Canada; there are connections with the Canadian Press office in New York; there is cable connection with its London office and other European centres. The amount of news which is placed at the disposal of this service each day is very large, and for that reason it must be sorted and edited and cut in order to bring it within the carrying capacity of the wire. The instrument in this office operates from 6.30 in the morning until 3 in the afternoon, by which time it is 8 in the evening in the London office, and during that period the operation is continuous.

The pressure on that wire is why this paper, and all other papers whose views have been expressed at annual meetings of the Canadian Press, object to having the service cluttered up with long radio addresses. If the Examiner were desirous of listening to a radio address and publishing much or little of it there would be nothing to prevent it. We could do what we liked about it, but this paper would be one of the first to complain if it found its wire service carrying in thousands of words of a radio address which it did not consider of first-class news value. The Canadian Press carried the broadcast addresses of Hitler, Chamberlain, Roosevelt, because they had news value and for no other reason.

If one were to turn it in the other direction it would be found that the Canadian Press has for years made a gift of its news services to broadcasting in Canada, and if it had not been for this service there would have been little if any news on the radio because radio as such maintains only a limited news gathering service, and in this country virtually none at all.

The Ski Is Here To Stay

People in Peterborough are becoming familiar with ski jumping. The tower which stands on the hill at Nassau is there at all times for folk to gaze at, and at all times it looks tall and rather forbidding. The individual who knows nothing about skis would say "it is too high," but it grew a matter of ten feet before the provincial meet.

For skiing generally this is an ideal district on account of its hills. There are gentle ones for beginners and more formidable ones for them as they progress. The ski was not made as a means of sport in the first place. It probably existed 40 or 45 centuries ago in lands of much snow and where people moved in great numbers. In the cross-county race at Peterborough Bill Cook of Toronto was the winner, and can make speed something like a jack rabbit. A native of Finland, it is very likely that he had skis put under his feet shortly after he learned how to walk.

Jumping is a more recent innovation and it is highly spectacular. At the event in Nassau there were two jumps of 131 feet, but these were not made by the ultimate winners because the jumpers fell. The speed at which a ski jumper travels will vary according to the steepness of the hill or slide, and he may be going any place between 60 and 110 miles per hour. Records have been kept in recent years of contests the world over, and the longest jump known was that of Reider Anderson at Plancia, in Yugoslavia, the distance being 311.60 feet. A distance such as that would be possible on account of the greater elevation when compared with the slide at Nassau.

Already one sees evidence that the jumping is in the juvenile stage of development in this city. There are several moderate hills where the boys have carefully erected a "take-off" and there they jump and there they tumble, doing themselves no harm. When the young folk take up the idea it means that the ski is here to stay.

NOTE AND COMMENT

When we read of people holding a theatre party in these days, is it just another way of saying they went to the movies?

At the World's Fair in New York there will be an exhibition of paintings said to be worth $30,000,000. That price may be based on the present standing of oil stocks.

The man who fired the first shot on the western front in the World War has died in England. The thing he did soon became a habit which lasted for four years or more.

The claim is made that loyalists in Spain are going to keep on fighting until they are assured of "lasting peace," and in that process we are certain many of them will find it.

The Association of Northern Ontario Municipalities listened to the suggestion that Northern Ontario secede from the rest of the province. And that would call for the setting up of yet another government in this land so we simply can't warm up to the idea.

Another party of Canadians from the Spanish war is due to arrive soon. Some of them are wounded and few of them have any work in sight and small resources to see them through. They can't all go on lecture tours. If they apply for relief officials are not likely to be impressed by the fact that they have been fighting in Spain.

COUSIN EZRA

(By A.R.K.)

¶ My Cousin Ezra has a flare for shoving in both here and there, wherever people meet; if they are starting something new, discussing what they better do, then Ezra finds a seat.

¶ He likes to be an officer, be in the centre of the stir, where he can say a word; not many meetings that I know, or places where I ever go, but Ezra's voice is heard.

¶ If rebels started up a band, then he would want to lend a hand, with every good intent; he'd tell them just the things to do, and when they got the meeting through, he'd be the president.

¶ Tax payers voted for a strike, in paying toll they'd drive a spike, and Ezra too was there; before the meeting got begun, the first thing that was up and done, put Ezra in the chair.

¶ They named committees too that night, for they would have to wage a fight, 'twould be a major clash; just so they wouldn't go to seed, providing things they'd surely need, they'd have to have some cash.

¶ Some man began to start a list, he had the paper in his fist, hit Ezra for a bone; but Ezra took a coughing spell, and said he wasn't feeling well — and had to hurry home.

Lipstick Gets Into Debates!

From Parliamentary Debates

Mr. LANDERYOU: Does the minister think it is better for the consumer to be deceived or misled as to strength or quality, or deceived or misled as to the actual value of the article he is buying? Which does he think is the more dishonest proceeding?

Mr. LOWER: Frankly I would not judge as between standards of morality or honesty. My hon. friend may have standards which differ entirely from mine. My standards might not fit the peculiar puritan mentality of my hon. friend, and his—perhaps—more narrow ones might not fit my wider views of morality and honesty.

Mr. LANDERYOU: That is not what I meant. Why not give this protection as regards both phases? I am not going to say which we should preferentially protect. But here is the point. Many people in Canada to-day have hardly enough money to buy necessary food, clothing and shelter, to say nothing of drugs and other preparations; nevertheless they do it. Millions of dollars are spent on cosmetics by flappers and others.

Mr. MARTIN: Will the hon. member permit a question? What does "flapper" mean?

Mr. LANDERYOU: It is a term which has been given to young girls who use cosmetics and articles of that kind. Not being as expert in these matters as is my hon. friend, it is rather difficult for me to tell him.

Mr. MARTIN: I thank the hon. member for his information.

Mr. MacNICOL: They are usually called "chickens," are they not, Mr. Chairman.

Mrs. BLACK: With all due respect to the minister and to the hon. member who has just spoken, I think I may be allowed to say that I know as much about cosmetics as my man here. I use lipstick when I like it; I do not care how much it weighs, or how little. The hon. member has spoken of flappers and of young people. The girls of to-day, and the same applied even to those of my day, from the time they are old enough to know anything about titivating, want a little powder. In my day we used rice powder, or even corn starch. To-day the girls want a pretty compact; and if I like a compact I do not think about what I am going to get inside of it. Let me give hon. members a practical demonstration. I open my bag, I take out my compact, and I use it as much for the show and the beauty of it as for what it contains. While unfortunately I am not a flapper, I believe the minister can protect us by seeing that we do not use poison,—

Mr. POWER: That is it.

Mrs. BLACK: —as we would if we used preparations containing arsenical ingredients.

An hon. MEMBER: That is the idea of the bill.

Mrs. BLACK: Finally, after giving an example of what is fairly good, I will leave the matter in the hands of the minister.

Mr. LAPOINTE (Quebec East): That is a pretty nice box, too.

Mr. LANDERYOU: This is not a question of a difference of opinion about the morals of the business; my contention simply is that we should give the consumers protection as regards price. I again ask the minister to consider the advisability of protecting people against price exploitation. I do not think such action would necessitate the establishment of just prices for sausages or anything else except the items under discussion. Let manufacturers be forced to place on the carton the actual cost of the ingredients.

Mr. WALSH: The hon. member who last spoke used the term "consumer". I am at a loss to understand to whom he refers—whether it be the person who purchases the article and applies it to her face, or the person who might otherwise come in contact with it.

BOOTLEG NAZISM.

Speaking in Winnipeg recently before a gathering to celebrate the anniversary of Hitler's rise to power, Wilhelm Rodde, German consul for Western Canada, is reported to have spoken as follows:

> "Our Fuehrer has expressed himself that national socialism is a purely German matter and not an article for export."

An admirable maxim but one which hardly holds up in the face of the pro-Nazi propaganda published in Winnipeg by the Deutsche Zeitung fuer Canada, financed in part by Mr. Rodde's predecessor, Dr. Seelheim, the principal shareholder.

"Not for export" forsooth. And yet the Zeitung peddles the best Goebbels-Streicher line of anti-Jewish and ant'-British propaganda right here in Canada. If this stuff is not for export, then those behind the Zeitung are no mean bootleggers.—Winnipeg Tribune.

FATAL FRIENDSHIP.

SENATOR Meighen has taken the right attitude because it is in the interest of security. The Prime Minister and Opposition Leader are destroying national security by placing the ballot box above other considerations. They are waiting to see which way the cat jumps, and doing nothing to prevent it from jumping the wrong way. Manifestly, they are out of touch with popular sentiment and out of step with realities. Otherwise they would not let democracy down by failing to warn the totalitarian countries they would have to reckon with the last Canadian man and the last dollar by involving Great Britain in war. When it has become obvious that Italy and Germany fear only the strength of the democracies, we still pretend it does not concern us. Fatal leadership! — (Toronto Globe and Mail)

Letters To The Editor

Correspondents Discuss Various Topics

TAXATION

Editor Examiner:

Sir,—A copy of the letter in The Examiner signed "Reader", and dated January 27, relating to the suggested change in Peterborough's system of municipal taxation, has reached me here. It is another indication of the interest the subject has aroused.

"Reader" refers to the proposed change as "Single Tax", which, he states, "was all the rage 40 odd years ago and was even criticized by the Pope, so much attention did it attract."

It is so far different from the Single Tax—as I explained in my addresses on this subject—that there is virtually no comparison. The Single Tax proposed to abolish all taxes, national, provincial and municipal and to replace them by one tax on land values. All tariff, excise and sales taxes, all automobile, gasoline and inheritance taxes, would have been wiped out. It was that proposal—or certain features of it — which the Pope criticized. In spite of what "Reader" intimates to the contrary, that system of taxation has never been tried anywhere and apparently never will be. The system of taxation I described has been in force for over 30 years in Australia and New Zealand—and with marked success—and for almost equally long in western Canada and in Pittsburg and elsewhere in the United States. In all three countries it has been given the enthusiastic support of Catholics and Protestants alike. It proposes merely to change the incidence of municipal taxation by removing taxes from buildings and adding them to land values. Such a proposal has about the same relationship to the Single Tax as a daisy has to a field of hay.

"Reader" says that a tax on land values (and, presumably, the abolition of taxes on buildings) promotes overbuilding and lowers rents. Fine. There is nothing would do Peterborough more good, during the next few years, than a real boom in building activities. It would create work for our unemployed, increase sales for the products of our manufacturers and merchants, reduce our relief costs by lowering rents to our merchants and others, would reduce the cost of goods, of doing business and of living. Who would object to such results? That is exactly what has happened in the cities which have tried this system and which I mention in my addresses. That is why they favor it. And possibility of "over-building is automatically met by the fact that building operations automatically cease, under that system, as under our present system, as soon as it becomes unprofitable to erect more buildings. We now have that condition in Peterborough. This is because of our excessive taxation on buildings. We can remedy it by removing the taxation from buildings and adding it to land values.

"Reader" says: "People do not hold lands vacant for a rise nowadays." Of course they don't. We have taxed buildings so heavily it is unprofitable to build and, therefore, there is no demand for land. But, let people know that if they erect a house, or store, or factory, they will not be taxed on it and they will commence looking for land on which to erect modern, up-to-date buildings to replace the old ramshackle buildings that so disfigure the main business sections of Peterborough.

Before returning to Peterborough I expect to visit Pittsburg and Scranton, Pa., two cities which have been under a measure of this proposed new system of taxation for 25 years and to have more to say about them later.

Sincerely yours,
H. B. COWAN.

THE ADOPTION OF CHILDREN

Editor Examiner:

Sir,—"Adopt" is defined as "To take into one's family and treat as one's own child" and yet with all too much frequency we see people adopting children and children being adopted with less care and knowledge on the part of the adoptive parents than the buying and selling of stocks.

Two sections of the Maternity Boarding Home Act read as follows:

"No child under three years old, whether an inmate of such house (Maternity boarding home or Infant's home) or born therein or brought thereto or otherwise shall be given out for adoption except by and with the consent of a Children's Aid Society or other duly incorporated benevolent or charitable institution or of the Superintendent of Neglected and Dependent children under such rules and regulations in that behalf as may be approved of by the lieutenant-governor in Council."

"No person registered under this Act shall advertise that he will adopt a child or children or hold out inducements to parents to part with their offspring and when any such child is transferred by his parents or is given out for adoption to other persons such transfer shall be with the knowledge and consent of the agent or Secretary of the Children's Aid Society or the Superintendent of Neglected and Dependent children."

Unfortunately, either through ignorance of this law or disregard of it children are placed without the sanction or even knowledge of the local Children's Aid Society. If children were not placed without the approval of that Society, then the possibility of children being placed in unsuitable homes would be minimized. It is to be recognized however, that even the best investigation might lead to wrong placement but, as previously stated, the possibility of this would be minimized.

What is the advantage of such procedure to the adopting parents? Every time some one says he would not adopt a child because Mr. A did and his child was a failure, it would be interesting to find out why the child was a failure. Was Mr. A capable of giving a child intelligent care and training? What did Mr. A know about the child and his parents and even its grandparents? What handicaps were there that the child might inherit, such as mental or physical disease? Nothing but the fullest knowledge of the child should satisfy the adopting parents and such information a Children's Aid Society should be able to give.

One other essential is the assurance that the parent or parents of this child has signed the proper form giving his or her consent to the adoption. It is with great surprise and considerable consternation to the adopting parents that at the end of the two year probation period, the recommendation has to be delayed because the necessary papers have not been signed and the parent or parents cannot be located or are not willing to sign the papers. The adopting parents are also faced with the possibility that the parent or parents of the child may claim the child if this protection has not been provided.

As the Children's Aid Society is asked for its recommendation before adoption papers are completed it would seem more intelligent to have the approval of the Society before a child goes into the home. This would prevent some of the unhappiness and misunderstandings which occur when it is felt necessary to recommend against adoption.

Because children have been placed in unsuitable homes, because children unsuitable for adoption have found their way into excellent adoptive homes, because it is the lives of adopting parents and of a child which are at stake, it is the hope that the whole question of adoption will receive the consideration to which it is entitled.

Your local Children's Aid Society is, at all times, prepared to be of any service which it can in this all important question and asks for the co-operation of all who either know of people interested in adopting children or of children suitable for adoption.

INTERESTED.

• A Man Finds His Hat Expensive

EXCEPT for the types of hats known as "exclusive models" or "creations," men usually pay as much or more for their hats as women do. In any event the first cost is also the last for a woman's hat. She doesn't have to park it somewhere when she goes to lunch remarks the Stratford Beacon-Herald. In fact, if she took it off she would be regarded as a bit queer. Many hotels and restaurants have racks or stands whereon a man customer may deposit his hat while he eats, but to the man of substance, who has to maintain a certain status, or who ordinarily patronizes the class of dining-room where hats have to be "checked," his hat cost far more in the long run than almost any woman's hat does.

A New York businessman, who lunches every day at a place where he meets business associates, complains that the hat for which he pays $7.50, comes to over $80 in the course of a year simply through having to leave it in the hat-check department every day at 25 cents a time. A casual visitor may escape with a dime, but the regular patron's hat is given the once-over with a brush, whether it needs it or not, he is called by name and given a smiling exchange of words—and such service calls for a quarter. And the sad part is that very often the restaurant owner or a concessionaire gets the money.

Tipping can never be abolished, yet it is badly arranged. If a man patronizes a dining room it becomes a sheer "racket" to charge him extra to put his hat out of the way while he eats, especially as at that type of place the cost of the meal is invariably high anyway. The waiter who brings the food and the waiter who brings a drink have to be tipped also. That is supposed to be for services rendered, but it is a comparatively small service. The waiter merely carries the food or drink from a counter to a table; to be logical, if a tip is for service it ought to go to the cook who prepared the food or the man who made the drink. What tipping amounts to is to make up for the low wages the proprietor pays his hired help. If tips are paid for carrying something from a counter to a table, why not tip the clerk who sells hats, ties or shirts, in the course of which he probably disarrays a neatly stacked display and has to straighten it out again after each customer? It is not done because proprietors pay wages without contemplating the payment of tips.

The only thing that may be said in Justification of tipping waiters is that if the custom were withdrawn, the boss would have to pay higher wages and increase his prices.

A Bible Message For Today . . . .

I cried unto the Lord with my voice; with my voice unto the Lord did I make my supplication. When my spirit was overwhelmed within me, then thou knewest my path. In the way wherein I walked have they privily laid a snare for me.

I looked on my right hand, and beheld, but there was no man that would know me; refuge failed me; no man cared for my soul. I cried unto thee, O Lord: I said, Thou art my refuge and my portion in the land of the living. . . . . Bring my soul out of prison, that I may praise thy name: the righteous shall compass me about; for thou shalt deal bountifully with me.—Psalms cxlii, 1, 3-5, 7.

QUAINT SENATE OATH.

Ye shall be true and faithful, and truth ye shall bear to Our Sovereign Lord King George by the Grace of God, of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, and of the British Dominions beyond the Seas, King and to His Heirs and Successors; Ye shall nothing know that shall be prejudicial to His Highness, the Crown, Estate, and Dignity Royal, but that you shall resist it to your power, and with all speed you shall advertise His Excellency the Governor General thereof, or at least some of His Council, in such wise so the same may come to His knowledge. Ye shall also well and truly serve His Highness in the Office of Clerk of the Senate of Canada, to attend upon the Senate of this Dominion, making true entries and records of the things done and passed in the same. Ye shall keep secret all such matters as shall be treated in the said Senate and not disclose the same before they shall be published, but to such as they ought to be disclosed unto; and generally Ye shall well and truly do and execute all things belonging to you or to be done appertaining to the Office of Clerk of the said Senate. As God you help.

SECESSION FOLLY.

MR. HOUDE has a political reputation which is not all it might be. But he surely deserves the gratitude of the people of Canada for carrying the arguments of the destructionists to their logical and absurd conclusion. Mr. Duplessis and Mr. Hepburn would hardly remain unmoved by the spectacle of Montreal and Toronto seceding from Quebec and Ontario. Yet they talk lightly of casting off their own ties with the Dominion.

The Houde statement is not as funny as it seems. Once secession starts it is hard to see how it could be limited. Perhaps it is about time we Canadians realized we are all in the same boat and started to do something about putting the ship of state in condition for a strenuous sea voyage instead of building a multitude of little rafts for ourselves, which would be swamped by the first real wave.—London Free Press.

Hitler Proposes Compromise In Jew Tangle

LONDON, Feb. 14—(AP)—George Rublee, director of the inter-governmental refugee committee, placed his resignation from that position and Chancellor Hitler's promise of a conditional truce with the Jews before the committee today.

The resignation was accepted, it is understood, and a new director appointed.

Mr. Rublee, an American, informed the committee he told President Roosevelt originally he could work only temporarily at the refugee office. His stay in London was extended because German government officials delayed receiving him about proposals for the emigration of German Jews.

The committee met this morning and studied the Hitler refugee plan which was understood to stipulate:

1. Jews would be permitted to return to their trade and industrial jobs from which they were ousted, until an emigration scheme is accepted or rejected by the committee.

2. Young, active Jews—estimated to number 150,000 of the nearly 700,000 Jews in Germany—would be given permission to emigrate provided they would arrange later to finance the emigration of parents and other relatives.

3. Older Jews would be guaranteed against further Nazi anti-Jewish legislation while the emigration scheme is in operation.

4. A trust fund would be created out of Jewish property in Germany on which emigrating Jews would be able to draw for passage and equipment and machinery needed in countries to which they were going.

The greatest barrier to acceptance of the plan was said to be the German government's failure to guarantee a supply of foreign currency for emigrating Jews. The suggestion was heard that the governments represented on the committee might float a loan large enough to pay most of the expenses of transporting and resettling refugees.

Bonarlaw Store Looted Again

(Examiner Correspondence.)

TWEED, Feb. 14.—Robbers entered Barlow's general store at Bonarlaw and stole merchandise to the value of over $100.00 over the week-end.

The store had been securely locked by Mr. Barlow on Saturday night, but upon opening the building for business on Monday morning, the robbery was discovered. Entrance was gained through a rear window.

Sweaters, flashlights, cigarettes, shoes and other articles of wearing apparel were stolen. Provincial Constable A. Dymond, investigated.

Store Threatened.

The services of a few firemen were required nearly all day Sunday, to watch for flames, which threatened to break out into a serious blaze in Rath's hardware store. Fire broke out between the ceiling and floor where the furnace pipes entered on the second floor of the store. However the firemen were successful in preventing the fire from spreading and remained on the scene to prevent any serious outbreak, as the building is situated in a block containing the principal buildings of the village, including the post office, Tweed News building, theatre, Bank of Montreal, and A. J. Maynes' grocery store, which buildings are joined together as one, which would have made it practically impossible to quell the blaze should it have occurred.

Millbrook School Open House Is Big Success

(Examiner Correspondence.)

MILLBROOK, Feb. 14.—The staff and pupils of the Millbrook Continuation school held "open house" for the parents and friends on Friday afternoon, for the second consecutive year, about sixty accepting the invitation to visit the class rooms and acquaint themselves with the regular study periods, and other features of interest.

The event was arranged in connection with the province-wide "Education Week" and all guests were greeted at the entrance doors by a reception committee of two boys and two girls, who were changed hourly as classes were called and other pupils were free for the pleasant duty.

Guests signed the register at the hall table and then visited the various class rooms, where the regular teaching periods were in progress. Miss Morgan's subjects included science, history, composition, and art; to Grades 10 and 9; Miss Buckingham's: geometry, history, algebra, and English literature; Mr. Ziegler's: English, French to Grade 9 and Form 4, and literature to Form 10. The art work was found particularly interesting, a wall paper cleverly depicting the complete story of "Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs" attracting especial attention. The soap carving, and designs for stained glass windows also brought many interested and appreciative spectators, beauty and symmetry being oustanding features.

Program Enjoyed

The program which closed the afternoon's survey, was presented by Group 3 of the Literary Society, under the leadership of Elaine Argue, with the president, Ken Kidd in the chair. Marjorie McDowell presided at the piano, and following a sing-song, a Dutch dance, in costume, was given by Mary Armstrong, Dorothy Sisco, Bernice Richards, Elaine Argue, Ruth Whittington, Kathryn Elson, Loretta Graham, Jean Gillies; the dance closed with the song, "In a Little Dutch Kindergarten."

Tom Belch gave a reading, "Old Pal, King," and a very pretty minuet was danced by Mary Whittington, Loretta Graham, Jean Gillies, Elaine Argue, with the song, "The Second Minuet," as the finale. And old-fashioned melodrama completed the program, and the school principal, Miss Flora E. Morgan, addressed the gathering, extending a warm welcome, and urging among other things, that the parents should form a "Home and School Association," and pointing out the many advantages such an organization always brings both to the school, the teaching staff, and to those closely interested in the problems and educational welfare of the pupils as well.

A dainty lunch was served as the final item in the afternoon's program, girls of the Form II executive serving, and a pleasant social hour was enjoyed.

Warsaw A.Y.P.A. Play Is Given In Norwood

(Examiner Correspondence.)

NORWOOD, Feb. 14. — A splendid play, "For Pete's Sake," presented by the Anglican Young People of Warsaw under the auspices of the A.Y.P.A. of Norwood, was put on in the Town Hall on Friday evening, and was well attended.

The plot centres around the actions of Peter Pepperdine and Bill Bradshow, college students on summer vacation. In the absence of Miss Sarah Pepperdine, Peter's aunt, they rent her palatial home to Mrs. Clarkston, the mother of Peggy and Nadine, with whom Peter and Bill are in love.

Disguising themselves as servants, they scare Miss Pepperdine's negro cook into aiding them and blackmail Peter's tutor, Thorndyke Murglethorpe into dressing himself as a housemaid to complete a servants' staff.

When the two girls' prospective husbands came to dinner accompanied by Dean Murglethorpe, the uncle of Thorndyke, complications ensue, which results in the two conspirators and their accomplices becoming involved in a series of lies from which they only escape by means of one thundering final falsehood.

Thorndyke's jealous sweetheart complicates matters throughout by appearing at inopportune moments, but things are finally straightened out to everyone's satisfaction excepting the boy's two rivals.

OMEMEE TAKES A 10 TO 5 DISTRICT PUCK WIN OVER MILLBROOK

Finish Stronger To Earn Nod In Lively Tilt

Omemee Balck Hawks swooped down on Millbrook pucksters last evening on Omemee ice to cop a 10-5 District Hockey League intermediate decision. It was the final scheduled game between these squads, with a Peterborough-Omemee tilt next Monday being the last contest of the schedule, play-offs following.

A small crowd of fans witnessed a lively fray last night on a good sheet of ice. The first period was hot and close, ending 3-3. But the homesters swept into a commanding lead in the middle chukker and had no trouble holding their margin the last half of the game. The count was 8-4 for the Hawks going into the third chapter.

Kept Trying.

Though beaten, the Millbrook men made it a battle and never quit trying. Lack of condition slowed some of them up toward the end. Some good, open hockey — quite clean throughout—was dished up. Jamieson, the Parsons brothers and Weir went well for the winners; while Edmunds, Wainman, Watson and L. Mercer turned in a good effort for the losing squad. Both goalies botted out a bunch in the speedy number.

The teams:

Millbrook— Goal, Freelove; defence, Elliott and Edmunds; centre, Wainman; wings, Watson and L. Mercer; alternates, McCarthy, J. Mercer, Raper, Quantrill and Skitch.

Omemee— Goal, Fisher; defence, Prete and T. Parsons; centre, F. Parsons; wings, Weir and Jamieson; alternates, Brockley, Ellis, J. Williamson and A. Williamson. .. ....

Referee—Lou LeBarr.

Lakefield Wins O.J.H.A. Fray From Lindsay

(Examiner Correspondence.)

LAKEFIELD, Feb. 14—Lakefield's O.J.H.A. team copped a neat 5 to 3 victory form the Lindsay Juveniles here Monday evening, when they met for the second time in the O.J.H.A. schedule.

The local lads put up a nice game and looked considerably faster than their opposition, who are, on the whole, a heavier team than the Lakefielders. Windsor, in goal for Lakefield, went good, while Lindsay were handicapped by the absence of their regular goalie, and by an injury to Jack Connelly, whose ankle was severely bruised in the first canto.

Lakefield stepped into their opposition without delay and during the first five minutes of play, Bullock took a pass from E. Jewell and scored. Almost immediately Jack Macdonald of Lindsay found the net to tie up the count at one all. A penalty to Bullock left Lakefield short-handed, but the visitors failed to take advantage of it. Then Clark pushed in a goal to put the locals in the lead, and Pearson emphasized the point by taking a pass from Jewell and placing a third goal for the homesters, to end the period, Lakefield 3, Lindsay 1.

Early in the second session, penalties were meted out to Pearson (Lakefield), Warrian (Lindsay), to leave both teams short-handed. Then Jewell got hold of the puck and went right through for Lakefield's fourth goal, and shortly after took an assist from Birch on Lakefield's defence to get the homester's final tally. A penalty to Shearer, and a goal by G. Connolly, ended the period Lakefield 5, Lindsay 2.

In the third round, the locals failed to score. Lindsay fought hard in the third to break through the Lakefield defence for the three necessary goals, but thy had to be content with a lone tally, scored by Warrian.

Warrian, Jack Connolly and J. Macdonald showed up well for Lindsay, while for Lakefield Bullock, Jewell and Pearson went best, and received good support on every hand. The second forward line of Shearer, McFadden and Clark did some effective work also:

The teams:

Lakefield: Goal, Windsor; defence, Birch and Morris; centre, Mark; Bullock; wings, E. Jewell and Pearson; alternates, Kendall, Shearer, Clark and McFadden.

Lindsay: Goal, Pollitto; defence, Warrian and Sharp; centre, J. Connolly; wings, Jack Macdonald, Karrys; alternates, G. Connolly, Ellis, Nesbitt.

Digging Up the Local Dirt With the Odd Chuckle or Two

By CEC. PERDUE

Tonight at 8.30 in the Brock St. winter gardens, no pansies will be on exhibition. On account of it is the Oshawa juniors vs. the local Colts playing for keeps in an O.H.A. junior "B" number. Some fans don't get the hang of this series, but it's simply a double schedule of home and home games. Winner goes into playdowns and loser is finished. But a tie at the end o fthe short schedule would call for a saw-off struggle to declare a winner. All right, they've had two of their four frays now, each winning one. Next is here tonight, and they go back to Oshawa to wind it up Thursday. The Colts can't afford to lose here, as their chances then would be slimmer than a camel's chance of wiggling through a needle's eye, or nearly so! Colts go best on home ice.

* * * * * *

This tilt ought to draw lots of fans, as it may be the last time the Colts will be seen in action—but we expect not. And it'll be the last showing of the burly, speedy Oshawa outfit here this year. They have a good crew, but play rough hockey, and the Colts also are beginning now to show their true class and scrappy spirit. No less than 22 penalties drawn in the last game. A different referee tonight, and young Rochetta will be with the Colts. It'll be a fine fixture and rates a crowd.

* * * * * *

A Baseball Rumor

'Tis rumored around, and on pretty fair authority, that a ball meeting will be called shortly—if it hasn't already—in Oshawa with the idea of forming a four-team senior league for next summer. Two Toronto teams, the GM-men and the Petes, Kingston maybe too, if they're interested, but the Ponies may remain out of ball or might seek a berth in that Eastern Ontario setup in '39. Both Toronto clubs, Oshawa and the locals are all for the idea, but there are two possible hitches—the O.B.A. might not okay the setup, the T.A.B.A. bucking it to the Ontario body, and the Toronto teams might insist on the pooled-gate idea. Which Oshawa or the Petes wouldn't like. But we'll see what we'll see.

* * * * * *

A guy sends us a note stating that the championship hockey team of the DeLaval shop circuit this winter, going through its schedule without a loss, consisted of: Goal, Schweier; defence, Gordon and Gerard; centre, Dallin wings, Whitnall and Dorrington; subs, Lee and Francis. Strikes us there must be seven or eight lively shop leagues operating in Peterborough in the good old winter time.

* * * * * *

One victory away from the O.H.A. senior "B" group title, that's the Petes today. As they took a 3-1 nod over the Fliers last eve in Belleville, their second straight playoff win in two starts. Dunno definitely when or where the third tussle will be, but it most likely will be in Peterborough about Thursday night — though Wednesday is possible, too. There is an ice carnival at the Brock Friday and also one Thursday and Friday in Belleville, so quite a mixup has popped up between the clubs as to where and when the third tilt ought to be staged. Of course, it ought to be put on here before Friday, but just to straighten things out, Sec. Bill Hewitt of the O.H.A. was notified of the argument — and he invited officials of the Brock and the Quinte arenas to argue it out tonight at an O.H.A. sub-committee meeting in Toronto.

* * * * * *

The fans here rate the game, by all means, as they supported the senior squad all season and naturally don't want to see one of their playoff tilts taken elsewhere. And furthermore what would be the advantage in finishing in first place, if it didn't give a club first choice of ice for playoffs and then at least alternate tussles? But we expect the O.H.A. will order the Airmen here this week in the third of the three-in-five serial. Petes ought to take the Fliers in three straight. They've looked superior in their last two starts, both fast, exciting and clean contests. They had an edge last e'en, but had to be in top form to show it.

* * * * * *

A Mile A Minute

Yep, the Buckland boys were fairly flying and, in fact, both clubs turned on the heat in a dazzling number. Swell hockey, sweeping from end to end a mile a minute. Petes played another classy contest, with swift passing thrusts through their rivals' defence, and a sticking-plaster style of checking. All went fine, from the goalie out—and we especially liked the work of Red Creighton (in on three goals) and Bun Kingdon up front, Archie Weir and Lorne Gray on defence, and Ray Harding in the nets. Cook and Gibson were best for the losers, while Legris and McNeeley turned in a hard-working but fruitless effort. Fans were evenly divided in their support, but all yodelled plenty and thoroughly enjoyed the joust. The Petes feel sure they can end the series in the very near future.

* * * * * *

Let's see how the Church Puck Loop is shaping up. Tonight's tussle between George St. and Trinity Juveniles will be pushed back till Friday at seven, ice not being available this eve. Thursday, Knox and All Saints have a bantam bout at six, St. John's play St. Paul's Bantams at seven, Park St. meets Mark St. Juveniles at eight, and All Saints Juniors tangle with St. Paul's at nine. Knox Bantams meet up with George St. at seven Saturday night, while Monday sees George St. and Knox Bantams mixing at six and Murray St. Seniors playing All Saints at nine. So youse church pucksters and fans can run a scissors around this item and ya got the setup till Tuesday next.

CURLING

By HERB MARTIN

It looks to us as if this "after supper" Neil Trophy competition is going to make history—already 10 entries have been received. Last year we only had 14 altogether.

Our local quartette of curlers did very well at the Toronto Bonspiel yesterday, winning their first game in the Royal York and also their first in the Ryrie-Birks.

A number of our boys art taking in the Woodville bonspiel tomorrow.

Four local mixed rinks motored up to Lakefield on Saturday evening and enjoyed a pleasant game with the curlers from that town. It was the return engagement and while our "folks" were down five shots, yet all report a good time. At the conclusion of the games, light refreshments were served by the members of the Lakefield Curling Club.

TO PICK TEAM

MANCHESTER—(CP). — English women's field hockey territorial games between North, South, East, West and the Midlands are underway here with the final match February 18. Following it, the English team will be announced.

'Hi-Speeds' Oust Havelock Juniors 10-0

HAVELOCK, Feb. 14.—The fast-skating Belleville "Hi-Speeds" were declared wnners of the local Junior "C" O.H.A. grouping by virtue of their second straight victory over the Havelock juniors, last evening at the Norwood arena. The Belleville squad completely outclassed their opponents in the two-out-of-three series, winning by a 7-1 score at home last Friday, and handing them a 10-0 trimming here last night. The local team, entering the finals on a bye, lacked the timing and scoring punch which the visitors evidently acquired in the regular schedule.

After a slow first period, in which too frequent offsides marred the play, the game developed into a fairly brisk tussle. The match was not one-sided as the score might indicate, Havelock having a fair margin of the play throughout, but lacked the proper finish when in scoring positions. The Belleville boys clicked perfectly all evening, with two perfectly balanced forward combinations, a pair of efficient defensemen and a good goalie.

Belleville ran into some tough luck in the early part of the second frame when their regular goalie, Cook, received a bad cut over the eye, necessitating three stitches, and had to retire from the game. Pepper, spare forward, donned the pads and although never in the nets before, came through with a great performance, thoroughly deserving his shut-out.

Penalties were fairly evenly divided last night, five going to the losers and four to the winners, a decided contrast to the game at Belleville, in which 19 of the 20 penalties awarded were handed out to Havelock. Efficient handling of the game by Referee Jack Sabatino prevented a repetition of the other match, the players being held in check throughout.

Ethier was high scorer for the visiting squad, collecting five goals and one assist. Other goal-getters were Kiniski, 2; Goyer, 2; Robertson, and Clare. It would be rather hard to pick out any individual stars among the "Hi-Speeds" as all turned in an effective game.

Only 2 With Punch.

Reynolds and Lumsden were best among the Havelock line-up, the only players showing any power on the attack. McCutcheon, Pollock and Haggerty were good defensively but failed to show their usual scoring punch. Montgomery, local net guardian, played a swell game despite the large count, kicking out many a shot labelled for the corner. The Havelock boys seemed badly disorganized at all times, spoiling many chances by bad passing, and failing to cover up around thier own net.

The teams:

Belleville—Goal, Cooke, (Pepper); defence, Clare, Goyer; centre, Storms; wings, Ethier, McGuire; alternates, Robertson, May, Kiniski, Reid.

Havelock—Goal, Montgomery; defense, Aboud, Haggerty; centre, McCutcheon; wings, Pollock, Reynolds; alternates, McLaughlin, Bedore, Godin, Lumsden.

Referee—J. Sabatino, Lakefield.

Madoc Outfit Beaten 6-4 By Campbellford

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CAMPBELLFORD, Feb. 14. — Fans witnessed a fast game of hockey when Campbellford took their second victory, 6-4, on their home ice from the Madoc Mic-Macs in a T.V.L. series game last night. It was their second game the locals had come out from underneath to turn the tide in the final period on the MicMac outfit just when they seemed to have the game in the bag. The last time the Madoc sextette was entertained here, the Oilers upset their three goal lead by bouncing in five in the final stanza and they repeated the performance with a disputed goal giving an added touch.

Both teams played good hockey with plenty of action at both ends of the rink, giving the goal tenders a busy evening. Turner gave what was probably his best exhibition of the season picking up the disc from every angle, only spoiling his record by letting in two easy shots during the second period.

Took Lead Early.

The locals took the lead in the first when the visitors went scoreless, but lost it in the second as Madoc opened up collecting two easy ones. The supporters saw the best hockey of the evening during the third, when the score see-sawed back and forth until the local snipers turned on the fireworks to completely outplay the visitors adding five counters to their side of the score sheet.

During the ganging attacks Akey, flashy Madoc forward, was a constant threat to the Campbellford net and though he missed several chances on goal it was usually because Wilkes was right there to skate him into the corner or put him off balance before he could get into position to shoot. Hailstone co-starred for the visiting snipers and never missed an opportunity to rush in on Turner following a Campbellford attack. Equally good on the defence he combined with Hall to break up the rushes led by Phillips,, playmaker for the locals on their No. 1 forward line.

Great Third Period.

In the third the homesters really began clicking and managed to keep the enemy bottled up in their own territory during most of the inning snaring the disc every time the losers tried to shoot it into centre ice. Johnson broke away twice while the locals bored in hammer and tongs but he was successfully checked by Wilkes and D. Couch, whose work on the defence was an outstanding contribution towards the locals' victory. Robinson showed the way for the Oilers' second line, with D. Free and C. Couch working hard all evening, while Ed Donnan, who is West's latest recruit on the defence line, taking the place of Ken Oddie whose shoulder injury in Madoc put him out of the game for the balance of the season. Donan showed plenty of speed which, coupled with his checking ability, may see him go a long way in hockey. Charlie Couch, whose place on the forward line had sometimes been questioned, left no doubt of his ability after last night's encounter, during which he gave a display of speed and puck carrying that few suspected he had. Playing a shining game, he collected three goals and one assist for the winner in the final inning.

The hardest worker for the local contingent was Wib Blake, who was in on every play, despite the fact he was still suffering from an injury in the last Madoc game, and his rifle-like shots from every angle gave Hollingsworth plenty to do.

Syl Apps, Blake And Schriner Tie Gottselig

MONTREAL, Feb. 14 — (CP). — The race for individual scoring honors in the National Hockey League has turned into a real dogfight with four leaders battling it out in a bunch for the top spot held almost all season by Chicago's Johnny Gottselig.

Three contenders, the league's weekly statistics show last night, have moved up into a quadruple tie with the Chicagoan at 32 points apiece. Toe Blake of Montreal Canadiens, Syl Apps of Toronto Maple Leafs, and Sweeney Schriner of New York Americans are right up there with Gottselig.

Another Leaf—burly Red Horner—is still leading the penalty parade. He has spent 65 minutes in durance, against 56 for Rangers' Art Coulter.

PETES TAKE SECOND SENIOR PLAYOFF WIN OVER THE FLIERS

Ray Best Wins 1st Round In Toronto Major Upsets Feature 'Spiel With Only 38 of 118 Rinks Unbeaten

TORONTO, Feb. 14. — (CP).— Rinks which fell by the wayside early in last year's competition were left to battle among themselves in the Birks-Ellis-Ryrie trophy event at the 12th annual Ontario bonspiel today after the rapid defeat of last year's' major prize winners.

The most prominent 1938 competitors kept pace in the main event, the Royal York, as the 'spiel opened yesterday, but the Birks-Ellis-Ryrie was another matter and even the champion in the event went out quickly this time. Only 38 fours of 118 starters remained unbeaten today.

The holder of the Birks-Ellis-Ryrie, A. C. Gardiner of Sarnia, lost his chance to retain it in a 13-12 defeat at the hands of the Bobcaygeon rink of Dr. R. G. Scott.

Bert Hall's Kitchener stanemen, holders of the Royal York award the last two years, got by their first test narrowly and then lost 11-9 in the first round of the Birks to F. H. Sproule's Toronto High Park quartet.

Runner-up last winter for the grand aggregate award and the Royal York, Ed Young's Toronto Royal Canadains bowed 13-10 in the first round of the Birks to Ray P. Best of Peterborough in night play.

Another 1938 trophy holder to figure in a defeat was T. S. Graham, whose Torontos won the Seiberling. Vice-Skip for J. M. Rothschild, following the disbanding of his own rink, he shared the 17-8 beating G. Stronach's Toronto Granites gave the Toronto Club four in the Birks.

From the first round of the Royal York Trophy, winners branch into the Birks-Ellis-Ryrie and Seiberling and losers into the North American Life and Seagram.

Londoners Strong.

London fours showed strength in preliminary rounds. F. C. Wilson and G. Reddon survived in both the Birks-Ellis-Ryrie and Royal York. Night matches saw Wilson defeat A. W. Lang, Timmins, 10-8, and Reddon triumph 9-8 over R. Besse, Stayner. But Dr. J. A. Wright was eliminated in the main contest and also the North American Life.

Besides Hall's another Kitchener crew to mark up two victories was A. E. Dunker's, which gained a 13-12 decision over T. O. Loveless, Agincourt, in a night game.

Other Western Ontario fours to remain among those undefeated included Alex. Hayes' Sarnians. The Sarnia Imperials quarterback in the Ontario Rugby Football Union became an ice general to guide his men to an 11-9 victory over a Toronto rink.

Although W. A. Watson's Sarnia four lost in the Royal York, they administered an 11-10 defeat to T. E. Hawkins' Toronto Royal Canadians in a North American Life game that took an extra end.

Two other Western Ontario crews are undefeated, C. F. Rumsey's Meafords and H. Forbes' Forests. Both won handily in night engagements. Rinks that won in the North American Life after being put out of the main contest included J. F. Robinson, Guelph, F. N. Allan, Hamilton Thistles, D. E. Kennedy, Guelph, V. G. H. Phillips, Shelburne, and H. Walker, Chatsworth.

Northerners Step

Although all Northern Ontario quartets fumbled in yesterday's play, several continued in various events. J. Isherwood, Haileybury; A. Wilson, Timmins; A. M. Austin, Chapleau, and J. T. Gauthier are in the main event, though they lost in the Birks. E. F. Goddard, Temagimi and R. L. Graham, Little Current, though they lost in the main competition, won nightgames in the North American Life.

Two Kingston fours, H. A. Heagle's and W. J .Drysdale's, go on undefeated. Heagle beat G. H. Green, Locust Hill and Drysdale eliminated J. T. Gauthier, Timmins, in the Birks-Ellis-Ryrie. Two other Kingston rinks skipped by J. G. W. Sands and R. G. H. Travers, likewise continue in the North American Life.

Colts' Captain

SID CRAIG

When Oshawa and the Colts clash here tonight in an important O H A. junior "B" tilt, Capt. Sid Craig of the locals will probably be leading the local attack. The Colts need this contest.

Junior Puckists Are Here Tonight

Peterborough Colts clash with Oshawa juniors here tonight (Tuesday) at 8.30 o'clock in the Brock St. rink. It is the third game of their home-and-home schedule, each team being tied now with a win apiece. A victory for the locals tonight will give them a fine chance of copping the series, but a loss would put them on the spot—with just an outside chance of again sewing it up and forcing a deciding tilt. Fans who saw the rousing, rough struggle of these teams on local ice last week will realize what an exciting tussle is slated for here this evening. Both teams are playing for keeps, and they mix up good hockey with a hard-hitting style. It should draw a big crowd of junior puck followers.

Colts' lineup for the last game was: Goal, Cournyea; defence, Berwick and Parnell; centre, Wade; wings, Foster and McDonald; alternates, Williams, Craig, Pammett, Strickland and Curtin. The Colts may add young Joe Rochetta—classy forward—of the Monarchs to their roster for this fracas. The husky Oshawa outfit will be at full strength and rarin' to fight when the referee faces off the puck. They have a strong squad and will be more used to the local ice this time, so the homesters will have to hustle plenty and show their best hockey to yank out a win.

Rhythm For the Rug Cutters

J. Donald Budge, who can shake a tennis racquet at an opponent with justified temerity, is also some shakes when he gets in behind a set of drums. When he and Ellsworth Vines were in Miami during their current pro tennis tour, this picture was taken as Donald got in the groove and swung out some solid rhythm so the alligators could really live. Miss Florence Pritchard looks on . . . which should help. P.S. If some of the language used is not quite clear ask the nearest jitterbug for help.

Galento Able To Take Louis Punches Never Been Off Feet, He Admits

By Gayle Talbot
(Associated Press Sports Writer.)

MIAMI BEACH, Fla., Feb. 14 (AP)—The most amazing thing I've run into on this trip is the tremendous popular interest in Tony Galento. If one person asked me "Can that bum really fight?" there have been a hundred.

Around New York we had about decided that the country as a whole was fed up on reading about the Orange fat boy.

But it's no use. Through six or seven states the conversation almost invariably has come around to this: "So, you've seen this Tony Galento fight? Can he fight?"

I'll be doggoned if I know how good a fighter Galento is.

Tony is a good friend of mine. In fact, we were out on the hot beach together today arguing about whether he has a chance of beating Joe Louis.

I asked him for once to get serious and not give me that same line about I'll knock out dat bum.

"All right," he consented, "I'll tell you serious. I can take anything Joe Louis can hit me in that stomach. I got muscles in that stomach from when I was an iceman and I used to go running up two flights of steps with two 50-pound chunks of ice held up in my arms. Louis can't hurt me there. All I can say about him knockin' me out is that I never been knocked off my feet yet, much less knocked out.

Thinks Louis Afraid

"Now, you tell me whether Joe Louis can take this left of mine when I sink it in his belly like this. I say Louis is afraid of me, and I'll knock him out if they give me that ht next June."

Having got a fairly serious answer from Tony, I asked his manager, Joe Jacobs, what he honestly thought. I asked wasn't he afraid the big Negro would step around and open up a hundred old cuts in Tony's face and have him bleeding like a stuck hog within a few rounds.

"Sure," Joe agreed. "He might do it. But that's a chance we have to take. Personally, I think Tony would make him quit before that happened. I still s Louis can't take it, and I was in the other corner one night when he didn't take it, you know."

Jacobs referred, of course, to the night Max Schmeling hammered the present champion into the canvas. He claims he saw a look of abject fear in the Negro's eyes that night, and I think maybe he is sincere in believing that Galento can win the title if given the chance.

Remember When—

Heavyweight boxer Ernie Schaaf, after taking a merciless beating from giant Primo Carnera, died in hospital six years ago today. Twenty thousands fans yelled "Fake" four days previously as Schaaf collapsed in the 13th round of the 15-round fight, but the youthful boxer failed to regain consciousness.

Locals Outplay The Airmen To Earn 3-1 Decision In Fast, Clean Puck Contest

Taking their second straight senior "B" group playoff game in two starts last night, the Petes hooked on to the large end of a 3-1 score over Trenton Fliers in Belleville. Over a thousand fans saws a speedy, exciting fixture, with the Petes clearl yearning the nod. Third game will likely be in Peterborough Wednesday or Thursday.

Down by a 1-0 score in the first period, though outplaying the speedy Airmen, the Petes assumed a 3-1 lead in the second, and protected their margin in a close checking but heated scoreless third stanza. Play was exceptionally fast all through on a perfect sheet of ice, with little rough stuff shown, and the Petes always looked the better outfit.

Kingdon and Creighton starred on the attack for the Petes, with Gray and Weir shining on defence, and Harding brilliant in goal. The rest of the gang also turned in a bang-up performance, with a fast passing attack, close checking and smart all-around clean work. Cook was a standout for the Airmen both up front and on defence, while Legris and McNeely turned in a fine game, and Gibson went good in the losers' cage.

Fliers Score.

Play was quite fast all through the first period, with the Fliers looking good the first five minutes, but the Petes gradually assuming the edge as the period progressed. A Weir-Kingdon rush early came close to a tally and later the Petes gave Gibson several anxious moments. Todd was gated for tripping, and the Petes swarmed in dangerously, but they failed to counter. With all back, Cook pushed a hot one at Harding, and a bit later the Fliers scored, Legris banging in a wild pass from McNeeley as the latter and Harding were slashing at each other at the side of the Petes' net. Todd went off again for tripping and the Petes pressed hard, but to no avail and it was hot and fairly even at the finish.

The Buckland boys looked better all through the second and they rapped in three without a return. Lecompte got a penalty for tripping and Creighton scored in close from a face-off with a side step and hot shot. Gibson booted aside several till Tod returned. Cook broke loose to nearly tally with Hardy out of the net, but Tompkins dove across the ice to save a sure goal. The Fliers were then awarded a penalty shot, Harding blocking a drive by Johnston. Crowe pulled a neat rush and when Todd went off once more for holding the Petes swarmed in again. Coughlin got the finger for charging and the Petes got a penalty shot when Gibson hurled the puck ahead, but he stopped Tompkins' shot. Later Creighton took Weir's pass and broke away with the Fliers ganging up to score a nice one. The Airmen kept sending four and five up on the attack but the Petes held their own. Creighton checked a Flier and banged the puck over to Nichol who rode in fast to trick Gibson for the final score.

Not a Score.

Four Fliers ganged up for awhile in the third and finally five, but the Petes checked them effectively in a torid stanza with play fast and exciting, and the fans yelling. Harding was good on a flock of hot ones. Cook got a penalty for holding but the Petes could do nothing. Later McNeeley went off for tripping but again Gibson held them off. Cook nearly counted and later a Gray-Nichol rush on a break came close. It was highly exciting but the Petes checked their rivals tight right to the finish, with no more scoring.

The teams:

Petes— Goal, Harding; defence, Gray and Weir; centre, Kingdon; wings, Starr and Tompkins; subs, Creighton, Coughlin, Nichol, Crowe and McNulty.

Fliers — Goal, Gibson; defence, Oleskevis and Cook; centre, Lecompte; wings, Legris and McNeeley; subs, Baldwin, Johnston, Brackenbury, Todd and McNabb.

Referees—J. Smith and A. Armstrong.

Petes—Creighton (Weir) 10.30

Rural Libraries Are Revived By County Plan

Declaring that the situation in Ontario as regards rural libraries was bad and that the people of rural communities were, as a result, being deprived of the educational value of good literature, Angus Mowat, Inspector of Public Libraries for Ontario, in an address before the Peterborough Rotary Club at its regular weekly luncheon on Monday, described the work of the County Library Associations that have been formed in the province and expressed the belief that the movement offered the only visible means of dealing with the problem.

Mr. Mowat, who was introduced by Rotarian Rev. Dr. A. T. Barr, said that people were too much inclined to take library services for granted, just as they took their schools and police and fire departments for granted. He thought that was a mistake, stressing the part that libraries played in educational development. Education did not stop with the formal education in the school for afterward there was added the educational value of one's own experience, but something more was needed, i.e., the illumining and broadening brought about by closer contact with the minds of greater men than ourselves as reproduced in books.

Situation Bad.

Reviewing the library situation throughout the province, Mr. Mowat said that the people living in the cities and larger town with good library facilities did not realize how lucky they were. In the rural districts the small libraries were practicall dead for lack of support and inability to provide a constant supply of new books with the result that there was practically no circulation.

Mr. Mowat explained that there were 276 of these small libraries not supported by public funds, or in other words were privately owned, and he submitted that a privately-owned library was as much out of date as would be a privately owned police force or fire department. There was difficulty in rural municipalities in putting money by-laws through to finance public libraries, and as a result there was a danger that the people of rural Ontario would be deprived of all the benefit of good books reading. The newspaper, the radio, and the movies could not make up for such a loss, the speaker said.

Starts in Lambton.

It was through the enterprise of Miss Dorothy Carlisle, librarian of the Sarnia Public Library, that the County Library Association movement had been inaugurated in Lambton County. The speaker told how in the first year of this organization, twelve of the eighteen libraries in the county had gone in on a co-operative basis, each contributing $26, while the County Council donated $100, and the Provincial Government a similar amount. With this money a number of new books were purchased and divided up among the 12 libraries, with a redistribution every three months. As a result interest in the libraries had increased to such an extent that the following year the other six libraries came into the scheme and the county and provincial grants were doubled. The movement has progressed so that each library in the county had 210 new books coming in every three months.

Similar associations had now been formed in Middlesex, Elgin, and Oxford Counties, and Lennox and Addington and Waterloo were expected to swing into line, the speaker said, as he concluded with a plea for support for the movement.

President James Dutton expressed the thanks of the Rotarians to Mr. Mowat for his interesting address.

F. M. DelaFosse, local librarian, and W. C. Ackerman and A. E. Borland, members of the local Library Board, were guests at the luncheon.

Bren Contract

ernment to take the steps necessary to make it impossible for any person to profit from efforts to defend Canada. He promised his full support for any measure in that direction.

There was little personal criticism of Major J. E. Hahn, head of the John Inglis Company of Toronto which obtained the contract for 7,000 Bren guns from the Canadian government and a supplementary order for 5,000 guns from the British government.

Col. George Drew, Ontario Conservative leader, whose magazine article criticising the contract brought on the royal commission inquiry before Mr. Justice Davis, was accused of writing the article for purely political reasons.

Jean Francois Pouliot (Lib. Temiscouata) defended the government but had some bitter criticism of Col. R. J. Orde, judge advocate general in the department of national defence who, he said, had not paid proper attention to his duties.

Dr. Manion said that in his opinion the reason General L. P. LaFleche, Deputy Defence Minister, "acted so strangely in regard to Hahn is that he was being pushed forward by his Minister."

"The Minister denies that and I do not wish to misrepresent him, but it is the government of the day that is responsible — not even the Minister," the Conservative leader replied.

Just Confused The Issue.

Speeches of Liberal members had only tended to confuse the issue, Dr. Manion said. "The issue, in a sentence, is the whole method of buying munitions at a time when because of threats of dictatorships against democracy we in Canada are forced, at a cost of tens of millions of dollars, to arm in our own defence in order to maintain our freedom as a nation.

"Are we going to place our very life as a nation in jeopardy through politics, patronage and favoritism as in the Bren gun contract?

"Or are we going to rise above that low level and act as a united people in building up our defence of all kinds—doing it fairly, honestly, and sanely without profits so far as humanly possible?

"I say now, sir, let the Prime Minister rise to this challenge and I will stand beside him and back him completely in the noble work of not only declaring our high principles as Canadians in this regard at least, but of living up to those principles."

The Davis report "shows the gross irregularities that led up to consummation of this deal," Dr. Manian declared. He listed circumstances which he declared the report showed clearly.

Methods of giving the contract were unfair; Major Hahn, apparently unknown except to Hugh Plaxton (Lib., Toronto-Trinity), was shown "great favoritism; other industrialists much better equipped were given no opportunity to compete; Hahn was made, "by the Prime Minister," the representative of Canada in order to give him access to secret information from the British War Office.

Over Million Profit

Dr. Manion said Hahn and his "fellow promoters" were placed by the contract in a position to make more than $1,000,000 "out of stock for which they paid 50 cents a share, in addition to the profits of the contract itself."

Reading a clause in the contract requiring names and particulars of all employees on the Bren gun to have been submitted to a representative of the Defence department, which government spokesmen at once explained was placed there to preserve secrecy, Dr. Manion said it was "a political patronage clause to give the government opportunity to hire its own friends." He understood it was already operating in that way.

"There should be no profits whatsoever for anyone in the production of munitions to be used for the defence of our own country. Let the Prime Minister make any proposal he wishes to do away with such methods as the Davis report has laid before us, and we will unhesitatingly support him."

On the Opposition side the criticism had been fair and had been restricted to the contract and steps leading up to it "from the other side there has been practically no answers to argument except abuse," continued the Opposition leader.

The "worst speech" came from Defence Minister Mackenzie and the only argument came from the member from Vancouver-Burrard, G. G. McGeer, who was "the only one to adhere to the charges from this side."

The speech of Defence Minister Mackenzie was "made up of abuse, protestations of honesty" and of unparliamentary language.

Nothing Like It In 20 Sessions

He had been in parliament some 20 sessions, the Conservative leader said "and never have I heard anything approaching the minister's speech in unparliamentary language."

Liberal speakers had made use of such epithets as "bird of passage," and "Prussian mentality," and had spoken of "a sinister alliance" between the Conservatives and C.C.F. "I recall," Dr. Manion said, "when they were very glad to have an alliance with that same party"

Transport Minister Howe had called opposition members "blackguards," Dr. Manion said. "Those names were used by honorable gentlemen as a defence for this indefensible contract."

Fortunately, said Dr. Manion, some of Mr. MacKenzie's remarks had been expunged from Hansard against the rules of the House. It might be well that succeeding generations should not know that such words had been used in parliament. He thought better decorum should be maintained in the House than had prevailed in the past week.

Transport Minister Howe had referred to Karl Homuth (Con. Waterloo Sonth) as "a bird of passage." Mr. Howe had been in public life only a little over three years but Mr. Homuth had been serving in parliamentary halls for 12 years. Such a remark was uncalled for.

"I venture to say Mr. Homuth will be in parliament long after the Minister of Transport is out of it," he said.

"With what party?" asked a Liberal.

"Well, he is supporting our party now and I dare say he will continue," said Dr. Manion.

Lauds Quebec Liberals.

It was to the credit of the Liberal members from Quebec that only one (Ernest Bertrand of Montreal-Laurier) had attempted to raise the race cry and to interpret Conservative attacks on the contract as attacks on Major-General L. R. LaFleche, Deputy Minister of National Defence, because of his race.

There was no attack on General LaFleche. He had been appointed by the Conservative administration and had an admirable record. The government had to take responsibility for the contract.

Nearly every Liberal speaker had attacked Lieut.-Col. George Drew, Ontario Conservative leader, whose magazine article had started the controversy.

Col. Drew's article had already saved the government a sum estimated at $250,000 through a letter which altered the terms of the contract. Moreover the Drew article, whatever the result regarding the present contract, would make all governments in Canada more careful regarding future munitions contracts.

Dr. Manion said the prime minister was continually trying to avoid references to the fact he, as secretary of state for external affairs, had accredited Major Hahn as Canadian government representative at the war office.

Thinks King Ashamed

"If there is nothing wrong with this contract why is the prime minister continualy trying to get out from under. He has been up at least 15 times with useless quibbling trying to get out from under the fact he appointed Hahn as representative of the Canadian government. I think he is ashamed of it."

Another clause open to objection was one which provided no one could be employed in or permitted to enter the Inglis plant unless his name and address was furnished to an official designated by the department.

This was to preserve secrecy interjected Mr. McGeer.

"I say that is a political patronage clause," said Dr. Manion. "It is there so that only friends of the government could be employed and Toronto members tell me that is exactly what is happening. You can't get a job in the Hahn plant unless you are a Liberal."

If the contract were cancelled before delivery starts, according to the contract's provisions, Major Hahn would get $43,000, and if cancellation came later, he would get more. "Why should Hahn get anything if the contract is cancelled" Dr. Manion asked. "Why was that put in the contract? These clauses are sufficient to illustrate the preferred position in which Hahn was placed."

The debate had gone on for a week when two days would have been sufficient, said Labor Minister Rogers. The reason was Dr. Manion's decision to pre-judge the contract. The Conservative leader has asked for cancellation of a contract which had not been condemned by the royal commission and by implication opposed any further investigation.

Liberal members were just as anxious as any to have the fullest possible investigation. The government showed this desire by the prompt appointment of a royal commission following Col. Drew's article.

No Cause For Cancellation.

"Neither the report of the Commissioner nor anything said in this debate can be urged in justification for the cancellation of the contract," said Mr. Rogers. "The only basis for cancellation would be that it was tainted with fraud or that it was not a good contract."

Although the commisson had definitely found there was no fraud, Col. Drew had sought to create the impression there was fraud. He had not charged fraud in his magazine article because he knew he would expose himself to the law of libel but he had charged fraud before the Royal Commission, where he was protected by privilege and he had completely failed to prove fraud.

Those who suggested all munitions should be manufactured in government-owned plants were logical in that by such a method patronage would be avoided. But no person had suggested, in this instance, that it would have been wise or practical to accept the delay that would have been consequent to manufacture in government plants then non-existent.

Open tenders was the alternative to government manufacture and would completely rule out the possibility "of charges of patronage which would have been brought against this present contract," Mr. Rogers said. The method of inviting tenders from several industrial concerns did not exclude patronage but invited it. There was no time for calling tenders in this instance.

"I doubt if the Opposition leader would adhere to the view that, at this time in history, Canada would enter upon an exclusive policy of government manufacture of munitions," Mr. Rogers said. Other nations were unable to do it.

From the outset the Government had recognized the danger to democratic institutions if it permitted any suspicion to surround the operations of a Government department. Suspicions aroused by the Drew article, if not removed, would have undermined the usefulness of the Department of National Defence.

The "poison" of suspicion had done more harm to democracy than actual corruption or malfeasance in high office.

Out to Displace Rowe?

Malcolm McLean (Lib. Melfort) said Col. Drew's article had been prompted by the latter's desire to displace Earl Rowe (Con. Dufferin-Simcoe) as Ontario Conservative Leader. "He wanted to stir up some sensation," Mr. McLean said.

Dr. D. J. Hartigan (Lib. Cape Breton South) recalled the remark in the House last week of a member who criew "Another grafter" when Defence Minister Mackenzie mentioned the name of Hon. J. L. Ralston, chief counsel to the Davis Commission.

If returned soldiers in Canada were asked if they believed that statement, Dr. Hartigan said, a unanimous "no" would "roll from the Atlantic to the Pacific." He congratulated ex-service members of the House for their "cool-headedness and restraint" displayed when the remark was made. In many meetings in Nova Scotia such a remark would have brought "direct action" on the part of returned men, he said.

Mackenzie Indifferent?

Mr. Cahan in his remarks said the minister had seemed "utterly indifferent" to the negotiations preceding signing of the contract and he quoted evidence in this connection. The minister had never sought to comply with demands of the interdepartmental committee that contracts should be called. He had apparently "ignored" the policies of the prime minister and government to safeguard munitions contracts.

"It is this defiant dereliction of duty Mr. Justice Davis sought to bring clearly before the government and before parliament in his report," Mr. Cahan declared. He read from the report: "The facts are all in the evidence. It will be for those charged with responsibility of dealing with the facts, i.e. The government and parliament, to examine and study them and to take such action, if any, thereon as they see fit."

"It is clear that the commissioner, having heard and reflected upon all the evidence which was adduced by counsel, has definitely concluded that the present minister is not only incapable but is dinsqualified from administering his department even with the assistance of such a board (the proposed defence purchasing board). Therefore the commissioner advises that the board, if appointed, should report to the prime minister or the minister of finance."

Mr. Cahan was against "any such makeshift policy," and declared "the appointment of every such board is a blow to responsible government and a step in the direction of adoption of Fascist administration and government in this country."

"The real remedy," Mr. Cahan declared, is to ask the minister of national defence to resign forthwith and to appoint in his stead a minister who is competent to administer the affairs of that department.

"This, it seems to me, is the primary issue which the commissioner has presented to this government in the first place, and then, if the government fails of action, to the parliament of this country.

"The Prime Minister will not satisfy public opinion ,and I cannot believe he will fully satisfy his colleagues, until he has effectively dealt with a recalcitrant, defiant and incompetent minister.

"No unity in Canada is possible and no adequate (defence) preparation can be made unless the government as a whole and the Department of National Defence in particular, have the complete confidence of the people of our country."

Probe Not Justified.

There was no justification for the request that the government or parliament act now on a report that was to be considered by the Public Accounts committee, G. G. McGeer (Lib., Vancouver-Burrard) said.

Coming to defence of the minister, he quoted from evidence to show that Mr. Mackenzie had declared he had every confidence in his technical advisers who were arranging the contract, and in the interdepartmental committee appointed to pass on munitions contracts and which he was largely instrumental in creating.

Mr. McGeer read at length from exhibits placed before the commission in an effort to show the minister had consulted with his cabinet colleagues and kept the government informed of what was transpiring.

tax, the owner of a house assessed at $4,000 would have to pay $56 a year, or $1,680 for the thirty years, as a result of the assumption of the hospital expenditure.

Alderman Gordon also said that the new hospital was being planned for the requirements of a population of 65.000, although there were only 24,000 persons in the city, and 3,500 of them would be chargeable for the debentures. Residents of the county were not liable, nor were the residents of adjoining counties, many of whom came to Nicholls Hospital because of the reputation of the abilities and success of Peterborough doctors. Alderman Gordon contended that if $395,000 were provided by the people, the hospital should be practically under civic control. He also said that there was at present a margin of 15 to 20 per cent surplus beds at St. Joseph's Hospital, which should be taken into account in any consideration of Peterborough's hospitalization need. He mentioned in passing the general hospitals in Kingston and Ottawa as examples of what some Ontario cities were providing for their citizens.

Hospital Needed

"Anyone who has seen Nicholls Hospital can have no doubt about the need for an extension," said Alderman Dutton. "One thing that has troubled me is that in view of the amount of money that has been asked for, I feel there should be a broadening out in the management of the hospital. I have no wish to destroy the spirit of the Trust. The word Protestant appears again and again in the deed, and I have no desire to destroy the Trust in either its spirit or its letter. It seems to me that eight representatives of Protestant churches should be enough, and could be eleced without destroying the spirit of the Trust. Or, you might leave the five members from the Council and add other citizens as an executive."

Alderman Gordon said many of the Protestant people of the city were not regular church attendants, and to that extent were not actually represented by the members of the Board appointed from the churches. Alderman Dutton said it was probably true that not so many people were going to church as in the days when the Trust was created. "When you think of all the money that has been earned by Mrs. Nicholls' endowment you realize that it was a magnificent bequest, of which the people have received the benefit for all those year. However, I think the Board should consider its enlargement so that it will be more representative of the city's life"

Alderman Dutton also mentioned the question as to whether conditions were opportune for a favorable vote

Alderman Wilson said the membership of the churches showed very little decline, but there was a disposition to neglect the congregational meetings at which such matters as the appointment of members to the hospital Board were decided.

"The real issue is whether the present is opportune in view of the general business conditions," Alderman Gordon remarked. "I know that is my feeling as the result of conversations I have had with quite a number of people who are interested in this matter."

Treasurer's Estimates

Alderman McIntyre enquired whether the amounts of money mentioned by Alderman Gordon were correct. City Treasurer Shaver gave the information that 30-year serial debentures for $395,000 at 3½ per cent would require $21,476.68 yearly for interest and principal, equivalent to 1.107 mills, or a total of "$640,000 odd."

"There is a great difference between that and $890,000," Alderman McIntyre commented.

Alderman Bradburn said he was personally in favor of the bylaw, "but I very much doubt whether the ratepayers who have the right to vote would pass it. I don't believe we could issue debentures today at 3 per cent. At that price the annual payment would be $20,152.43, and at 3½ per cent the yearly payment would be $21,476.68 or 1.107 mills on the tax rate. Are the Protestant people in a position now to have the tax rate increased? I think the Trustees would be wise to hold off the vote for a year or two, because I feel the bylaw may be defeated this year. If they were to wait until December 31, 1940, when $826,401.19 of our debenture debt would be paid off, that would mean a reduction of about three mills in the rate. So, if $395,000 debentures were added, then the tax rate would still be lower than it is at present."

Looking for Lower Rate

Alderman Glover said his impression of Nicholls Hospital building on a recent visit was anything but favorable. "I don't know any other property as obsolete as it is for the objects for which it is used. But, I am doubtful that this is an opportune time for submitting the bylaw. The general public is looking for a lower rate. The factories are not busy, and it seems to me if the Board would postpone the bylaw for a couple of years, the city would be in a better position than it is today. I expect that it would be much easier to undertake the expenditure then because we are hoping for a two mill reduction in the demand of the City Trust together with the natural reduction that will take place. The danger is that at present time the demand of the City Trust together with the natural reduction that will take place. The danger is that at the present time the real merits of the necessity of a new hospital might not be taken into consideration at all."

Short Term Factors

According to the figures quoted by Mr. Shaver and Alderman Bradburn, it was stated that the 1.107 mill increase would be only a little more than $4 a year on a $4,000 property assessment.

Mr. Shaver suggested to the council that the comparatively low interest charges for money at present should recommend a short term feature in the proposed debenture issue. He said the council might explore the possibility of taking advantage of the short term loan rates by payment of 3 per cent for the first five years of the serial bonds and gradually increasing it up to 4 per cent.

Seeing Is Convincing

Alderman McCannan said that if the Protestant ratepayers could see the hospital for themselves, they would be convinced of the need of a new building, but he also expressed doubt about the result of the vote from the effect of business conditions of the present.

"The Hospital Board has given a great deal of consideration to this question," said Alderman McIntyre. "They have asked for the bylaw, and if they are inclined to take a chance, why shouldn't we submit it. I think we should give way to them if they think this is the proper time. They have given it more thought than we have, and they must be pretty well organized."

Alderman Cotton's sentiment agreed with that of most of the other Aldermen. "I know we need a new Hospital, and I feel the Council is 100 per cent behind the idea of better hospitalization for our people. On the other nand, we have asked for the return of the 1935 tax roll, with its outstanding taxes, and by the time the 1937 roll is returned, the unpaid taxes may reach $100,000 on the three rolls. I believe that by 1942 we could reduce the tax rate two mills and still give the Board what they need. I would like to see the bylaw pass, but the question in my mind is whether the people will look on it the right way."

Assessment Gains

Mayor Hamilton said the retiring debentures were not the only favorable factor in the near future of the city's finances. The assessment had increased $100,000 last year, and this would probably continue from year to year. Then, in 1942 the fixed assessment of the Quaker Oats property terminated.

Alderman Stocker suggested that the public's representation on the Board of Management should be "fifty-fifty."

Responding to Mayor Hamilton's invitation, Mr. Mason said he appreciated the way the arguments were presented in council's discussion, but he did not intend to bring out any contradictory arguments. With a touch of irony he remarked that perhaps he was not the right man to be on the Hospital Board, or to be its president. "Possibly the Council could pick out much better men for the responsibility, but after all, knowing the Board as I do, I think they are a pretty fair type of men, and with five members on our Board I think you have a fair representation. Personally I would welcome as many as you'd like to put on. I'd be glad to step down and out, and let members of the council take hold of it."

Mr. Mason said the Board's chief concern was to provide proper hospital care and accommodation. "We have given you the facts. In our request to the council to submit the bylaw to the ratepayers we said the need of a new hospital has been felt for ten or fifteen years. If we were to leave over the vote for another year or two, the council would be still advising us to put it off again. Money is cheap right now, and we think we can get a better price than for the next five years. The building of the hospital will give a lot of work in Peterborough at a time when it is badly needed. Your representatives on our Board will tell you that we need a hospital. If it should be that it has to remain in the present condition, then it will be up to the city in a few years to put up a general hospital.

"I don't think any member of the Board would want to come back again if this is thrown down now. We have interviewed many people, and we have obtained a very favorable impression as to what they will do."

Mr. Fowler, concluding the conversations, referred to the reduction of the city's debenture debt in the near future, and supported Mr. Mason in asking the council on behalf of the Board to submit the bylaw to the qualified ratepayers. "And if the council will give us their personal support, I feel the bylaw will succeed," Mr. Fowler said.

Mayor Hamilton stated that in the discussion there was no criticism of the Hospital Board. "We think you have done marvellously well, and we are all in favor of a better hospital."

Asked as to when the Board purposed undertaking the work, Mr. Mason said, "We feel that if the vote is favorable we can get started before fall, and carry it on through the winter, giving a great deal of employment."

(Examiner Correspondence.)

TWEED, Feb. 14.—Mr. and Mrs. John McGowan, highly respected citizens of Tweed, celebrated the fiftieth anniversary of their wedding on Sunday. They were married in Tweed in 1888 by Rev. Limbert, pastor of Tweed Methodist church and have lived in their present home since that time.

Mr. and Mrs. McGowan, who are both enjoying good health have lived to see Tweed grow from a small country hamlet to a beautiful and prosperous village with a population of nearly thirteen hundred people, up to date schools, beautiful churches and modern business places have replaced more humble structures of the eighties. The guests were received at the doors by Mrs. J. W. Kingston and Mrs. H. M. Countryman. The rooms were attractively decorated with colored streamers and beautiful flowers. Conspicuous among the latter were fifty roses sent by Misses Cora Lucy and Ruth Grant of Toronto, and fifty daffodils from Dr. and Mrs. P. T. Bowlby, Tweed.

Among those who assisted Mrs. McGowan were Mrs. W. L. Ketcheson, Mrs. T. N. Beatty, Mrs. E. Myles and Mrs. J. W. Kingston who poured tea. Others assisting were Mrs. C. R. Porritt, Miss Mary Logan, Miss Cosey Meiklejohn, Mrs. P. C. Barnett, Mrs. H. L. Morrison, Mrs. C. E. Way and Mrs. F. B Foster.

Mr. and Mrs. McGowan were the recipients of other gifts and cards of congratulation from their many friends. Both their sons, Leslie of North Bay and Frank of Belleville were at home for the happy occasion.

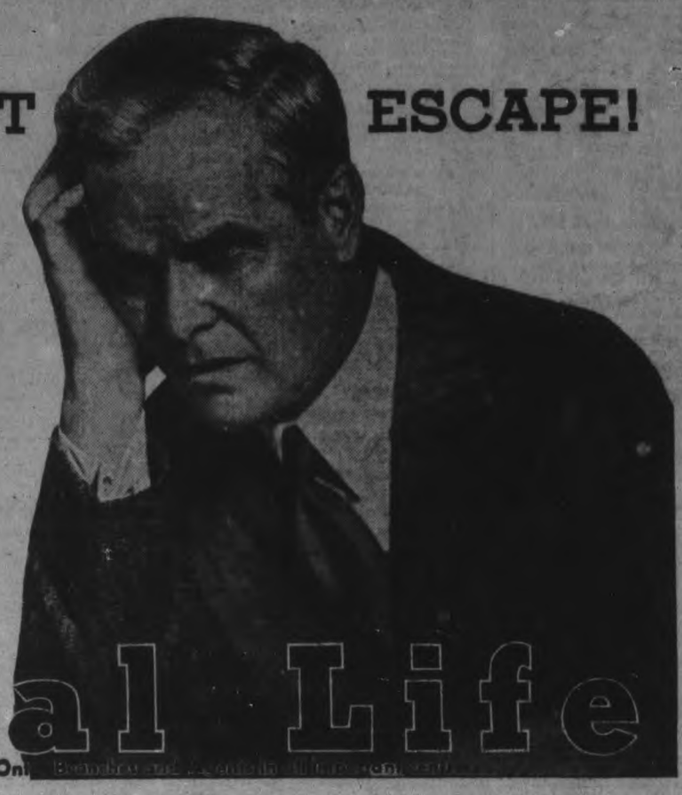
A LAW YOU CANNOT ESCAPE!



Even in our new and changing world one law is constant:—A man must work or he must have dollars to put to work for him or there will be no income. And if there is no income there will be hardship.

Today you are at work. The time will come when you will quit work. Will you then have an income? Not unless you have dollars to work for you.

Ordinary saving is precarious. You know that.

RAY BEST BEATEN.

B. Kennedy of Toronto defeated the rink skipped by Ray Best 17 to 4 at the annual Ontario bonspiel today in Toronto. Best was curling in the Seibering Trophy.

MAY BUY BUILDING.

The Manufacturers' Committee of the council of which Alderman Glover is chairman, was authorized Monday night to negotiate with the Nashua Paper Company for their purchase of the factory building they have been occupying so actively for years.

PETTY THIEVING.

There is a considerable amount of petty thieving going on in the city at the present time. The theft of a man's overcoat from the Jackson Park rink and of a quantity of eggs from a car parked at the rear of the Duffus garage are two of the latest instances.

COLLIDES WITH BUS.

Raymond St. Louis, driving a car owned by Reg. Palmer of Bethany, south on George Street, was unable to prevent his machine from hitting a City Bus Line bus when the latter stopped for passengers near Townsend Street. The impact caused damages to the bus and car estimated at $75. The bus was in charge of Lawrence Gibson.

INSULATED CHAIRS

Chief Constable Wallace Hendren of Lakefield is evidently a little nervous of static electricity. At a meeting of the council Monday night it was noticed that two chairs in the town hall had glass insulators on the legs. The insulators are the type used on hydro pole cross pieces and not only served as insulators but raised the seat of the chair about four inches farther from the floor.

DANGEROUS SPOT

A motorist who had occasion to stop between the bridges in Lakefield Monday night looked over a wooden fence to the river below, a distance of more than 20 feet and a solid rock bottom, and immediately pointed out to two reporters standing nearby the hazard that exists at this point. The fence is not the guard rail type and is far too frail to block the progress of a car out of control or on an icy road.

LEFT TO COMMITTEE.

Purchase of 1,500 cords of wood for next winter was left by the relief committee of the council Monday night to a sub-committee composed of Aldermen McCannan, McIntyre, Dutton and A. G. Met'eral. However, the committee decided to buy 100 cords of birch and maple slabs from Russell Mace of Burleigh Falls, and to take any other quantity of it he could supply. Tenders for several grades were opened last night, but were finally referred to the sub-committee.

WHIZZ-BANG MINSTRELS.

Two of the old Dumbells will be featured in the Whizz-Bang Minstrels show under the auspices of the local branch of the Canadian Legion on February 20 and 21. Morley Plunkett is the director of the show and will act as interlocutor, while the inimitable Pat Rafferty has consented to do a turn in the olio. Another out-of-town artist will be Rose Marie, a specialty dancer from Toronto. The Aloha Serenaders and Wilfred Galvin, impersonators, will be other features of the second part. The opening half of the program will be the conventional minstrel offering with a good chorus and some funny endmen.

8 Missionaries Of Co-operation Start Campaign

The pleasant atmosphere of new acquaintanceships pervaded the assembly room at F. C. Paterson's office Monday afternoon as executive members of Peterborough County United Farmers' Club greeted the eight missionaries of Co-operation on their arrival to begin a two weeks' campaign which opened encouragingly last night with meetings in Smith, Otonabee, Douro and Lakefield.

Harvey MacDougall of Toronto, from the U.F.O. headquarters, and William Fisher of Proton Station, were engaged for S.S. No. 3 Smith, and were guests for the night at the home of Milton Clark.

Harold Ghent of Mount Forest and Alex Anderson of Guelph went to Earl Petrie's home, and spoke at the evening meeting in S.S. No. 8 Otonabee. Vincent Black of Rodney and Grant Longwell of Foxboro were guests at the home of Vernon Campbell in Douro, and spoke at S.S. No. 3 in the township; and Mrs. Leonard Harman of King and Miss Gray of Britton were the speakers in Lakefield Town Hall.

Tonight's meetings are at S.S. No. 1 Smith; S.S. No. 11 Smith; Bridgenorth United Church and S.S. No. 3 Smith.

For Wednesday night the meetings and speakers are at Ennismore Parish Hall, Mr. MacDougall, Mr. Fisher and Miss Gray; Warsaw Town Hall, Mr. Ghent, Mr. Anderson and Mrs. Harman; and St. James' Anglican Hall, Emily, Mr. Black and Mr. Longwell.

Thursday night's meetings are at Keene town hall, Stewart's Hall, Rifle Range School and Apsley town hall.

Friday night's meetings are at Brailey's School, Springville Hall, S.S. No. 3 Otonabee and Hall's Bridge hall.

Saturday night's meetings are at Cottesloe Hall in Dummer, Harmony Hall in Douro and South Monaghan hall.

Continue Next Week

As already announced these meetings which continue throughout next week have been arranged by the United Farmers' Club to educate the farmers of this country in the system of Co-operation. Members of the executive have assumed the details of the reception of the eight selected young people from different parts of rural Ontario who are specially qualified to discuss the suoject of co-operation, explain its methods, and tell something of the accomplishments of the movement in other countries.

The visitors have gone into the country, will stay at different homes during the period of their campaign and next week will conduct meetings in the homes of members of the club. The results of this campaign will depend on the responsiveness of Peterborough farmers to the message that is being brought to them in an organized effort that might be called quietly spectacular.

St. John's Win 4-1 Over George St.

St. John's Bantams pulled out a 4-1 Church Loop puck win over George St. last night at All Saints' rink. Frank and Bond tallied in the initial inning for the Saints and Coones scored for them in the third. Wellwood got the losers' lone tally in the third, as Clarke got the last one right after. St. John's almost cinched a playoff spot, going into first place. The losers still have two tilts to earn a playoff. They were outspeeded last night, and Quirt had a tough night in the net. Teams:

George St.: Goal, Quirt; defence, Morrow, Powell; centre, Wellwood; wings, Greatrix, Carter; subs, Smith, Burnham, Young.

St. John's: Goal, Moore; defence, Farrow, Coones; centre, Clark; wings, Frank, Bond; sub, Scott.

Referee, G. Beauclerc.

ALD. McINTYRE APPOINTED.

Alderman McIntyre was appointed to the Manufacturers Committee of the council Monday night, taking the place of Alderman Juby, who had informed Alderman Glover that he did not expect to be able to attend the committee meetings for some time. The council has already extended for a period of three months the statutory time Alderman Juby may be absent fro mthe meetings of the council, in the hope that he will regain his health and return to his municipal seat.

Farmer Hires Transient On Saturday Man Takes French Leave Monday Morning

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CAMPBELLFORD, Feb. 14.—Bill Little, Semour township farmer, has found that it doesn't pay to hire a transient especially if you do not know him and even if he does happen to be a "nice appearing clean cut looking fellow." It all happened this way. The transient who gave a Toronto address landed in town on Saturday and told local authorities he would like to find a job. Mr. Little found him in the local police station and offered him a job on the farm and took him home for the night.

Things went alright on Sunday but Monday morning the transient took French leave of his host and before going gathered up a number of items which didn't belong to him. These included a mackinaw coat, a gold ring belonging to Mrs. Little, a pair of rubbers and provisions all of which he put in a basket. Local constable George Hardy was summoned and he picked up the errant youth up near Hoard's Station in a truck headed towards Stirling. Later he was booked on a charge of theft and taken to Cobourg.

Kitchener Rink Meets Defeat For Second Time

TORONTO, Feb. 14.—(CP).—Bert Hall's Kitchener curlers, defenders of the main Royal York trophy event in the 12th annual Ontario bonspiel, suffered their second setback today in the first round of the Seibering trophy.

After being eliminated in the Birks-Ellis-Ryrie trophy last night, the Kitchener quartet was put out of the Seibering 11-9 to-day by Earl Greene's Toronto High Prak rink. Hall is still in the Royal York, where he won in the yesterday's first round.

But another Kitchener rink, skipped by A. E. Dunker, is unbeaten. After surviving the Royal York and Birks, they ousted J. H. Meredith, Barrie, 17-13 to-day.

Seven other rinks have yet to suffer defeat, though others may crop up after completion of the Seiberling's first round this afternoon. They are C. F. Rumsey, Meaford; H. Forbes, Forest; Earl Green, Toronto High Park; H. C. Nelson, Bala; Bert Kenedy, Toronto Royals; Dr. E. C. Watson, Detroit; and C. F. Mason, Toronto Granites.

All these have won in the three main competitions. Five Western Ontario rinks emerged from the Seiberling morning round. Rumsey defeated Gar Reddon of London, 15-3; Dr. A. W. Irwin, Wingham, eliminated A. Austin, Chapleau, 11-7; H. Forbes, Forest, beat Dr. F. T. Knight, Toronto Strathcona, 12-8, and J. A. Cheriton, Hamilton Thistles, triumphed 11-10 over T. O. Loveless, Agincourt.

Only one Northern Ontario four survived morning play in the Seiberling, J. T. Gauthier of Timmins, who defeated Dr. C. H. Brereton's Toronto Granites 10-9 after an extra end had been played.

Dr. Watson's Detroit quartet put out F. C. Turner, Toronto High Parks, 15-8, to remain undefeated.

Neighbors' Quarrel To Be Heard In Court

A neighborhood disturbance in the Dunlop Street area resulted in the appearance in police court this morning of James Gates and his two sons, James, Jr., and William, to face four charges of assault.

Gates, Sr., was charged with assaulting Stanley Clarke, a neighbor, occasioning actual bodily harm, and also with assaulting Mrs. Clarke. The two sons were charged with an assault on Clarke.

W. J. Arthur Fair, who appeared for all three defendants, said that he was not in a position to go on and asked for an adjournment, and F. D. Kerr, K.C., acting Crown attornel, had no objection to offer. Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., set next Tuesday, February 21, as the date for hearing all about the "vendetta" as he described the affair.

"Were you not formerly the dog catcher here?" he asked Gates, Sr.

"I am glad to get that cleared up for all time, Your Worship," replied the accused. "There has been a lot of dirty insinuations about that. It was my father that was the dog catcher."

Magistrate Langley warned the parties in the case to stay away from one another in the interval.

Britons To Reveal Near East War Secret

LONDON, Feb. 14 (AP).—Prime Minister Chamberlain promised the House of Commons today that his government will disclose a 24-year-old Near East great war secret in an apparent new effort to end the Holy Land's bitter Jewish-Arab strife.

Answering a question, the Prime Minister promised publication "as soon as possible" of the secret "MacMahon correspondence" on which Arab claims for an independent Palestine are based.

This decision was seen as a gain for the Arabs, now taking part in the London conference among Jews, Arabs and the British government on the future of the Holy Land.

The Arabs have insisted on making the MacMahon letters — exchanged by Sir Henry MacMahon, then British High Commissioner in Egypt, and Sherif Hussein of Mecca —the integral basis for their case. Successive British governments have refused to publish them.

Cobourg Road Man Reports Hornets In His Attic Are Active

(Examiner Correspondence.)

Hastings, Feb. 14.

SPRING must either be in the offing or the weather is playing queer quirks on the insect life in this vicinity. Bud Downs of the Cobourg road reports that a nest of hornets in the attic of his home start droning each and every warm spell which has occurred this winter. A second instance was told by Jack Brinklow of seeing a caterpillar crawling with vigor aplenty across the floor of their residence.

Old Rails Blamed For 2 Accidents

The old street railway tracks on George Street South are blamed for two traffic accidents Monday in the vicinity of the Lake Street intersection.

G. A. Spencer, River Road South, was driving his car on George Street between Lake and Perry Streets, when the wheels were caught in the car tracks and the automobile swung across the road and mounted a snowbank, running across the sidewalk on the west side of George Street and crashing into a fence. The latter was damaged to the extent of $20, and a boy walking on the sidewalk had a narrow escape from being struck.

Later in the day Howard Carbery, Toronto, was driving south on George Street, and near Lake Street turned out to pass a boy on a bicycle. His car skidded on the ice on the car tracks and turned sideways and Leonard Grottick, 111 Gladstone Avenue, who was driving south behind him, was unable to stop in time to avert a crash, his car receiving some damage.

Five New Stores To Open In City Shortly

Positive indications that Peterborough is setting the pace in new business activity in Eastern Ontario, in the retail merchandising field, is given by the fact that five new stores will be opened within the next six weeks, and four of them within a month.

It is definitely established today that the Tamblyn Drug Company, with branch stores in all large cities of the province, had leased the tobacco store between the Bank of Nova Scotia and the Elite Grill, and would start alterations next Monday. Plans are reported to include a new store front, fixtures and equipment, and it is believed the new store will be ready for the public in six weeks.

Lincoln Shoe Store of Toronto have taken over property next to Tip Top Tailors on George and formerly occupied by the Catharine Shop. Work was started this morning preparing the store for the merchandise.

Another new business will be started this week on Simcoe street, on the premises occupied some years ago by Brown's hardware, directly opposite King's Hotel, and will stock shoes ,furniture, groceries and general stock of ladies' and children's ready-to-wear appael. It will be known as Sam's Store.

Remodelling Store

S. Pattenick, owner of a large deparent store, which was recently damaged by fire, closed the store this week to permit carpenters and decorators to make the necessary repairs and other alterations which are needed. Practically all of the old stock in the store at the time of the fire has been disposed of and when the store opens for business again, a complete new stock will be on the shelves.

Two small stores will be built into the front of the new Centre theatre on the site formerly occupied by the old Royal theatr. On the north side there will be a tobacco store and south of the theatre entrance, according to reports, a candy store and nut shop will be opened. Completion of the theatre will brighten that section of the city considerably and generally improve the business section along the east side of George street.

Canadian Auto Supply Company which for the past few years has been located on Water street, intend to transfer the business to one of old Royal theatre. On the north side opposite Grafton's.

Rumours are current that the Robert Simpson Company store might be transferred to the premises now occupied by Loblaws on Charlotte street, as soon as the latter moves into the new building next door. Managers of both Lablaws and the Simpson store in Peterborough could offer no confirmation of this rumour, but other sources appear positive the deal will go through.

Thirty years ago when Louis Yeotes first came to Peterborough, he started in business in the tobacco shop next door to the Elite restaurant, and ever since that time has had the property leased. He sold the the stores on the east side of George lease several times but the new store managers failed to make a go of it, and it finally passed out of his hands this week when the Tamblyn Drug Company took it over.

Merchant Donates Twenty-One Dresses To City To Be Given Women On Relief

Sentiment does mix with business in Hamilton's Fur Store on Charlotte street, and Monday night it cast a pleasing, passing glow over Alderman Dutton's relief committee. Gift of twenty-one dresses from Wm. Hamilton was reported by A. G. Metheral, relief officer, and the only string to them was that they were to be distributed among women on relief. Necessary alterations will be made free of charge at the store. Twelve of the dresses had already been given out Monday, and one of the aldermen remarked that he hoped Mr. Metheral was giving them to women who had the natural trait of neatness that would be shown in keeping dresses cleaner longer than others did. Perhaps Mr. Hamilton may be interested in knowing that Mr. Metheral was anticipating that aid to utility. It was learned that these dresses were all of good quality, but they were carried over from last season. Instead of putting on a bargain sale, Mr. Hamilton decided that he would get more satisfaction out of knowing that the dresses were going to women who really needed them, than would be garnered from the dollars and cents the sale would yield. And so sentiment won that little joust with business, and Mr. Hamilton should receive one of these days a letter conveying the relief committee's appreciation of his thoughtfulness.

10,000 Valentines Are Delivered To City Residents

Romance secretly rubbed elbows with business in the prosaic environment of the post office today as the last of 10,000 valentines were run through the cancelling machines and passed on to the letter carries for distribution this afternoon. Brown envelopes from the stationery stores were strewn on the floors around the writing stands where young men somewhat futively took a last look at the psychic missives, after penning signatures and perhaps other symbols, and gave the precious letters over to the safe keeping and delivery of His Majesty's mail men. For a brief day or so the post office was a clearing house of affection, a temporary temple of Cupid, presided over by Postmaster Charles Lacheur.

Imagine 10,000 valentine letters mixed up with the ordinary volume of business correspondence, and as far as could be learned not one of them finding its way to the desk of the Postmaster himself. Of course, that is not official. It is only a little stronger than surmise, but enquiry suggested if Mr. Lacheur was not overlooked he wasn't saying anything about it.

The Rambling REPORTERS

A WEEK LATE

Thirteen-year-old Lorne Sopha of Methuen township, Lot 6, Concession 1, is convinced the groundhogs in this part of the country have their dates mixed. He reported today that on Feb. 10th he spotted one of the chucks sunning himself on the south side of a hill where the animal had his den. On Candlemas Day he looked closely at the same place but his highness the Woodchuck failed to put in an appearance.

Refuses New Saw So Reliefees Quit

In the phrases of the street, some of the men on relief "make it look bad" by the flimsiness of their excuses to avoid work for the assistance they get out of the pockets of the ratepayers. Others give the impression of being on the level, and square shooters.

"I had a new case just today," A. G. Metheral told the committee last night. "Two fellows were sent out to work in a wood camp. They thought they should be given a new saw, but I've had to dock a lot of them so much a week from time to time to pay for tools they got that way and then sold them. So, as I had a pretty fair old cross-cut and I gave them that to go to work with. They got started, but they told the farmer they needed a new saw. He suggested they buy one out of their wages, but they didn't like that idea. And as the city wouldn't buy them a new one, and the farmer didn't believe in making a gift of one, they decided to quit, walked off the job, and arrived back in town."

Young Woman Is Attacked By Unknown Man

After a dull of some weeks the degenerate youth whose attacks on women and girls caused a panic in the Park Street South area for some time, broke out again Monday night when a young woman was attacked near the corner of King and Bethune Streets, as she was about to cross the C.N.R. platform.

Her assailant, whose description followed closely that given by other earlier victims, appeared suddenly and without any warning seized the woman and started to molest her. When she screamed the attacker released his hold and the young woman ran into a house on King Street and gave the alarm. Police failed to find any trace of the assailant although the whole neighborhood was searched closely.

In the method followed and in his appearance, Monday night's assailant answered the description of the youth, whose activities caused so much alarm a few weeks ago and there seems little doubt but that he was the same person.

January Relief Cost $16,840

January's relief bill of $16,840.09 was $5,546.53 more than the $11,293.56 expended in the same month a year ago when escape from the relief seemed definitely on the way. A. G. Metheral's report to the Dutton committee Monday night was a bitter pill that simply could not be coated.

Here are more relief details:—number of heads of families getting assistance 379 in January last year, 510 last month; their dependents 1,186 a year ago and 1,660 last month; single men 33 and 59; single women 41 and 57. Total individuals a year ago 1,639; and last month 2,286. Per capita relief grants $6.89 a year ago and $7.36 last month.

The cost of relief last month exceeded the appropriation for the month by $2,300.

J. J. DUFFUS ILL

On the advice of his physician, J. J. Duffus, M.P., has gone to St. Joseph's Hospital for a complete rest and absolute quiet in order to avoid a breakdown in his health. He has been feeling poorly in recent weeks and this is said to be due to a run-down condition brought on by overwork and insufficient rest. He is not allowed to have any visitors.

Skaters Who Will Appear at the Peterborough Skating Carnival Friday at Brock St. Arena

What the Examiner's Editor Says

Yes—We Recommend It

Not so many years ago skating was just skating. Now and then there would be races, and apart from that there would be those with an artistic sense who could cut a grape-vine or do a figure eight on the ice.

We have passed into something which is vastly different, and it may be we are not entirely aware of how great the change has been. There are a good many of our cities now where children go and learn skating as they go to water tanks and learn swimming in the scientific way, and it is difficult enough to select any other field of physical and artistic effort which lends itself to such development in equal way.

Seldom does the Examiner use its editorial space to suggest that people go to this or that, but when 35 members of the Toronto Skating Club express a willingness to give an exhibition in our city on the 17th at thee Brock St. Arena under the auspices of the Winter Sports Committee, then we do not hesitate to advise people to attend. The Toronto skaters put on an exhibition here previously and it was an evening of keen delight for the spectators. The visitors give their services without cost, and the Toronto Skating Club includes in its membership much of the finest talent in the Dominion. And in the world. When they appear in their own city or elsewhere the experience is a crowded house and trouble enough trying to find a seat. We take full responsibility for recommending this as one of the outstanding events of the 1939 season.

DEATH AT THE MANOR

By M. E. CORNE

CHAPTER TWENTY-EIGHT

RICHARD WITHERSPOON thrummed his fingers nervously upon his knee. His face was wan and haggard and his eyes, darting here and there, held a hint of fear.

"There's nothing to worry about," Ellis assured him. "I'm just trying to straighten out a few things."

"I'm not worried!" Richard fiercely denied the implication. "What have I to be worried about?"

"I'm sure I don't know." The chief smiled. "The one and only person who should be worried is the murderer, and I don't suppose you're that one?"

"Of course not!" The thrumming fingers beat a rapid tattoo. "You're wasting your time with me. I don't know a thing!"

"Oh, I'm not saying that you do. A nice boy like you wouldn't kill his mother—and maybe his grandmother, too—much as he hated them, would he?"

"Hated them? I didn't hate them!"

"No?" The policeman paused deliberately. "I've heard that you and your grandmother didn't get along very well. Maybe I was mistaken. Was I?"

Richard's gaze faltered. He looked down at the floor. "Grandmother was difficult," he muttered at last, "but I didn't hate her."

"But you quarreled with her, didn't you? You quarreled with her the night before the ball, didn't you?"

Richard swallowed with difficulty. "How—how did you know?" I wondered the same thing. How did Ellis know?

He said: "I hear things. You can't keep many secrets in a big house like this. What was this quarrel about, son?"

"Why"—the boy dug his fingernails deep into the palms of his hands—"why, it wasn't anything serious. Grandmother and I—sometimes we rubbed one another the wrong way."

"It wouldn't have been about money, would it?" the chief suggested helpfully.

"Of course not!"

"You weren't in debt, were you, and trying to borrow a large sum of money from your grandmother?"

"That—that's ridiculous!" Richard seemed to force the words from his throat. "Grandmother didn't believe in lending money to anyone."

"So the only way you could get the money you needed was to kill her?" Chief Ellis spoke so softly that at first the boy failed to grasp his meaning.

"I—" he began, and stopped dead. His face was the color of dried putty. Beads of moisture formed on his forehead. "Grandmother died of a heart attack!"

"Maybe," said Ellis. "Maybe."

"What do you mean?" Richard's voice was a whisper.

"Listen, son!" The police officer towered above him, "we have reason to believe that your grandmother was murdered. Oh, don't act so surprized. You've known it all along! And you must admit things look black for you. You had the motive! Better tell me everything and get it over!"

"You shan't railroad me!" Richard leaped to his feet. The fear in his eyes was a living thing, it was consuming him. "Grandmother died of a heart attack! You can't accuse me of murder!"

"Easy, lad." McIntyre stepped forward. "No one is going to railroad you. Mr. Ellis is a bit premature in his accusations. Sit down and get a grip on yourself. You needn't talk unless you feel up to it."

"Keep out of this, please!" ordered Chief Ellis tersely. "I'm conducting this inquiry."

Mac faced him quietly. "If you don't want a suit for false arrest on your hands," he said sharply, "you had better go easy. Third degrees won't work here; you're not handling thugs. As agent for the Witherspoon family I shall challenge you whenever I see fit."

"You can't interfere with justice!" the other said angrily. "I'll handle things MY way."

"I wouldn't do that," Mac said, and I understood why the gangsters and hoodlums of Chicago kept out of his way. There was an undercurrent beneath the calm quiet of his voice that chilled me through and through. I think Ellis sensed something of this, too, for his anger died and he motioned young Richard away. The lad fled from the room.

"What have you done to my brother?" Daphne burst in upon us, and marched militantly toward the chief of police. "How long is this torture of innocent persons to be permitted?" She whirled upon Mac. "I thought it was your job to protect us! You got father to hire you! But I suppose that was one of your tricks. I suppose you are hand in glove with the police!"

"That will do!" commanded McIntyre curtly, and from sheer surprise the girl was silent. "Sit down!"

"Oh!" Daphne, her wits suddenly scattered, obeyed.

"Now, Miss Witherspoon," he continued more gently, "you have me all wrong. I am trying to help and protect you. I did not, however, bargain to shield the guilty. I intend to find the murderer. It will be wise for you and your brother—and your guests—to tell the truth. If you are innocent, you shan't suffer. I'll see to that.

"Another thing," he went on, "I do not want to meddle in your private affairs. I'm not interested in skeletons, if any, which you may have hidden in your clothes. But," he added meaningly, "I am interested in any and all information pertaining to the crime. If you can tell me anything that will aid in clearing up some of the minor mysteries in this case, it is your duty to speak. You follow me, Miss Witherspoon?"

"I—" she stammered and Mac nodded. Daphne followed him, but I, for one, did not.

"Very well," he continued, "I'm going to ask you a question or two. You'll do well to answer truthfully."

"I'll ask the questions," Ellis put in. "You have no authority—"

Mac brushed him aside: "Your turn will come later. Now, Miss Witherspoon?"

"Well?"

"You stated earlier that at the time of your mother's death your brother, Richard, at your special request, went into town on some errands. Correct?"

"Yes."

"What were these errands?"

"He—he bought me some toothpaste at the drug store and some picture post cards at the kirby hotel."

"Haven't you forgotten something?"

"No-o."

"Didn't he send a telegram for you at the Western Union depot in the hotel?"

"Western Union depot?" echoed Daphne, and her expression altered; it became sly, secretive. She laughed nervously. "Why, yes—I had forgotten. I had Rich send a wire to a friend of mine."

"May I have this friend's name and address?"

"Surely. It is Miss Lorena Stevens, Baxter apartments, East Fifty-seventh street, New York City."

"Thank you."

"I—I don't see what my telegram has to do with—with the murder!" Again her nervous laughter rippled through the room. "My mother was dead long before Rich reached the hotel!"

"True," agreed Mac. "Your mother was dead, and your grandmother also."

"Oh!" She closed her eyes and sort of swayed back and forth in her chair. I felt terribly sorry for her without knowing why. "Why do you say that?" she demanded hoarsely. "Why?"

"Don't you know?" queried Mac. There was a second's stillness; then the girl smiled slightly as she half-whispered:

"You aren't even warm, Mr. Detective, not even warm!"

"What is all this?" Ellis exclaimed, irritably.

"Perhaps Mr. McIntyre will explain," Daphne replied, and arose and walked swiftly from the room.

"Holding out on us?" demanded Phil. "What's up?"

"Time enough for that later," Mac told him. "Better get on with it, chief."

"O. K." Mac shrugged.

A Wife Is Just As Much a Partner As The Husband In His Business And Should Be Told All The Details Of That Business—Often She Can Be Of Great Help

DEAR MISS DIX—Should a man tell his wife everything? I have a good wife who has always worked hard to make a home for me and our three children. I think a great deal of her, but why should I tell her everything? I talk over my business and my plans with my parents and tell them what I do, but I never discuss my affairs with my wife. My wife has a very troubled look most of the time. She seems to think that she should have a knowledge of all my home and business affairs, but I do not consider it necessary. Do you? CHARLES D.

ANSWER:

Suppose, Mr. D., that you went into a partnership in which you invested everything you had. Suppose you put into it all of your money, all of your labor, all of your intelligence, all of your hopes and plans for the future. Wouldn't you think that you had a right to know everything that was being done in the business, and every move that your partner was making? If he kept you entirely in the dark and refused to give you any information, wouldn't you think that he wasn't giving you a square deal?

You know you would, and you would break up that partnership before you could say "scat." Well, that is exactly the way you are treating your wife. She is strictly within her rights when she wants to know all about your business affairs because they are her business affairs just as much as they are yours.

When she is a good and thrifty wife and makes you a comfortable home, she is holding up her end of the marriage partnership just as much as you are holding up yours. She is putting in just as many hours a day of labor as you are. She is striving just as hard to make the domestic concern a going concern as you are. Her hopes and ambitions are centered in it just as much as are yours. If it fails, she goes down in the ruins as much as you do.

What's the great idea anyway, about keeping your wife in ignorance about your business? Is she a fool without brains enough to form an intelligent opinion on any subject, or to understand a simple business proposition? Is she an indiscreet talker who would blab your business secrets? Is she a spender whose money burns in her pocket so that she would rush into extravagance every time you were a dollar ahead?

If your wife belongs to any one of these types, you are justified in keeping from her all knowledge of your business, but not otherwise. And, believe me, Mr. D., you cut yourself off from a lot of help that you could get from your wife if you made her your confidential adviser.

For most women, even when they don't understand the technicalities of a business have a curious insight into the very heart of a matter that often clarifies it for men, who have got befuddled considering all the different angles of it and weighing one side against the other. Also, women have hunches that are worth their husbands' playing. Their intuition about the characters of people and their trustworthiness is almost uncanny.

I know many big business men who never make a move without consulting their wives, and who rely more on their wives' judgment than they do on that of their expert advisers.

And how, Mr. D., is a wife to manage her part of the domestic finances if she knows nothing of her husband's affairs? How can she gauge her expenditures if she does not know whether he is making money or losing it?

I don't wonder that your wife looks troubled. If you refuse to make a confidante of her and if she knows that you talk over your affairs with your parents and not with her, she is bound to feel that you do not trust her. Also that you are utterly unjust to her. My wonder is that she stands it at all. You wouldn't if your partner treated you that way.

* * * * * *

DEAR MISS DIX—I am a university student in my first year in law school. I am very much in love with a young girl, but inasmuch as my college course will require three more years it would not be possible for me to marry her for some time to come. In my home town there is a wealthy widow, several years my senior, who has often expressed a deep affection for me. She has offered to finance my college course with the implication that I marry her when I receive my degrees. Would you advise me to follow the dictates of my affection, or the mandates of my reason? BILL.

ANSWER:

Both, because I do not see how the "mandates of reason" indicate that selling yourself to a rich old woman is the sensible thing to do. It seems to me that it is the most idiotic course you could possibly pursue, because you would give so much for so little. You would barter away your youth, your love, your happiness, even your chances for success, for a mess of pottage.

Look about you. Did you ever see a young man who married an old woman for her money who was contented or satisfied? Did you ever see a man who married for money who amounted to anything? You never did.

There is a curse on money that comes that way. Something sinister about it that paralyzes a man's energies and ambitions. It makes him just fizzle out into nothingness and become that most contemptible of all human creatures, a male parasite. Perhaps it is because the man who marries for money loses his own self-respect and when that is gone nothing else is worth-while, or worth working for.

I agree with you that you are in no position to marry the pretty young girl you are in love with, and that you would be foolish and wrong to try to tie her down to an engagement where the altar is so far off that it is out of sight.

But why not follow the "mandates of reason" and put love out of your thoughts for a while and devote yourself to the study of your profession? You can find enough to occupy you fully in that for the next three or four years. But don't sell yourself to the rich old woman. You will bring misery down upon your head if you do.

Looking Back
On This Date

On Feb. 14, 1846, William Lyon Mackenzie wrote from the office of the New York Tribune his famous letter of recantation and regret, in which he admitted that his recourse to arms had been a mistake, and asserted that after 10 year's residence in the United States he was convinced of the superiority of British institutions.

There is one section of that letter which has escaped the attention of most historians, and it is worth telling. Mackenzie recalled that he had in 1843 written to Lord Metcalfe, asking leave to return to Canada. Christopher Hagerman replied that "unless it was the pleasure of her majesty to proclaim a general amnesty, the governor-general saw no probability that you would be singled out for special favor."

A year later, after the advent of Lafontaine and Baldwin to power, the assembly asked for "pardon, indemnity and oblivion" for all concerned. To this the governor-general replied that all had been pardoned save a few "guilty of crimes of peculiar atrocity" and that their pardon "would be a manifest injustice to loyal subjects."

Captain Bonnycastle, who had defeated the raiders at Prescott and done other loyal service, charged in a book that Mackenzie was the murderer of Colonel Moodie near Toronto in December, 1837, and here follows the passage mentioned above. Mackenzie told Col. Bruce:

"I immediately wrote to Mr. Gladstone, the colonial secretary, that if that was the reason for my being excepted I was ready to be tried on any indictment that could be brought before any court, judge or jury at Toronto."

Gladstone did not reply, and there the matter rested until 1848, when Mackenzie told Colonel Bruce that even at that late date he would be glad to face a judicial inquiry, "for my Canadian friends tell me that the colonel's son was impressed with the idea that I was there when the colonel was killed. Had this been the case I should at once own it, but it can be proven by the clearest testimony that I was not at or near the place. If it was on that ground that I was placed on the list of persons excepted, I am ready to produce the facts."

Mackenzie denied that he had ever planned to burn the City of Toronto. "Why should I have done such a thing to a place filled with my friends?" he asked. Of course the amnesty of 1849 gave Mackenzie his liberty and averted the judicial inquiry. But one wonders what would have happened to Mackenzie had he returned in 1843. His chances of acquittal before a Toronto judge and jury at that time would have been slim.

Nursing is declared to be the most popular matrimonial agency in Malaya, where there are 20 white men to every white woman, and each year 10 per cent of the nurses resign to marry.

GOODNIGHT STORY

By MAX TRELL

Knarf and Hanid rang the bell on the door of Mother Goose's little cottage. When Mother Goose came to the door she gave both the shadow-children a hug and a kiss.

"I've never been so happy in my whole life," she told them as they all sat down in her parlor.

"We thought you were always happy, Mother Goose," Hanid said.

"That's what everybody thinks," Knarf added. "Nobod thinks you ever have any trouble."

All Settled.

"Well," said Mother Goose with a pleasant smile as she pushed her spectacles back off her forehead and went on with her knitting, "I haven't many troubles. But even the few little ones that I have are all settled now."

"What happened?"

Mother Goose drew a long breath.

"I've never been so happy."

"I'll tell you. First of all I've had a new well built for Jack and Jill, right in back of their house instead of on the side of the hill. So now they'll never again come tumbling down and breaking their crowns."

"Oh! that's wonderful!"

"And I've had a nice low wall built for Humpty-Dumpty. So even if he does fall off—as he probably will—he won't break into pieces. All the king's horses and all the king's men will never have to worry about putting him together again."

Fixed Everything.

"And what else did you do?" the shadow-children asked.

"I had the shoemaker make a bigger shoe for the Old Woman Who Lives in a Shoe with so many children she didn't know what to do. Now they've all got plenty of Room. I sent Mother Hubbard a whole box of dog-biscuits for her poor dog Tray. I'm sure he won't be hungry again for a long time, and Mother Hubbard's cupboard won't be bare. And then I had a long high fence-rail put around the meadow where little Bo-Peep grazes her sheep. I'm quite certain we'll never hear of her losing them again."

"And is that all?"

"No, just one thing more. And it's one of the nicest things of all. You know how fond Simple Simon is of pie?"

"Yes, everyone knows that. Only the pieman will never sell him any because—"

Mother Goose nodded. "—because he never has a penny. Well, I've just given him a penny. And now, for the first time, he'll be able to buy his pie." And Mother Goose smiled so cheerfully that Knarf and Hanid quite believed that she really was happier than she had ever been before.

Mrs. R. Williamson Hostess To Auxiliary

The Helen Roger Auxiliary of Knox United Church held its February meeting at the home of Mrs. Ross Williamson, Reid Street, with an attendance of twenty-eight members. The president, Mrs. H. Clegg, presided.

During the business period a resolution on Temperance was read and endorsed by the Auxiliary. An interesting report of the eleventh annual meeting of the Presbyterial held in George Street United Church was given by Mrs. E. Johnston.

The third chapter of the study book, "The Church Reaches Out," was very capably handled by Mrs. I. Oesch, who interviewed three of the missionaries in the chapter. Mrs. Hanscom rpresented Miss McMurray of Battle River Hospital, Peace River; Mrs. D. Gourlay represented Miss Bessie French, who is on the Indian Board of Home Missions, Fire Hills, Alberta, and Mrs. R. Bowen represent Miss Bartling, Ukrainian school homes, Radway. The three-fold purpose contained in the chapter was to gain a vivid picture of the United Church of Canada through its home mission work; to resolve to give more generously and sacrificially, and to interest others in home missions.

The theme for the worship service was "Christ has no hands but our hands to do His work to-day." Mrs. F. Reed read the Scripture lesson, and short prayers were given by Mrs. G. Morrison, Mrs. E. Mesley, and Miss M. Morton. A Psalm of sharing was read by Mrs. H. Clegg. Following the meeting a social hour, arranged by the social committee was enjoyed by the members.

We Noticed

. . . That a charming and certainly altogether feminine note is to be achieved in spring dress costumes by wearing a little chain of artificial flowers around the neck—and also, the wrist, if you want to go the limit. To really be effective, this idea should be carried out with a solid colored basic-lined dress for a background.

✧ ✧ ✧

. . . That Edwardian and Victorian influences are tying everything into bowknots in the newest hats. Big smashing bows, medium sized bows covering the entire tops of hats makes more and more bow news.

✧ ✧ ✧

. . . What gives this fashion a real kick, however, is the choice of ribbons — picot edged, checked, plaided, striped, dotted, ombred — all with loads of color and most often of taffeta. But wide and narrow velvet ribbons are another repeated choice of designers, the rich pile adding to the color value, and contrasting with silken flowers.

SPRING WELCOME

By PRUNELLA WOOD

While you're hesitating over your basic spring costume, why not recognize the season in a crisp, simple frock? Today's model has the necessary urban look for wear under your cloth or fur coat, and for those little weekend escapes friends are urging on you.

The dress comes in chiffon wool, in navy and lots of other shades, pique-trimmed. Stitched tucks run around the bodice and up and down the skirt.

It needn't be a wimple, or even fishnet. But some kind of drapery on your hat is rather charming. Milliners will attach a scarf or two to winter's pillbox or turban, if you like.

Junior Business Girls Hold Initial Meeting

An enthusiastic group of business girls attended the first business meeting of the junior affiliate of the Business and Professional Women's Club Monday evening. The constitution of the club, presented by the president, was adopted on the motion of Miss Margaret McDonald and Miss Sally Kirby.

Miss Margaret Lytle, president, outlined the object of the newly formed club, its educational and social value to the members, and stated that apart from social activities, guest speakers, etc., the club should have some charitable aim. Members were informed of their privilege to use the club rooms for their own entertaining purposes, and were requested to invite friends and business associates who were interested to join their club.

Regular business meetings followed by a speaker or program are to be held the second Monday of each month, and every fourth Monday is to be turned over to social activities. Plans were completed for a guess-what party to be held on Monday, February 27, in the club rooms. Miss Betty Lytle is the convener in charge. A club theme song is to be arranged by Miss Gladys Gerarrd. After the business period a spelling bee was held, and tea and sandwiches served.

The executive is as follows: President, Miss Margaret Lytle; first vice-president, Miss Amy Soulby; second vice-president, Miss Margaret Skitch; recording secretary, Miss June Best; corresponding secretary, Miss Margaret Smart; treasurer, Miss Jean Cowling; social convener, Miss Bertha Inch; program convener, Miss Betty Lytle.

FAIRER WEATHER STANDBY

By PRUNELLA WOOD

This is the kind of dress you'll wear when you take snapshots in South Carolina, Florida, yet live in the moment you're home. It's a Hannah Troy basic model, the stripes contrarily cut for dash and a new look, and sufficiently subdued for street and business. The white sauce is pique, easily lifted for suds.

Backgrounds are black, navy, blue, gray, dusty rose and beige.

Home and School Association News

A Founder's Day program in honor of the late Mrs. A. C. Courtice was observed by the Central Home and School Association at their regular meeting on Monday evening. A birthday cake with pink and white icing and decorated with 23 candles occupied a place of honor on a nicely-laid table at the head of the room. Mrs. J. H. Quirt, president introduced the guest speaker, Rev. Dr. E. W. Young.

The meeting opened with the singing of "O Canada" and the Lord's Prayer repeated in unison. The meeting sang "What A Friend We Have In Jesus". Miss Ruth McNeely accompanied on the piano by Miss Elsie Chambers, sang "My Task" .A reading "Builders All" was given by Winnie Land.

Mrs. N. Stanger lit the candles on the cake, and this pleasing ceremony was followed by the reading of extracts from the "Life of Mrs. Courtice" by Mrs. Wilfred Boorman, and Mrs. Bruce Fowler. A chorus "I Would Be True" was sung by the pupils of D. G. Munro's room who played the piano accompaniment.

Dr. Young spoke on "Education" and based his remarks on quotations from a book written by Dr. Wallace of Queen's University, one of the foremost educationists of our province. The speaker emphasized his points by saying that education in our schools had failed if it did not awaken the spirit in our youth which thirsted for more knowledge as time went on.

Mrs. A. H. Radford, the pianist for the association, presided at the piano for the musical numbers.

In a short business session reports of conveners were given. Mrs. J. Poulson reported that the study group was progressing, and the next regular meeting would be held on February 20. New members are still enrolling, as announced by Mrs. G. Metcalfe.

A letter of thanks from K. S. Wightman for milk donation was read by the secretary, and the meeting voted a further donation for this worthy object. The roll call was won by the rooms of Miss Doughty and Jack Nichols. Mrs. Quirt expressed her appreciation of all those who had helped to make the "open School" program of last Thursday a success.

A hymn "Fight the Good Fight" and the National Anthem ended the program. Dainty refreshments were served by the social committee.

MAY'S SCHOOL

Home was defined as the father's kingdom, the mother's world, and the child's paradise by Rev. T. H. Floyd at the Monday meeting of May's Home and School Association. The program was dedicated to the memory of the founder of Home and School organizations, the late Mrs. Courtice of Toronto, and Rev. Floyd, as guest speaker, gave a brief history relating to the founding of this movement. He spoke of unsettled world conditions, and stressed in his remarks the strong influence which teachers and parents have in educating children to be peace-minded. Two delightful solos were given by Miss Frances Wells, with Mrs. Jack Cooper at the piano.

Spring flowers in mauve and gold, the colors of the school, centred the table where the ceremony of lighting the birthday candles took place. The birthday cake was iced in green and yellow, with tiny yellow candles, and two past presidents, Mrs. C. Porter and Mrs. F. Cunningham, Mrs. A. Pearson and Mrs. W. Carter did the candle lighting honors. Tea was poured by Mrs Carter and Mrs. Pearson, assisted by members of the social committee.

A Country Minister Staged at Apsley

(Examiner Correspondence.)

APSLEY, Feb. 14.—A successful and well attended 5-act play was put on in the parish hall on Friday evening. The title being "A Country Minister" which was well portrayed by Donald Hester. Playing opposite him as the heroine was Mrs. Sid McCaully, other characters being Miss Martha Jodkins, (Mrs. McMullen); Granny Grimes, (Mrs. N. Wilson); Roxey, (Miss Ashenhurst); her father (Mr. S. McCauly); the villian, (Mr. Munroe); two local country men in love with Miss Martha Jodkins, Mr. Elgin, Peter and Rev. C. A. G. Spence; maid, Miss Eva Tucker.

This play was put on under the auspices of St. George's Anglican church. The hall was filled to capacity. The proceeds will be used to pay off the debt of repairs and alterations made recently on the parish hall. The girls of the Junior W. A. sold homemade candy during the intervals.

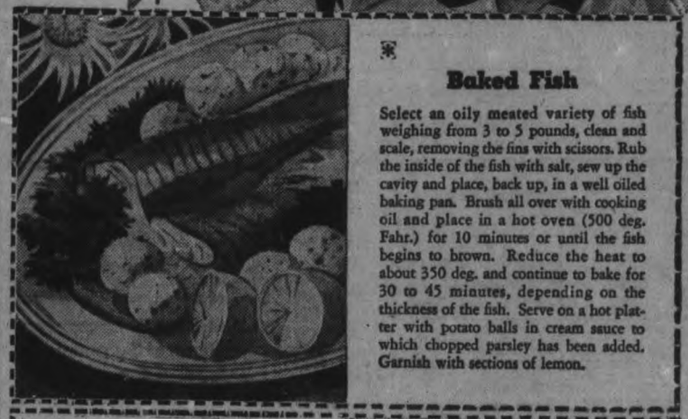
Fish FOR DINNER? THAT'S Great



Baked Fish

Select an oily meated variety of fish weighing from 3 to 5 pounds, clean and scale, removing the fins with scissors. Rub the inside of the fish with salt, sew up the cavity and place, back up, in a well oiled baking pan. Brush all over with cooking oil and place in a hot oven (500 deg. Fahr.) for 10 minutes or until the fish begins to brown. Reduce the heat to about 350 deg. and continue to bake for 30 to 45 minutes, depending on the thickness of the fish. Serve on a hot platter with potato balls in cream sauce to which chopped parsley has been added. Garnish with sections of lemon.

Fish Balls

1 cupful of fish, cooked and flaked
2 cupfuls of mashed potatoes
Salt and pepper to taste
1 egg, beaten

Combine the fish and mashed potatoes. Season to taste with salt and pepper and combine with the beaten egg. Form into balls and fry in deep, hot fat (375 to 400 deg. Fahr.). Serve with halves of hard-cooked eggs on a hot platter accompanied by cheese sauce. Garnish with fresh parsley.

MILLARD, Frank.—In loving memory of Frank Millard, who died February 14, 1936.

Oh, what would I give to clasp his hand,
His dear, kind face to see,
To hear his voice, to see his smile,
That meant so much to me.
His spirit has fled, his sufferings o'er,
At the fireside he will join us no more.

Park St. can still get a playoff spot by beating Mark St. Evans got two and Reid and McAdams one each for the winners last night, Campbell counting for the other side. It was a rough game, several feuds cropping up, Cox and Campbell spoiling good play with scrappy tactics. Teams:

All Saints— Goal, Spooner; defence, Lacheur, Abraham; centre, Robinson; wings, Reid, Evans; subs, Maudsley, McAdams, Hill, Ackford.

Park St.—Goal; J. Ainslie; defence, Cox, Martin; centre, Hodson; wings, Briscoe, Campbell; subs, Kidd, Cumming.

"The Authority on Authorities"

CHARITY APPRECIATED

TODAY BEING THE day of "America's Card Party" held in many parts of the country under the auspices of the American Contract Bridge League for the benefit of under-privileged children, it is fitting to show a hand on which the declarer received a most appreciated gift. It so happens that ability to recognize a gift, when one is offered, and then figuring out how to accept it, is one of the attributes of a successful bridge player.

(Dealer: South. East-West vulnerable.)

Seldom are there very many rounds of bidding when your opponents do not interrupt with bids of their own, but this deal brought eight of them. South began with 1-Club, North bid 1-Heart, South 3-Clubs, North 3-Diamonds, South 3-Spades, North 4-Clubs since his partner's two bids of that suit before showing the spades indicated a six-four distribution. South then used the Blackwood convention, bidding 4-No trump to ask about his partner's aces. North showed two with 5-Hearts. South next asked about kings with 5-No trump. North showed one with 6-Diamonds. South then hopped to 7-Clubs.

West saw fit to double this, whereupon North went to 7-No trump, and West also doubled that. When the heart 10 was led, South took stock. There was absolutely no doubling material in the defenders' hands except the missing five clubs, in South's estimation. So he won the heart trick in his closed hand, finessed the club 8, and so made his contract. He would have been defeated positively if West had not doubled.

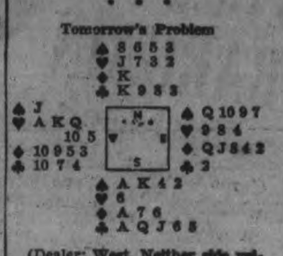
Tomorrow's Problem



(Dealer: West. Neither side vulnerable.)

If South bids 1-Club, West 1-Heart and North 2-Clubs on this deal, East passing, what should South do next?

A saw with which the swimmer was attempting to cut a channel in the ice above Allan's dam was seized yesterday as police interrupted the exhibition.

Cheese Factory Cooperative Needs Funds

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HASTINGS, Feb. 14—Fred Crowe, secretary-treasurer of the Warsaw co-operative cheese factory, addressed a group of farmers from this district at a meeting in the council chambers here Saturday afternoon. The meeting was adjourned from a week ago when a large group of farmers met in Lynch's hall for the purpose of forming a stock company to purchase the Ormonde cheese factory on the outskirts of Hastings from George Gillespie, its present owner.

Mr. Crowe, who has been actively connected with the Warsaw factory for more than sixten years, outlined progress of that co-operative system. Most of his information was of a confidential nature and was given as a guide to the local company if formed.

Walter Fowlds acted as chairman of the meeting in place of Walter Humphries, who is ill. A summary of those who had signed to take shares in the company revealed that $2,100 has been subscribed for from twenty-seven signers. Mr. Fowlds indicated they had hoped to get twice that number since the price of the factory was set at $5,000 by Mr. Gillespie. Charles Foster, who has been interviewing some of the farmers, said that Mr. Gillespie would be satisfied to leave a portion of his money in the fatcory to get it started and sell it out by shares as the opportunity presented itself.

The majority of those present seemed to feel that they should have at least $3,000 to start with and did not seem favorable to starting a company with any less amount. The farmers appointed to look after their consecutive districts were instructed to try and have a greater amount subscribed to and the meeting was adjourned to next Saturday afternon at 2.30 in the council chambers.

Women's Group Meets Bethany

(Examiner Correspondence.)

BETHANY, Feb. 14. — Mrs. Clarence Ferguson was hostess at the February meeting of the Women's Association of the United Church, Bethany, which met at the parsonage on Wednesday afternoon, with 24 members present. The president, Mrs. A. Driver, took charge of the devotional and business part. The meeting was then given over to Group 1. The theme for the worship service, "Love," was fittingly carried out in hymns, readings, and in response to the roll-call. It was decided to have the two quilts donated by Group 2 of last year made ready for sale.

A reading of the Bible alphabet by Mrs. Thompson was followed by a vocal duet, "The Garden of Prayer," by Mrs. Jean Bigelow and Mrs. Harvey Fallis, Mrs. Thorndyke presiding at the piano. A reading by Mrs. Ferguson of a poem, "The Master is coming," was next. A contest and reading were given by Mrs. Driver.

The hostess, assisted by her committee, Mrs. McKinnon, Mrs. Davis, Mrs. Driver, Mrs. Waddell, and Mrs. Thompson, served dainty refreshments during the closing social hour.

A vote of thanks was sponsored by Mrs. Ryley and Mrs. Thorndyke to the ladies in charge, with the hostess.

With The Boy Scouts

St. Andrew's.

The Cub pack has been making steady progress and three new seconders are to be congratulated on their appointments; they are Robin Waite, Dick Crowe and Bobby Murray. We sure wish them happy hunting.

The following tests were also passed: compass, traditional anthem model, cleaning boots, message carrying and exercises by Doug Morrison and Clifford Smith; Kenneth Nicholls passed skipping, somersault and ball throwing; James Airth cleanliness and knots; Douglas Head and Robin Waite, cleanliness.

The pack planned the program for one week each six putting on what they thought best and the Tawny six were awarded 10 points for the best cubby program presented.

St. George's.

There are 12 boys in the troop at present, divided into two patrols, The Fox patrol under P.L. Tom Little fair with Andrew Brown as second and the Wolf patrol with James Brown as P.L., Jim McCormick assisting. First aid instruction has been carried on at the scouter's house for the past six weeks under A.S.M. Siddall.

Tom Littlefair, Jim Brown and Ron Gynane have passed tests for tlefair with Andrew Brown as sectinuing their studies for the senior St. John's Ambulance certificate. The firt aid examinations were conducted by E. L. Tomkins, District Superintendent of the St. John's Ambulance Brigade.

We regret to learn that Scouter George Houghton has dislocated his elbow and wish him a speedy recovery to sound limbs.

St. Paul's.

The troops has been forging ahead steadily during the past weeks, and every scout is asked to do his utmost to be on hand tonight, as the final arrangements are to be made for the annual banquet.

All Saints' Cubs.

Three mothers of the Mothers' Auxiliary were present at a musical night put on by the pack. The evening was filled by recitations, piano solos, guitar solors. The evening was topped by a straw and pea relay.

The Blue six won the monthly pennant from the White six.

The Rover Council

A meeting of the Rover Council had a hard task before them when they decided to do everything possible towards raising some funds to assist in sending a rover representative to the rover moot in Scotland in July next.

When it is realized that it costs about $300 for the trip, we can appreciate the task. It was decided to hold a scout concert made up entirely of scout talenat, and along this line I would urge every scout, cub and rover leader to dig up what talent they have in their groups and phone the names into me at 3067 or to Pete Dominic at 2176-J. Your co-operation is needed. It is also planned to ask every cub and scout to sell two tickets for the concert if and when the final plans are made.

Also, should the necessary funds be raised, each crew will be asked to send in the name of a member of his crew whom he would like to send to the moot. Time is passing, so please do your best in this line. A meeting of the council is called for 7.30 to-night.

The Scouters' Club.

It went over with a bang; the club held the best meeting of its existence and the Imperial Jitterbugs, under Bob Baldwin in charge of the entertainment, helped greatly to its success.

President George Brooks got the business end of the program over in good style.

One of the outstanding features of the program was a talk by Fred Ford, scouter of St. John's. Fred spoke on scouting and politics; keep politics out of scouting but put scouting into politics.

"Duty to God must at all times come first."

Assistant District Commissioner Ernie Wolfe was camp fire chief, and carried out that duty in an able manner.

That noble Scotchman, Bill Mackenzie, is in charge of the entertainment next month, and will have to be on his toes to beat this month's showing.

Local Association.

A meeting of the executive committee of the local association is due to be held on Wednesday of this week. All executive officers are requested to keep that date open. We are wondering if the scout representative will be able to attend this month. We have missed him since he was appointed to that position.

St. John's on Parade.

The Rover crew held a progressive meeting on Tuesday, at which Dr. G. Murray Fraser, past president of the local association, was a visitor.

On Thursday the crew held its annual banquet, every rover and squire being present.

It was regretted that Canon Robertson and W. Lyburn were unable to be with us; the guests present were Rev. R. T. F. Brain, group chaplain; District Commisisoner J. T. Hornsby; District Cub Leader Gordon Clegg; Skipper Bert Cutmore of All Saints', and Bert Graham.

Rover Mate Ken Brown welcomed the guests. Rover Scout Charles Jeffreys proposed the toast to the church; Rev. Brain replying.

Rover Squire Ed Penn proposed the toast to Lord Baden Powell, Chief Scout of the world. J. T. Hornsby repiying. Rover Scout Frank Pammett thanked the ladies for the banquet.

Skipper Cutmore renewed his invitiation for St. John's to attend the rover corporate Communion at All Saints' Sunday morning. Bert Graham spoke on the great need of boy training and the various movements that carried out that work, also quoting that scouting filled every need in the building of good character. Stressing the fact that the main essential is a Christian background. Skipper Groombridge acted as chairman for the evening.

The group mothers' auxiliary, under Mrs. Collis, supplied the banquet and served at table.

The scout troop had another successful evening. Skipper H. Van Everdingen of Port Hope being a welcome visitor. Ken Brown took the gym class and floor hockey caused plenty of steam to be let off. Ron Brand passed compass and second class cooking. G. Best mastered Kim's game.

The cub pack had a meeting packed full with visitors, a plendid time being enjoyed by all. Akela Fred Lloyd and his chubby cubs from Port Hope braved the icy roads to fulfil a promised engagement and was accompanied by Skipper H. Van Everdinger. Other visitors were Akela Pete Dominic of Sacred Heart and Mr. Windsor of Mark Street Church, who is starting a cub pack there.

Next Friday night is a special one for the cubs. A joint pack parents' meeting and pack tobogganing party. The meeting is planned for 7.30 p.m. instead of 6.30 and all parents are urged to attend as an interesting program has been planned.

Cubs are requested to come dressed up warm, also bring your skils, toboggans and parents. If the weather is mild, a night ramble will be held.

Corporate Communion.

Members of St. John's rover crew mingled with the All Saints' crew as they attended Corporate Communion at All Saints on Sunday morning. Group Chaplain Rev. Canon J. D. Paterson officiated. Commissioner J. T. Hornsby, District Cub Master G. Clegg and Troop Committeeman Orville Kidd were among those present. After the service all had breakfast in the basement of the church, served by the ladies of the Mothers' Auxiliary.

Sacred Heart Cubs.

The cubs have been flad to welcome another leader in the jungle when Miss M. McCarthy decided to do her bit with the youngsters. Miss McCarthy will be known hereinafter as Baloo. Good hunting Baloo.

As a good start Baloo and Akela took the cubs with their skils and toboggans up and down Corrigan's Hill. Much snow being displaced in the fun.

District Cubber Gordon Clegg has been helping in the instruction periods for a while, and a great deal of work has been done along these lines. Eldon Paquette passed Union Jack. Ron Gilmour and Mick Crowley, knot tying; George Clarke skipping; Don Corrin, under the title of Kim has been greatly responsible for the stunts put on by the sixers.

The Black six won the "Do your best" pennant for January by the small margin of one point over the Reds, the points as follows: Black 54, Red 53, Greys 41½, White 31½! the White six was the last holders of the pennant.

The pack would appreciate receiving the music to the following songs for a concert they are putting on in the near future. The titles are as follows: Carry On, The Call of the Motherland, Canada, Fall In, Heroes and Gentlemen, There's a Corner of the Flag For You to Hold.

Anyone having music for the above songs, please get in touch with Akela Pete Dominick at 2176-J.

—The Skipper.

Mother Of "Lost Patrol" Leader Mrs. J. M. Fitzgerald Dies

HALIFAX, Feb. 14—(CP).—Mrs. John M. Fitzgerald, mother of the late Inspector Frank Fitzgerald, leader of the old Northwest Mounted Police's ill-fated "lost patrol," died here Saturday. She was 94.

Principal figure in one of the most dramatic incidents in the history of the famed law enforcement body known now as the Royal Canadian Mounted Police, Inspector Fitzgerald perished 27 years ago in the Arctic with three companions.

Leading a patrol to Dawson City, 400 miles to the south, he set out Dec. 20, 1911, from Fort McPherson, far up in the Peel River district. Accompanying the Inspector were Constables Carter, Kinny and Haylor, all travelling lightly because Fitzgerald believed patrols between the two posts always lost valuable time by being too heavily laden.

For a month no word was heard of the patrol and a search party finally was sent from Dawson. The searchers followed a trail of firembers for weeks and found the frozen bodies of the four policemen in March, 1912, more than 100 miles from their goal.

Dated Feb. 5, 1912, the final entry in Inspector Fitzgerald's diary read: "All moneys in dispatch bag and bank, clothes, etc., I leave to my dearly beloved mother, Mrs. J. M. Fitzgerald, Halifax. God bless us all." It was written with the end of a burnt stick.

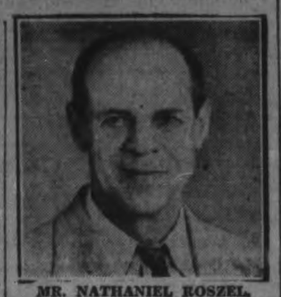
FEELS LIKE DIFFERENT MAN SINCE SYNTONA BUILT HIM UP

Aches and Pains, Stomach Trouble Overcome. Eats Well, Sleeps Soundly and Feels Good All Day



MR. NATHANIEL ROSZEL.

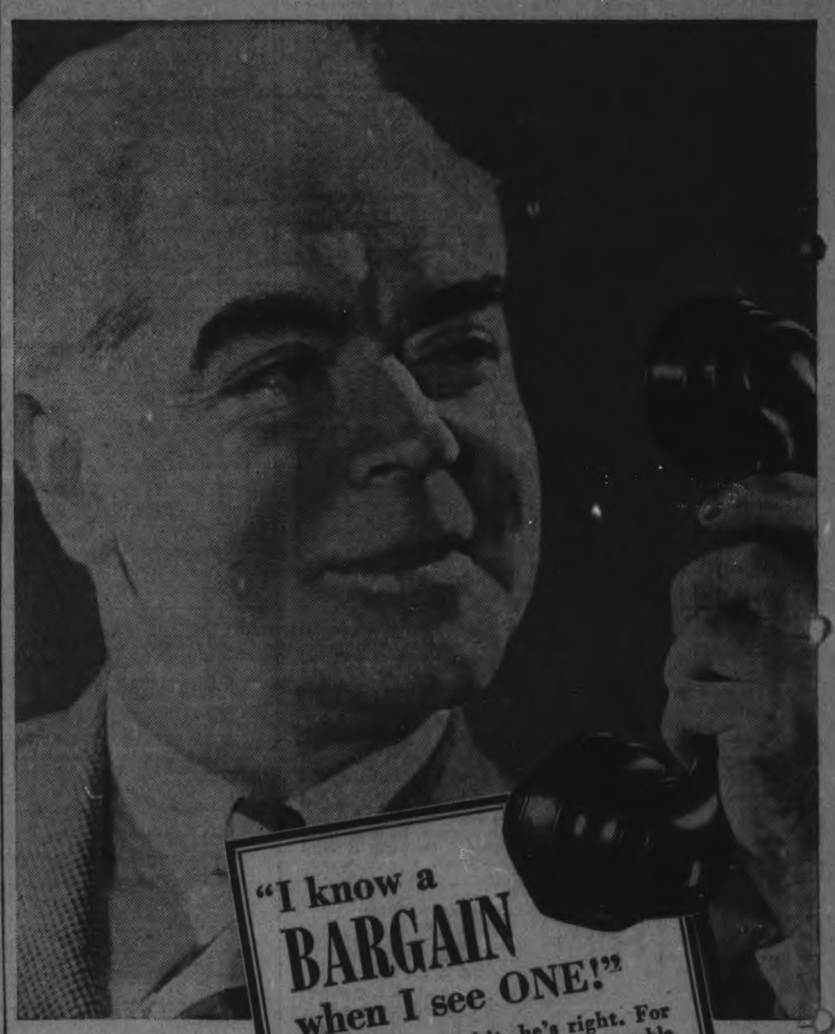
Here is the splendid experience of Mr. Nathaniel Roszel, and after you have read it you will know why he is so happy to-day.

"It is all of two years sine my stomach first started to give me trouble, and in that time I was kept in constant misery with gas, sourness and heartburn. I couldn't find any food thta would agree with me and finally I lost my appetite for even the things I liked most. My kidneys troubled me, too, and I had awful pains in my back, limbs and joints. I seemed to be always needing something for constipation, felt tired and rundown.

"But this has all changed since I have taken a treatment of Syntona. Now my appetite is as good as ever, and I can eat anything I want without suffering afterwards. The aches and pains have gone out of my back and I feel better in every way than I did for two years."

The reason such good results are produced by a medicine that is compounded to treat the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels at the sanfe time is simply this: The organs of assbilation and elimination are so closely related in their functions that when one becomes ailing, it so often affects one or more of the others, and soon the whole system becomes rundown.

Sytona is sold and recommended in Peterboro at Elliott's Drug Stotre. Get yourself a treatment to-day. See how much better you, too, will be feeling in just a short time.



"I know a BARGAIN when I see ONE!"

Come to think of it, he's right. For where will you find anything comparable in value—so much—for so very little?

Every minute, day or night, the telephone is ready to serve your social, business or emergency needs. You may have grown accustomed to this service—you may think nothing of talking across continents and oceans!

But when you do think it over, you realize that the modern telephone represents the greatest value in terms of service that money can buy!

THE BELL TELEPHONE COMPANY OF CANADA — LONG DISTANCE TELEPHONE

Telephone service is widely used because it is courteous, efficient, yet surprisingly inexpensive. Nothing else yields so much for what it costs!

Ship Sinking With 40 Men Aboard

Freighter, Tanker Crash 12 Miles Off San Francisco

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 15—(AP).—The United States coast guard reported that the American tanker Solana and the freighter Virginian collided at 1 a.m. (4 a.m. EST) today off Point Montara, 12 miles south of San Francisco, and that the Virginian had 20 feet of water in her No. 2 hold and was filling fast.

The coast guard cutters Shoshone and Duane sped immediately to the scene.

The Duane radioed at 2.30 a.m. (5.30 a.m. EST) it had reached the side of the Virginian.

The American-Hawaiian freighter Virginian, southbound had between 40 and 45 men aboard. The Solana was owned by the Associated Oil Company and carried a complement of about 35 men.

The Virginian left San Francisco at 10 p.m. last night for San Pedro after loading cargo here for the east coast. The Solana was northbound to San Francisco from Ventura.

The coast guard later received a report that the Solana, apparently not badly damaged, was standing by.

The Virginian's home port is listed in Lloyd's as New York. It is 492 feet long and has a listed net weight of 5,028 tons. It was built in Maryland in 1903.

The Solana, built in New York in 1920, is listed at 4,203 net tons and has a length of 419 feet. It's home port is San Francisco.

Later both ships were reported proceeding to San Francisco under their own power.

Convict Train Passes Through City

A train with approximately 130 convicts passed through Peterborough at 8.30 last evening bound from Kingston Penitentiary to Stoney Mountain Penitentiary in Manitoba. While awaiting the passenger train for Belleville the convict special stood on the siding at Little Lake cemetery for ten minutes. Closely guarded by R.C.M.P. officers no person was allowed near the siding while the train waited on the passenger.

On resuming the trip the train pulled by one of the largest locomotives to pass through here in some time passed through the station without stopping. The convicts chained together in pairs were playing cards. It consisted of three coaches with about forty men in each coach, a dining car and a baggage car.

"Slow Order" Given

HASTINGS, Feb. 15—The convict train passed through here last night about 7.30 at full speed and was seen at close distance by a mere handful at points of vantage in the village. At Birdsall's station, six miles west of here, the train was flagged by the station agent to give the trainman "slow orders." A train proceeding west about an hour previous had passed through with the brake beam dragging and it was a precautionary measure that the slow order was given for four miles beyond the station.

Political Fight Looming On Trade Pact

OTTAWA, Feb. 15 — (CP). — A political fight over the new Canadian-United States trade agreement was in sight today following presentation of the new pact for endorsation in the House of Commons.

Prime Minister Mackenzie King told the House yesterday the reciprocal agreement, and the one negotiated by his government in 1935 which is now replaced, would probably never have been signed if the Conservatives were returned to power in the 1935 general elections.

Twitting the Conservatives for having been divided in cabinet council over trade negotiations with United States prior to the 1935 elections, the prime minister declared his government had accomplished in three weeks what the Conservatives had been endeavoring to do in the last two years they were in power.

Conservative leader Manion did not debate the matter at length yesterday but ridiculed the prime minister's claims the pact with United States had been a great contribution to peace. There had been peace with United Staes for more than 100 years. Dr. Manion adjourned the debate whch will be resumed Friday.

Pledge Partly Filled

The 1935 agreement and the new one which became effective last Jan. 1 is a partial fulfillment of the government's pledge to make agreements with all countries willing to trade, the prime minister said.

Canada's co-operation in making possible the Anglo-American trade agreement, signed in Washington at the same time as the new Canada-U.S. pact, enabled conclusion of "the most important agreement in modern times" and was a great contribution to better relations among nations.

In a statement of Canada's trading policy, the prime minister said Canada was committed to developing freer trade relations with countries "with which there can be no question of the disturbance of good political relations."

He specified British countries and the United States, adding that "so far as freedom of trade is concerned, we are always willing to add to these countries other countries whose policies are guided by the same democratic ideas, such as France, the Scandinavian countries, Holland and Belgium." Miami Hotel Looted Of $150,000

Machine Gun Gang Ties Guests, Rifles Deposit Boxes

MIAMI BEACH, Fla., Feb. 15—(AP).—Five holdup men rifled a bank of safe deposit boxes in the Blackstone Hotel early today and escaped with loot placed by some sources at between $150,000 and $200,000.

The figure was obtained by the Miami Daily News from insurance investigators who declined to be quoted directly.

One guest alone was reported to have been robbed of $100,000. The News said Mrs. Antonina Marko of New York reported losing four diamond and emerald bracelets, three diamond rings, a $25,000 pearl necklace and $2,000 in cash.

Another guest, Morris Millinet of East Orange, N.J., was reported to have had $600 in one of the rifled boxes.

The paper also reported four of the bandits carried sub-machine guns and a fifth a revolver.

The robbers trussed up five guests, the clerk, a bellboy and two housemen and then, apparently well acquainted with the hotel layout, went to the basement to bind a baker working there.

Returning to the office they broke open the safety deposit boxes with chisels, police said, entering only 16 in a bank of 100. They escaped in a big sedan.

Porter Loses Life Savings.

One guest, Mrs. Antonina Marko of New York, told Detectives John McCarter and John Selby her loss amounted to $75,000, represented by four diamond and emerald bracelets, three diamond rings, a $25,000 pearl necklace and $2,000 cash. She said she placed the valuables in the box last night, but displayed other jewels she said were worth $40,000 which she had taken to her room.

Dave Greenblatt, head porter, told of losing $3,500 worth of gems and cash representing his life savings. Mrs. Morris Millinet of East Orange, N.J., said she had a $600 bingo prize in one of the rifled boxes, and Mrs. Anna Blumenthal of Portland, Ore., said she reported the theft of a bracelet and brooch worth $2,500.

Mild Blizzard Lays Blanket On Ontario

TORONTO, Feb. 15 — (CP). — Snow fell thickly over most of Southern and Eastern Ontario to-day and with temperatures well below freezing "considerably colder" weather was forecast. Only in the eastern sections of the province did the snowstorm threaten to impede highway traffic.

A mild blizzard was reported at Kingston where more than three inches of snow fell during the night. A strong north-east wind piled the snow into drifts that forced automobiles to move slowly in the city and district. The storm promised to become serious by late afternoon.

Throughout Central and Western Ontario one to four inches of snow fell, but no interruption in the movement of highway traffic was reported. Buses and street cars moved without difficulty through four inches of snow at St. Catharines while three inches fell at Niagara Falls and four inches at Welland.

The weather forecast for the lower region of the province was: "Snow; considerably colder to-night."

45 Flee Into 12 Below Zero At Rouyn As New $30,000 Hotel Burns

ROUYN, Que., Feb. 15—(CP).—Forty-five guests, visitors and help fled for their lives into 12-below-zero weather here early today when fire destroyed the New Rouanda Hotel. Guests and help escape in night clothes.

More than 100 men and women, girls and boys who had been attending a special Valentine dance left the hotel 25 minutes before the fire broke out. Loss was set by Fire Chief Thibeault at $25,000 to $30,000. Cause of the fire was unknown.

Flames swept through the three-storey hotel shortly after 3 a.m. Two guests jumped from second-storey windows to safety. Several were carried down the firemen's ladders. The most escaped via fire escapes or through the front door.

Two people who attended the Valentine Day dance were burned. Miss Lucille Boyce, 19, Rouyn, lies in Youville hospital. Noranda, in serious condition. William Blackburn, Royn, is suffering slight burns.

Roland Laframboise, 27-year-old night clerk, was lauded as the hero of the fire. When the alarm was sounded he telephoned every guest—29 in all—though flames were sweeping toward him and he was choking in the blinding smoke.

"Hero?" queried Laframboise, who said he was looking for a job. "Not at all. I was just doing my job. Someone had to arouse the guests. That someone was me. When I got too hot I left."

He managed to save the hotel cash register and guest book and other papers, but lost everything of his own.

Any German May Be Drafted For Urgent Tasks Under Latest Of Goering's Decrees

BERLIN, Feb. 15 (AP)—Field Marshal Hermann Goering today empowered that labor office and its sub-departments throughout Germany to draft any worker who might be needed to perform tasks deemed urgent and of importance to the welfare of the state.

Under his decree, every in habitant of Germany, foreigners excepted, may be drafted for whatever form of labor Goering, as dictator of the four-year plan for economic self-sufficiency, deems necessary.

Men or women holding jobs must be given leave of absence immediately by their employers when drafted.

If a task prescribed by the labor office acting under Goering's instructions is of indefinite duration, the person drafted is regarded as having resigned his former position.

But if he is drafted only for a stated period, the employer must keep his job open for him and take him back whenever the labor office's special requirement is filled.

The employer is not compelled to pay wages for the absent period, but the drafted person's wage scale for his new job may not necessarily be the same.

Britain Replies To Threats With 2 Billion Arms Plan

Navy Prepares To Take Care Of Sub Menace; Borrowing Power Doubled For Emergency

(By J. F. Sanderson, Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

LONDON, Feb. 15 (CP Cable).—Great Britain will spend £523,000,000 ($2,450,908,750) in the fiscal year 1939-40 on air, land and sea defence, it was announced in a Government White Paper today.

It will mean a total expenditure of £1,173,000,000 since the rearmament program entered its final stage in 1937.

In addition to the straight defence votes the government will appropriate £42,000,000 for civil defence and £5,000,000 for storage of food, fertilizers and gasoline.

As one means of financing rearmament costs, the government will introduce legislation to double its power to borrow money, making the limit £800,000,000.

The air estimates for this year will exceed £200,000,000, the highest in Britain's history.

Navy Keeps Up To Menaces.

A new naval building program will be started which will include two battleships in addition to the seven built or authorized since 1937. The 1939 program will include two destroyer flotillas each consisting of eight ships and 20 fast escort vessels of a new type intended for the protection of shipping against submarine or air attack. This is believed to be Britain's answer to Germany's new submarine program.

Provision also will be made for the construction of a new aircraft carrier.

Four large six-inch gun cruisers also will be built.

Discussing financing of this vast plan, the Chancellor of the Exchequer, Sir John Simon, announced to the House that legislation will be introduced to double the government's borrowing power to £800,000,000 for defence purposes. The 1937 legislation set a limit of £400,000,000 for a five-year period ending in 1942.

Of that total £200,000,000 has been used so the result of the new bill will be to provide authority for £600,000,000 to be borrowed in the future.

Preparing for Air Raids.

The white paper presented to parliament by Prime Minister Chamberlain made this general observation:

"The increase in the cost of the program, and the further borrowing power required, are largely necessitated by the increase in our defensive strength to meet the risk of air attack.

"It is everywhere recognized our armaments have no aggressive purpose. His Majesty's Government deeply deplore the need for expenditure of these vast sums on armaments. They have already indicated that when other nations are prepared to consider some arrangement for the limitation of armaments, this country will be prepared to play its part.

"But in the absence of a general reduction in armaments, it is inevitable this country should continue to take steps necessary in the light of present developments for its own protection and for the discharge of its responsibilities elsewhere.

"His Majesty's Government are pressing forward with the programs outlined. They are confident the people of this country will be ready to bear the heavy burden involved and will share the determination of His Majesty's Government to ensure the adequacy of our defence preparations."

Indicating the tremendous growth of Britain's rearmament program, the three defence departments—navy, army and air—spent £262,000,000 in 1937; £388,000,000 in the current fiscal year, and now will jump to £523,000,000 in 1939-1940.

Similarly expenditures for civil defence increased from £3,500,000 in 1937 to £9,250,000 this year and the 1939-40 estimate is £42,000,000, exclusive of assistance to vital public utility services and water for emergency fire-fighting purposes which is estimated at £9,000,000.

100,000 Students Sick With 'Flu In Chicago

CHICAGO, Feb. 15 (AP)—A survey of Chicago public school attendance was undertaken today to determine whether they should be closed in an effort to check the spread of influenza and other respiratory diseases.

A school survey last week disclosed 100,000 pupils and 1,200 teachers absent because of illness.

William Johnson, superintendent of schools, was among the "flu" victims.

More than 300 influenza cases and nine "flu" deaths have been recorded. Thousands of other cases, less severe, do not appear on official records, the health board said.

Fight Finishes Dog A Tap Dancer, On His Birthday

Des Moines, Ia., eb. 15 (AP) THE BIRTHDAY presents Mrs. J. T. Martin had planned for her widely-known tap dancing dog, Buster, will be buried with him. Buster died yesterday of shock and exposure that followed a fight last week. He would have been 9 years old Feb. 27. Mrs. Martin said he would be buried today in a satin-lined coffin with four pairs of shoes—his dancing shoes, a new red sweater and a pint of ice cream. The latter two were to have been the dog's birthday presents.

Never Saw Train Approaching Hudson Swears

(Tuesday afternoon's evidence found on Pages 2 and 8.)

"I don't think the evidence presented here could justify a finding of manslaughter," Mr. Justice Greene told the jury hearing the case of Alfred Hudson of Lakefield, charged with manslaughter, in his address to the jury this afternoon. His Lordship pointed out that a conviction might be registered if the jury saw fit on a lesser charge of reckless driving.

"The type of reckless driving which might justify a verdict of manslaughter would be of a wild and reckless nature such as by a drunken man," Mr. Justice Green said, and added that he did not consider such negligence had been proved in this case.

Feature evidence of the morning session was given when Hudson took the stand in his own defence as the last witness to be heard.

He was travelling north on Water street at about 10 minutes to six o'clock on the evening of the fatality, he said, with Cyril Hutt as passenger. He was driving at a speed of between 15 and 20 miles an hour. The truck carried only a light load.

The seat of the truck was considerably higher than in an ordinary car. It was a chilly night and he had all the windows closed and windows and windshield were both clean, he testified.

"As I went over the railroad crossing I felt a jar at the right hand side of my truck."

"Tell us what happened before that."

"When I got close to the railway crossing, I looked to right and left."

"When did you look to the right?"

"Just after I passed the Lillico building."

"What rate of speed were you travelling at immediately after you looked both ways?"

"I didn't slacken my speed or alter it in anyway."

"When was the first intimation you had of a train in the vicinity?"

"When I crossed the track."

"What happened then?"

Lights Went Out

"I felt a jar on the back of the truck. My lights went out and my motor stopped. I put in my clutch and coasted until they came on again. Then I stopped the truck and

Farm Settlement Scheme For South Ontario To Be Tried On Reliefees

Cross To Test Idea With Hundred Families On Vacant Plots Of 10 To 50 Acres, Supply Stock, Pay Relief Till Harvest

TORONTO, Feb. 15 (CP).—Inauguration of a new farm settlement scheme to rehabilitate families on relief was announced today by Hon. Eric Cross, Minister of Public Welfare and Municipal Affairs.

Present plans call only for an experimental scheme involving expenditure of not more than $60,000, the cost to be borne by the province, the Dominion and the municipalities on a 40-40-20 basis.

The Federal Government has approved the plan and it is expected the first families will be settled early in March. Mr. Cross expected the initial appropriation would provide for at least 100 families and that the scheme, if successful, would be extended gradually.

Briefly, the proposal entails:

Settling of relief families who have had farming experience upon equipped, vacant farms of 10 to 50 acres in southern Ontario, supplying these families with equipment and livestock valued at not more than $600 and for which participating municipality will obtain a chattel mortgage, rental of farms to be paid for a year in advance with the farmer reserving the right to purchase the property at the end of three years, regular relief scale to be paid in cash to the family until end of the first harvest season, the government supplying the necessary grain and roots for the first planting.

Pick Right Families

"Similar undertakings have been carried out on a small scale in Hamilton, London and Windsor areas," Mr. Cross said, "and the experience thus gained warrants a continuance and extension of the experiment. In the present plan we intend to exercise every care to obtain the proper type of family, as upon this factor depends the entire success of the project."

The ideal family, he said, would include a man, his wife and sons of sufficient age to be of use in operating the farm. Close supervision will be maintained over the farms by welfare officials.

Germany Will Double Size Of Kiel Canal

BERLIN, Feb. 15 — (AP).—Plans for enlargement of the Kiel Canal, the important connecting link between the Baltic and the North Sea, were officially announced to-day as part of Germany's "reconstruction program." The announcement came a day after Chancellor Hitler launched the 35,000-ton battleship Bismarck.

The bed of the canal will be widened to double its present size. Old-fashioned locks are to be replaced by modern ones.

Push Indo-China Fortifying France Advised

PARIS, Feb. 15.—(AP)—Strong forces of gunboats and seaplanes backed by coastal artillery batteries and fortified bases were recommended to parliament today to strengthen the defences of French Indo-China against the possibility of either Japanese or Siamese attacks.

The proposals were made by Deputy Edouard Bousquet, vice chairman of the naval affairs committee, who spent three months recently inspecting Indo-Chinese defences.

The report admitted by inference that similar recommendations made two years ago had failed to advance beyond preliminary stages. These earlier suggestions included construction of fortified naval and air bases, installation of coast defence guns and recruiting of a large native army under French officers.

Bousquet's proposals are based on a series of international complications growing out of the Japanese invasion of China together with the recent Japanese occupation of Chinese Hainan Island, east of Indo-China.

He said he considered seriously the possibility of Japanese and Siamese action against Indo-China which he declared was "isolated and with only a little chance of getting help from the mother country." (Siam in the past few months has indicated her friendliness toward Japan.)

"It is a question of reinforcing by all possible means the coastal defences—batteries of anti-aircraft guns, mine blockades and fortified garrisons," Bousquet said.

No Decision Yet In Franco's Case

LONDON, Feb. 15 (CP Cable) — The British government has made no decision about recognizing General Franco as leader of the sole Spanish administration, Prime Minister Chamberlain told the House of Commons today.

The whole Spanish situation was reviewed by the cabinet at its weekly meeting this morning but the prime minister, replying to George Strauss, Labor, declared no decisions were made.

To Arthur Henderson, another Labor member, Mr. Chamberlain said the government is "most anxious" to see a termination of the Spanish conflict without unnecessary bloodshed. Close touch is being maintained with both sides, he said, but at present it is not thought advisable for Great Britain to sponsor any particular scheme of mediation.

Mr. Henderson had asked whether the government was willing to sponsor a settlement "on the basis that all foreign troops should be withdrawn, that there should be no reprisals, and that the Spanish people should have an opportunity of choosing their own form of government."

Man Who Doomed Many A Rebel To Die By Firing Squad Himself

By Larry Allen
(Associated Press Foreign Staff.)

BARCELONA, Feb. 15 — (AP).—Six Spanish government leaders went on trial for their lives to-day while only military formalities stood between Eduardo Barriobero, first President of Madrid-Barcelona Peoples' Tribunals, and an insurgent firing squad.

Barriobero, 61-year-old anarchist lawyer, was sentenced to death last night by an insurgent military tribunal in the same room of the Palace of Justice where he himself once pronounced death sentences on insurgent sympathizers.

He will be executed as soon as the Captain-General of the military district formally approves the sentence.

Barriobero, who told the military court he could have escaped before Barcelona fell on January 26, but preferred to remain, was the first to get the death sentence from the insurgent conquerors of this Catalonian metropolis.

Those who went on trial to-day were charged with high revolutionary crimes. They were:

Emilio Ventura, a president of the Government People's Court who was accused of signing many death warrants.

Held as Embezzler.

Manuel Garridor, president of the first revolutionary committee organized in the assemly plant of General Motors in Barcelona after the workers "collectivized" and took control of that establishment. He was charged with embezzlement.

Emilio Morales, president of a revolutionary syndicate in the automobile industry.

Guillermo Bodo, described as a Jew expelled from German and accused of being an assassin and gunman.

Pablo Verdad, chief of one of Barcelona's "patrols" exercising its own police power.

Francisco Piquer, anarchist accused of murdering five priests in the Convent of the Sacred Family of Barcelona.

All the trials were being conducted by "councils of war."

The woman, booked last night as Mrs. Mary Cusack, was seized by two men after one knocked the revolver from her hands.

Detective Eugene McNally said the woman told him she had attempted the holdup to obtain money to feed her two sons.

Gunman Suspect, Woman Pal Nabbed On Bus After Stripping Taximan, Taking $7

OAKVILLE, Ont., Feb. 15 (CP)—William Andrews, 25-year-old Montrealer, and Esther Young of no given address are in custody today on charges of armed robbery arising from the alleged hold-up of a Hamilton taxi-driver.

The two were arrested here last night on a Toronto-bound autobus after George Westbrook, driver for a Hamilton company, telephoned police and told them a man and a woman had stripped him of his clothing except his underwear and forced him to drive them 20 miles to Bronte. He said they had tried to drive off in his machine but were unable to work the gear-shift.

Westbrook said the pair had hailed him in Hamilton and asked to be driven to Burlington. They forced him at gun-point, he told police, to leave his cab on a sideroad after removing his clothing. Seven dollars were taken from his pocket.

When the man and woman left his cab at Bronte, Westbrook said, he saw them duck behind a garage and jump aboard a bus.

Lack Of Work Peeves The Senate

Meighen Tips House They Won't Rush Last-Minute Bills

OTTAWA, Feb. 15 (CP). — Whether the Senate will have some business before it or, after an adjournment of a month, be obliged to take another adjournment will be decided some time today. Lack of work evoked severe castigation of the government last night.

Government Leader Dandurand deplored that on their return from the four weeks' lay-off the Senators were faced with a blank order paper. This was an old complaint, one that recurred regularly each session. He had protested frequently in the past on this score.

So seriously did Conservative Leader Meighen regard this condition that he warned the government not to expect the Senate to skip over the bills which, towards the close of the session, would be poured in on the Senate. None of them should pass without proper study.

He objected to the Senate being regarded merely as an instrument whose job was to rubber-stamp the legislation which the Commons "pitched in its face." He attributed the present workless condition of the Upper House to the "lack of courage and capacity" of those responsible for the operations of parliament.

In the past, legislation had been initiated in the Senate. Much study had been given, on such occasions, to measures of highest importance, and the legislation had stood the test of time, said Senator Meighen. He felt humiliated to return to Ottawa after a lapse of several weeks and find nothing to do.

Senator Creelman MacArthur (Lib., P.E.I.) suggested the Senate leaders confer with a view to finding ways of keeping the Senators employed, without having to adjourn again.

In the House yesterday tribute was paid by both leaders to the memory of the late Pope Pius XI. Senator Dandurand read the message the Canadian government had transmitted to the Papal Secretary of State, through the British Minister to the Vatican.

That message had expressed the sentiments of himself. He was convinced His Holiness had laid down doctrines of toleration, peace and amity that struck a responsive note throughout the world.

Senator Meighen declared non-Catholics also appreciated the value of the late Pontiff's services to the Church and the world at large, particularly the vital strength of his appeal for a restoration of the standards of morality and his devotion to the secred cause of peace.

Never Saw Train

got out to see what was hit. As I turned around I could see the train across the roadway." That, he said, was the first time he saw the train.

He returned to the crossing "saw a man on the ground."

"Did you know the deceased before?"

"Yes, sir, quite well."

"What did you do then?"

"I held the lantern while the train crew did all they could for Joe."

and from Lakefelid and gave the schedule of passenger trains travelling between Peterborough and Lakefield and crossing the Water street intersection.

He had never seen a train except those regular passenger trains, at the crossing.

He said he had not heard the train bell on the evening of the accident. The racks made a cerain amount of noise and the light load was not tied down. Also the windows were closed.

"Can you offer any explanation as to why you didn't see the train when you say you looked to the right?"

"There is a possibility the train may have been too close for me to see its lights by looking to the rgiht"

Brakes Tested

He said his brakes had been tested by police just after the accident and that they had stopped the truck successfully.

Asked about his eyesight, he said the sight in the right eye was "very good, sir." The range of his vision, too, he considered good.

"How long have you been drivink?"

"About 23 years. I was taught to drive in the Canadian army overseas." He drove privately until about six years ago and since that time has driven a truck for a living, travelling considerable distances. The truck was in good condition, he said.

"How is your hearing?"

"Very good, sir."

In cross-examination he said the locality in which the accident occurred is "very familiar" to him. Asked it he had seen a railway warning sign before he came to the crossing, he replied in the affirmative.

"You knew quite well then that there was a railway crossing there?"

"Yes, sir."

"If you had seen a train when you looked, you were going slow enough to be able to stop?"

"Yes, sir."

No obstruction of any kind in the cab of the truck could have prevented his seeing an approaching train, he said.

He affirmed he had not seen the train until after he had stopped his truck. His right eye, nearest the approaching train, was his good one. When he returned to the crossing he had not heard the bell.

Alfred McKee was first witness as the case went into its second day this morning.

McKee, a reporter-photographer, identified pictures he had taken of the crossing where Meagher met his death. He testified that lighting in the vicinity is poor.

Good Driver.

William Duffus testified he had tested Hudson for driving ability. He had "put him through" twice as extensive a test as would be normally given. "I found him to be a good driver."

Kenneth Mackenzie, principal of the Grove School, at Lakefield, said he drives frequently to Peterborough by Highway 28.

Mr. Carley asked whether he considered the crossing a dangerous one, and Mr. McElderry objected to the question on the grounds the witness was not an expert witness.

His Lordship agreed that little could be gained from the question, and Mr. Carley did not press it.

He gave character evidence. "He has an enviable reputation. I think he is an excellent citizen." Hudson has the reputation of being a careful driver, he said.

Fred T. Tuggey, bricklayer and former alderman, said he had been surprised by a train at the Water Street crossing the night following the accident.

In cross-examination he said he had heard the train bell a hundred yards before he reached the crossing. He admitted he had seen the train, but continued on his way, believing the train at the time to be on the east side of the river, whereas actually it was on the west.

"I heard the train gong and took it was granted it was on the other side."

"But did you actually see it?"

"Well, yes, I must have seen it."

In re-examination he said he must have been mistaken when he thought he had seen the train before reaching the crossing.

Hudson then took the stand.

Address to Jury

After a short intermission Mr. Carley opened his address to the jury. "No person in the courtroom regrets the accident more than the accused." he said.

He reviewed level crossings and attempts of officials to bring about an end to all of them. All level crossings are dangerous, and particularly this one, he said, describing poor lighting and heavy traffic as reasons.

"But we have a further reason in this case. The passing of the bylaw prevents the sounding of a railway whistle within the limits of the city. All you people know that you are accustomed to be warned of the approach of a train at a crossing by the shrill note of a whistle."

Evidence had been brought forward that the bylaw had been broken in respect to ringing the bell at a greater distance than 75 feet. Why, then, he asked, did the train not make a good job of warning by blowing the whistle? He argued that since the bylaw was broken in any case, the whistle should have been blown and a good warning given. Tests as to how far a man could see "mean not one thing" because there was only darkness on the night in question, he maintained. "To say you can see for 125 feet south of the track, as far as the railway bridge, is alright in daylight, but not in darkness. The police who made the tests did so in daylight and from the low seat of a car, whereas the accused was sitting in a high truck, making trees in the vicinity a greater obstruction.

There was no element of speed or recklessness brought out in evidence, he said. Windows were closed, a truck motor makes considerable noise.

"That, in itself, would drown out the sound." In addition, the train is in a slight valley and there is noise from the Lillico building, he pointed out.

Only sight and sound are warnings of trains, he said. The city council, he said, had almost plugged the ears of the motorist by passing a bylaw governing sounding of whistles. In regard to his eyesight, it had been shown to be good.

Did Not See Train

Hudson was not the only man who did not see the train. Hutt, a crown witness, did not see it. If the lights were sufficient to cause a warning, despite the fact he was not at the wheel, Hutt would have observed the train. The engineer did not see the washout signal made by one of the crew, he said.

In regard to the speed of the train, he said he found difficulty in accepting the estimate of speed made by the crew.

A man could not reasonably be expected to see the train, he maintained, yet such was the only claim of the Crown. There was no indication of speed and "the whole thing might be summed up that he did not see the train."

A duty lay on Burtt to give a warning of the impending accident to Meagher, he said. Meagher would have been able to jump for he was an active man, he said. In the instant before he jumped and when he realized an accident was inevitable, "he could have given an effective warning to Meagher," he reiterated.

In his address Mr. McElderry recalled that Cyril Hutt had said the accused did not turn to the right to see the train. He pointed out that Hutt was closely associated with the accused and asked the jury to remember that evidence particularly.

Failed To Keep Lookout.

"The theory of the prosecution is that the man was driving and did not keep a proper lookout," said Mr. McElderry. "Not that he was driving at a great speed, or was under the influence of liquor, but that he did not keep a proper lookout."

Meagher, he maintained, did die because the accused did not see the oncoming train.

He told the jury that were they not to find the accused guilty of manslaughter they could bring in a verdict of guilty of reckless driving.

No claim by the defence that Meagher may have been partly negligent, or the engineer or crew, should have any bearing on the trial, he said. Contributory negligence has no place in a criminal investigation an dthe only question facing the jury was whether Hudson's negligence contributed to Meagher's death.

He reviewed evidence produced to show that Hudson had been negligent. He said Hutt had said in evidence that accused had not looked to the right as he approached the crossing.

His Lordship interrupted and produced the court stenographer's notes to show that Hutt had said instead, that he did not know whether Hudson had looked or not.

Mr. McElderry apologized to the jury, said he had misunderstood Mr. Hutt's words.

"Can you say that it was not negligence that a man drove right across the track and didn't know a train was coming until after he had struck it? That is the indisputable evidence before you."

"What other explanation can there be to the fact that he did not see the train except that he was not keeping a proper lookout.

Court was adjourned at 1.30 until 2 o'clock when Mr. Justice Greene will charge the jury.

Crown's Case Is Concluded Against Hudson

Hearing of a case of manslaughter against Alfred Hudson of Lakefield in Supreme Court assizes before Mr. Justice Ainslie Greene of Ottawa, was adjourned at 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon after an all-day session. The court commenced again this morning at 10 o'clock. All crown witnesses were heard yesterday and two for the defence.

The charge arose following a collision between a C.N.R. tender and a truck allegedly driven by Hudson, at a railway intersection on Water street near Hilliard street last October 25. Joseph Meagher, yard foreman, was killed.

Ross Burtt, C.N.R. employee for the past 16 years, Meagher's helper, gave evidence that opened the afternoon session Tuesday. He had been standing on the left footboard of the tender at the time of the accident and Meagher had been standing on the right footboard. Both were carrying lighted lanterns, he said, and the engine light was lighted. The bell was ringing for a short distance after the train had crossed a bridge 500 feet east of the crossing, he testified. The tender was moving at a speed of 6 to 8 miles an hour when it approached Water street, he said.

He saw the headlights of Hudson's truck showing through the windows of the Lillico building before the tender came to the crossing. It was travelling at a speed of 20 or 25 miles an hour, he estimated.

"I kept expecting it to stop until it got too close and I dropped off. The truck did not lessen or increase its speed, nor did it attempt to turn aside, he said. I heard the crash and went around the tender later a letter fluttered from a barred window purporting to give information on the transfer.

In Ottawa, Justice Minister Ernest Lapointe said the transfer was a routine move to relieve pressure on accommodations at the Kingston Penitentiary and that similar transfers were made periodically.

The train was made up of three passenger coaches, a dining car and a baggage car. Windows were barred and blinds were ordered pulled down when the train made stops.

Prison guards, who aided the B.C. M.P. on the special, were much surprised when reporters and cameramen met the train at Lindsay. At that point the men were seen smoking and eating before the blinds were ordered down.

As the train left Lindsay the blinds were shot up, one window was raised and an envelope fluttered out. On one side, as if meant to be a postscript to the enclosed letter, was "Nate—chained like wild animals. Made us pull blinds down (now) so you think we are in feather beds." The other side bore a notation for delivery of the note to newspapers.

The letter, written on Kingston Penitentiary stationery, said:

"This is a shipment of 'human cargo, about 130 going from the cesspool of iniquity, extreme filth and cruelty otherwise known as Kingston Penitentiary to Stony Mountain pen in Manitoba and Prince Albert in Saskatchewan under the supervision of the R.C.M. Police. It is composed of lifers. Twenty years etc. down to as low as 2 year men. These men are being dragged away against their own wishes to distances which make it impossible for them to receive visits from their relatives or friends. They call this the 20th century but to all appearances we are still i the dark ages in the days when the prisoners were transported from one continent to another yet they call this a free country of democracy — Canada wake up—can't write more."

Predict Farouk Successor To Mohammed

LONDON, Feb. 15.—(CP)—Hailing of young King Farouk of Egypt as Khalif of Islam and commander of the faithful at the Cairo Quosoun Mosque has renewed speculation here as to whether the latest successor to Mohammed has at last been found.

The king has assumed the role of "Imam" and led the congregation in prayers intending a compliment to visting Arab princes. Popular feeling in Egypt, which for some time had been in favor of the king as the chief civil and religious ruler of Mohammedism, was shown by a burst of cheering for the "Khalif" at the end of the service.

It was the first time a king had taken the place of the "Imam" since the Khalifs.

Reuters correspondent interpreted the action of the king as a personal effort to show he was willing to stand as leader of a united Islam. The correspondent wrote that since the last Khalif Abdel Majid was deposed by modern Turkey there had been no effort to restore the Khalifate and it was evident from the attitude of the Arab princes at the Mosque that Farouk would be acclaimed a popular leader of a united Arab front.

Well informed circles declared development of a united Mohammedism under the pro-British king might have a far reaching effect in solving the Palestine problem.

The title Khalif, head of the Moslem community and successor to Mohammed, was abolished when Abdel Majid was sent into exile in 1924.

When this Ottoman Khalifate was abolished, King Hussein of the Hedjaz was proclaimed Khalif in Mecca and Transjordan, but some months later he abdicated. In May, 1926, an International Khalifate Congress was held in Cairo by those who held that the Moslem world must always have a Khalif as head of the community. But no practical decision was taken.

Blaze At Harwood Nipped In Time

HARWOOD, Feb. 15.—What might have been a serious fire occurred on Sunday night when Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Hall returned home about midnight and found the floor of the kitchen at the rear of the general store and dwelling in flames. Other members of the family, who were asleep in the house, were soon aroused and helped get the fire under control.

Mr. J. R. Hall is at a loss to know the cause of the fire.

A close watch was kept all night to be sure the fire did not break out again.

Personals.

Mr. Ronald Lawton is able to be out around again, after having been confined to the house for the past three weeks with an attack of jaundice.

Mr. Albert Sandercock of Picton, visited here over the week-end and attended the dance in the hall on Saturday evening.

Congratulations to Mr. and Mrs. Edward McFarland on the arrival of a baby daughter in Cobourg Hospital on Sunday.

How MANY ANGELS ?

Scholars in the Middle Ages argued for centuries over how many angels could dance on the point of a needle. It was a useless question . . . but how many Canadians are supported on tobacco leaves? That is an intensely practical question.

Imagine, if you can, a convention of all the people in this country, and their dependents, who are supported by the tobacco industry . . . All the farmers and their help . . . All who work in processing plants where the tobacco is aged and mellowed . . . All the men and women who work in tobacco factories . . . All the wholesalers with their salesmen and office staffs . . . All the store keepers with their clerks . . .

Why, such a convention would need a hall big enough to seat over 300,000 people! As many people as live in Vancouver; twice as many as in Quebec City . . .

Market Review

TORONTO, Feb. 15 — (CP). — Prices were given another moderate shake down to-day on the Toronto share market as buying sentiment weakened. Outside influences, mainly of European origin, fostered an atmosphere of caution and many traders returned to the side lines. Some of the cheaper golds moved in considerable volume but, as in other groups, the selling was a little more urgent than buying and indices were down at the close. Turnover was nearly 200,000 shares greater than in Tuesday's session with volume of close to 700,000 shares.

In limited buying demand stocks fell into a downward trend in the early session and all indices were off at noon. Gold shares showed the widest losses and individual recessions in the secondary group ranged from 5 to 20 cents. The list rallied a little in the early afternoon.

Nervousiness over the situation in Europe appeared to be the only explanation for the weakness. All the senior base metal shares eased off and Waite-Amulet posted a loss of 35 cents. This was reduced slightly in the early afternoon. Soft spots in the gold list included East Malartic, Hard Rock, MacLeod-Cockchutt, Pamour, O'Brien and others.

Most of the Western oils weakened. Calgary-Edmonton, Okalta, Home, Anglo-Canadian and Dalhousie dropped 5 cents or more.

Steel, utility, food oil, paper and beverage issues chalked up moderate losses and other industrial groups were barely firm.

Wall Street Close.

NEW YORK, Feb. 15 — (AP). — Aircrafts put on the main climbing act in a spotty stock market show to-day.

Some of the aviations—spotlighted anew by heavy French orders for warplanes in the United States—ran their gains to more than a point before the final hour and helped bolster the market generally.

Citizens Give Support To Humane Society

Citizens of Peterborough are solidly behind the Humane Society in the campaign to prevent cruelty to animals, Dr. Thomas Johnston, veterinarian and inspector for the society, states in his annual report. Dr. Johnston, to prove this statement, sets forth several instances when housewives have noticed horses in an emaciated or injured condition or being abused by the drivers and have immediately notified the inspector.

Dr. Johnston's report summarizes the activities of the society during 1938 and shows that an amazing amount of work was done in abolishing abuses. He pays tribute to Provincial Constable David Silvester, to members of the city police force and to the other Provincial police and county constables throughout the district, all of whom have given valuable co-operation during the year.

Statistics included in the report reveal that 1,780 animals came under the care of the society during the year, 3,600 phone calls were completed and the inspector covered 7,000 miles in the course of his duties. There were two court cases, in which the inspector laid informations against offenders and was successful in getting convictions in both cases. Magistrates in both instances severely reprimanded the accused persons for the careless and unnecessary ill-treatment of animals.

50 Dogs Killed.

During the year motor vehicles either killed or maimed fifty dogs on the city streets; in many cases the injuries were so severe it was necessary for the inspector to destroy the dog. 125 stray dogs were also disposed of by means of the lethal chamber, and hundreds of cats were disposed of in the same manner. The electrocuting apparatus owned by the society is said to be the most modern and humane system in existence today for such a purpose.

Dr. Johnston also relates that he made it a point to inspect all horses during the racing period at the exhibitions and inspected animals at a circus which had a showing here. He expresses regret that there was so much rough driving and abuse in the single driving classes at the Exhibition.

Members of the society voiced their appreciation for the splendid and untiring efforts which Dr. Johnston had put forth during the year, and thanked him also for the very complete report of activities.

Gordon K. Fraser addressed the society at the annual meeting and enumerated some of the most common abuses to horses in recent years. In road work and logging he told of seeing several animals drawing heavy loads with collars so tight they could scarcely breathe. He had the collars replaced at his own expense. He spoke of the cruelty to wild horses in Arizona and Texas, where the animals are chased possibly all day and finally corralled at night. The one selected is hobbled and a noose slipped around its neck, the other end of which is securely fastened to a mule. When the hobbles are removed the horse attempts to run away but the mule acts as a brake. When both animals are exhausted the horse is saddled and broke for riding.

He recommended that during the winter, members of the society make suet balls and hang them out of doors for the birds to eat. This practice is carried out by his daughter at their home near Burleigh Falls, and many different kinds of birds get food from them.

Mr. Fraser voiced bitter criticism of tourists who bring cats and dogs to summer homes, then drive off at the close of the holiday season, leaving the animals behind to live as best they can.

Plan To Discuss Attendance Of Wards At Church

The question of church attendance by wards of the Shelter received some discussion at the monthly meeting of the Children's Aid Society board Tuesday afternoon, but on suggestion of Rev. R .T. F. Brain the debate was postponed until a later date.

A suggestion by Miss Rachael Young, superintendent, that the annual meeting of the Society be held in larger quarters, so that people of the municipality, as well as board members might attend, was agreed with, and Alderman Dutton moved that the meeting be held in the public library, and that Wm. J. O'Brien of Toronto ,treasurer of the York County Children's Aid Society, and a former Peterborough boy, be invited to attend as guest speaker.

That a party of two, which would include the president, treasurer or chairman of he Society, be given authority to open the safety deposit vault while C. S. Cummer is absent in the South was moved by E. B. Fowler, who remarked that he did not feel the responsibility should have to be accepted by a single individual. Authority for signing checks in the absence of Mr. Cummer was given Mr. Fowler. A motion was also passed that a five dollar deposit vault be secured during this year in place of the ten dollar one previously in use.

One Year As Superintendent

It was just one year ago Monday that Miss Young started in as superintendent of the local Society, and warm tribute was paid at yesterday's meeting to the splendid work accomplished during this time. "It is very gratifying to every member of the board and to every member of the Society to know that a woman of Miss Young's type is directing this important work," Alderman James Dutton said, and a hearty hand clap by members of the board carried endorsement of his remarks.

During the month of January there were 106 office interviews, as presented by the superintendent's report, 194 telephone calls, 130 visits, and 206 letters sent out. Seven new families were reported during the month for the following reasons: Unsuitable living quarters; immorality; mental illness; stealing; marital discord, and in two families children were placed on probation from court. The Society discontinued interest in four, making an increase of three families for a total of 97 families under care.

"If there has ever been any doubt in my mind of the value of yearly medical examinations, it has been dispelled during the past couple of weeks," Miss Young said. "One of our wards, who will be 19 years of age next month, was recently given his yearly examination. This boy is very deaf. Examination revealed an immediate and very great need to have tonsils and adenoids removed, and further treatment has been recommeded in the hope of not only saving what hearing this boy has, but of improving it. This boy has cost the Society and the County, which is responsible for his maintenance, very little, if anything. He is a good worker, but has been hampered by his deafness. He is to be admitted to hospital tonight."

The Shelter's report revealed that 9 children were in the Shelter the first of the month; 4 admitted during the month; 2 discharged during the month, and 11 in the Shelter at the end of the month. Nine were given dental care at the school. Some of the children, who had just been admitted needed as many as four extractions. One boy, who had recently been admitted, was given a ticket to the Y.M.C.A., and araregements were made through the kindness of Miss L. Brownscombe of the Y.W.C.A. for two of the girls to attend gym classes. One of the girls also joined a C.G.I.T. group. Donation included cake, doughnuts, bread and buns from Hoopers; Trinity W.A., buttered bread; Nicholls Hospital Auxiliary, cake; Westclox, cake and sandwiches; Frank Gosselin, carton corn flakes; Pollyanna club of St. James' S. S., cake and sandwiches.

Accounts for the month of January were as folows: C. B. Young, milk, $32.10; Ross Payne, butcher, $7.62; Weston's Bread, $4.66; G. Hudson, grocer, $25.80; T. Eaton Company, $2.63; E. L. Payne, $2.25; F. W. Woolworth, $1.00; Dominion Woollens, Mrs. Oke, $8.60; Richard Hall Company, $3.60; R. Neill, Ltd., $5.64; Grafton and Company, $3.06; Nugent Drug Company, $2.06; Bell Telephone Company, $9.65; Grant and Loucks, $1.15; Trebilcock Bros., 75 cents; S. J. Black, Insp. Type, $1.00; Safety deposit box, $10.00—total, $121.59.

Japanese To Keep Hainan Island

TOKYO, Feb. 15—(AP). — Foreign Minister Hachiro Arita to-day told Sir Robert Craigie, British Ambassador, that Japan probably will hold Hainan island until the end of the Chinese war and possibly indefintely on the grounds of military necessity.

This was virtually the same reply Arita gave the French Ambassador, Charles Aresne Henry, yesterday when Henry asked for information on Japan's plans with regard to tht island, which is near French Indo-China and the British colony of Hong Kong.

The Lower House of the Japanese Diet unanimously approved a resolution demanding a stronger policy against Soviet Russia. Action on the resolution, darfted jointly by all political parties, was preceded by fiery speeches, some of which urged the use of force against Russia.

One speaker said: "The nation demands that the governmetn abandon its weak-kneed diplomacy. Look at Italian and German diplomacy. Today is an era when might is right." mands that the government abandon

Warn Mobilization On In Germany

MANCHESTER, Eng., Feb. 15. — (CP-Havas)—Concern at continued German military preparations was expressed today by the Manchester Guardian.

"The need for a rapid decision with regard to Spain is regarded as very urgent," said the Liberal newspaper, "for there is no sign that the warning given by Prime Minister Chamberlain Feb. 6 has been understood in Rome or Berlin.

"The vital importance of Spain in the event of a general conflict is now fully recognized here and, for the first time, competent observers hitherto critical of the government policy find themselves in some measure in agreement with that policy."

(Mr. Chamberlain said "Any threat to the vital interests of France, from whatever quarter it came, must evoke the immediate cooperation of this country.")

"Nor are there any signs that German military preparations are abating—the gradual and silent mobiliaztion now going on in Germany will, as far as can be judged from here, be completed early next March.

"For the first time since the Nyon conference (to end "piracy" in the Mediterranean) a certain British initiative is perceptible in the Spanish question—an initiative that opened with the mediatory action taken in Minorca.

$28 Per Acre Cash Receipts For Whole Milk

Encouraging progress has been made towards the establishment of standards as applied to agricultural products during the past decade. Wheat, apples, eggs, beef and many other farm products are described by a grade which has become known to those who produce or use these commodities. This progress has been of value not only in the commerce of these commodities but to farmers in increasing their returns.

Farmers, and the public generally, are more familiar with the standards of measurement for units of farm products than with standards pertaining to the whole farm. It is true that farm revenue comes from the sale of multiplicity of products, but the factor of greatest importance to the farm is that of taking in sufficient net revenue from he complete business to provide the desired living standard for himself and his family. It matters little from what product or group of products this desired net income is secured.

Use has been made and will continue to be made of several useful farm management measuring rods based upon physical quantity such as, milk production per cow, eggs per hen, and yield per acre. As farmers live less on farm products and more on cash income than formerly, new standards for rating farm management are required. These may be learned by a study of a large number of farm account records. The farm management study of 780 dairy farms in Ontario, the first year of which has recently been completed, provides many suggestions in this connection. Two measuring rods thus determined, are cash receipts and cash expenses per crop acre.

The average cash receipts per crop acre, for the eight whole milk market zones, ranged from $28 in the Owen Sound, Peterboro, Oshawa area to $43 in the North Bay-Sudbury zone. The cash expenses per crop per acre for the same zones, ranged from $22 in the Owen Sound-Peterboro-Oshawa zone to $29 in the Sudbury-North Bay zone. In the Eastern Ontario cheese zone, the average cash receipts and expenses per acre was $22 and $16 respectively. For Western Ontario, the figures were $31 and $21 respectively. These new measuring rods may serve usefully as a basis of planning or rating a dairy farm business.

Japan may increase taxes on luxuries to stop "wasteful" buying.

New Way De-inking Waste Paper Makes It Usable Nine Times

PITTSBURGH, Feb. 15—(AP). — Newsprint created from "de-inked" waste paper has passed its most severe test and the inventor predicted today the process he believes may revolutionize the industry would be producing the paper commercially in a matter of months.

Newsprint is the paper on which newspapers are printed and it now comes largely from Canadian wood pulp.

Last night the Pittsburgh Post-Gazette tested the new paper. Dr. W. F. Hochestetter, Pittsburgh inventor, smiled as he watched the high-speed presses run off 8,000 copies, each containing four pages made from his processed newsprint.

Even skeptical pressmen praised the new paper's resistance as it rolled through the presses at the rate of 40,000 an hour. Editors thought the pages printed on the waste paper newsprint seemed easier to read because, they said, the paper was whiter.

Mechanical superintendent, F. H. Winch, of the Post-Gazette said the paper would stand up just as well at the rate of 60,000 an hour.

Cut Price to $30

Dr. Hochestetter, who claims his process will reduce the price of newsprint from the present scale of $50 to $35 a ton for wood pulp to $30 to $35 said it would be "several months, at least" before commercial production could be started.

"Pittsburgh will have the first chance to create this new industry," he added.

His newsprint was made from old magazines, newspapers, poster sheets, even carbon paper. It made a dirty pulp, but came out white under the inventor's secret chemical teatment.

Hitherto, Dr. Hochestetter explained, efforts to reclaim paper by chemical removal of ink failed because the chemicals destroyed the wood fibre used in the manufacture of the original paper. He claims only about 10 per cent of the fibre is lost in each conversion under his process, so that the original paper could be used nine times.

Dr. Hochstetter also is working on a process to create newsprint from straw and other farm products and this also is to be tested soon on newspaper presses.

They Did a Fine Job

Congratulations are in order to the members of the Trail, B.C. hockey team upon their feat of capturing for Canada the world's amateur hockey championship in competition with thirteen other countries in Switzerland. There is nothing particularly outstanding, possibly, in the fact that the title was held for the Dominion, for after all we Canadians invented and perfected the game of hockey and a team good enough to win the Canadian amateur championship should be good enough to beat any amateur team from any other country. What makes the Smoke Eaters' feat so noteworthy, however, was the clean cut and emphatic manner in which the trick was done.

There have been Canadian teams which chose to regard a trip to Europe as merely a joy ride. As a result they were careless about training, indifferent as to the form they displayed against European teams, and on the whole while they usually managed to stagger through to ultimate victory they did not make the showing Canadians had the right to expect of their representatives against world competition.

These British Columbia players were of different stuff. Evidently they regarded it as their responsibility to show the world that the country that had produced hockey was still producing champion hockey teams. At any event they warmed up for the championship series by playing 22 exhibition games against European teams and winning the entire list, and then they sailed through the championship rounds without a loss and with only one goal scored against them. That is the kind of stuff representative Canadian teams touring Europe are expected to show, and the Trail athletes deserve general thanks for doing a fine job in a workmanlike manner.

The Taxi Bylaw

The taxi bylaw now in force here represents an honest effort on the part of the board of police commissioners to accomplish a number of things, the legislation being initiated originally at the request of the taxi owners. Through this measure it is sought to eliminate the cut throat competition that was threatening to kill the taxi cab business, to prevent the over-working of taxi drivers and to give the public the benefit of adequate service, in safe, comfortable vehicles, handled by careful drivers.

These are objectives that should have the support of citizens generally, for they are manifestly in the public interest. There are those who of course feel that the bylaw might have gone further and insisted upon the public being protected through the medium of a compulsory insurance clause. Members of the commission, particularly the chairman, Judge Sheldon Smoke, had that view themselves, but opposition was strong from the taxi men, who argued that such a regulation would be ruinous in its effect upon their business and when a survey of the province revealed the fact that no municipality in Ontario called upon its taxi owners to carry insurance, the compulsory clause was dropped.

The taxi bylaw will be on trial for some time; it is possible that in actual working out some weaknesses will be disclosed that may have to be ironed out but at all events it is a sincere attempt to deal with a situation that obviously called for attention. The taxi business had got itself into a jam in which cut-price competition threatened to kill off proper service and in which drivers were forced to work long hours for small wages, because inedaquate returns earned by the taxi concerns made such conditions inevitable.

The new measure recognizes and deals with that situation; it is to be hoped we deal with it effectively. At all events it is a well-meant piece of civic legislation and the public should give it sympathetic consideration and every chance to justify itself.

Forty Minutes Too Long

The suggestion has been brought forward in the Quebec Legislature that speeches in that body should be limited to forty minutes, as is the case in the House of Commons.

It is a proposal that might well be adopted, not only in Quebec but in the Ontario Legislature. After all forty minutes is a long time to have to listen to some of the efforts that are offered as speeches.

However, recent debates in the House of Commons suggests that cutting down the length of speeches does not always guarantee quality. As a matter of fact much of what has been said in the controversy over the Bren gun contract might better have been left unsaid. When the speech of a minister of the Crown becomes so violent that he considers it advisable to order Hansard to eliminate the roughest portions from the official records and when such a doughty battler as Hon. Dr. Manion, who has dealt many verbal blows himself finds it necessary to make a plea for more dignified debating, then it must be confessed that the level of speech-making in Canada's parliament has reached a new low.

It is not to be wondered at that many Canadians at the present time are becoming disgusted with the manner in which the political game is being played. They can appreciate the fact that men will disagree violently as to the merits or otherwise of some political policy but they feel that they have the right to expect of their representatives in parliament that at least they will disagree like gentlemen and not sink to the level reached by the Bren gun debate last week.

If politicians are going to talk in that fashion then forty minutes is far too long a time to allow these to abuse their opponents. If personal attacks are to take the place of reasonable arguments, perhaps it would be better to limit members to a certain number of speeches per session. It would be better still perhaps if their constituents took stock of the contributions they have been making to the debate and be prepared to deal with them the next time they seek the support of the electors.

Must Remember The Past

In these days when the air is full of talk about what should be done to relieve Canada of her burden of over-government and as to the necessity of constitutional changes, it is well to have some one come along occasionally as Leslie R. Frost, M.L.A., did before the Men's Forum the other day and point out that while it is easy to talk about reforms and changes, it is not nearly so simple a matter to bring them about.

Mr. Frost was on sound ground when he declared that the historic background must be taken into consideration before anything very drastic in the way of amending or mending the constitution could be seriously proposed. After all we are dealing with conditions and not with theories and the fact that there are in Quebec millions of French-Canadians who enjoy minority rights given them by ancient acts and confirmed by the British North America Act is certainly a condition and one that cannot be disregarded.

As the member for Victoria pointed out, too, there is the additional fact that you have provincial governments that were granted certain rights and are jealously guarding such rights even to the extent that a Liberal administration in Ontario finds it necessary to quarrel with a Liberal government at Ottawa.

You simply cannot wipe out the history of Canada and all that it has handed down to us merely by saying certain things should be done. The thing goes a whole lot deeper and is far more involved than that, and it is well some one should remind us of that fact at least once in a while.

There are changes that should be made; and there does not seem to be any insurmountable reason why we should not, as sensible Canadians, be able to sit down together and arrive at a common understanding on these points.

We would be starting the wrong way, however, if we tried to forget the past and the obligations it has laid upon our shoulders and attempted to close our eyes to the fact there are millions of Canadian citizens who fear constitutional changes because they fear that racial and religious rights might be jeopardized in the process.

Have To Go After It

There is a direct challenge to tourist-promotion bodies in Canada in the preliminary report upon tourist traffic last year issued by the Bureau of Statistics which shows a falling-off of 165,195 in the number of tourist automobiles crossing into Canada in 1938 as compared with the previous year and a drop of $21.000,000 in the money spent in this country by summer visitors.

Worst feature of all as revealed by the report is the fact that the biggest decrease registered last year was in the number of tourists entering on 60-day permits, which provide, of course, by far the most lucrative tourist business. It is the visitors who stay here weeks and months whose spending means the real returns from tourist traffic. The majority of the 48-hour motorists who come into Canada spend comparatively little in comparison and it is disappointing to find that the chief shrinkage has been in the class that means most from a dollars and cents viewpoint, with a falling-off of 119,721 cars noted.

The decrease needs no further explanation than the return of depression conditions to some extent in the United States last year and while some pickup is in evidence at the present time it would not be safe to predict that the coming summer will show a much rosier picture so far as our friends across the border are concerned. At any rate it would be a more prudent course not to do so and to plan accordingly. In other words to realize—and that without delay—that it will be necessary to go after tourist business this year with all the energy and enthusiasm that can be pressed into service, going on the theory that unless there is an earnest and persistent effort to stimulate tourist traffic, there will be a further slump and we simply cannot afford to anticipate any greater decrease in a traffic that contributes so greatly to the general wealth.

Somebody has said that this is the time to advertise extensively that a holiday in Canada does not require a millionaire's income to finance and it is also the time to make sure that when visitors do accept our invitation they are not exploited.

A Fantastic Proposal

Of course the reason for such fantastic proposals is not hard to find in these days of mounting municipal costs and with practically every field except that of property taxes closed against municipalities, but nevertheless we are forced to the opinion that when Alderman Percy Quinn came forward with the naive suggestion that the Queen City should impose a tax of 25 cents upon all visiting Ontario motor cars he was getting very close to the limit of ridiculousness.

Mr. Quinn would have Toronto car owners given exemption stickers and he would not collect from tourists from the United States or visitors from other provinces but every motorist who entered from the hinterland would be nicked the fourth part of a dollar to go into Toronto's municipal pot.

We don't imagine the proposal that a toll-gate be set up at the borders of the Queen City has caused fervent enthusiasm among Toronto's business men. The people who sell goods or services or entertainment know that a big share of their business is done with folk who live in Ontario and who come to Toronto occasionally on business or pleasure but never without spending money there.

They will have no trouble in realizing the fact that a nuisance tax in the form of levying 25 cents upon every Ontario motor car entering Toronto would be quite likely to damage business to a much greater extent than the toll would swell the civic revenues.

On the other hand we have no hesitation in assuring Mr. Quinn on behalf of outside business interests that the merchants in Ontario towns and cities would be delighted to have his tax go through. They are sure that it would keep business at home that is now going to Toronto and they would be all for it.

However, like the Windsor suggestion that bus companies be forced to pay a special tax for the use of certain streets to which all other motor vehicles would have free access the Quinn plan is likely to have considerable difficulty in getting over the first blue line.

NOTE AND COMMENT

Some of our sporting friends want to know if the Leadership League will use the play-off system.

We notice that the Boston Bruins have lost a hockey game. That in itself would help to make this a notable season.

Investigation in United States shows that executive officers in some companies draw salaries as high as $1,000 per day, and probably their duty is to make as efficient as possible the fellows who are earning a few dollars per day.

A new organization in a church at Campbellford is an ushers' club. We always thought the primary purpose of an usher was to ush, but with further study there may be found to be additions which are important.

Britain has a custom of turning sea captains into rear-admirals and then retiring them. Even if a man is retired it will give him something pleasant to think about knowing he is a rear-admiral.

It must have been a hard touch for 60,000 people to sit at a football game in England and see the team from Ireland win. The appeasement atmosphere of Chamberlain and his umbrella made it possible for the Irish team to depart in peace.

At a union meeting in Detroit two men were so badly injured they were taken to hospital after fighting about Martin in the U.A.W. That may be flattering enough to Mr. Martin and also flattering to those most immediately concerned.

THE HEAVEN OF LOVE

I rose at midnight and beheld the sky,
Sown thick with stars, like grains of golden sand.
Which God had scattered loosely from His hand
Upon the floorways of His house on high.
And straight I pictured to my spirit's eye
The giant worlds, their course by wisdom planned,
The weary waste, the gulfs no sight hath spanned,
And endless time for ever passing by.
Then, filled with wonder and a secret dread,
I crept to where my child lay fast asleep,
With chubby arm beneath his golden head.
What cared I then for all the stars above?
One little face shut out the boundless deep,
One little heart revealed the heaven of love.

Story Behind Harris Tweeds

FAMED throughout the world, two of Scotland's most humble cottage industries have resisted the attack of time's ever-changing fashions and survived triumphant, Harris tweed and Shetland wool. These names, one feels, are associated: the one conjuring up not only the homely texture but delicious peaty smell embodied in a roll of hand-woven materials; the other the image of a weblike warm substance finding shape in a shawl of fairylike texture.

But what exactly is this soft yet sturdy, light yet indestructible cloth that rain cannot wet or mist damp, snow penetrate or violent winds tear apart? As defined by the Board of Trade, Harris tweed is "a tweed made from virgin wool, produced in Scotland, spun, dyed and finished in the Outer Hebrides and hand-woven by the islanders at their own homes in Lewis, Harris, Barra and Uist . . ." That is the plain unvarnished tale. But there is another, romantic and strange as a story of adventure.

Long ago, exposed to the fury of Atlantic gales to driving mists, snow and rain, the Hebridean crofters clad themselves and their families for body protection in home-made tweeds. Wool from hardy island sheep was spun on the distaff and spinning wheel, washed in little peaty streams or lochs, dried on the heather or stone walls of their own windowless black houses, dyed with lichens and mosses, and then woven on the hand-loom into the finest weather-resisting cloth the world has seen. Thus was Harris tweed first made, and is still being made.

Today, seven distinctive stages go to its creation. First comes the shearing of the sheep, in which both young and old join. After this the wool is sorted and separate piles made, each of a different natural color. Sorting done, the wool is flung into the nearest burn and carefully washed. It is then laid out on the heather or hung over lines to dry.

Now comes the most important and interesting process of all — dyeing. From seaweed, lichen and roots dyes are made according to century-old recipes whose secret is known only to certain families. It is these vegetable dyes which give such brilliance of color to the Highland tartans depicted by the brushes of Raeburn and Ramsay.

Before being spun the dyed wool must be loosened and got into order. This rather tedious process, called carding, is now carried out by mills in Stornoway and Tarbet. Spinning the cloth follows, and the Hebrides are probably the last European outpost where the spinning wheel is used commercially, the wheels being handed down as precious heirlooms from mother to daughter.

The spinner then takes her balls of completed yarn (i.e., the warp and the weft) to the weaver, who may be regarded as the expert in the production of Harris tweed, for it is he who determines the ultimate pattern of the finished length of material. Many of these patterns are again the private and exclusive property of certain families.

When completed, the web is removed from the hand-loom and returned to the owners. Tough and hard now to the feel, the cloth is softened by the last process of all, known as waulking. Large parties of women gather to beat and knead the damped cloth with their hands until the loose open fibre is felted together again.

MAKING GOAT THE GOAT.

EVERY GOAT in Eastern Greece, and there are 500,000 of them, must die. Dictator General Metaxas has decided that his country must be saved from a timber famine, and Greek scientists have made the goat the "goat".

They reported that the introduction of the animal into the Balkan peninsula led to the deforestation of the coasts of the Aegean and Adriatic, now barren and sun-scorched. No young trees can grow where the goat browses and even grown trees are killed by hungry Billies and Nannies nibbling the bark and trunks and stripping the lower branches.

Therefore a decree has gone forth from Athens that the goats of Greece must be slaughtered without delay. They will be banned from large areas, such as Macedonia, for at least 50 years.—Quebec Chronicle-Telegraph.

STEALING FIREPLACES.

SCOTLAND YARD is occupied with a stealing rather like that of the white elephant of Mark Twain's fancy. The six Adam fireplaces taken from Fitzroy Square are but the latest of 100 to be nefariously removed from old houses in the last few years. These very big thefts are accredited to a gang skilled in the art of removing fine but cumbrous pieces from buildings under repair or empty. Its members pretend to be workmen, have a motor-lorry at their service, and find a market abroad.—London Times.

RECORD PREMIERSHIP.

LORD CRAIGAVON stands alone among the Prime Ministers of the Empire in having continuously occupied office since 1921. Remembering the notorious fickleness of post-war electorates, this is indeed a remarkable record and the fact that Lord Craigavon retains, after 18 years in power, the overwhelming confidence of Northern Ireland speaks well for his personal popularity as well as for his administrative record. — Brockville Recorder and Times.

• Lord Tweedsmuir On Jargon

(From the Ottawa Journal)

LORD TWEEDSMUIR, WHOSE speeches are a wholesome corrective of many of our bad habits, told McGill University students that "a scholar's isolation in one particular branch of the social sciences leads to development of a technical language that is the most adominable jargon." He deplored the manner in which experts in economics, sociology or political theory used terms and phrases not understandable to the layman.

Lord Tweedsmuir is right. It is all but impossible these days to read a book or article on international affairs or on economics or science without a dictionary at one's side to help in discovery of what the writer is driving at. Among the worst offenders are the young writers who venture into world politics. They have developed a jargon of their own, and instead of writing simple English stud their pages with such words as "ideology," "autarchy," "concept," and so on and so forth.

Somebody once said of Newman that he achieved his extraordinary clarity because he realized the desperate need of being understood. Too many modern writers, specialists in their line, don't seem to realize the need of their being understood. They are either content to write for other specialists, or are too slovenly or too indifferent to write for the rest of us. The consequence, as Lord Tweedsmuir said, is that more and more we are becoming plagued by an "abominable jargon."

There are government blue-books. Often telling things that most of us should know, sometimes telling things that are tremendously interesting, they mostly go unread. The reason is that the average blue-book, written in language that is as technical as it is stilted, and shorn of all attractiveness, apart from the attractiveness of sheer simplicity, drives the layman away from it. Which is a loss.

There is finance. It was said of Mr. Gladstone, who was a great Chancellor of the Exchequer as well as a great Prime Minister, that he could make the multiplication table sound as a sonnet. Too many of our bankers and financiers, even when discussing elementary financial problems, make their story sound like an exercise in higher mathematics. For years, indeed, such things as the annual statements of our bank presidents were cluttered up with the most appalling jargon, and while they are doing better now, are realizing the need of being understood by the public, they are still far from being models of clarity.

We shall not speak of the law; we are content to quote Lord Tweedsmuir:

"You find it in the law, which, in the hands of certain judges and jurists, is merely a game of permutations and combinations played with a limited number of dogmatic counters."

There are, of course, exceptions. An Oliver Wendell Holmes could write judgments from the United States Supreme Court that will live long in literature, and the late Justice Cordoze, who had something of the same beauty and simplicity, wrote out thirteen drafts of a single decision, so anxious was he to achieve clarity.

The thing, as Lord Tweedsmuir emphasizes, is of the highest importance. Canadians, notoriously, are all too deficient in the art of writing and speaking, are in this respect definitely inferior to writers and speakers in England. The inferiority, for the most part, is in a lack of simplicity.

It is an inferiority that should concern us. We boast of our right to discuss and debate, talk proudly of freedom of speech. But, in a democracy, what profits it to have freedom of speech if the speech be of a character which the multitude cannot understand?

• The Motor Car vs. the Horse

SAYS the Hamilton Spectator: "No doubt a good many people would have had cause lately to look back and recall that a horse would always start on a cold morning."

From this and similar Wintertime cracks at the horseless carriage we must dissent most vigorously.

Bear in mind that a horse had to have breakfast, and time to eat it. It may be advisable to do a little currycombing on his hide. After that, you wrestle with the stiff harness. If the morning is frosty, you warm the bit, so as not to take the skin off the animal's tongue. If about to drive over country roads, the shafts must be hoisted from centre of the sleigh or cutter to one side. Maybe the horse has not been sharp-shod, in which case the going will not be very good on icy roads.

And while travelling, you are out in the weather with the horse; they don't have closed-model cutters and sleighs. The speed is limited, and so is the length of the journey; a horse is not a machine. And when you get back you have to unharness, blanket, feed, water and bed down your horse-power.

Now about this business of cars not starting. Usually the trouble is with the battery. One manufacturer's chart shows battery efficiency only 40 per cent at zero, and it is less at lower temperatures. So unless the battery is right up to begin with, the spark is not going to be strong enough, even if he motor turns over. There are a few other things that might be wrong with the ignition system, and sometimes a cylinder gets stuck; but it all comes down to keeping the car in good trim. Most people don't bother about an inspection until trouble is encountered, and that is quite likely to be on a cold morning.

As far as that goes, if there is anything radically wrong with his insides a horse won't start, either; and it takes longer for a veterinary to fix him up than for a garageman to change a battery.

The horse is a noble animal, and at times essential to transportation. Up in Huron county the other day, we noticed horse-drawn vehicles outnumbered cars about five to one, even on the highway; but that was due to exceptionally heavy snowfall blocking sideroads to wheeled traffic. Probably by now the ratio will have been reversed.

The fact is that Winter performance of the present-day motor car is highly efficient. Only a few years ago it was customary to lay up the family bus until Spring, rather than wrestle with its numerous shortcomings in cold weather. Now we squawk if its service is temporarily interrupted through gross lack of care.

THE PEOPLE'S HEALTH

In both Great Britain and the United States the Governments are dealing with health as a national question. It is estimated that sickness in Canada costs $311,000,000 a year. This should be sufficient indication to Parliament that the state of the people's health requires primary consideration and not for war purposes only.—(Toronto Star)

A Bible Message For Today . . . .

Teach me to do thy will: for thou art my God: thy spirit is good; lead me into the land of uprightness.—Ps. cxliii, 10.

✧ ✧ ✧

Grace and peace be multiplied unto you through the knowledge of God, and of Jesus our Lord, according as his divine power hath given unto us all things that pertain unto life and godliness, through the knowledge of him that hath called us to glory and virtue: whereby are given unto us exceeding great and precious promises: that by these ye might be partakers of the divine nature, having escaped the corruption that is in the world through lust.

And besides this, giving all diligence, add to your faith virtue; and to virtue knowledge. . . . For so an entrance shall be ministered unto you abundantly into the everlasting kingdom of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ.— II Pet. i, 2-8, 11.

✧ ✧ ✧

I therefore, the prisoner of the Lord, beseech you that ye walk worthy of the vocation wherewith ye are called, with all lowliness and meekness, with longsuffering, forbearing one another in love; endeavouring to keep the unity of the Spirit in the bond of peace.

There is one body, and one Spirit, even as ye are called in one hope of your calling; one Lord, one faith, one baptism, one God and Father of all, who is above all, and through all, and in you all.—Eph. iv, 1-6.

An Expensive Keepsake

One of John's best friends had died while he was away, so he called on the widow to express his sympathy. "John and I were good pals," he said. "Isn't there something of his I could have as a memento of him?" she raised her velvety brown eyes, which a few seconds before were wet with tears. "How would I do?"

McMillan Twins Pass Their 80th Milestone

(Examiner Correspondence.)

LINDSAY, Feb. 15.—In Tuesday's session of the police court a young man from Sonya, named McNeil, faced Magistrate Gee charged with threatening bodily harm to a young woman in that district. Through his counsel, R. I. Moore, K.C., he pleaded not guilty and was remanded for one week on bail of $1,000. According to the information, he is alleged to have made the statement to the girl: "If I can't get you alive, I'll get you dead." The father of the girl, fearing harm would come to the girl, laid the information, and requested that the accused be bound over with sureties to keep away from his daughter.

Good Sow To Have

R. J. Robertson, who lives on the Scotch Line, Dunsford, has a sow with a record. On January last Mr. Robertson shipped to Canadian Packers, Peterborough, eleven hogs that weighed 2,300 pounds. These were of a litter of thirteen from this sow. All were ready for market at the same time and they dressed 1,785 pounds. On the latter part of the same months this sow gave birth to sixteen more.

Three Resolutions.

At Monday night's session of the council three resolutions were passed and will be forwarded to the provincial government. The first asked that the Department of Public Welfare change its decision re new relief regulations, which means Lindsay will pay 100 per cent of all charges over 1938 expenditures, and at the present time there are many more on relief. The second resolution asked the government to proclaim the Municipal Employees' Pension Act, and the third urged legislation to prevent large stores selling bread as "loss users" to the detriment of the baking trade.

Twins 80 Years Old.

Duncan and Peter McMillan, of Beaverton, two of Canada's oldest twins, Tuesday celebrated their 80th birthday. The two brothers are well known in this district and also throughout Central Ontario. They were former members of the famous Checkers Lacrosse Club of Beaverton, a team that battled with Peterborough teams on the old Riverside Park in that city for the championship of the district. One of their teachers in their school days was Alexander Muir, composer of "The Maple Leaf Forever." In their lacrosse days they played 27 years, and were never ruled off. They have also been curling enthusiasts for 45 years.

Fracas In Coliseum Ends Games For 600 Jobless

Toronto, Feb. 15 (CP)

CONTROLLER Fred Hamilton said today that as a result of a fracas last night at the Coliseum in the Canadian National Exhibition Grounds where 600 transients are quartered he had abandoned a plan for providing softball, football and other sports for the men.

Firemen and police went to the building last night in response to a fire alarm. They found no fire and the building quiet and dark. Before the police arrived a number of the men had jumped up and down on their beds, shouting and screaming.

Triple Hanging Manitoba's First

WINNIPEG, Feb. 15—(CP).—In the first triple hanging in Manitoba's history, three young men will die on the scaffold at Headingly provincial jail, 18 miles west of Winnipeg, on Thursday morning for the murder of an 81-year-old woman. No indication of clemency is forthcoming from the justice department, although the trial jury recommended mercy for one.

The men are: Peter Korzenowski, Dan Prytula and William Kanuka, residents of the Gilbert Plains district near Dauphin, 150 miles north of Winnipeg.

They were convicted at the November assizes in Dauphin of killing Mrs. Anna Cottick, 81-year-old resident of Fishing River district, near Daughin, after breaking into her home last May. The husband, 91-year-old Elko Cottick, was injured and spent weeks in hospital.

Mr. Justice W. J. Donovan presided at the trial in which the jury recommended mercy for Kanuka who, according to evidence, had not taken part in beating the elderly couple.

It was testified the three men broke into the Cottick home and demanded money they believed hidden in the place, but both husband and wife, old-age pensions, denied they had hidden wealth.

Mr. and Mrs. Cottick were beaten unconscious and shoved into a shallow cellar, where they were found in the morning by a grandson, who came to start a fire in the stove. Mrs. Cottick died en route to hospital.

COLLEGIATE INSTITUTE NOTES

Just in case any of our followers (heh! heh!) are planning to stay in the old homestead tonight and read this atrocity, we'd advise going to the library and picking up a copy of "Anthony Adverse" or some equally lengthy publication. Because if you don't, you'll likely run out of reading material early. You see there was a decided relapse in school activity the past half fortnight or so. Or, so it seems. However, we'll do our best, as someone once said on the eve of battle. Or, something.

A Win, A Tie, A Loss!

A lass, alack! A tisket-a-tasket. Well, just in case you haven't heard. NEWS FLASH! STOP THE PRESS! The three warring basketball tribes of old P.C.I. split three games evenly last week, with the gallants of Bowmanville in the rather cramped quarters of the Bowmanville gym, last Friday night. Our juniors, started P.C.I. off on the right foot by bouncing the Rubbertown lads 17-16 in a thriller. But, Miss Brisbin's senior lasses got a right smart surprise when the best they could do with the Toronto high-way lasses was a 21-21 even-steven. Then, the sad finale. And indeed it hurts your old correspondent not a little to have to report that our Bamforth Bombers, the senior boys were battered and dismayed to find that Bowman-villa had up and beaten 'em 37-34! And the worst of the whole thing is that now P.C.I. is faced with the necessity of trouncing Cobourg this week in the Lakeshore town or practically sliding out of the picture! The Senior Males squad had a lot of tough luck, but at the same time the Rubbertown lads are undeniably good. Especially at home. But if P.C.I. can knock off Cobourg in all three of their games this Friday in Cobourg, all will be rosy.

The juniors look to be capable now of winning their group, and we'd also pin a slight wager on the Senior Girls, but the Senior Boys MUST win this week.

And this week's tussles are definitely crucial all the way around.

So hang in there, lads and lasses!

Echoes Competition

The Echoes subscription campaign was concluded this week and Group 6 was announced as the winning clan. This section made up of forms III, IV and X Household Arts and III, IV and X Industrial Arts will be treated to a party of some form a little bit later on. A skating party, dance, or toboggan party or what you will. Also included will be form IIIA Academic, who led the competition in the actual number of Echoes sold. As you, undoubtedly know the competition was run off in this way. The school was divided into eight groups with about six forms in each. Points were allotted for Echoes sales and a bonus of 10 to the form with the greatest increase each day. Actual number of Echoes sold escaped us but we'll give you an accurate report next week.

Camera Club Capers

The camera club had no meeting this week, being too busily engaged in the taking of pictures for the Echoes. At this date only the pictures of the junior and senior rugby teams remain to be snapped and the junior team get theirs "tooken" today. Then, too, the Camera Club has been in charge of the Echoes competition which involves puhlenty of work. Not to mention the sale of school paper and sundry other things.

Hockey Team

Word has come that the P.C.I. hockey entry in the C.O.S.S.A. has been accepted. However there seems to be a shortage of teams in this district, customarily called the Lakeshore group. So in all likelihood P.C.I. will get a bye into the finals which, according to reports, are held each year in the Maple Leaf Gardens. As yet no definite word has been had regarding opening games, etc., but as soon as word does come through, we'll let you know. Practices will likely be called soon and it looks as though P.C.I. should be able to hold their own in this class of competition. What with several O.H.A. Junior B and C players at school (who we understand are eligible for C.O.S.S.A. hockey) and others. More on this later.

Experiment

On Monday morning of this week Mr. Henry conducted an interesting experiment in the Assembly Hall. It was in the nature of a loud-speaker system and Mr. Henry was speaking from the Camera Club projection room above the gallery, through the loud-speaker on stage. Explained to us, we gather that all that needs to be done is to connect it to the movie projector. While this, as we say is purely experimental, it could be used for announcements or as a public address system from the stage itself. Anyway sometime in the future it may prove very useful. Who knows?

Opera Topics

Practices for the play, "Dear Brutus," which will be presented by the Students' Council somewhere in early or middle March, are going right ahead now. This is described as a humorous play and should prove a big favorite with the school and community. The orchestra is practicing hard for the important part they play in it and everything points to another success being annexed to the hits of '38 and '37. Predict the S.O. sign will go up early this year.

Justice Retires

In a letter to President Roosevelt, Associate Justice Louis D. Brandeis, of the United States Supreme Court, resigned his position. The resignation was unexpected and was thought to be prompted by old age and continued ill-health. Eighty-two years old, Justice Brandeis was the first Jew ever to serve on the U.S. Supreme Court.

Lumbermen Busy In North Hastings

Heavier lumbering operations have been reported through North Hastings as the result of the recent snow and many camps are now on full time. The Wilberforce Lumber Company of Bancroft is experiencing a busy season and has several trucks hauling lumber from Mumford's Camp. The English Camp is working at the head of Grace Lake and will engage in a heavy log drive this spring.

Imredi Cabinet Quits Over Jews

BUDAPEST, Feb. 15 (AP).—Premier Bela Imredi today announced the resignation of his Cabinet.

The resignation was accepted by Regent Nicholas Horthy, who immediately summoned former Minister of Education Count Paul Teleki to a conference at the Regent's palace.

It was believed Teleki would be asked to take over the Premiership and form a new Cabinet.

Imredi faced strong opposition in parliament because of his sponsorship of sweeping legislation for the regulation of Jews, and his government's intimate association with German foreign policy.

The Cabinet, deciding not to face a fight in parliament, stepped out with the Premier. The resignation was announced after a Cabinet meeting this morning shortly before the anti-Jewish legislation was scheduled to be considered by parliament.

Under the proposed law no Jew would be allowed to be director of a theatre or producer of motion pictures. Jews also would be barred from holding concessions to sell articles produced by state monopolies and from being public employees.

The number of Jews in lawyers', physicians', engineers', journalists' and theatrical chambers would be limited to 6 per cent. of the total membership.

Count Teleki has advocated policy of independence but favors cautious co-operation with the Rome-Berlin axis. He is a well-known geographer and Boy Scout leader who organized the world jamboree here five years ago.

MADOC PUCKSTERS GAIN EDGE IN FIRST HOME-AND-HOME SERIES

New Gun Prevents False Starts

In an attempt to completely eliminate false starts in sprint races, Lawson Robertson, track coach at the University of Pennsylvania, devised this synchronized electric gun and starter, which he is seen testing with the assistance of Charles Beltzner, a member of the university team. The starter's gun will not fire unless every competitor has his hands on the plates seen imbedded in the starting line.

Madoc Wallops Stirling 6-2 In School Game

(Examiner Correspondence.)

MADOC, Feb. 15. — Madoc High School defeated the Stirling High School hockey team by a score of 6 to 2, in the first of a series of home and home games to declare a winner in the Central Hastings High Schools Hockey Association. As a result the locals will travel to Stirling with a four-goal lead under their belt.

The winner of this series will meet Albert College to decide the winner of the Bay of Quinte division of the C.O.S.S.A., which consists of four divisions: Lake Ontario, Georgian Bay, Niagara and Bay of Quinte.

With the exception of only a few minutes of the second period, the black and gold clad lads from Madoc held an advantage and the best of the play.

In the first period Stewart snatched the rubber from a Stirling defence man after seven minutes' play and sank it from deep in the corner. Four minutes later Morton tied the score on a pass from Richardson. Kellar, who starred for the Madoc team, broke through with only the goalie to beat, and was tripped by Brooks, who went to the cooler. Madoc was awarded a penalty shot, which was sunk by Kellar.

J. Thompson put Madoc three up when he took the puck from a face-off in the corner, worked his way to the net to sink it.

The second period opened with J. Thompson counting again for Madoc on a pass from W. Thompson.

Morton scored for Stirling on a long shot. One minute after the third period opened, Kellar made it five for Madoc on a shot from the defence.

Stirling broke away several times to be stopped by Hawthorne who played a stellar game in the Madoc net. With two minutes to go, Kellar counted again after a scramble behind the tSirling net.

Armstrong was penalized for roughing it, as the bell went to end the game.

For Madoc, Hawthorne in the nets, Moon and Kellar were the best although each line did a fine job both offensively and defensively. Morton, Richardson, Armstrong and West were the best for Stirling. The teams:

Stirling.—Goal, West; defence, Brooks, J. Walker; centre, Morton; wings, Armstrong, Richardson; alternates: J. Andrew, Pyear, R. Walker, Bastedo, Vandervoort, MacIntosh.

Madoc.—Goal, W. Hawthorne; defence, Moon, T. Hawthorne; centre, Kellar; wings, Nayler, Stewart; alternate: J. Thompson, W. Thompson, McCaw, White.

SPORTS—DAY BY DAY

Digging up the Local Dirt With the Odd Chuckle or Two

By CEC. PERDUE

Sports writers usually gather quite a collection of books on athletics in one form or another over a period of time. They like these libraries—probably because they can study a record book for a space and then spout off like a Sportive Solomon to an amazed populace! Anyway, we have received another masterpiece on athletics, named the Encyclopedia of Sports. Compiled by Frank G. Menke, who formerly put out the All-Sports Record Book. And it's a pip—we don't mind at all giving it a boost, especially as it's not for sale. Just 5,000 copies were printed, and 4,000 are being given away to sports editors, etc., with the rest being sold to libraries, athletic officials and recreation supervisors. But you can't buy one in Canada. Hence, we hope to have a monopoly on the info contained in this 320-page book—and will sound off on it like a rattler, at the slightest provocation.

* * * * * *

Menke knows more about all-around athletic histories and records than any man in North America—probably in the world. He has studied 2,000 sports histories and has 20 solid years of sports writing for International News Service to back him up. For instance, this year is being celebrated as the 100th anniversary of the origin of baseball by Abner Doubleday in Cooperstown, N'Yawk. Yet Menke shows that the game was not originated by Abner, is more than 100 years old and was played many places before Cooperstown saw it! Yeah, we prize this gift highly, it being to a sports writer what corned beef is to Jiggs.

Juniors Here Tonight

There will be a junior "C" croocial contest on tonight at 8.30 in the Brock, Cobourg clashing with our Monarchs. The winner tonight goes into group playoffs, while the loser is through for the year. So the boys will fight like fools in this joust, and neither of these teams is a bit backward about being forward in a fight! It'll be a tasty dish of junior hockey and should draw a good crowd—particularly since there will be no senior "B" tilt here this week. Just tonight's hockey tussle and the Winter Carnival at the Brock on Friday. So the fans will likely turn out to see the Monarchs make the grade—as they promise to do—or drop out.

* * * * * *

Last night the local Colts sucked a 9-2 lemon handed to 'em by the bruising Oshawa boys in a junior "B" fiasco here. So now the Colts gotta get in there and win next game in Oshawa, or they're through. They didn't deserve to make it close last e'en on their performance, the up-and-down locals being down this time. And Oshawa were quite high. A good first frame but then the visitors rode over and through the young Petes with a 4-0 swish in the secnd heat and a 3-1 romp in the third. Our defence looked bad in this jamboree, but then none of the locals played up to form. They tried hard enough, in a rather rough and speedy joust, but just couldn't click—and now they've got but one more chance this winter.

* * * * * *

And A Big Carnival

Don't forget that big carnival Friday e'en at the Brock, being sponsored by the local Winter Sports' Committee. It'll be a big and colorful event, with the ice splashed in gay and bright patterns, and topnotch ice artists doing their dips and dives on the frozen aqua. Best figure skaters in the country coming here for fancy exhibitions that night, classy musical waltzes, comedy, trick stuff, and all the rest. A jammed rink is practically assured, and it'll be well worth seeing. And especially as there will be no senior "B" puck fray here this week.

* * * * * *

Nope, there will be no senior "B" game here tonight, tomorrow or this week. On account of the O.H.A. sub-committee last p.m. in Toronto ruled that the Petes and Fliers would have their 3rd group playoff tilt tonight in Belleville. Yes, this evening on Quinte ice. Details are very scarce this morning, Mike Sheehy—who fought bitterly to get the game here—'phoning back that he didn't have a chance, that the cards were stacked against Peterborough and that he'd have more info on his return. But we haven't heard from him since. All we know is that the Petes finished their schedule in first place but must play two games away in a row, and that the local fans are getting a dirty deal. The O.H.A. had a heck of a lot of nerve messing up in it and favoring Sandy Burrows—who is on the O.H.A. executive and who owns the Quinte arena — when the only logical spot to play that game was here, it being the Petes' turn at home.

* * * * * *

What's It All About?

The whole thing is a mystery, and one that doesn't smell any too wholesome. How come the Fliers got the impression that the third game would be in Belleville—did some Peterboro' official assure them of that? It should be investigated, as nobody had any power to do so, at all. Fans who support a squad all season—and on the promise that they'd get first choice at playoff ducats—are being gypped, and no two ways about it. Something similar occurred last year when a fifth and deciding tilt was transferred to Belleville. If local fans are good enough during the season, they should be okay come playoffs. The Quinte rink fought to have the game there, and so did the Fliers—while the local rink naturally battled for it here. And the Petes seemed to want it here. Then why in the name of common sense isn't the game here tomorrow? We would like to know, and to inform the Peterborough puck fans.

* * * * * *

Belleville writer says: "Originally it was agreed the third and possible fifth game would be played in Belleville, but up till now the matter has not been decided upon." Why was it originally agreed upon? He pats the Petes on the back for their fine game, saying they have too much speed this year for the Fliers, and he boosts Red Creighton highly for reforming from his "badman days" and playing good hockey this year. Gray, Weir, Nichol, Kingdon and Harding also come in for a boost. And so we trek back to Belleville again tonight, wondering like hundreds of fans here what it is all about. But it will all come out in the wash gradually.

Senior Schedule Nearing Roundup Time

TORONTO, Feb. 15—(CP).—It's roundup time in the major divisions of the Ontario Hockey Association, with playoffs about to begin in some groups and already under way in others.

Heavy firing starts tonight in the senior "A" division, whose champion will play the winner of a round between the O.H.A. senior "B" winner and the Northern Ontario Hockey Association senior titlists in the Eastern playdowns.

Both senior "A" semi-finals are best-of-three games with Toronto Goodyears, league champions last season and undefeated in the regular schedule this winter, opposing Port Colborne Sailors at Toronto tonight and Oshawa meeting St. Catharines Chiefs in the latter city.

Return games will be played in Port Colborne and Oshawa Friday with third games if necessary to be staged at Toronto and Oshawa respectively Monday. Should both semi-final series finish in two straight games, the first game of a best-of-five series for the league title will begin Monday.

Port Colborne, finalist with Goodyears last season, finished third in the regular schedule this year, which ended last Friday. Oshawa finished in the second slot and the Chiefs wound up in the fourth and last playoff place.

Relegated to senior "B" ranks when they finished fifth and sixth in the six-team "A" group, Brantford and Niagara Falls begin a best-of-five playoff series tonight at the Falls. The second tilt is in Brantford Saturday.

Niagara won six and tied five during the 20-game "A" schedule and finished one point behind the fourth-place St. Catharines club. Twice the Falls engaged Goodyears in scoreless overtime draws and will be favorites to beat the Brants, who won but two games in 19 during the "A" schedule.

Petes Two Up

Third game of a Trenton Royal Canadian Air Force-Peterborough group final senior "B" series goes on tonight at Belleville The Petes won the first two games of the best-of-five series, 6-5 and 3-1.

Kingston are on top of another Eastern Ontario Senior "B" group. It has not been decided whether they will continue into the "B" playoffs without a group playoff. There is possibility Kingston will meet the second-play team, Royal Military College of Kingston, for the group title.

Chatham and Stratford, ousted from the Michigan-Ontario amateur league playoffs, make up another group in the "B" division. They also may have a playoff to decide who will continue along the O.H.A. playoff trail

Waterloo and Kitchener, first and second-place finishers in an intermediate "A" group, were jumped into the senior "B" section for a playdown series. Waterloo won the first game of their best-of-five affair 4-1 Monday.

When all group playoffs are decided, the O.H.A. will arrange further elimination series between the "B" clubs with the ultimate champion stacking up against the Northern Ontario winner. The northern champion will be decided in a playdown series between the Gold Belt and Nickel Belt League titlists.

Jerwa, Jr., Signs For Ice Cream Cone

"And here's the way I'll shoot, pop," says Jerry Jerwa, 3½-year-old son of Joe Jerwa, defence star with New York Americans, as he demonstrates to his father the technique he will employ when he comes of hockey age. "Pop" seems to have idea's that the goal-keeper's position would be better for Junior, but it will be a few years before either will be worrying about problems like that.

Norwood Loses Its Protest To Madoc

A meeting of the executive of the Trent Valley Hockey League was held in Blue's Hotel, Madoc, on Tuesday to discuss and state on the protests lodged by Norwood over the game played in Norwod Friday which Madoc won 4-3.

Norwood protested the game within 24 hours on the grounds that Kerr, one of the MicMac players, was ineligible to play with the Madoc-Marmora club, since he had also played for the Stirling team.

After nearly three hours' discussion the committee agreed that the clubs were not at fault but that the regulations of the T.V.L. and the enforcement of the rules were to blame. The names of the players on each club's list had not been sent in on time and in some cases players had been added from time to time. A motion was passed that this fault should be corrected next year.

Regarding the protest, it was found that Kerr, living in Marmora, had been signed with the Madoc club, but that due to an over-supply of players he had not been playing on the team. Stirling, needing players to bolster their team, picked him up and used him without securing a release for him from the Madoc club.

On Friday night, playing with a crippled team due to two of their best players being used by the Junior O.H.A. Havelock-Norwood Combines, used Kerr to fill up their team. Norwood, needing points to get into a play-off position, lodged a protest.

It was moved by Campbellford, seconded by Stirling that the protest be thrown out and the $10 fee be returned to Norwood. The motion carried.

MUSSING UP THE MAPLES

Following good scores were rolled at Duffus' Recreation Academy in last night's league games:

The Mercantile league: Mrs. W. Jeffries 559 (215); Helen McFadden 471 (214); Margaret Wyllie 469; Margaret Parker 457; J. Leith 716 311); C. Barbour 660; J. Price 630.

Remember When—

Battle-scarred Marcel Thil, French boxer, retained his claim to the world middleweight title two years ago tonight by turning back the third challenge of Lou Brouillard, Worcester, Mass., French-Canadian. He was awarded the bout on a sixth round foul, but Brouillard claimed he was "robbed." The fight the year before ended similarly in the fourth round while Thil won a 12-round decision in their first meeting.

But Seven Rinks Undefeated, 'Spiel Tightens

TORONTO, Feb. 15 — (CP). — Seven rinks remained undefeated in the 12th annual Ontario bonspiel to-day, but there was an impression among curlers the number would be reduced quickly.

"They never last long after the banquet," one Toronto skip observed. "You'll see—we mow 'em down."

The 'spiel was interrupted last night by the annual banquet. Play resumes full blast to-day with stiff tests facing those in the unbeaten category. One of the penalties of being undefeated is that more and more games must be played each day as competition narrows in the various events.

In retaining a clean sheet the quartettes generally had played three games, one each in the three major contests, the Royal York, the Birks-Ellis-Ryrie, and Selberling Trophies.

Four rinks from Toronto were in this class. Earl Green, High Park; Bert Kennedy, Royals; C. R. Redfern, Torontos, and F. H. Sproule, High Park. The remaining three were H. C. Nelson, Bala; A. E. Dunker, Kitchener; and Dr. S. T. White of Orangeville.

Each of these fours play in the premier Royal York to-day and also in the Birks-Ellis-Ryrie, with other matches at night.

Seventeen rinks that have lost all three games played start in the Canada Dry Consolation Trophy to-da.

Four quartettes dropped from the unbeaten class late yesterday in the second round of the Royal York. They were C. F. Rumsey, Meaford; H. Forbes, Forest; Dr. E. C. Watson, Detroit; and C. F. Mason, Toronto Granites.

Rumsey was defeated 7-6 by J. A. Cheriton, Hamilton Thistles; Forbes dropped a 12-10 decision to Ed. Young's Toronto Royals, Dr. Watson lost 19-12 to S. Merdith, Barrie; and Mason was eliminated by H. J. Sims of Kitchener 11-2.

CURLING

By HERB MARTIN

In one of the best-curled schedule games played down at the old ice palace this winter, Dr. J. Green's rink nosed out R. F. Downey's rink, and by so doing took over the leadership for the Group C honors.

When we say nosed out, we mean just that; the game had to go an extra end, before the winner was declared.

There were two outstanding shots made during the game that we wish to comment on. The first one came on the 8th end when Ross Downey made another one of those hair-raising shots, that he has become famous for, to count a big four. He had to allow for a little fall in the ice, slip past two guards, remove two of Green's stones to count four, and he did that little thing.

The other shot was made by Dr. Green on the 12th end. Dr. was four down coming home and he had only one stone to play. Downey was laying shot. Dr. had to draw through a narrow port, raise one of his own stones into Downey's shot, and remove it. He, like Downey, did it and counted four, tying up the game and forcing an extra end.

There were six other games played last night, but the Green-Downey affair held all the interest.

We wish to remind our local skip that entries for the Neil Trophy close 8 p.m. Friday evening.

Scores:

Dr. J. Green 12, R. Downey 11.
I. Hamley 15, W. Harvey 8.
J. Lowes 11, J. W. McDermid 7.
T. Ryan 14, J. N. Williams 10.
T. Mackay 14, G. Hall 7.
J. Mayneord 14, G. Matthews 7.
J. Sedgwick 12, W. Oke 9.

C.G.E. Girls Grab Off Win

C.G.E. dropped in three baskets in quick succession in the dying minutes of the game to beat the Orfuns 18-16, in a thrilling, crucial all-local Ladies' Lakeshore League battle in the Collegiate gym last night and kept in the running for a play-off berth.

After battling through the first half on almost even terms, with the score 8-7, the Orfuns took a decisive 16-12 margin at the three quarter mark Then, fighting on even terms through the opening minutes of the final period it looked as though the Orfuns were in. But M. Hallihan dropped in two in a row to tie it up and with 10 seconds left M. Hodson scored to give C.G.E. their winning margin.

It was a close, hard-checking but clean all through with Referee Vince Holmes calling only 7 fouls, four on the Orfuns and three on C.G.E. Orfuns counted two of theirs and C.G.E. missed all four. M. Hodson and M. Hallihan stared for the winners and A. Livingstone, who shone all night at guard and G. Mortimer stood out for the Orfuns. The teams:

Orfuns (16)—A. Livingstone (8), J. Dawson, J. Weir, G. Mortimer (8), L. Magee (2), B. Blade (4), S. Levine (2), R. Ellis, D. Ackford, M. Snowden.

C.G.E. (18)—G. Mann, M. Hodson (6), A. Craig (1), M. McCarthy R. Thompson (4), K. Rogow (3), M. Hallihan (4), E. Foster, F. Nolan.

Referee—Vince Holmes, Peterborough.

BRANTFORD, Ont., Feb. 15 — (CP). — A woman whose name was withheld by police was arrested early to-day as the sequel to a part in a Brantford hotel on Monday night in which a Toronto man allegedly lost a 50 bill.

Police arrested the woman on a vagrancy charge when they found her at the Canadian National Railway Station.

St. John's Cagers Rally To Win

St. John's rallied strongly in the last half of their game last night with Westclox cagers and beat the Alarm Lasses 14-7, to stay near the top of the Ladies' City League. The Anglicans had only a 6-5 lead at the half, but a rally in the opening minutes of the last period in which they out-scored Westclox 8-0 gave them a commanding lead. From then on they checked well and although the losers had numerous shots they only countered once and at no time threatened the winners' lead.

The winners had better shooting but Westclox' passing and checking was more effective. A. Bowler with 8 points, C. Clarke and T. Laws were best for St. John's, and J. Hair and A. Flynn starred for Westclox. The teams:

Westclox.—A. Flynn, M. Hawthorne, M. Pammett, V. Britnell, J. Crowe, C. Metcalfe, J. Hair, M. Allison, C. Whatman, M. McFadden, M. Goldie, P. Wolstenholme, D. Dawson.

OSHAWA WALLOPS COLTS IN JUNIOR "B" PUCK FRACAS HERE

Locals Suffer A 9-2 Reverse In One-Sided Contest Before Slim Crowd Of Fans

Oshawa walloped the local Colts, 9 to 2, her last night in an O.H.A. junior "B" contest before about 200 fans at the Brock St. rink. It gave the Motor City crew an edge of two games to one in their double schedule, and Colts must win the next in Oshawa to stave off elimination.

Last night's number was a one-sided game most of the way. It was 2-1 in a tight first frame, but the speedy and husky visitors whammed home four goals without a return in the second, and they took a 3-1 edge in the windup heat. The Colts were decisively beaten on the night's play, and turned in one of their poorer exhibitions, while the Oshawa crew showed a lot of class.

The pace was fairly hot over most of the route, with plenty of speed shown as well as hard checking. It threatened to become real rough frequently, and there were a dozen penalties drawn, Oshawa being guilty seven times. One was a misconduct penalty to McMullen for arguing with the referee. Several times a fist fight nearly broke out between the rival junior puckists.

Shy One Player

Disappointed by their inability to use Joe Rochetta, the Colts were short one substitute throughout. None of the homesters turned in a real bangup performance over the distance, though they all tried hard. The defence looked weak in this fray and the forwards failed to click well on passing plays. Peters, Wilson, McMaster and Phillips went best for the winners, with the whole crew playing a neat tussle.

Peters scored early when he stole it from the local defence in close. Wilson was robbed of one by Cournyea and, when Parnell was gated for holding, Oshawa pressed. They made it 2-0 when Peters' shot was deflected in off Berwick's stick.

Later, the Colts got one back as Foster rammed home a pass from Wade on Phillips' doorstep Murphy got the thumb for holding and the Colts tried hard but did no damage. McMaster made Cournyea jump to save. Murhpy got it again for tripping and the locals had an edge as the fast, close first frame finished.

Peters Scores

Right at the start of the second, Peters got his third goal on Wilson's pass around defence. Foster came close, and Colts made it hot till Parnell climbed the wall for tripping. He was followed by Pammett and Fraser for roughing it, with Peters going off a bit later for tripping. Though Colts had a man advantage, Oshawa ran in two quick tallies to make it 5-1 and clinch the contest. McMaster scored on assists from Murphy and Wilson in close, and Wilson got another quick one on McMaster's fine pass. Craig was robbed and then the Colts took most of the play as Murphy got the air for tripping. It was hot and speedy for a time, but Berwick drew a penalty for hooking and Reid scored in a scramble. Murphy was chased for the fourth time for holding and Wade nearly counted at the bell.

The Jackson gang pressed to open the third and got their second goal, Williams counting from McDonald at close range. McMullen was waved off for tripping and the Colts again swarmed in but Phillips blocked them. It was plenty lively for a time, but Oshawa got another counter when Wilson broke loose and gave the goalie no chance on his hot shot. While the Colts were ganging up, they appeared disorganized and failed again to tally when McMullen drew another penalty for charging, followed by a misconduct. Wilson was thefted of one on a breakaway, and Craig got the finger for charging. Pammett came close, and then McMasters took York's pass to score. The Colts kept ganging up but could not sink the disc, and Wilson blasted home one more near the end on a neat solo effort.

The teams:

Oshawa: Goal, Phillips; defence, Fraser and Murphy; centre, Wilson; wings, Reid and Peters; alternates, Morris, McMaster, McMullen, York and Yourth.

Colts: Goal, Cournyea; defence, Parnell and Berwick; centre, Wade; wings, McDonald and Foster; alternates, Pammett, Craig, Strickland and Williams.

Winner Getting Worst Of It

Fight fans don't need a championship at stake to flock to the battle pits. Just a good slam-bang battle. Here's a scene from one of the very best of that type that lived up to its billing in every respect, the recent Billy Conn-Fred Apostoli bout that went to the former by a 15-round decision, giving him his second successive win over the battling middleweight.

Bauer Nabs Two As Bruins Whip Wings 2-1

BOSTON, Feb. 15—(CP).—What has been most impressive about Boston Bruins' great march at the head of the National Hockey League this season is the club's team play, with a resultant wide distribution of scoring points through the lineup.

But gradually from the closely-packed Bruin scorers is emerging a sophomore star who may soon be up with the individual leaders of clubs that trail Boston in the standings. He's Bobby Bauer, Young wingman on the sauerkraut line from Kitchener, Ont.

Bobby whipped in two third period goals here last night in Bruins' 2-1 victory over Detroit Red Wings, increasing his team's lead over the rest of the league to 10 points and putting him nearer the scoring pace-setters. He's only nine points from the four front men, Johnny Gottselig of Chicago, Sweeney Schriner of New York Americans, Syl Apps of Toronto and Toe Blake of Montreal.

Bobby Bauer

His latest performance—and the most brilliant of his young career—spoiled a magnificent home-coming for Tiny Thompson, the goalie Detroit bought from Bostom the middle of this season. Until Bauer went gunning late in the third period Tiny was heading for one of his most notable achievements.

Thompson Right On

Through the first two periods Thompson withstood a constant Boston barrage that increased as the crowd of 14,000 marvelled at his play. Three minutes after the second period started Hec Kilrea gave Detroit a lead on a pass from Gus Giesebrecht.

Hec Kilrea

Then the centre of Bauer's line, Milt Schmidt, started a play that was carried along by Eddie Shore and was ended by Bauer's drive into the Detroit rigging. In less than two minutes, ond with less than five minutes to play, Bauer got the winning goal with Shore and other sauerkraut lineman, Porky Dumart, assisting.

No other N.H.L. game was scheduled. By their loss, the Wings remained in sixth place in the standings, a point behind Chicago and four above Montreal's last-place Canadiens

Cobourg To Play Monarchs Tonight

Peterborough Monarchs face the acid test here tonight (Wednesday) when they clash with Cobourg in an O.H.A. junior "C" struggle at 8.30 in the Brock St. rink It is the final scheduled game for the locals and they must win it to make a playoff berth. A loss for the Monarchs will finish them for this season. Cobourg now has a one-point edge over them in the standing, and tonight's win gives the victor two points and puts that team into the group semi-finals. A good sheet of ice and two squads at full strength will battle it out to the bitter end in this fracas, and it deserves a good crowd of fans—especially as there will be no senior "B" game here this week.

Coach Pete Vitarelli and his gang feel they can lick the husky and hard-hitting Cobourgites, and they blame their close loss in Cobourg some time back on the smaller ice surface. The Monarchs play a colorful and scrappy style of fast hockey, and will be hard to knock off on home ice here tonight when the chips are all down, and elimination staring them in the face. The visitors, too, will be fighting for all they're worth and a smart game is in prospect.

Canadian Star Wins Boston Race

Campaigning at the indoor track meets in United States with more than a fair measure of success is Bill Fritz, a member of Canada's last Olympic team, now a student at Queen's University. Here he is seen winning the 600 yard event at the Boston Athletic association games, a week after he had forced the winner of the same event at New York's Millrose games to a new record. Fritz is at the RIGHT, giving that extra "umph" that carried him over the line inches ahead of Harold Cagle, LEFT, of Oklahoma Baptist.

Trents Whipped By Leading Elgins 4-3

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HAVELOCK, Feb. 15.—Elgin kept a firm grip on top place in the East Peterborough Rural League, defeating Trent River by a close 4-3 count last evening at the Norwood arena. The game was fast and clean throughout, no penalties being given to either side.

Two thirty minute periods were played, the Elgin squad having a decided advantage in the initial frame, scoring three goals, while Trent River failed to notch a counter. Metcalfe scored from R. Richardson two minutes after the period began, R. Richardson notching the second from Sheppard, and the latter making it 3-0 on a solo effort about halfway through the stanza.

The Trent River boys came back strong in the second session, Jim Brown scoring unassisted, in less than two minutes. Brown also notched their second one this time on a pass from F. McLaughlin. Roy Richardan tallied once more for Elgin making the count 4-2. Trent River pressed hard to even it up but one more goal by F. McLaughlin, was the best they could do.

R. Richardson, Metcalfe and Sheppard were best for the Elgin squad although every player turned in a good game. F. McLaughlin, Jim Brown, Jamieson and Chaplin were most effective for the losers.

The teams:

Elgin—Goal, E. Preston; defence, O'Grady, Sheppard; centre, R. Richardson; wings, J. Preston, Metcalfe; alternates, Lobb, J. Richardson, Lumeden.

Crown's Case

to see what damage had been done, when I saw Meagher lying on the pavement."

"Did you see the truck then?"

"No, not after the accident."

"What injuries did he (Meagher) have?"

"He had one leg torn off and the other was crushed."

As he dropped from the tender he gave the engineer a "washout" signal (waving his lantern rapidly across his body) to have the engine stopped.

Bell, Not Whistle, Sounded.

The light at the rear of the tender is fixed and strikes the track some 12 or 15 feet from the tender, it was revealed in cross-examination by Mr. Carley.

The whistle was not sounded at the crossing, Mr. Burtt said.

The engine was hauling seventeen cars at the time, the front of the engine attached to the first car, the back of the engine free, so that the engine was proceeding backwards, he said.

The truck was 100-150 feet east of the track, while the train was 200 to 250 feet from the crossing when he first observed the truck.

"Am I to gather that the train travelled further than the truck in that time?" Mr. Carley asked. There was no answer.

No lights were on in the Lillico building at the time so far as he could remember. He admitted that while the bell was sounding the noise from a truck or any welding being done in the building would tend to prevent the bell being heard.

A whistle would certainly be easier to hear than a bell and would be a more effective warning, he admitted.

Because of the angle of the crossing Meagher would have a better view to the north and possibly to the south than himself, he said.

He gave no signal to the engineer until he dropped off, he admitted.

"There was no application of air brakes until you gave the washout signal?"

"No, sir."

"How far away was the truck when you gave the washout signal?"

"It was practically on the track."

"I'm suggesting to you that at the inquest you said the truck was 15 or 20 feet away from you. Do you remember giving that answer?"

"No, sir."

Mr. Carley read evidence to support his claim.

Mr. Burtt said the question had had reference to the distance he was from the truck himself, not the distance separating truck from train.

A Dangerous Crossing.

The crossing is level, is across a highway, and there is considerable traffic passing along the road, but there is no wig-wag or other electrical warning.

"It is one of the most dangerous in the city, is it not?"

"Yes, sir, it is dangerous."

He was not on the engine a week after the fatality when another accident occurred at the crossing, he said.

Ordinarily whistles are sounded some 300 feet from a crossing, but not in this city, where they are prohibited.

In Peterborough the ringing of bells too, was prohibited by by-law until the train reached a distance of 75 feet from the crossing. In this case the bell was ringing some 400 feet away, he said.

In re-examination he said that not only the crossing in question, but all level crossings are dangerous.

Engineer Testifies.

Andrew Clegg, engineer, said he started to ring the bell just after he had crossed the bridge, some 800 feet from the crossing, and it was still ringing after the accident occurred.

The electric headlight will throw a beam 300 feet in front of the train and 15 feet wide, and it was lighted, he testified.

He first saw the truck after it came past the Lillico building, he said. The train was travelling seven or eight miles an hour. He did not apply the brake then "because you don't apply your brake for every car you see." The truck was travelling at least 25 miles an hour, he said.

At the edge of the crossing he applied the brakes because he saw the truck was not going to stop, and they collided. The tender came to a halt "pretty well at the other side of the crossing."

"Street lights at that point could be improved upon," he admitted.

In cross-examination, he said he had not applied the emergency brake prior to the time of the accident.

Says Whistle Is Better.

The whistle is a louder warning than would be a bell, he said, and the engine was equipped with both.

He said he had not seen Burtt give the washout signal.

"And his duty is to give warning?"

"As far as that goes, he does not have to be there at all according to regulations."

"You were aware of the by-law in Peterborough that prohibited ringing your bell more than 75 feet from a crossing?"

"Yes."

"Yet you rang it much further away? Why did you not blow the whistle?"

Mr. Clegg said he had not blown the whistle because a "taboo" is much stronger in Peterborough on whistles than on bells, because the former are much louder.

He said he recognized the crossing as a dangerous one, more so than others. The street lighting is poor, traffic is heavy, there are no electrical warnings, he admitted.

"Why didn't you blow the whistle as you approached the crossing?" asked Mr. McElderry in re-examination.

"The use of the whistle is prohibited in the city of Peterborough."

William Strickland, fireman on the tender, said the train travelled 25 or 30 feet after brakes had been applied.

Car Travels 200 Feet.

After the crash, he got out of the engine and saw the truck come to a halt about 200 feet north of the crossing. He said in answer to questioning, that the bell had sounded at a much greater distance than 75 feet, and that such was a violation of city by-law; and that a whistle was a better warning than a bell.

Archibald Brault, grocer, said in cross-examination, that the crossing was a dangerous one in his opinion.

Joseph R. Hill said he drove home to Lakefield every evening a few minutes after six o'clock. The street lighting there is poor, he said, and visibility on the night in question was not good.

He halted his car, saw the end of the engine close to the far side of the roadway, and a crowd gathered.

Never Heard Warning.

In cross-examination he said he frequently meets an engine passing. "I've never heard the engine bell as a warning. I've heard it frequently after I stopped my car."

"How do you account for that?"

"The train is sheltered in a hollow there, and there is a building that would absorb some sound. Also welding work is carried on in the building, and the noise from it would tend to drown out the sound of the bell," he said.

Some lights were on in the Lillico building the night of the accident, he said.

"What do you say as to the danger of that crossing?"

"I consider it rather dangerous. I am always careful there."

In re-examination, he affirmed his opinion as to the danger of the crossing, citing poor lights, a substation that diffuses lights from the train headlight, and the Lillico building as contributing causes.

Truck in Good Condition.

Cyril Hutt, Lakefield, passenger in the accused's truck, said the brakes and lights of the truck were in good condition. The car was travelling at 15 miles an hour some distance back, and it had not increased speed before the accident to his knowledge. The windows were closed and were clean.

He said he had passed by the crossing many times with Hudson, who, he said, travels by that route at least once a day.

He was unable to say whether Hudson had looked to the right before the accident.

"What about Mr. Hudson's eyesight?"

"It was always good."

"Have you anything to tell about his eyes?"

"Yes, sir. He has only one eye, his right one."

Hudson did not apply his brakes, gave no sign that he observed the train. There was no increase in speed, no change in direction until the time of the crash. Then the headlights went out, the engine failed momentarily, then came on again, he said. The truck was struck just in front of the back wheel, he said.

The truck travelled "quite a little way" north of the track before coming to a halt, he said.

In cross-examination he said he had been present when the brakes were tested by a police officer following the crash, and that they had been in good working order.

Despite the fact that Hudson has only one eye, his sight was better than the witness' own.

No Brake Marks.

Constable William Piercy said he had arrived at the scene of accident at 5.55 o'clock. He had found Meigher lying 22 feet north of the track. "I went some distance south of the tracks and could see no brake marks on the ground." The point of impact took place two feet west of the centre of the road, he said.

Piercy said measurements made by himself showed visibility from 138 south to the railway crossing and to a distance 138 feet east on the railway tracks. Lights and brakes were in good condition on the car, he said.

Cross-examined, he admitted that the visibility measurements were made from an automobile, and that the seat in a truck is higher.

There were no lights on in the Lillico building when he arrived, he said.

He denied that motion of the train would make the point of impact appear several feet further to the west than it actually was.

Defence Opens.

Charles Tanner of Lakefield, optometrist and druggist, was the defence's first witness. He said he had examined accused's eyesight, reported good vision, good clear perception in his right eye. The report was made on January 24 this year. "I consider him to have good vision. I gave him 95 per cent."

In comparison to other drivers, Hudson's eyesight is very good, he said.

E. A. Outram, deputy city clerk, identified a city by-law, read clauses governing train whistles or bells.

Under cross-examination he admitted a by-law had been passed within the past six weeks permitting blowing of whistles in case of emergency.

Not "Shiners"

A quick glance would intimate that a very pretty society girl was sporting a pair of beautiful shiners. Closer examination, and the picture deserves that, wil lshow that those are merely charcoal smudges beneath the eyes of Miss Sue Bosley, of Lousville, Ky. Sue thus protects here eyes from the sun's glare while absorbing the ultra-violet on Sea Spray Beach, Palm Beach.

No Progress

A short but acrimonious debate arose over efforts of the government to curtail private members' privileges and brought criticism from the prime minister that the administration had been prevented, so far this session, from making any progress with government business.

So strong was the protest from all parts of the opposition against any further curtailment of time in which private members may have priority for their resolutions that a motion to deprive them of Wednesdays, starting today, was made effective a week from today.

Another controversy arose over the question of seed grain for western farmers. Agriculture Minister Gardiner urged that othing be said to undo the work of the Saskatchewan government in its endeavors to induce the farmers to retain enough grain in their bins for spring seeding. He was satisfied no deserving farmer would go without seed. Last year in Saskatchewan alone the seed loans exceeded $21,000,000.

Mr. Mackenzie King declared the United States agreement "goes a long way toward carrying out faithfully the undertaking which was given by this party to the electorate of Canada at the time of the last general election."

Under the present government's trade policies rates of duty chargeable under the British preferential tariff were now on an average lower than they have ever been while rates chargeable on United States goods, on most commodities, are lower than when the Liberals left office in 1930.

Only Liberals Successful.

Since Confederation most Canadian governments had sought reciprocal trade agreements with the United States, continued the Prime Minister. The only successful attempts at negotiation were reached by previous Liberal governments. An agreement was reached under the government of Alexander Mackenzie but defeated in the United States Senate. Another under Sir Wilfrid Laurier in 1911 was rejected by Canada after the defeat of the Laurier Government at a general election. In that election the Conservatives chose to make the issue not on the economic aspects of the treaty but on Canada's adherence to the British Empire.

"I remember very well hearing Sir Wilfrid say at that time it would probably be at least a quarter of a century before another opportunity would come to effect a trade agreement between these two countries."

It was almost 25 years exactly when another agreement became possible due to the fact that governments favorable to tariff reductions were in office both at Ottawa and Washington.

"No man is more outstanding in the world to-day as a great reformer in the matter of trade than Mr. Corden Hull (Secretary of State of the United States)," said Mr. Mackenzie King.

Mr. Hull's consistent advocacy of trade reform had been an example to the world. He realized if the increasing tendency to economic imperialism and economic nationalism, to the throttling of all exchange between nations were not halted the world was headed for destruction.

Mr. Mackenzie King paid high tribute to the work of L. D. Wilgress, Hector McKinnon and Norman Robertson, who carried on the detailed negotiation of the treaty at Washington.

The Conservative government had the services of the same three men during its term of office prior to 1935. Some negotiations took place but Parliament had been unabel to get any information on their progress.

Mr. Bennett's colleagues in the cabinet, however, were divided, and so he was unable to enunciate any definite program or make any real progress.

While ministers like Conservative leader Manion and Hon. Hugh Stewart (Con. Leeds) probably were favorable to trade reform there was another wing which included Hon. C. H. Cahan (Con. St. Lawrence-St. George) who were strongly opposed to any trade concessions In a recent speech Mr Cahan had indicated "one of his pet aversions was the United States."

Other Differences

"When the prime minister gets through telling about the differences in our party will he tell about the differences on his side," said Dr. Manion.

"The differences on our side have all been reconciled," said Mr. King. "There were no differences on this question." When the first trade agreement with the United States was presented to the House in 1936 not more than one of the large Liberal following was opposed to it and Mr. King said he was sure at least 99 and perhaps 100 per cent of the Liberal members would vote for the present agreement.

"It is perfectly clear that if the Conservative party had been returned it would have been just as divided after the election as before and, true to tradition, the protectionist group in the cabinet would have prevailed and we would have had no agreement whatever."

"I was in that government and there was no disagreement," Conservative leader Manion interjected.

"Then there was agreement in the government that no agreement would be signed before the election," the prime minister reported.

"Because they did not like it," a Conservative observed.

"The Tory party in Canada has never liked an agreement with the United States," the Prime Minister declared. "Whenever they occupy the treasury benches the public will look in vain for an agreement with United States.

The Liberal Opposition had criticized the 1932 trade agreements because they gave preferences to the Empire by raising duties against other countries. "That was an entirely new plan of raising tariffs under the guise of granting a preference. The British preference owed its existence to Sir Wilfrid Laurier who first granted it in 1896 by lowering tariffs," Mr. Mackenzie King said.

Might Be Worse.

Conditions were not entirely satisfactory in Canada, the Prime Minister said, "but I hesitate to say what they would be put for the policies of this government. They would have been infinitely worse."

Since the new treaty was signed an attempt had been made to use it to create sectional differences. The great advantages of the agreement to Canada as a whole would far outweigh any disadvantages which might come to particular areas.

Dr. Manion had described a Government press release at the time the treaty was signed as "ballyhoo and propaganda."

The Government would have been open to criticism if it had not made a statement and the press release contained facts.

In addition to the direct benefits accruing to Canada from concessions in the Canadian treaty by virtue of the most favored nation arrangement, Canada received the benefit of all the concessions given by the United States in its agreement with the United Kingdom.

The agreements represented a return to "sound economics" on part of the three participating countries, Canada, the United States, and Great Britain. They reduced hundreds of duties and raised none.

The Canada-United States agreement paved the way for the United States agreement with Great Britain. Those who sometimes urged Canada should take leadership in world affairs should get some satisfaction in the fact it was the Government of Canada which made possible "the most important agreement in modern times." Formal thanks had already been extended to Canada by the British Government for making the agreement possible. The two agreements were inseparable because one could not have been made without the other.

Canada, however, had sound reason for making its contribution. The former agreement with the United States was for three years, and expired this year. The present agreement with Great Britain would expire next year.

Where Would We Be?

"Where would Canada be in the matter of its future trade if it had not sought to use its good offices to make these agreements possible?" he asked.

"Where would we be if we had not played the part Canada is expected to play in the world to-day, of interpreter between Great Britain and the United States?" he asked.

The democracies of Europe had become so concerned about the stagnation of trade that the British and French Governments had asked former Premier Paul Van Zeeland of Belgium to go to the United States Government and try to persuade it to loosen up some of the trade restrictions. Mr. Van Zeeland had said no greater contribution could be made to the betterment of world conditions than by a trade agreement between Great Britain and the United States.

"Once again," the prime minister said, "we have played the part of reconciler and interpreter between the two English speaking democracies." It was a matter of supreme importance to the world. "No more improtant contribution toward a new order in relations as between nations has been made at this critical period in the world."

Dr. Manion said the prime minister had made a "good political stump speech." He did not propose to "waste the time of the House" in answering political arguments but would confine his later comments to the merits or demerits of the trade agreement.

"I was puzzled to understand how the prime minister can get so worked up over the peace that has been reached, through this agreement, with the United States," Dr. Manion said. He was sure people had heard speakers rejoicing over the 100 years of peace and the 3,000 miles of undefended border until they were "sick" of it much as they appreciated the fact.

"I cannot recall any difficulties between Canada and the United States since 1812," Dr. Manion said. "I don't want to puncture the bubble the prime minister has blown but at the same time I cannot see why he should get so worked up over peace-promoting aspects of the agreement."

Dr. Manion, in accordance with a previous arrangement, moved adjournment of the debate until Friday next.

MOTOR VEHICLE PERMITS AND DRIVERS' LICENSES EXPIRE MARCH 31st

Your Automobile, Trailer, Truck or Motorcycle Must Bear the New 1939 Plates on April 1st

This year there will be no further extension of time allowed for registering motor vehicles and securing drivers' licenses after the expiration date, March 31st, 1939.

In past years Motor Vehicle Permits and Drivers' Licenses expired on December 31st. In order to afford greater convenience and service to motorists in Ontario the Government has extended the expiration date three months.

This extra period of time should, we feel, be ample for every motorist, and this year therefore, there will positively be no extension of time past March 31st.

Your prompt co-operation and action in purchasing new plates and securing your operator's license is therefore expected.

Secure your new plates at the earliest possible moment. By postponing action you run the risk of being turned away in the rush of the last day or two, and thus become liable to a fine. You can save yourself worry and time wasted standing in line if you will decide now to purchase your new 1939 plates well in advance of March 31st.

PUBLIC COMMERCIAL VEHICLE LICENSES ALSO EXPIRE MARCH 31st

All trucks and trailers operated as Public Commercial Vehicles must display P.C.V. 1939 License Plates after March 31st, and while this is the regular expiry date for this type of license, no extension of time will be granted.

COAL CHUTE STOLEN.

An iron coal chute valued at $5, the property of the Sanitary Ice Supply, was reported stolen yesterday from in front of the Capitol Theatre.

SPEAKING COURSE OFF.

Owing to the skating carnival and the Friday Night Supper Club dance there will be no lecture in the public speaking course at the Y.M.C.A. this week. The course will be resumed on Friday, February 24.

TWO WEEKS' ADJOURNMENT.

Traffic Officer Gordon E. Broughton asked for a two weeks' adjournment when a reckless driving charge against Ashley Yates of Port Hope was called in traffic court this morning. Yates agreed to the adjournment.

PROSPECTIVE BUSINESS

Main streeters today were saying that a men's furnishing store in Toronto contemplates opening a branch in the city, but no definite information is available. The rumor indicates local real estate agents are attempting to find suitable premises for the business.

ATTRACTIVE EXHIBIT

Peterborough Lock Co. has an attractive display at the Ontario Retail Hardware Association convention at the Royal York in Toronto. In addition to the display of locks the firm is showing an attractive line of building hardware, including colored knobs and appliances for inside doors.

CORRECTION

Alderman Bradburn requested the Examiner to correct the report of the council meeting on Monday night that he was in favor of the Nicholls Hospital bylaw. "What I said was that I was in favor of the bylaw being submitted to the people. I didn't say I was in favor of it. I am not saying anything about it in that respect."

ROUGH JITTERBUGS

William Gracie, caretaker at the Canadian Legion Hall is nursing torn muscles and a cracked rib today because of a few rowdies who started a rumpus at a dance in the hall recently. The young men are said to have manhandled the caretaker when he asked them to leave the hall. In future any such action will result in charges being laid against any offender. Gracie admits that he knows the guilty parties and would recognize them but has decided to issue a warning to others before laying any charges.

TRAFFIC CASES.

Failure to produce his operator's license when asked to do so caused William Casey a fine of $2 and $3 costs in traffic court this morning, accused entering a plea of guilty through Constable Gordon Puffer. James Moore paid $2 and 3 costs for failing to bring his car to a full stop before entering a through highway, and on a similar charge William Breckenridge was assessed $2 and $2.50 costs. A charge against Robert McDougall of failing to produce his driving license was adjourned for a week.

MORE ABOUT CAR TRACKS

Ivan Fletcher, operator of the Keene bus is another who is very much in favor of seeing the street car tracks on lower George street removed. This morning Ivan swung towards the centre of the road to miss a bicyclist, and had to drive straight to make room for an oncoming car. As the bus struck the tracks, the bicyclist fell and the bus went into a spin. Everything happened in a second and by good luck and clever driving, Ivan missed the bicycle, the other motorist swung wide and bus came to a stop facing George street wharf.

ORCHIDS FOR THREE

Miss Lahring Parsons, Bob White and Jack Holland rate orchids in the opinion of many people for the fine work they are doing without remuneration in conducting lessons in the art of skiing. The first two have been teaching the younger skiers on Saturday afternoons at Jackson Park while Jack Holland has conducted a ski school two nights a week in Victoria Park during the winter. All three have done this work with one thought in mind, namely to promote skiing in this district.

THREE FRIGHTENED PERSONS

Three persons had a close brush with death this week when the car in which they were riding struck an icy strip on Water street north, jumped the ruts and finally stopped against the steel guard fence along the Auburn raceway. The bumper of the car was broken by the impact but fortunately the fence was strong enough to block the car's progress, or the three would have been plunged into the deep water. Spectators claim the three occupants were so frightened when they stepped out of the car, they couldn't speak. The driver had no chance to prevent the minor mishap.

Requiem High Mass Celebrated In City's Catholic Churches As Body Of Pope Given To Tomb

Requiem High Masses with large congregations at the Roman Catholic churches of Peterborough this morning united the three parishes with the entire Roman Catholic world in its mourning for the head of the church, Pius XI, whose body was given up to the tomb in the crypt of St. Peter's at Rome to-day.

Rev. J. J. O'Brien, parish priest at the Church of the Sacred Heart, was celebrant of the Mass, with Rev. J. C. Maloney as deacon and Rev. Dr. Grant, sub-deacon. The choir was composed of girls from the Sacred Heart school. Deep purple drapings on the walls of the sanctuary and in front of the choir gallery accentuated the note of lament in the funeral rites. Many of the members of the congregation received Holy Communion.

At the conclusion of the Mass, Rev. Father O'Brien spoke of the character and virtues of the late Pontiff, to whom the press of the country and the radio had paid kindly and splendid tributes. "We are here to unite this morning with the millions of people throughout the world who are praying for the repose of the soul of their spiritual father," who was referred to by Rev. Father O'Brien as the vicar of Christ on earth, the successor of St. Peter, and the head of the universal and infallible church to whom Christ said "Heaven and earth may pass away, but Word shall not pass away."

Workingman's Friend.

A man of great intellectual attainments, Pius XI was the champion and defender of the eternal principles of teuth and mercy and that justice which is founded on the word of God, Father O'Brien said. The workingman had lost his greatest friend in the death of the Pope, whose encyclical on Labor asserted the inalienable rights of mankind in relation to employment.

In the midst of strife and a world upset by clashing ideas, Pius XI was above all his other interests a man of religion, fulfilling the commission of Christ to His apostles in the charge "Go ye therefore, teaching all nations—baptizing them in the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost." So Pius XI gave special devation to the cause of the missions, sending missionaries into pagan lands, and on one day, for example, he received at St. Peter's six Chinese priests as bishops into the episcopacy of the church.

The Pope's love of little children was mentioned by Father O'Brien, quoting the words of Christ, "Let the little children come to Me for of such is the kingdom of God." His solicitude for them was frequently expressed in his later years by demanding for them that right of growing up in the knowledge and love of God.

At The Cathedral.

St. Peters Cathedral was crowded for the memorial Pontifical High Mass of requiem sung by Most Rev. Denis O'Connor, D.D., LL.D. The City Council was represented by Mayor Hamilton and Aldermen Gordon, Dutton, Glover, Bradburn, McCannan and City Clerk Armstrong.

Bishop O'Connor was assisted by Rev. Dr. Kelly, and the honorary assistant deacons were Rev. V. Corkery and Rev. E. Welsh; Rev. E. Grant was deacon, and Rev. J. Walsh, sub-deacon.

"This is a day of sorrow throughout the whole Church," the Bishop said in the sermon. In our own diocese, requiem mass has been said or is being celebrated at the present time. Throughout the whole a reverential sorrow exists for one who was so highly respected.

Pope Of The Missions.

"Pope Pius XI. was known as the Pope of Peace and the Pope of the Missions, and so great was his interest in the Catholic missions that missionary fathers in remote places felt at all times that the Holy Father walked beside them on difficult journeys. He opened up many new dioceses in all parts of the world.

"Pope Pius opened his Pontificate by walking bravely to the balcony overlooking the city of Rome and giving his blessing, 'Urbi et Orbi,' to the city and to the world. So deep was his desire to convey a blessing of peace that even when he died with the word peace on his lips, his hand was seen to move in feeble benediction of the world."

"Now the Pope is dead and we feel lonely and bewildered. Soon he will have a successor and thus the unbroken line from the time of St. Peter will be continued until the work of the Church is completed and the world is no more."

CONGRATS AND CRITICISM

Congratulations are being extended Gord Armstrong, Adjutant of the Prince of Wales Rangers, whose wife gave birth to an 8½-pound baby girl in St. Joseph's hospital yesterday. Fellow officers of the regiment have just a little criticism, however. It seem that the baby is the first girl to be born to the wife of an officer since the Prince of Wales Rangers was organized two years ago. Seven boys have made their appearance in that time and the complaint was heard last night that an eighth would have completed some future platoon. "There always has to be a sweetheart of the regiment," is Gord's reply to any criticism.—P.

Suspect Is Held In Attacks Upon 3 Women

Suspected of being the youth whose attacks upon women have caused so much alarm in several sections of the city, Lloyd Spinks, 17, of High street, faced three charges of indecent assault in police court this morning and was remanded without plea or election until Thursday morning.

The arrest of Spinks followed the arousing of suspicion in the mind of Detective Sergt. W. E. Meagher that the youth closely answered the description given the police by the women who had been attacked. When the girl who was the victim of Monday night's assault at King and Bethune strets also supplied a detailed description of the assailant, Detective Meagher and Officer Leo Murphy called at Spinks' home Tuesday afternoon and ordered him to report last night at the police station, and when the youth arrived he was placed under arrest.

This morning, after Spinks had been arraigned and was being asked to elect, Acting Crown Attorney P. D. Kerr, K.C., asked for a remand.

"In view of the youth of the prisoner and the seriousness of the offences with which he is charged," he said, "I feel there should be a remand in order to give him a chance to consult a lawyer as to how he should elect."

Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., agreed with that viewpoint and remanded Spinks until tomorrow. "There will be no question of bail," he commented.

"I would not think of consenting to bail," replied the Acting Crown Attorney.

Will Perform At Skating Carnival

The Toronto Skating Club Four, 1939 Canadian champions. Although these four youngsters have been skating as a quartette for only a few months, they have shown remarkable ability, and with another year's experience should be tops in their difficult work. They are, from LEFT to RIGHT, Donald Gilchrist, runner-up for the Canadian junior men's championship; Miss Gillian Watson, Miss Ruth Hall, and Sandy McKechnie, Canadian junior men's champion. Of the last named Howard Nicholsen, the New York professional, said that Sandy was already skating programs comparable with the best in the world and he looked for him to be one of the sport's finest performer in another couple of years. These four will appear on the program at the Skating Carnival to be held in the Brock Street Rink on Friday night.

Richmond Team Wins Tourney At Knox Church

Their experience, and possibly their luck, in winning games on the curling ice, remained with a team skipped by James Richmond in the invitation carpet bowls tournament at Knox church last night. The first prize winners with Mr. Richmond were Alex. W. Archibald, Howard Clegg and J. Belch of Millbrook. They took four nams, but there was certainly no significance in the choice of prizes for the successful team.

The runners-up in the scoring was the team led by Ian Mackenzie, composed of Mr. and Mrs. Everett Ross and Mrs. Mackenzie.

The ladies team turning in the top score was composed of Mrs. W. H. Cunningham, Mrs. Chris. Kennedy, Mrs. R. G. Burns and Mrs. H. Wood, skip.

It was a mixed tournament with rinks from St. Andrew's St. James (four), George Street and Knox churches, Millbrook (two), I.O.O.F., Fire Hall, Prince of Wales School, with a total attendance of nearly 180 men and women. The visitors were welcomed by Rev. V. R. Zufelt, Alderman McIntyre conveyed greetings from George Street bowlers, and the prizes were presented by Alderman H. J. McCannan. The draw was made by Robert Rawlston and Arthur Pitchford.

The affair was an enjoyable success, and at the conclusion of the games, refreshments were served by the ladies of Knox church, who retcived a well merited vote of thanks moved by Mr. Pitchford.

Three Vehicles Are Involved In Crash

Three motor vehicles were involved and damaged to some extent in a traffic accident at George and Rink street Tuesday afternoon.

Harry Bateman, driving a truck belonging to Cranston's Bakery, Stirling, had stopped on the west side of George street, facing north, to deliver some bread and swung out to go back to the east side of the street just as a car driven by C. Elliott of Lang came along from the south.

Elliott was unable to stop and collided with the bread truck and then was diverted into a parked car owned by H. S. Longhurst, 319 Park street. All three machines received some damage, but the drivers escaped unhurt.

A Beautiful Cardinal

Earl Mills, manager of the Mills-Wolff Fox Farm, Chemong Road, reports that a beautiful red bird, which he identifies as a cardinal, comes daily to his door yard for food. The bird always comes alone, and usually appears between 9 a.m. and 4 p.m. He would like to know whether anyone else has seen the cardinal in these parts in midwinter.

Father And Son Banquet Held

The annual Father and Son banquet was held by the Brotherhood of St. James' United Church in the church basement on Monday, at tables decorated for St. Valentine's Day. The wives of the class members prepared and served a dinner complete with good fare to sixty-five fathers and their sons of all ages. The program consisted of: A Toast, "The King," proposed by E. Godfrey; Toast, "Our Fathers," proposed by A. Fife, and responded to by J. O. Fife; Solo, Miss H. Palmer; Toast, "The Church," proposed by A. E. Prest and responded to by Rev. F. W. Craik; Accordion solo, J. Hodson; Violin solo, Jack Harris; Solo by Miss B. Curtis.

The guest speaker was Rev. F. G. Kelly of Lakefield, and his vivid address was "The English Bible," a most timely subject, since the devout are celebratin gthe 400th year of its translation by heroic Wycliffe. The gathering was gripped by the picture, unfolded in graphic phrases, of courage, daring, skill and determination by Wycliffe and his brave friends in translating the Latin Bible into our familiar and well-loved Book, so that even a child may read and conform to its guidance. The Book from whose pages the best traditions of British justice are taken, is the anchor that a reeling world must use, or perish.

The president, H. Welch thanked the speaker on behalf of those present.

Mrs. H. Turner and Mrs. R. Moynes sang a duet, accompanying on guitars, and a toast, "The Ladies" proposed by B. May and responded to by Mrs. A. Brumwell concluded the evening's program.

Ashton Fife was the capable accompanist and Walter Wheeler's social committee successfully arranged the banquet. At the door, handling the receipts, were H. Brumwell, treasurer, and Ben Kerr, secretary.

Unaware Of Age Admits Supplying Liquor To Minor

"I admit supplying the liquor but I did not know she was under age," declared Herbert Goodwin, North Monaghan, in police court this morning when charged with knowingly supplying liquor to a minor, a girl under the age of 21 years.

Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., accordingly entered a plea of not guilty.

"It makes considerable difference," he informed the accused. "If you knowingly supply liquor to a minor, the sentence can be a month in jail, while on the other hand if you supply liquor to a person you do not know is a minor the penalty is only a fine."

Goodwin was ready to go ahead with the case, but the prosecution asked for a remand, and tomorrow was set as the date for hearing the evidence. The charge was laid by Constable Bruce Menzies of North Monaghan.

Coasting Accident May Prove Fatal

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CAMPBELLFORD, Feb. 15. — A seven-year-old Campbelford boy is in a critical condition as the result of a head injury he sustained while sleigh riding a week ago. Ross Holmes, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Holmes, Queen Street, was sleighriding with a group of friends on Church Street a week ago on Sunday when his sleigh carried him over a step bank into a cement culvert, on which he struck his head.

Little was thought of the accident at the time, but on Sunday last he became ill and a doctor was called. He is suffering from inflammation of the brain, and is conceded only a slight chance of recovery.

Widening Of George Street South Of C.P.R. Is Estimated By Engineer To Cost $5,000

A suggested plan to widen George Street, opposite the plant of Canada Packers, Limited, from the C.P.R. siding south to Townsend Street was estimated to cost $5,000 in a report prepared by City Engineer Parsons and conveyed to the Legal Committee last night by Mayor Hamilton.

The subject was mentioned in that committee in connection with a letter on its file from Ozias de Laplante, complaining about the practice of the company in loading its trucks on George Street. It was felt that it was a matter for the Board of Works to deal with, and the Parsons report was left for their consideration.

City To Ask For Legislation Enabling Municipal Board Determining City Trust Grants

Repulsed in their frontal approach, the Legal Committee of the council, decided Tuesday night to try a flank movement in a net effort to obtain for the present benefit of the ratepayers, some of the City Trust Commission's accumulated surplus of $350,000.

Mayor Hamilton was deputed to interview Alex L. Elliott, M.P.P., proposing to him that the city apply through Hon. Gordon Conant, Attorney-General, for legislation enabling the Ontario Municipal Board to determine the amount of grants that may be made from time to time from the City Trust's monies to the municipal treasury.

Alderman Bradburn presided at the meeting, and the other members present were Aldermen Stocker and Dutton and Mayor Hamilton.

Th subject was introduced in correspondence between the Commission and the Ontario Municipal Board, copies of which had been supplied to all members of the council. Alderman Bradburn briefly summed up the precedents to the existing stalemate by saying that the City Trust Commission had declared they were prevented by Legislative enactment from giving any of their surplus funds to the city, that the Commission referred the council to the Municipal Board, who in turn replied that they could do nothing, that they had no authority to interfere.

"They are just see-sawing," Alderman Dutton remarked.

Grants Formerly Made

Mayor Hamilton recalled that the council used to receive grants from the Commission for the express purpose of helping to reduce the tax rate, and Alderman Dutton added the comment that in so doing the Commission had done what they now contended they could not do.

"When they so spent one dollar, immediately the terms of the City Trust were broken," Alderman Dutton said.

There was a note of regret in a passing reference to the course the council had taken in listing certain projects such as the pedestrian bridge at the Quaker Oats dam, purchase of new road machinery and others, on which the money sought from the Commission was to be expended, and there seemed to be some implication that possibly results might have been more favorable if some other tactics had been employed.

For the last two years the Commission has been standing on the statute, the special Act, by which they were constituted as trustees of the monies required to pay the interest and sinking fund for the retirement of the city's debentures. Direct attacks and appeals had got nowhere, it was said in other words to that effect, then—"what next, if anything?"

Surplus Embarrassing

Alderman Bradburn said the Commission's surplus was actually becoming embarrassing.

"And they'll have another $15,000 this year," Mayor Hamilton stated.

"It was unfortunate that no representative of the council sat in with the Commission and the Municipal board when they had their meeting," Alderman Bradburn remarked.

Mayor Hamilton—"We weren't invited."

Alderman Bradbur—"It seems the only way to get part of the funds would be by a friendly law suit, or applying for legislation amending the City Trust Act."

In that case, said Alderman Dutton, Aldermen Bradburn and Gordon and City Solicitor Huycke, might get together and draft such an amendment "to see what it sounds like."

Somewhere in that stage of the discussion Mayor Hamilton suggested—"We could ask the Government to confer powers on the Municipal Board giving them the necessary authority to deal with such financial matters affecting municipalities." That proposal was ultimately adopted, and Mayor Hamilton was commissioned to get the preliminaries under way by consulting Mr. Elliott, who would eventually accompany a deputation if it was decided to submit the whole question to the Hon. Mr. Conant.

Bonds Protected

Alderman Dutton remarked that the council considered that a surplus of $250,000 would be sufficient to be retained by the Commission for protective purposes. "The duty of the Commission is to provide the interest and sinking fund for the debentures, he said, and Mayor Hamilton supplemented the statement with—"And that's all."

"Of course it is very gratifying to have that large amount set aside," Alderman Dutton continued. "The Commission have been good administrators, but the bondholders won't get any part of that money. Supposing the debentures were all maturing next yeek, how would the Commission dispose of this $350,000. Wouldn't they have to get legislation anyway?"

"I asked that very question of the chairman (Mr. Eastwood), but he did not answer me," said Alderman Bradburn. "If the Commission hadn't a dollar of surplus, they can ask the council to provide them with the money they need."

Some one mentioned the Commission's point that the surplus could not all be turned over to the city council's uses if the fund was being dispersed. Parts of it should go to the Utilities Commission as earnings on their electric and waterworks debentures, and more should be available in connection with debentures for local improvements paid by frontage tax on property.

"It would be too bad if that proved a stumbling block to what we want to do," said Alderman Dutton.

Another possibility that was mentioned in the discussion was that if the surplus could not be distributed the government might step in and take it. Such an ultimate loss was probably not seriously contemplated. At any rate, the Legal committee is planning a tangential rather than a head on attack on the postion of the City Trust, and the immediately next move is up to Mayor Hamilton.

The Wrong Day

"That was not the kind of thing to do on St. Valentine's Day," Magistrate Langley told a local man in police court this morning after Inspector J. F. Reid had informed the court that the accused had got drunk and caused trouble at home. The man, who is on the interdicted list, pleaded guilty to being drunk and was fined $10 and $3 costs.

DEATH AT THE MANOR

By M. E. CORNE

CHAPTER TWENTY-NINE

TOOTS LEMOINE, her head as neatly scalloped as if I mystelf had done the job, sailed into the room.

"Morning, officer," she said breezily, seating herself and lighting a cigaret. "What's the charge?"

Ellis smiled slowly. "It isn't driving without a license—"

"No?" She laughed heartily. I could see she was enjoying herself and looking forward to some minutes of fun.

"And it isn't exceeding the speed limit—"

"No?"

"And it isn't petty larceny—"

"Maybe you got the wrong party, big boy!"

"Maybe." Ellis' smile deepened. He presented a picture of amused innocence. But the picture, in fact, was too perfect. A man could not be as innocent as he looked. And back, far back, of his amused exterior, there was something not innocent, and not amused. There was something dangerous. I glanced to Phil; he was staring straight ahead.

"Maybe yes; maybe no," the chief was saying. "By the way, Miss Lemoine, I haven't congratulated you on your engagement!"

Her gaze narrowed. "Meaning what?"

"Nothing at all! I merely thought that with a couple of millions to play around with you won't have to bother any more with small fry."

Toots' good humor evaporated. "Say just what are you trying to get at?"

The chief's air of innocence vanished: "I think you catch on," he said.

"Yeah? Well, you're taking Greek to me, brother!" She leaned back in her chair and blew a series of complicated smoke rings into the air.

"Perhaps," suggested McIntyre, "he means that a word to the wise is sufficient."

"I don't get you, mister." She crushed her cigaret in an ash tray. "And maybe you two'd better be sort of careful now you talk to me. Mrs. Richard Witherspoon is a dame to be reckoned with, and don't you forget it!"

"Sorry!" Mac was at once contrite. "But aren't you overlooking something?"

"Huh?"

"There's an old saying you'll do well to remember. It goes something like this: 'There's many a slip betwixt the cup and the lip'." And he chuckled audibly as Toots, her sails decidedly trimmed, rushed from the room, banging the door behind her.

"Another of your mysteries!" accused Phil. "Come clean! Don't you trust us?"

"Sure—like I trust my own mother, which I don't! That woman is forever sneaking hot water bottles into the bottom of my bed!"

Ellis objected: "You don't give me a chance to learn a thing! I told you I was running this show."

"Sorry. I'll do better next time."

Our next witness was the little girl from the South, Miss Glad Westcott, but she contributed little or nothing to the case. This was, she explained, her first visit to the Manor. She was a former schoolmate of Daphne Witherspoon's; Daphne and Richard had visited her in Atlanta the summer before. She was terribly fond of them both, and just knew they had nothing to do with "these dreadful murders."

The chief let her go after a question or two. Mac lived up to his promise and said nothing. I wondered why he had not asked her whether or not she were in love with young Richard (I had told him of her cry at Toots announcement), but either he overlooked this angle or considered it of no importance. His method of inquiry greatly puzzled me. He ignored altogether direct accusation, and seemingly preferred to drop sly hints and warnings as bait for future developments.

Not once had he mentioned the attack on Phil in the salon. Not once had he so much as alluded to the precious piece of tissue paper. Had I been running things—but I was not—so why go into that?

Following the going of Glad Wescott, Hawkins arrived to announce luncheon. I, for one, was ready to eat!

"Mrs. Greely has arranged a table for you in the dining room," he informed us.

"Thanks." Mac unwound his long legs from the back of his chair. "Er—Hawkins?"

"Yes, sir?"

"Any of the gentlemen in the house give you a pair of shoes recently?"

"Shoes, sir?" The butler's nose quivered. "No, indeed sir."

"All right; that's all."

"Thank you, sir. Shall you be coming in to lunch?"

"Immediately. What about you, Ellis?"

Ellis hesitated: "I don't believe so," he said regretfully. "I have some things to do in town."

"So? Well, no doubt you'll be back this afternoon?"

"Right." He buttoned himself into his topcoat. "I'll be back."

"A dollar to a dime," Mac said when he had gone, "that our friend Ellis is headed for the Kirby hotel!" And without further comment he headed for the dining room.

"Elsie!" he touched my arm as we went along. "How would you like to do a bit of detective work?"

"Swell!"

"Good! This is what I want you to do. When we are seated at the table you will suddenly remember something that requires your attention in the salon—"

I made immediate protest: "But, I'm hungry!"

"I'll see that you get a sandwich later. It is necessary to do this during the lunch hour, while the guests and family are not in their rooms."

"Do what?" I inquired warily. My stomach did not like the idea a little bit.

"I want you to slip into every bedroom in the house and count the shoes in the closets."

"Oh! But suppose I'm caught?"

"Small danger of that."

"How am I to know the number of shoes that should be in the closets?" The scheme was sounding less and less appetizing.

Mac grinned. "And I thought you had a brain or two tucked under that brick top of yours!"

"I have!"

"Then use it! Count the shoes and leave the rest to me."

"Oh all right!" I agreed crossly. "But for Heaven's sake give me a chance to put a little something in my poor stomach before I set out on your wild goose chase!"

"After you, my dear," he said gallantly, and bowed me into the dinning room. Deliberately, and smiling my sweetest, I tripped past him—but not before my three-inch heel had contracted squarely with the toe of one of his beautifully shined patent leather oxfords!

✧ ✧ ✧

The second floor of the Manor was silent. To all indications it was quite deserted. I crept along the corridor, debating whether or not to knock upon each door before entering or to plunge boldly inside.

I did not feel any too cheerful. A plate of soup and a cracker, which is as far as I had got when Mac gave me the signal, are not conductive to the spirit of adventure. It was with a decidedly sinking sensation at the pit of my stomach that I tapped lightly upon the first door to my left.

There was no reply and I passed quickly inside. I was in a small, darkened room that was distinguished by the dozens and dozens of religious prints stuck at crazy angles on the wall and by the tall ivory cross suspended from a ceiling hook above the narrow, single bed. It needed no detective to know that this was Miss Henrietta Willoughston's apartment.

The closet was at one end of the room, and a mess it was if ever I saw one. Clothes, shoes and hats looked as if they had been wadded into tight balls and thrown haphazardly into the shallow recess. It took me a good five minutes to sort the shoes from the rest of the stuff, but I did manage to extract four pairs of well-worn walking brogues, a pair of house slippers and a pair of satin evening pumps from the debris. I set down the figures in Mac's notebook, rammed the shoes back where I had found them, and hurried on to the next room.

This time I found myself in a closet more to my liking. If I had not been nervous as a cat, I could have spent some time in admiration and envy of the rows and rows of lovely frocks and gowns and suits that hung neatly from their padded hangers. As it was, I handled them fleetingly and turned my attention to scouting for footwear.

If Things Are Not Going Right With Your Marriage, Try a Month's Vacation From Each Other And You Will Get a Different Viewpoint

JUST as there is a cure for almost every known disease so is there a cure for almost every unhappy marriage. Not many marriages would reach the point where they require the major operation of a divorce if only people would apply a few simple home remedies to them when they first begin to be ailing.

Strangely enough, however, the men and women who rush posthaste to a doctor and have themselves X-rayed, commence taking tonics and go on a diet if they lose their appetite or have that tired feeling or suffer an ache or a pain physically, never think about doing anything about it when something gets the matter with their marriages.

Apparently they never even attempt to diagnose their trouble or to find out why they have lost their taste for their husbands and wives. They make no effort to learn why they are running a temperature about some pretty little flapper or good-looking playboy, or why all the pep has gone out of their marriage and their love has got pale, thin and peaked-looking and is sick unto death. Still less do they try to apply any intelligent treatment to the maladies that afflict them and which would seldom prove fatal if taken in time.

Consider some of the common complaints from which matrimony suffers. Perhaps the most familiar of these is lassitude. Boredom. Husbands and wives cease to interest each other. They are surfeited with seeing over and over each other's little bag of tricks. When they are together they are silent because each knows what the other is going to say before he or she says it.

When husbands and wives begin to get tired of each other and bore each other the remedy is so plainly indicated that it would seem that even a couple of morons would see it and apply it. It is a railroad or a steamship ticket. It is for one or the other of them, or both, to get away in a new environment. They should go somewhere where they will have fresh contacts, hear and see new things. They need to get far enough away from each other to get a true perspective on each other's virtues instead of being so near together that they only have a close-up of each other's faults.

A month's separation will turn nearly any fighting married couple into billing and cooing doves and give them a new honeymoon. Why more husbands and wives who are fed up on each other's society don't vary their diets by domestic vacations goodness only knows.

Another disease that sends many marriages to the cemetery is chronic anemia. Husbands and wives starve each other to death for love and appreciation. The man never pays his wife a compliment after his wedding day or gives her a kiss that isn't an insult because it is such a peck of duty on the cheek, or the back hair or the middle of her ear, or wherever it happened to fall. The woman absorbs herself in her children and never sees her husband as anything but a slave whose mission in life is to provide for their wants. Yet both are hungering and thirsting for tenderness and romance and for some indication that the love of their youth is still alive.

Such a marriage is a cancer eating out the hearts of a man and woman, yet it could be cured by a few kind words. By the simple expedient of the husband telling the wife every day how dear she is and that she grows prettier every year. By the wife never ceasing to show her affection for her husband and making him see that he is a hero in her eyes and that she never ceases to appreciate all the sacrifices he makes for her and his family.

Then there is the constant irritation that afflicts so many husbands and wives, and that drives them into doing foolish and desperate things to ease their torment. It takes a hundred forms. Arguments over every subject under the sun. Nagging. Ceaseless criticism. Contradictions. Harping on faults. Reflections on each other's relatives. Daily spats.

These are all trivial matters that could be corrected at first, but, if permitted to run on, they become a deadly infection that poisons love and kills it. Yet any old wife could tell any bride and bridegroom that the way to cure the irritations of married life is to keep your tongue behind your teeth when the other one starts an argument, and always to apply soft soap with a liberal hand to all the tender spots in domestic life.

And so it goes all through marriage. There is a good, reliable family remedy for every ill if only husbands and wives would use it.

DEAR MISS DIX—Do you think that a mother of three girls should call her husband "daddy?" She claims that she never had a father after she was eight years old and that is why she calls him "daddy" instead of by his first name.

WONDERING.

ANSWER:

Many women call their husbands "daddy" as many men call their wives "mother" after they have children. I see nothing objectionable in it. On the contrary, I think that the use of pet names in the family circle is rather a tender and endearing custom though one must admit that it very easily runs into the ludicrous, as, alas, "babies" have a way of growing up and getting gray-haired and old, and "pitty sings" turn into two-fisted he-men with beards and bay windows.

And certainly nothing is more grotesque than to listen to a domestic quarrel in which the husband and wife address each other by the pet names that have become a habit, and he says: Angel face, of all the idiotic, jealous, cantankerous, fool women I have ever known," etc., and she retorts: "Darling heart, you are a brute and a bully," etc. Perhaps, after all, it is safest to stick to plan John and Mary.

GOODNIGHT STORY

By MAX TRELL

When Sparrow came to the window-sill for his crumbs the other morning, Knarf and Hanid were there to greet him. The two shadow-children had grown very fond of their flying friend, who had refused to fly down south with the other birds in spite of the fact that it meant staying through the long winter months.

"There's one thing we've been wondering about," Knarf said to Sparrow.

"What's that?" Sparrow asked, cocking his head to one side as he swallowed a large piece of crumb.

"I sleep in a church steeple."

"We know you don't sleep in the trees," Hanid put in. "There aren't any leaves on the trees. The wind goes blowing through the branches. The trees are much too cold for you."

"That's right. They are. No, I don't sleep in any trees. I've got a much more comfortable place. I sleep in a church steepie."

"Oh! that's a nice place."

"It's lovely," said Sparrow. "I'm thinking of living there all through the year. It's very high. From my front window I can see all over the town. And ever hour or so the bells ring. At first I was frightened. Those bells are enormous and when they ring they swing from side to side. But they don't harm anyone. In fact, I like them a great deal now."

Not So Cold.

"But isn't it cold way up there in the steeple?"

"Not really," said Sparrow. "You see, the wind doesn't really get inside the steeple. It just whirls round and round outside it. I just push back into my little niche and watch it go by. And when I get tired of watching it, I put my head under my wing and go to sleep. The nicest thing is on Sunday morning," he went on. "All at once you hear lovely music coming up. Then you hear voices—children singing. It's really beautiful. The voices sound far away and very sweet. Oh! there's nothing like living in a steeple. I've quite made up my mind. I'm going to live there all the year round."

The Stars Say . . .

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Thursday, February 16

THE SIDEREAL operations for this day seem to put the accent on private affiliations, with much stirring by way of jollification, celebration and easy ways for spending in personal extravagance or indulgence. Be discreet in this particular, for in a business aspect there may be much to be gained by attention to affairs of importance. Diplomacy, tact, even undercover agreements may figure greatly to the advantage. Let prudence, not over-confidence, assist to major decisions.

Those whose birthday it is are on the eve of a very important year, although major affairs, calling for decisive action and wise judgment, may be highlighted by much festivity and social celebration. But be wise in avoiding excessive indulgence and unjustified extravagance. Superiors and influential persons should be approached with prudence and diplomacy rather than ostentation, overconfidence and assurance.

A child born on this day may be splendidly endowed with business talents as well as social graces to make a fine success of its life. However, a proclivity to extravagance, show, boastfulness and self-indulgence should be dealt with in early life.

ARE YOUR FALSE TEETH false friends?

1 DOES THEIR STAINED LOOK SHOUT "FALSE"?
2 DO THEY GIVE YOU "DENTURE BREATH"?
3 ARE GUMS SORE DUE TO UNCLEAN PLATES?

NOT IF YOU USE POLIDENT

Of course you clean your plate or bridge. You may even soak it in a mouth wash. But still your denture may be only half-clean. And unless it is truly clean and purified it can mean real trouble!

For "denture breath"—probably the most offensive of all breath odors—is caused by half-clean plates. And their tell-tale stains can actually shout "false". Often they result in sore gums—and even in serious infection.

But even the worst old stains, deposits, tarnish and odors are dissolved away with Polident. No acid or danger. No brushing. Your plate looks better and feels better. Denture breath is prevented—and your mouth feels fresher and sweeter.

Dentists everywhere recommend Polident to all who wear plates or removable bridges. Millions use it daily. Sold at all drugstores—3 oz. can 40¢—7 oz. can 75¢. And your money back if not delighted.

WORKS LIKE MAGIC

Do this daily:—Add a little Polident powder to ½ glass water. Stir. Then put in plate or bridge for 10 to 15 minutes—Rinse—and it's ready to use!

Eva Hopkins Weds Dawson R. Kennedy

A quiet wedding ceremony took place in the Chapel of St. John's Anglican Church on Tuesday, February 14, when Miss Emma Hopkins, daughter of Mrs. Hopkins, 536 Charlotte street, and the late Wm. J. Hopkins, was united in marriage to Mr. Dawson R. Kennedy, son of Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Kennedy, 471 Albert street. Rev. W. P. Robertson officiated.

She was attended by Miss Bessie Dawson, wearing French violet aipaca with matching accessories, and carrying a bouquet of Talisman roses. Mr. Jack Kennedy attended his brother.

The groom's gift to the bridesmaid was a bracelet, and to the best man a leather bill fold.

A reception was held at the home of the bride, and later Mr. and Mrs. Kennedy left for Niagara Falls, the bride wearing for travelling a tailored frock of taffeta under a black fur coat, a flowered black turban, and white accessories. Mr. and Mrs. Kennedy will live in St. John's, Quebec.

Do You Know?

When adding nuts to conserves, slice or cut them into pieces of uniform size, and they will be distributed evenly through the mixture? Nuts do not need much cooking, so don't add them until about ten minutes before the conserves are to be taken from the fire.

Splendid Cough Remedy Easily Mixed at Home

It's So Easy! Makes a Big Saving. No Cooking.

To get quick relief from a distressing cough, mix your own remedy at home. Once tried, you'll say it's your favorite cough medicine, and it's so simple and easy.

First, make a syrup by stirring 2 cups granulated sugar and one cup of water a few moments, until dissolved. A child could do it. No cooking needed.

Then get 2½ ounces of Pinex from any druggist. This is a compound containing Norway Pine in concentrated form, well known for its prompt action on throat membranes.

Put the Pinex into a 16 ounce bottle, and add your syrup. Thus you make 16 ounces of very efficient remedy, and you get four times as much cough medicine for your money. It tastes fine and never spoils.

And for quick, blessed relief, it is splendid. You can feel it penetrating the air passages in a way that means business. It loosens the phlegm, soothes the irritated membranes, and eases the soreness. Thus it makes breathing easy, and lets you get restful sleep.

Just try it, and if not pleased, your money will be refunded.

Two of Tom Thompson's pictures, typical of his interpretation of lake and mountain scenery in the north, were on display. The meeting was opened by Miss Margaret Emerson, and a piano solo "Melody of Love," was played by Miss Margaret Patoine. Mr. Harry Vass conducted the business period. A fellowship meeting has been arranged for next week.

"I moved mustard poultices over from one painful spot to another!"

SAYS MONTREAL WIFE WHO NURSED HUSBAND AND SISTER THROUGH SERIOUS SICKNESS

SOME women are naturally clever nurses and Mrs. H. Lawson, 844 Agnes Street, Montreal, is surely one of them. First her sister, then her husband, was stricken with a painful congestion in the chest. Slight movements, and at times even breathing caused intense suffering. "I followed the doctor's advice," says Mrs. Lawson, "and laid mustard poultices over the painful parts. In fact, to give relief I moved the poultices over from one painful spot to another." Husband and sister give Mrs. Lawson great praise for her nursing skill and all three agree that if it hadn't been for the continuous application of mustard, further and more serious complications might have set in.

ALWAYS REMEMBER THAT PAIN IS A SYMPTOM

Sometimes pain may be in a different part of the body from where the cause is located. But all pains have a cause and everyone suffering from pain, craves quick relief. There's an advantage in using mustard to reduce pain, because its action helps remove the cause. The mustard poultice and the compress are both recommended for relieving pleural pains, pains of rheumatism, neuritis, neuralgia, indigestion and lumbago.

Then for common contagious colds and other infectious winter complaints, the mustard bath is a long-proved means of obtaining relief. Mrs. Lawson has something to say about this too! "I have seven children," she explains, "and when the slightest sign of a chest cold or catarrhal condition appears, I add a mustard foot bath to the poultice treatment." Like all sensible people Mrs. Lawson says it is best to call the physician whenever things look at all serious. Don't delay.

Fire Damaged United Church In Belleville

BELLEVILLE, Feb. 15.—Originating between the floor of the main auditorium and the ceiling of the Sunday school rooms, fire, ripping through the twelve-inch air spaces near the main furnace pipe, caused damage estimated by officials at ten thousand dollars, to Holloway Street United Church on Tuesday.

Members of the Belleville Presbytery of the Bay of Quine Conference were in session in the church at the time and prompt action on their part when they formed a bucket brigade in a successful effort to check the spread of the flames before the arrival of the Belleville Fire Department is largely instrumental in the saving of the building.

Smoke curling up from the floor at the north end of the building drew the attention of Mr. George T. Woodley, a member of the presbytery in session.

Discovers Smoke.

"I saw smoke rising from the floor," he said, "and immediately drew the attention of members of the Presbytery in the auditorium. Hurriedly sending in an alarm to the Fire Department we carried buckets of water, and doused the floor near the registers from which a dense cloud of smoke was then pouring."

Fire squads and apparatus of the Belleville Fire Department raced to the scene within a few minutes of receiving the alarm, and fought the stubborn blaze for eighty minutes before it was finally localized and got under control.

Spreads Under Flooring.

The flames spread beneath the flooring of the main auditorium rapidly and firemen were forced to cut holes in the floor in order to reduce several blazes, that broke out intermittently. Whole sections of siding in the Sunday school rooms were ripped down as flames threatened to spread in that part of the building.

Wisps of smoke curling through the church at various places sent squads of firemen dashing to the scenes to prevent the spread of fire to the upper part of the church. Holes were ripped in ceiling and walls as tell-tale smoke seeped through to the auditorium. Church officials paid tribute to the fine work done by members of the Fire Department in preventing the flames from reaching the upper part of the church. "Had this occurred," one prominent official states, "the building would now be a pile of smouldering ruins."

Furniture Carried Out.

Attracted by the heavy clouds of smoke, that poured from the windows and doors of the church, a large crowd of spectators viewed the fight waged by firemen as they gradually got the blaze under control. Willing hands assisted members of the church, both men and women, to carry furniture and other properties of the church located in the Sunday School auditorium. A luncheon set for members of the conference was hurriedly carried out. Tables were quickly dismantled and carried to safety by men and women through inches of water. Three pianos were hauled to the safety of the outside as were tables, chairs and other furnishings.

Newly Decorated.

Thick heavy smoke that poured from the blaze near the main furnace pipe to the upper part of the church caused considerable damage to the interior decorations. "The church was newly decorated a year ago," one official pointed out," and now it looks as though it will have to be done again." Consensus of opinion, however, was to the effect that prompt action on the part of the fire squads and members of the church prevented a conflagration that would have resulted in the total destruction of the building.

Considerable damage was done by smoke and water. The entire floor of the main auditorium is practically a total loss while heavy damage was also sustained in the Sunday School auditorium.

Insurance on the building was stated to be twenty-eight thousand dollars.

Members of the Presbytery in session at the church retired to Bridge Street upon invitation of the Rev. Dr Semple, where they went into short session preceding lunch to organize plans for the afternoon.

Deprived of their lunch which had been prepared by the ladies of Holloway Street Church in the Sunday School auditorium, by the fire, the majority of the fifty representatives dined at city restaurants while the remainder accepted invitations to lunch with friends in the city.

Rev. P. L. Juil, B.A., of Brooklin, was nominated as the president of the Bay of Quinte Conference which meet in Kingston in May. The presbytery also turned down a remit from the General Council which would compel newly ordained ministers to spend two years on a mission field before accepting a call.

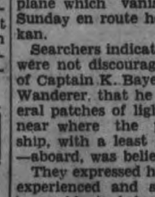
To feel better FAST cleanse BIG BOWEL!

That's Where Most Constipation Occurs, Where Direct Help is Needed



When you feel draggy, headachy, constipated, think of this before you take any laxative!

Constipation is commonly confined to just one part of the bowel tract — usually the lower colon or big bowel (marked X). Body waste often jams there just when it has almost reached the point where bowels should m-o-v-e. That's where the help is needed.

So why upset the whole bowel tract with laxatives that work elsewhere? Does like calomel act chiefly near the upper opening of the bowels. Salts flush from end to end. Oils affect the small intestine.

To relieve constipation quickly and easily, make sure your laxative works first where the waste has piled-up! That's the action you get from Chocolate Flavor Cascarets. They move waste those last few inches, bringing blessed relief overnight. They can do this because they contain cascara, said to give nearest to natural action of any cathartic, which acts to cleanse the big bowel in 10 to 12 hours!

Try this sensible, pleasant form of relief. Each foil-wrapped Chocolate Cascarets tablet is an effective dose, and pleasant to take because of the fine milk chocolate taste. All druggists, or write Dept. P-7, "Cascarets," Windsor, Ont., for free sample.

Find Oil Patches On 'Plane Hunt

JUNEAU, Alaska, Feb. 15—(AP)—Discovery of oil patches off Point Bishop lent an ominous note today to the hunt for a Marine Airways plane which vanished in a storm Sunday en route here from Ketchikan.

Searchers indicated, however, they were not discouraged by the report of Captain K. Bayers of the gasboat Wanderer, that he had sighted several patches of light oil on an inlet near where the pontton-equipped ship, with a least five—perhaps six—aboard, was believed forced down.

They expressed hope Lon Cope, an experienced and skilled pilot, had been able to bring his passengers down safely in some isolated area.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

WRITTEN FOR THE EXAMINER
By SHEPARD BARCLAY
"The Authority on Authorities"

WHY BE AFRAID?

THOUGH PROPER BIDDING of four-card suit lengths is practically the heart and soul of good contracting, there are still many fair-to-middling players who are afraid of them. Perhaps that is because there are still plenty of partners who will raise their four-card suits with a holding of three cards including a high honor. If your partner can be depended upon to have four cards when he raises your suit, except in rare situations, you may bid them with confidence and aplomb, and so will find many of those desirable four-four fits.

(Dealer: West. Neither side vulnerable.)

This deal was followed all around the room in a six-table match, but only one pair got into the best contract. Everywhere there were three passes and South started with 1-Club, West overcalled with 1-Heart and North bid 2-Clubs.

Then came the variations. At one table, East had the temerity to bid 2-Diamonds, South 3-Clubs, West 3-Diamonds and North 4-Clubs, a contract which was made and was worth 130 points, 80 for the tricks plus 50 for the part-score bonus.

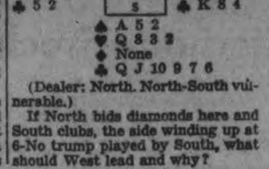
At four other tables, East passed the 2-Clubs and South bid 3-Clubs, four being made for the same score.

At only one table, when the 2-Clubs reached South, did he make the correct bid of 2-Spades. North raised to 3-Spades, and South made this, for a top on the hand. West led the heart K, then the Q, which South ruffed. Followed two top spades, then clubs, East ruffing the second and returning a heart, South ruffing. East thereafter got another trump and another heart trick, but no more.

If experts had been at the table, practically all of them would have bid spades on the second time around. In total-point play some would have gone to four and been set because of East's bunched trumps.

* * *

Tomorrow's Problem



(Dealer: North. North-South vulnerable.)

If North bids diamonds here and South clubs, the side winding up at 6-No trump played by South, what should West lead and why?

Atlantic Storms Wreck 6 Ships

BOSTON, Feb. 15 — (AP). — A mounting roster of lives and vessels lost at sea to-day indicated the North Atlantic is gnashing its teeth with more than usual ferocity this winter.

Most serious disaster of the winter was the sinking last week of the British freighter Maria de Larrinaga which vanished with her crew of 37 while four steamers battled through furious seas in response to her distress calls. They found only a field of wreckage at the freighter's last announced position, about 1,200 miles east of New York.

Although the coastguard rescued her crew of seven, loss of the four-masted Canadian schooner Laura Annie Barnes attracted much attention because she was one of the last of the windjamemrs. She ran upon a shoal in Nantucket Sound on January 18, and a storm found her helpless and finshed her.

The Boston fishing trawler Isabella sank off Scituate on December 13, but her crew reached shore in a dory.

Cape Cod sands trapped the British motor ship Lutzen and held her fast until the sea could pound her to pieces. One of the Lutzen's crew perished in the surf.

The January storm also claimed the Norwegian tanker Jaguar, which broke in two in mid-Atlantic. Another vessel rescued her crew, but as late as February 7 the hydrographic Offfce reported the after section of the tanker still remained afloat, a menace to navigation.

The fact that all the afore-mentioned ill-starred vessels bore names containing an even number of letters might be cited in support of an old superstition of the sea that an odd number of letters is a fortunate circumstance in a ship's name. However, since early December, there has been on the beach near Chatham a reminder that an odd-lettered name is not certain protection—the wreck of the Boston trawler Andover.

Doctor Offers Aid In Mercy Deaths

NEW YORK, Feb. 15—(CP). — Until such time as it is legal to grant "mercy death" to persons suffering from incurable ailments Dr. Foster Kennedy, director of neurology at Bellevue Hospital here, is willing to risk imprisonment to help out any such sufferers among his patients.

The prominent neurologist made the statement at a meeting of the Society of Medical Jurisprudence last night. He took issue with the society, which plans to submit a bill to the New York State Legislature to make euthanasia—the act of painlessly putting to death persons suffering from an incurable disease—unlawful. He advocated that "mercy deaths" be applied also to malformed persons.

Dr. Kennedy, president of the Euthanasia Society, said he was more interested in legalizing voluntary death for born defectives than for normal persons suffering from incurable illness.

"I am not concerned with the bleatings about pain," he explained. "We can deal with pain as a profession."

Campbellford Library Provide Children's Room

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CAMPBELLFORD, Feb. 15 — A phenomenal increase in the number of members registered at the public library was indicated from the report of the librarian, Miss Lillian Benor, at the annual meeting of the Library Board, at which Harry Townsend was elected chairman for the year.

In presenting her report, Miss Benor, who was later tendered hearty congratulations from all members for her excellent work, drew attention to the fact that the upset years in the world at large were leaving their impression on the reading people.

"The library serving this community must not think of the immediate present, but must reach back into the past and provide for the future.

" The boys and girls department showed a considerable increase in work since the introduction of the new school curriculum, which aims to send children directly to books, and thus brings the librarian more closely than ever into the educational picture. So looking to the future, the libary board has provided a children's room with tables and benches and shelves. This has relieved the situation when our circulation is double that of previous years, and this work rests on the belief that the more we can make books count in life, the better we are serving the community and the greater will be the number of readers who will come to use the library.

Work Is Changing

The surprising increase in nonfiction reading and the consequent decline of lighter fiction, common to all libraries on the continent, gives some indication of the change that is taking place in the library work. It still remains for some one to produce adequate means for measuring reference or reader's advisory service done. The notable increase in reference is in the boys' and girls' department.

It falls to the librarian to search the library for such material, to distribute her resources as best she can, when a whole class is working on a single project, and to train the students in the use of reference books. There is no doubt the new course is going to make a great difference to our work, but it is difficult to tell as yet what the difference will be. That the change has been for the best interest of the children there can be no doubt. The circulation for 1938 was 32,182—3069 more than that of the previous year. The largest circulation of juvenile books in the history of the library was in 1938 when a total of 6393 were used.

Eleven Books Per Person.

Eleven books per person in the town were circulated with travel, history, literature, and sociology in the lead and natural science, useful arts and travel leading among children's books of a non-fiction type.

During the year 473 books were added and 142 discarded. One hundred and eleven new members registered during the year to make a total of 1620 borrowers or more than half the population of the town. There are approximately 9475 volumes in the library, which also boasts 24 out of town members, who paid fees amounting to $34.00.

Following are the figures of circulation for 1938 (first figure represents adult and the second is juvenile): General works, 742, 0; philosophy 46, 1; religion, 119, 35; socialogy 172, 713; language 0, 5; science 141, 859; Useful arts 169, 225; Fine arts, 140, 60; literature 239, 146; history 24, 114; travel 602, 199; biography, 488, 77; fiction, 22,688; 3959.

As we therefore do our honest stock taking at the end of the year, we can more truthfully say that we are continuing to build toward bigger and better things. But the main contribution comes not from the librarian, it comes from the whole hearted co-operation of the board, whose ambitions are the success of the institution we all serve. For their loyal support and for the happy relationships they have made possible during the last four years, I am sincerely grateful concluded Miss Benor.

The election of officers resulted as follows: Chairman, Harry Townsend; treasurer, Elsie Brunelle; secretary, E. H. Greig; other members are Dr. O. C. Watson, Rev. J V. McAuley, Rev. B. Simpson Black, Messrs. R. Weston and A. T. Linton.

TWEED

Ex-Warden Young Taken By Death

(Examiner Correspondence.)

TWEED, Feb. 15. — Havilind D'Arcy Young, former warden of the County of Prince Edward, and prominent in county affairs over a long period of years, died at his home in Melville late Friday night after a lengthy illness, due to heart trouble. The late Mr. Young was born in Prince Edward County, being the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. George Henry Young, and has resided all his life in his native county. He took up farming as a young man and became a successful farmer in that district. He entered municipal life at an early age and served for years as reeve of Hillier township, and was later elected to the highest municipal post in the gift of the county. He was most interested in dairying and for many years served as president of the Hyland Cheese Factory and as salesman on the Belleville Cheese Board, and for a year served as president of that organization.

In politics, he was a staunch Conservative, and was active in his county for that party, being for some time president of the Hillier Conservative Association. Fraternally, he was a member of the Masonic Order and the Loyal Orange Lodge. In religion, he was a member of the Methodist Church and later joined the United Church serving in many official capacities in the Melville congregation of which he was a valued member.

Left to mourn are his widow, formerly Maud McCreary of Latta; one son, George of Napanee, and one daughter, Mrs. Roblin Dulmage of Melville; also one sister, Mrs. Blanche Boyd of Allisonville.

The funeral was held on Sunday afternoon from his late residence to Melville United Church, where the Rev. T. G. Teskey conducted the service. The body was placed in the vault at Wellington to await interment in the spring.

Trumpeter Swans Dwindle To 148

DETROIT, Feb. 15—(CP)—(AP). —In the wild Red Rock Lakes section of Southwestern Montana, the United States' government is fighting a last-ditch battle to save the trumpeter swan.

The beautiful white birds that once spread their wings over the entire North American continent now are reduced to a little band of 148. Once they roamed from th Arctic regions to the Gulf of Mexico. To-day they huddled in the Red Rock Lakes refuge, seldom moving, staving off what A. V. Hull of the United States Bureau of Biological Survey calls "the advance of civilization."

Hull was here to-day attending the fourth annual North American Wildlife Conference.

The Red Rock Lakes group survived only because the section is one of the wildest in the country, he told the conference. "They alone were untouched because it was hard to reach them."

"We are inclined to believe that nature, noting the destruction, deliberately ruined the migratory instincts of this last remaining group."

Warsaw Institute Holds Meeting

(Examiner Correspondence.)

WARSAW, Feb. 15—Mrs. J. A. Crowe entertained the Women's Institute on Thursday afternoon. There was a splendid attendance of members and also several visitors.

Mrs. Weller presided. After opening exercises, including roll call, answered by a valentine verse, the president announced that E. Sloan had spoken to her about the Institute providing four shovels and the school boys would shovel the snow in front of the school grounds. It was decided to procure four shovels.

Mrs. Fred Crowe spoke of the co-operative society, for which there are to be lectures in the town hall on Wednesday evening, Feb. 15. The main idea of the organization is to study agriculture for better methods, educational and co-operative. Mrs. John Morgan gave an interesting list of current events.

Miss Lois Clysdale gave a delightful story of St. Valentine, who thought he had new talent, decided he would do what he could to make others happy.

Mrs. E. N. McDonald, who attended two of the three classes held in Peterborough last fall, gave her report on good dressing. The first point was that a person was not necessarily well-dressed because the clothes were expensive. Good dressing means suitability of material and style and manner of wearing.

Miss Lenore McIlvena sang a solo, accompanying herself on her guitar. Some one knew that the day was Mrs. Miller's twenty-fourth wedding anniversary. Mrs. Robert Moore, a past president, read the address: "Mrs. Weller, Madame President, we wish as fellow members of Warsaw Women's Institute, to offer you our congratulations, as well as our love and best wishes on this the twenty-fourth anniversary of your wedding day. We ask you to accept this chafing dish as a momento of the many happy gatherings of our Institute we have had together, and we sincerely hope you may have many more. Again thanking you for the help and encouragement you have so often given us we wish you many happy returns of this day.

Signed on behalf of the Institute, Mrs. Hattie J. Moore.

Mrs. D. Miller, also a past president, made the presentation.

Mrs. Weller was completely taken by surprise. She thanked the ladies, and spoke of the good the Institute was doing. Mrs. Crowe, assisted by several of the ladies, served refreshments. At least three of those present had been members for over thirty-two years, and three of the four babies had their mothers and grandmothers present.

The Bible study class on Wednesday evening was fairly well attended. Rev. J. W. Wilkinson took prayer as his subject. The Lord's Prayer, as in St. Matthew's gospel, as guide.

There was a big shower in the hall on Wednesday evening for Mr. and Mrs. Joe Kelly. Mrs. Kelly was formerly Doris Lloyd.

Mrs. George Taylor is still laid up with a sore throat.

Mrs. Ruby Payne has taken part of the house which was once the James Selkirk property.

Mrs. Adamson and children are visiting Mrs. Adamson's parents Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Crowe. Mrs. J. A. Crowe is key-woman for the World's Day of Prayer in Warsaw

Too Close Check On Farming Seen Dangerous

TORONTO, Feb. 15 (CP).—Hon. P. M. Dewan, Ontario Minister of Agriculture, told the Ontario Agricultural Council today he feared that any extensive legislative control over agriculture would lead to a "dangerous situation."

The annual meeting of the council held under President H. D. Glover of Wentworth, drew delegates from county councils throughout the province.

Mr. Dewan said he intended to expound no arbitrary opinion on the question of government interference in the agricultural industry but expressed grave doubts that legislative control should be extended very far. The minister said he feared that any attempt to build legislative machinery to assist agriculture in competition with similar legislative bolstering of industry would bring the whole structure tumbling down within 15 years.

Mr. Dewan emphasized, however, that he was not critical of such "reasonable and sensible" legislation as the Ontario farm products control act, but to attempts at definite legislative control of production and export.

The agricultural minister also indicated to the council that his department was considering more satisfactory methods of coping with the weed control problem. He thought it unlikely that new legislation would be introduced at the coming session but he admitted frankly that better methods would have to be employed if the province was to make any gains in its battle with weeds. He hinted that soon the department would announce the availability of low cost chemicals for the destruction of weeds.

Among a large number of resolutions was one urging the Dominion government to create a commission to set livelstock prices and eliminate the necessity for livestock brokers. Such a course was necessary the resolution suggested, because the distress of the industry was due to some extent to "unscrupulous methods of the livestock broker."

Another resolution suggested that the Ontario government should increase its education grants by $1,000,000 yearly until the provincial treasury was bearing at least 50 per cent of the cost of schools.

Warrant Issued For U.A.W. Vice

FLINT, Mich, Feb. 15—(AP)—A warrant for the arrest of Richard Frankensteen, a vice-president of the faction of the United Automobile Workers recognized by the Congress of Industrial Organizations, was issued today as the aftermath of a riotous U.A.W. meeting here Saturday afternoon.

The warrant was issued on complaint of William Kupres, Flint automobile worker, who alleged Frankensteen drew a revolver and threatened him after the meeting. It charges Frankensteen with "assault with intent to do great bodily harm less than murder."

Frankensteen attempted to speak at the Saturday meeting which was broken up by heckling and fist fights. As Frankensteen and his wife prepared to leave, a crowd estimated by police at 500 gathered outside the exit, some of them shouting threats against Frankensteen.

Frankensteen denied he had threatened Kupres, but said he was determined to protect himself and his wife.

The warrant will be sent to Detroit for service.

China Hooks Up With Russians, French By Air

SHANGHAI, Feb. 15—(AP).—The Chinese government was reported today to have reached an agreement with French and Russian authorities for the establishment of Chinese-French and Chinese-Russian air lines connecting West China with those nations.

A similar agreement between China and Great Britain, providing for air service between Chungking and London, peviously had been announced. The Chinese have undertaken these projects as measures to assist in their war resistance.

Guerralla activities continued on widely separated fronts, while both Chinese and Japanese air forces were active. Chinese advices said General Chiang Kai-Shek's air force bombed Japanese warships and troops in the Pearl river area south of Canton. Japanese air raiders were reported to have destroyed military positions in Sian, Shensi province, capital and terminus of a Chinese munitions route from the Soviet Union.

At Hankow strained relations between the French concession and Japanese authorities which threatened to reach serious proportions last month have developed again.

For unexplained reasons the French prohibited Japanese from entering the concession and the Japanese retaliated with an embargo on foodstuffs entering French area, threatening a food shortage.

The Japanese also refused further to issue permits to relief workers of the Intenational Red Cross to distribute rice to 30,000 war refugees there. They demanded that foreign-provided relief foodstuffs be handed to the Japanese-sponsored "peace maintenance commisson" for distribution. The Red Cross declined.

Nun Missing, 2 Convents Razed By Fire

Girl 19, Near Death After Third Blaze In Quebec

A Roman Catholic nun was missing—presumably dead—and a 19-year-old girl was in critical condition to-day after a trio of disastrous fires brought property damage of $250,000 to a Quebec Province already laboring under an extensive blizzard.

More than 120 miles apart, two Roman Catholic convents were destroyed in snow-bound rural villages yesterday, a few hours after flames swept through a Northern Quebec hotel and left Lucille Boyce close to death.

At Soneham, 27 miles north of Quebec, Sister Mary of the Seven Sorrows was believed to have perished after running through the corridors of a blazing convent to warn five other nuns and 12 girl boarders of the danger.

Drenching the nun with flaming liquid as it burst, an exploding gasoline lamp started the fire which wiped out the three-storey wooden structure.

More than 100 pupils and 15 nuns escaped uninjured when flames raced through the convent and chapel at St. Barthelemi in Berthier County causing damage of approximately $115,000. A Catholic church nearby also was damaged.

Stovepipe Blamed

Touched off by a defective stovepipe in the 55-year-old building, the fire was whipped to fury by a 40-mile gale and snow-blocked rural roads prevented firefighters of surrounding communities from reaching the scene.

The hotel fire — at the mining town of Rouyn—was the district's fourth serious outbreak of recent weeks. A touch of mystery was lent the blaze when it became known firemen extinguished a fire at 2.40 a.m. in the 40-room, three-story brick structure, only a few minutes before they were again summoned to fight the major outbreak.

Attending a Valentine night dance in the hotel, Miss Boyce suffered severe face, arm, leg and back burns and her escort, William Blackburn, was burned slightly. Twenty-nine registered guests and other dancers escaped unhurt.

Gandhi Swinging India Dry

By Dewitt Mackenzie
(Associated Press Foreign Affairs Writer.)

NEW YORK, Feb. 16 (AP). — Mohandas Gandhi's crusage to make India teetotal in three years is showing results, despite the size of the order.

The little Ascetic's latest triumph places the port of Bombay on the dry list as from August 1.

That is indeed a victory for the Nationalist followers of the former Mahatma. Bombay, which for centuries has provided the beverages to quench the thirsts of wayfarers from many nations, has a population of about 1,200,000. It is one of the great marts of the globe.

Thus far out of the 11 provinces of British India, partial prohibition has been inaugurated in half a dozen where the Nationalists—the all-India National Congress—have gained control of the government. Addition of Bombay to the list will give the movement much impetus.

One of the last acts of the Gaekwar of Baroda, the famous progressive Maharajah who died the other day, was to make an agreement to prevent alcoholic beverages from going to Bombay from his state which adjoins the Bombay presidency.

Total prohibition is one of the objectives of the Congress. Writing in his weekly paper, "Harijan," Gandhi says the Congress has the right to expect the sympathy "of the best minds in the whole world in this, perhaps the greatest moral movement of the century."

Hunting Dog Owners Banquet 100 Of Their Gun Pals

Detroit, Feb. 16 (AP)

ONE HUNDRED dogs sat down at tables and broke biscuits and gnawed bones here last night, and today their owners, who took their leashes along just in case, said everything came off very well.

The American Hunting Dog Owners' Association put on the banquet. The dogs were ranged around four large tables 12 inches high in an east side garage, and were served a three-course meal of dog biscuit, prepared dog food, and bones.

Franco's 7 Best Army Corps Move On Madrid

PERPIGNAN, France, Feb. 16.—(AP).—General Franco's seven best army corps, which recently completed conquest of Catalonia, were reported by insurgent dispatches today to be moving toward Central Spain for an assault on the last stronghold of the Madrid government.

Arsenals and repair shops have been ordered to speed up the work of replenishing war supplies, the dispatches said.

With the central armies of the two sides now about equal, insurgent advices reflected confidence that the shift in strength would tip the scales heavily in Franco's favor and give him final victory.

The troop transfer began two weeks ago when Italian forces and other units were withdrawn from North-eastern Spain after the fall of Barcelona Jan. 26 and before the insurgents completed their conquest along the French frontier Feb. 10.

The quick fall of Catalonia, with comparatively few insurgent losses, was said to have made troops reorganization only a matter of days.

200 Shells In Madrid.

The only military action mentioned by communiques of either side was insurgent shelling of Madrid. Government advices said insurgent guns pourred more than 200 shells into the centre of the city yesterday and resumed their bombardment this morning for the fifth day in a row.

The shelling, like earlier repeated air raids on Barcelona, was believed by border observers to be designed to break down civilian resistance.

Meanwhile, the sick and wounded refugees in various parts of the zone along the French frontier were slowly finding adequate hospitalization, but bad water at the new concentration camp at La Barcares slowed down the transfer of former Spanish soldiers there.

Guard, 2 Bankers Lose $27,000

NORWALK, Conn., Feb. 16 (AP). —Four bandits, all armed and wearing dark glasses, held up two bank messengers and their police guard today as the three men emerged from the Post Office here and escaped in an automobile with $27,000 in payroll funds.

Witnesses said the men got out of a large black sedan as the messengers reached a point about 30 yards from the Post Office, where they had just picked up two pouches containing mail and the registered package of currency.

Three of the bandits attacked Sergeant John Toothill, 65, wrapping his clothing about him to prevent use of his pistol, and then slugged him on the head with a blackjack.

The other gunman seized the two pouches from the messengers, employees of the City National Bank.

1,000 Insane Saved From Blaze

Firemen Fight Hours To Gain Control In Quebec Asylum

QUEBEC, Feb. 16—(CP).—Hidden by great clouds of smoke and steam, more than 100 ice-coated firemen fought today to subdue stubborn flames that destroyed a five-storey wing of St. Michael L'Archange hospital and forced evacuation of 1,000 patients from the men's wards.

Four hours after the outbreak was discovered on the upper floor of the men's wing, firemen reported the fire "under control" but indicated they were having difficulty in halting the spread of flames through the brown brick walls.

The patients, mostly harmless, were moved by Nuns and nurses in orderly procession through the long corridors that connect the men's wing to the main buildings, housing more than 3,000 insane persons and noted as one of the largest such institution on the continent.

Hospital authorities said the flames, of unknown origin, were sufficiently slow at the start to permit methodical round-up of all patients who were herded through the halls and quartered in the main section. Heavy fire doors were closed and smoke and flames were cut off from the main section.

Even then, however, all patients were moved still further back from the flaming wing.

Water Breaks Through

The Canadian Press reporter, William Stewart, had just started to report over the telephone that he thought the flames were spreading, when he had to hang up abruptly as water started to pour down the ceiling of the main building. He said firemen were attempting to block the flames from spreading to the big main quarters.

Unconfirmed reports said one aged patient, sick for a long time, died during the early part of the fire. But so great was the confusion it was impossible to make a direct check with officials of the hospital, operated by the Grey Nuns under direction of the provincial government.

From the wing opposite the burning structure, rows of inmates watched through the barred windows. City and provincial police officers were rushed to the scene and were stationed through the main building to forestall any possible trouble that might arise should the flames continue to spread through the hollow walls.

Chief Leaves Sick Bed

Fire Chief Rosaire Beaulieu, confined to bed with grippe, left his home and raced by car to the scene, where he took over direction of the fire fighting.

Water seeped through the halls and drained through the ceilings of the other sections. In some parts of the main building more than two inches of water swirled across the floor; and in the middle of it the switchboard girl sat on a high stool assuring scores of callers there was no immediate danger.

Outside, crowds ignored the zero-temperature and thronged around the building, some of them relatives of inmates, waiting to watch the progress of the flames. Hospital officials said they experienced no trouble with patients, who appeared more interested than confused.

Broke Probation To Try War

HAMILTON, Feb. 16.— (CP). — Answering a charge of breach of recognizance which, in effect, alleged he had gone to the Spanish war without consent of the probation officer, James Southgate, who drove an ambulance for the Loyalist forces until it was shelled, to-day pleaded guilty.

Magistrate H. A. Burbridge permitted the veteran his freedom for a week and named a disinterested party to attempt the role of referee.

Although his sojourn in Spain was not mentioned in the charge, Harvey McCulloch, Assistant Crown Attorney, brought out during the trial that the accused man had spent the intervening time in Spain until his return last week.

Asked if he had left a good job at a car works to participate in the Spanish conflict, Southgate denied this, saying that he had been laid off and that his record was such that he hoped to again obtain employment when the factory's business improved.

"I do not want to go on relief, although Mayor William Morrison has advised me that I am regarded as a resident of Hamilton," Southgate said regarding his ability to comply with the conditions of probation laid down in July, 1937.

Germany Lures U.S. Farmers In Machinery-Grain Deal

WASHINGTON, Feb. 16 (AP)—If the United States farmer wants to make a pure barter arrangement with Germany to swap his wheat for barbed wire or a threshing machine, he now finds the way smoothed for him.

All he has to do is to communicate with the nearest German consul.

Farmer co-operatives in the United States midwest are reported negotiating actively with the German government, through representatives here, for the barter of lard and wheat for farm machinery and implements, barbed wire and poultry netting.

What happens to the farmer and his wheat or lard runs like this:

The farmer tells the German consul he has 10,000 bushels of wheat which is valued at $3,500 and needs some machinery and poultry netting.

Pays More For Wheat

The consul replies that the German price on the machinery is considerably above that in the United States. However, he agrees to pay 30 per cent more for the wheat higher than is paid in the United States. In that way it comes out even.

The farmer must also take into account the tariff he might have to pay on the goods from Germany. There is no duty on most farm machinery and low duty on barbed wire and wire netting. The duty is paid on the basis of the wholesale price in Germany and is levied just as if the goods were bought for cash.

The farmer must also make allowances for the cost of transport across the ocean and to his farm, in order to profit on the deal.

The Germans have been advocating this type of trade, but Hjalmar Schacht, former president of their Reichsbank, says it is barbarous, and State Secretary Cordell Hull of the United States, believes it is mediaeval.

Girl Machine-Gunner To Be Tried For Murder Of 35

Barcelona, Feb. 16 (AP)

INSURGENT authorities today arrested a 15-year-old girl, Rosita Solerriva, and charged her with machine-gunning 35 persons on orders of her lover, identified by Insurgents as a leader of the government's military intelligence service. She is expected to face a military tribunal.

Insurgent officers said the girl admitted turning a machine-gun on a group of Insurgent sympathizers from whom the government was trying to get military information. This was before the Insurgent occupation of Barcelona Jan. 26.

Isolated Britons Are Contracted

SHANGHAI, Feb. 16 (AP).—After many days of silence, 37 Britons and 28 other foreigners stranded on a mountain in Central China in the path of an imminent Japanese onslaught, made contact today with the outside world.

They acknowledged receipt of broadcasts containing a Japanese warning to leave their isolated haven in a summer resort at Kuling, on Lushan Mountain, southeast of Hankow. The message said some foreigners wished to leave but did not give their names or number.

Officers of the Chinese force holding lines on the slopes of Lushan Mountain on which Kuling is perched, agreed to permit one foreigner to ascend the tortuous trail to the resort to arrange the evacuation. It is against this Chinese force that the Japanese have announced they would launch an attack with all available weapons, including aircraft, probably February 20.

Father Beats Horse Son Offers To Serve His Time

Windsor, Ont., Feb. 16 (CP)

PAUL BOISMIER of Windsor asked today for the right to serve a jail sentence imposed on his father, Ted Boismier of Windsor, for ill-treating a horse. He was refused.

Magistrate J. A. Hanrahan fined the father $20 and costs on the charge with a 15-day term in default of payment.

"I'll take the 15 days," said the son, about 30, stepping in front of his father. The son said the charge should have been laid against him, as he was the owner of the animal his father was driving.

Ontario's Wave To Be Brief

TORONTO, Feb. 16 — (CP). — Ontario, bathed in clear, sunny weather, found itself shivering today in the middle of the path of a cold wave sweeping across the country from the Prairies to the Maritimes.

The winter's newest Arctic blast sent coat collars up and temperatures down. Centres in the path of the wave—a short one, the weather man promises — saw the mercury tumble in some cases more than 30 degrees to sub-zero markings that set records for the season.

Weather Man Frank O'Donnell reported at Toronto that the wave moved in from Manitoba, sweeping toward the south-east and continuing over most of Ontario and Quebec. He said the weather would be moderating toward nightfall, with milder temperatures to-morrow.

Moosonee, in Northern Ontario, was one of the coldest spots in the province, the thermometer dropping from a high yesterday of 10 below zero to a low to-day of 30 below.

It was 18 below at Barrie and 17 below at Lindsay, which reported the mercury at its lowest point this winter.

3 Million Building

The Anglin-Norcross Ontario Limited of Montreal has been awarded the contract for the main construction work on the building, he said.

Heroic Death Of Edmonton Widow's 2 Sons Bring Her Honors At Hands Of The King

LONDON, Feb. 16 (CP-Havas) —Mrs. Ada Letch, 56-year-old widow of suburban Edmonton whose two sons, James, 24, and Edward, 20, lost their lives in trying to save the pilot of a Royal Air Force plane which crashed last Sept. 24 killing 13 people, was honored by the King at a Buckingham Palace investiture today.

Dressed in black, Mrs. Letch—making the second visit of her life to London—drove from Edmonton to the palace with Inspector Newark of the Tottenham police. She passed almost unnoticed by the crowd outside when she drove through the palace gates.

From the King she received two medals of the Order of the British Empire, Civil Division, awarded posthumously to her sons for bravery. The official record of their deed read by the King at today's ceremonies said:

"Edward Letch and James S. Letch, both of 20 Dunholme Road, Edmonton, endeavoured with great courage to rescue the pilot of the Royal Air Force Voluntary Reserve who crashed at Edmonton on Sept. 4 last. They were both burned to death in the attempt."

Man Bound And Gagged As He Was Locking Garage On Park Street

Footprints Found In Snow Behind Garage Show Men Had Been Watching Building Waited Until Two Employees Had Gone Home

Acting on a telephone tip from Manvers Station that two men closely resembling the holdup men who robbed Wilbert Peel in his Park Street garage Wednesday night had been seen there today, a police squad consisting of Sergeant John Thompson, Detective-Sergeant W. E. Meagher, Constable Leo Murphy and Provincial Traffic Officer Lloyd McClure, left for Manvers in two cars early this afternoon, hopeful of rounding up the suspects. The two men walked west on the C.P.R. tracks into Manvers shortly after noon today and inquired as to the next train for Toronto. A young farmer who had heard of the holdup, noticed that the pair answered the description, communicated with the local police.

Held up by armed gunmen as he was about to close his place of business at Park and Perry Streets, around 10 o'clock Wednesday night, Wilbert Peel, 51-year-old garage proprietor, was forced back into the garage, bound and gagged, and robbed of close to $200. By the time Peel was able to release himself and telephone the police, at eight minutes after 10 o'clock, the two holdup men had escaped, and a night-long search by officers, using two prowl cars, failed to find any trace of the robbers.

Police state that from the footprints they found in the snow at the rear of the garage, the holdup men had had Mr. Peel under observation for some time through one of the back windows. Two employees had been working in the garage, and the bandits waited until they had gone for the night. Then as the proprietor after taking the cash from the till, including the day's receipts, and some other money that had been accumulating since last Friday, when he banked last, stepped out of the back door to go to his home only a few feet away, he found himself confronted with two dark figures which loomed up in the darkness.

"One of them shoved a revolver in my stomach and told me to get my hands up," Mr. Peel said. The thugs pushed him back into the garage, still insisting that he put his hands in the air. He refused to do so, and kept asking them "what it was all about."

Began To Get Tough.

When they had backed him into the garage, "they began to get tough and abusive, and I saw they meant business. If I had only been sure the gun was not loaded I'd have tackled them," he said to the Examiner last night.

One of the men—he who carried the gun, which was a nickel-plated affair—was a burly, ugly-looking man around 40, he said, while the other was slimmer and smaller, and was about 30 years of age. Both "were as dirty as the deuce. They loked like hoboes." Neither of the robbers wore a mask. The smaller of the two searched his pockets, while the bigger thug kept the revolver pressed against Mr. Peel's stomach.

16 Perish In U.S. As Arctic Blast Strikes

NEW YORK, Feb. 16.—(AP)—Arctic cold spread over the Eastern United States today in the wake of freak weather conditions that claimed at least 11 lives.

Abating winds that had reached a 71-mile-an-hour intensity yesterday ended the threat of serious floods along sections of New England coast, not yet recoverd from last September's disastrous hurricane.

Snow and swiftly dropping temperatures accompanied the storm as it moved eastward from the midwest, freezing rainswept highways but lowering the flood menace in the Upper Ohio Valley.

Effect of rainfall in the Lower Valley, still unreached by the flooded Ohio's crest, remained doubtful. Lowlanders along the river and its unruly tributaries, the Tennesse and Cumberland, hoped the cold wave would check rising waters.

Red Cross officials, however, prepared to move many families. Ohio River waters, already seven feet above flood stage at Paducah, Ky., overflowed several streets there.

Five persons died in three auto accidents in Central Pennsylvania attributed to blinding snow and slippery roads. Other accidents cost two lives in New Jersey, and two brothers drowned when a ramp was swept away at Elmira, N.Y.

Chilling wind following a 65-mile-an-hour rain squall tumbled temperatures in New York city from 62 degrees—highest ever recorded there for the date—to below freezing. Three relief workers trapped in a flooded sewer were saved by a fireman who swam 300 feet underground to carry them ropes.

Nazi Envoy To Vatican Advocates The Pope Be Man Fitted For Role In New World

VATICAN CITY, Feb. 16 (CP-Havas)—The German ambassador to the Vatican today urged the Sacred College of Cardinals to elect a Pope who would know how to play an "essential role" in the "elaboration of a new world which is rising on the ruins of a past which in many respects has no longer any right to exist."

Speaking on behalf of the diplomatic corps of the Holy See, Dr. Carl Ludwig Diego Von Bergen, the Doyen, presented the corps' official condolences to the cardinals at a special ceremony.

In addition to conventional expressions of grief, however, the German envoy's short address made indirect but eloquent reference to the vast issues likely to be affected in one degree or another by the choice of a successor of Pope Pius XI.

"We live in one of the most decisive hours of our history," Dr. Von Bergen said. "We are witnessing the elaboration of a new world which is rising on the ruins of a past that in many respects has no longer any right to exist, an evolution that we desire to be peaceful. The papacy has undoubtedly an essential role in all this.

"We take into account the most delicate responsibilities, O most eminent princes, which weigh upon the sacred college in the choice of a worthy successor to Pius XI, of a pope upon whom humanity will look as a lighthouse shining brightly amid stormy anxiety to show the way to common peace and progress."

Canadian Flag Motion It Talked Out

OTTAWA, Feb. 16 (CP).—Opposition to any move toward creating a distinctive national flag for Canada, and more particularly to precipitation of a controversy on that subject at this time appears likely to block any move in that direction this year.

Yesterday's short session of the House of Commons was occupied almost entirely with debate on a motion by Cameron McIntosh (Lib., North Battleford) to have a special select committee report on the advisability of adopting a new flag, distinctly Canadian. The resolution was "talked out' and may not be reached again in time for a vote this session.

Justice Minister Lapointe, declaring that despite any opposition Canada would eventually have its own distinctive flag, supported the resolution. Herve Brunelle (Lib., Champlain) also supported it.

John R. MacNicol (Con., Toronto-Davenport), R. B. White (Con., St. Antoine-Westmouth), T. L. Church (Con., Toronto-Broadview), Gordon Graydon (Con., Peel) and Dr. A. B. Hyndman (Con., Carleton) opposed the motion.

The Senate met yesterday and adjourned to March 7. Further protests were voiced against the lack of work which necessitated the further adjournment.

In the House today government business will have priority and a heavy order paper is waiting to be disposed of. First item of business is a measure to amend the Pensions Act.

Debate on the flag followed a line similar to those debates on this subject which have featured almost every session of parliament since 1929, and on numerous occasions it has been brought up by Mr. McIntosh.

Says Flag Coming

Sooner or later Canada will adopt a distinctive national flag, Justice Minister Lapointe declared in speaking for himself and Prime Minister Mackenzie King, who was absent at the time. He said the Union Jack

Three Men Hang In Manitoba

WINNIPEG, Feb. 16.— (CP). — Three men died on the scaffold at Headingly provincial jail early today for the murder of an 81-year-old woman. It was the first triple hanging in Manitoba's history.

The men were: Peter Korzenowski, 29, Dan Prytula, 32, and William Kanuka, 41.

They were convicted by a jury at the assizes in Dauphin, Man., last November of killing Mrs. Anna Cottick, 81-year-old resident of Fishing River district, 150 miles north north of Winnipeg. Sentence was passed by Mr. Justice A. K. Dysart of King's Bench.

Mrs. Cottick and her husband, 91-year-old Elko Cottick, were brutally beaten the night of May 12, 1938, by men who broke into their small farm house, demanding the old-age pensioners turn over $1,000 which the intruders claimed was hidden in the house. The aged Cotticks denied having such a sum and were beaten over the head and in an unconscious condition shoved into a shallow cellar.

Royal Canadian Mounted Police within 48 hours arrested Korzenowski, Prytula and Kanuka, who admitted during their trial they had been drinking home brew the night of the murder.

Japs Tightening Blockade Grab New Port

SHANGHAI, Feb. 16 — (AP). — Japanese authorities served notice today that they intended to land troops at Haimen, 200 miles down the coast from Shanghai, late tomorrow in a new move to tighten the China coast blockade.

They warned all foreign shipping to stand clear of a 30-mile zone in Taichow Bay, where the port is located.

Haimen is one of the few remaining ports through which the Chinese still are able to send supplies to their troops in the interior. They transport the supplies by motor road to Kinhwa, 100 miles west of Haimen, and by rail from there to Nanchang.

Occupation of Haimen also would halt traffic on the Lin River and threaten hitherto untouched territory in east Chekiang province.

There are about a dozen foreign missionaries in the area, mostly British.

In addition to blockading the entire China coast, the Japanese already have occupied all ports north of Shanghai except Haichow, which is of no military importance.

Despite the blockade, Chinese junks have been able to bring in some supplies through the unoccupied ports, but the Japanese are steadily tightening down, forcing General Chiang Kai-Shek to depend mainly on overland routes from Soviet Russia, French Indo-China and Burma.

Conservatives Hold East Yorkshire

HULL, England, Feb. 16 (AP)— Prime Minister Chamberlain's government won the Holderness, East Yorkshire, by-election today when a Conservative candidate was returned to parliament, though with a reduced majority due to a split in the Conservative rank.

The successful candidate was J. G. Braithwaite, who received 17,742 votes in a four-cornered contest. Miss Aline MacKinnon, Liberal, polled 11,590; J. L. Schultz, Labor, 9,629, and R. C. Constable, Independent Conservative, 6,103.

Both the Liberal and Labor votes increased, while the Conservative plurality dropped to 6,152 from 11,901 in 1935, when the last election was held, because of the Conservative split. The by-election was caused by the death of Sir Servington Savery, who in 1935 polled 22,249 votes against 10,348 for Miss MacKinnon and 8,906 for Mr. Schultz.

Alfred Hudson Is Acquitted On Both Counts

Alfred Hudson of Lakefield was acquitted on a charge of manslaughter at 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon after the jury had been out scarcely an hour. The jury also found him not guilty on a lesser charge of reckless driving.

Hudson's two-day trial was the result of a level crossing collision betwen a train and a truck that resulted in the death of Joseph Meagher, C.N.R. yard foreman, last October 25. The trial was heard at the assizes of the Supreme Court of Ontario, before Mr. Justice Ainslie Greene of Ottawa.

His Lordship complimented both the crown and defence attorneys, V. J. McElderry, K.C., and T. J. Carley, K.C., on the way they had presented the case. He told the jury that both men had been fair and alert, had presented, he thought, all the evidence that could have been expected to be brought forward.

In summing up the evidence for the jury, Mr. Justice Greene expressed the opinion that no evidence that would justify a verdict of guilty of manslaughter had been before the court. He told the jury they might, if they saw fit, return a verdict of guilty on the lesser count of reckless driving. They were under no obligation to accept his opinion as to the evidence in regard to the manslaughter count, might find him guilty on that charge.

Kitchener Rink Is Eliminated

TORONTO, Feb. 16 (CP).—The going became harder today and two doughty competitors in the 12th annual Ontario Bonspiel fell by the wayside on the fourth day of the 'spiel, reducing the number of undefeated rinks from five to three.

A. E. Dunker's strong ring from Kitchener put up a stiff fight but fell 12-10 before George Strohach, Toronto Granites. Kingston's W. J. Drysdale, who had won seven games without a loss, met a tartar in H. Forbes of Forest and went down 14-11.

But the three remaining skips in the select list of undefeated rinks, all competing in the third round of Birks-Ellis-Ryrie Trophy play, came through with little trouble, and the only upset in other games was the defeat of A. Earwaker's favored Hamilton rink in North American Life trophy play. Jimmy Govan, Toronto, took the measure of Earwaker 13-2.

The three unbeaten rinks are R. A. Campbell's Toronto Royal Canadians, who eliminated C. F. Turner, Toronto High Park, from the Birks-Ellis-Ryrie event, 15-9; Dr. S. T. White, Orangeville, who turned back W. C. Gohn of Unionville, 11-6, and C. R. Redfern, Toronto, Redfern put out Dr. R. G. Scott, Bobcaygeon, 13-4.

Mother Refuses Dog – Home Is Picketed

What with labor strikes, sit-downs, petitions, etc., the children of New York city catch on quick and being born imitators, they apply these labor tactics to their childish problems. Here we see Haney Fishner and his sister Sally, with their dog, Queenie, in front of their home in Brooklyn getting neighborhood children to sign their petition asking Mrs. Fannie Fishner to keep Queenie. The Fishner children are pictured wearing placards protesting Queenie's ouster.

Convict Train Is Heavily Guarded

WINNIPEG, Feb. 16.—(CP). — Sixty heavily guarded long-term convicts from Kingston penitentiary were transferred here from special train to Manitoba's Stony Mountain prison early this morning. Seventy others were left on the train for transportation to Saskatchewan penitentiary at Prince Albert.

A strong guard of Royal Canadian Mounted Police surrounded the Canadian National Railways station when the train arrived here. Authorities apparently were making sure there would be no recurrence of the incident at Lindsay, Ont., when a convict on the train threw a letter from one of the coaches, complaining of ill-treatment.

Discover Old Maids Fine At Finding Husbands For Others

TORONTO, Feb. 16.—It takes an old maid to catch a man, according to H. A. Bentley, vice-chairman of the Mothers' Allowances Commission. In an address yesterday to the Ontario Agricultural Council at Queen's Park, he described the problems of investigators under the desertion clause of the Mothers' Allowances Act.

"Our investigators are nearly all single women of well past middle age," said Mr. Bentley delicately, "and they are adepts at finding men who have supposedly deserted their wives. Sometimes I ask them why in the world they didn't find a man for themselves."

WINNIPEG GRAIN

WINNIPEG, Feb. 16 — (CP). — Wheat futures prices held close to Previous closing levels in dull trading at Winnipeg to-day. Comparatively steady action on outside markets and light offerings gave the market a steady undertone as values finished unchanged, with May at 62¾; July 63⅝, and October 63¾ cents.

Export sales of Canadian wheat were confined to a few loads worked from the Atlantic seaboard. Operations consisted mainly of intermarket spreading between Winnipeg and Chicago and minor purchases by exporters and mills.

Liverpool closed unchanged to ¼d lower on reports of beneficial rains in India and a slow inquiry for actual wheat were offset by lack of offers.

Market Review

TORONTO, Feb. 16—(CP).—The balance of price adjustments showed a narrow margin on the upside at the close of today's Toronto exchange but trading proceeded at about the dullest tempo of the year so far, especially up till the final hour. Action in the golds picked up a little near the close and aggregate turnover was brought up to about 425,000 shares. Industrial and base metal groups were definitely up for the day while the golds and western oils showed little net change.

Volume dwindled to 215,000 shares for the first three hours of trading. Prices tightened and the industrial and both mining indices were higher at noon, while the Western oil indicator was down slightly.

Steel, utility and senior oil shares were higher and in the base metal group gains were boarded by Noranda, Nickel, Smelters, Ventures and Sherritt. In the gold issues McIntyre was conspicuous with a gain of about a point to better than 54.

NEW YORK, Feb. 16 — (AP). — Strength in steels and aircrafts gave the stock market a general lift today, leaders gaining fractions to around two points.

The pace was fastest in the forenoon, slackening appreciably after mid-day. Near the final hour a little profit-taking shaded top quotations a trifle. Transfers were about 1,000,000 shares.

2 Gunmen Fail In Belleville

BELLEVILLE, Ont., Feb. 16 — (CP). — City and Provincial Police were on the watch last night for two masked hold-up men who made an unsuccessful attempt to rob a Belleville grocery store operated by Mrs. Jena Devault on West Bridge Street late last night.

Miss Mabel Herrington, employed by Mrs. Devault in the store, went to the front to serve the two supposed customers. Confronted with a black revolver and ordered back against the wall, Miss Herrington called to Mrs. Devault in a back room of the store.

The proprietress entered the front room and the gunman ordered: "Stick up your hands."

"I did as he told me," Mrs. Devault said, "but he turned around to speak to his partner and I ran out the back door. Almost immediately afterward the light in the store went out and they apparently ran out. Nothing appeared to be disturbed."

Ernie Blake, walking toward the store, saw the two men head eastward on Bridge street at a trot.

Later police searched the entire district and highways leading out of the city for the suspicious characters. According to information given authorities, both men wore handkerchiefs tied tightly over their faces.

Abundant Water Insured Dry Region

REGINA, Feb. 16 (CP)—As water conservation work under the Prairie Farm Rehabilitation Act nears an end for 1938, farmers in dry areas of the three Prairie provinces see promise of abundant water supply for years to come.

Men and machines working night and day are completing as many projects as possible this fall to prevent escape of flood waters in the spring.

The P.F.R.A. was passed by the Federal parliament in 1935 and provincial governments are assisting by lending technicians and equipment.

The area affected by the scheme extends along the International border from the Red River in Manitoba to the Rocky Mountains with the northern boundary running through Brandon, Man., North Battleford, Wainwright, Alta., to a point 25 miles north of Calgary.

Hundreds of small mud and stone dams are receiving finishing touches and on larger rivers and lakes three concrete structures are nearing completion. The Cypress Lake storage project in Saskatchewan and the Eastern Irrigation project at Brooks, Alta., will be ready in time to harness the spring flow.

Dugouts are proving popular with farmers. Twenty-five drag lines equipped with bucket scoops and derricks have been working since early spring but applications far exceed the number which can be completed this year. The dugouts resemble a large trough dug into the earth 150 by 60 feet and measuring 15 feet deep.

Figures supplied by P.F.R.A. head office in Regina show 4,556 stock-watering dams completed last spring, 2,981 in Saskatchewan, 1,345 in Alberta and 230 in Manitoba.

Irrigation of Saskatchewan and Manitoba farms bordering Souris and Frenchman river systems and several other larger waterways in the area is almost complete.

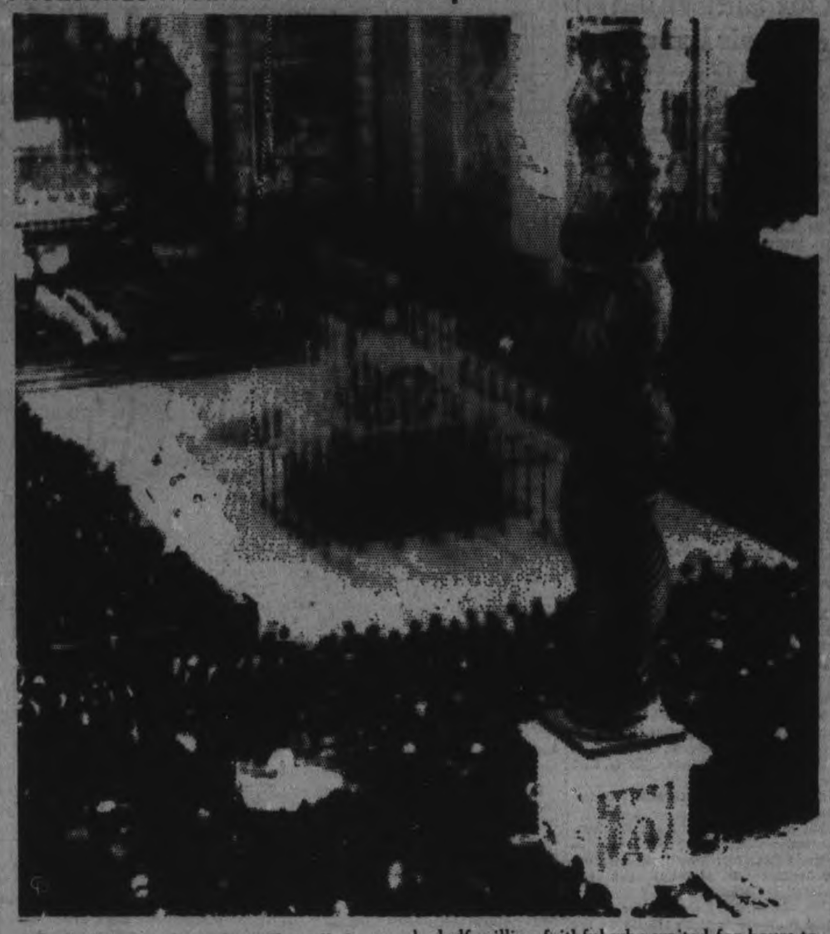
Dams at the east and west ends of Cypress Lake in Saskatchewan are nearing completion and will form the nucleus for a huge irrigation scheme spreading back along Frenchman river, Battle Creek and Maple Creek.

A storage dam blocks the Frenchman river at Eastend, Sask., and another dam and irrigation canals have been completed at Val Marie, Sask. Another dam is being built at Downie Lake on Maple Creek.

An extension of the Eastend project, and rehabilitation of old irrigation works at Richardson, Sask., will be started when Cypress Lake dams are finished.

Water for 25,000 to 50,000 acres of Alberta lands will be provided in the Eastern Irrigation district near Brooks, Alta., with completion this year of Sutherland Dam and Cowoki reservoir at a total cost of $62,000. Rehabilitation of the Canada Land and Irrigation project at Carseland, Alta., will irrigate flats bordering the Bow River system. Wild Horse dam on Sage Creek, Bartman dam on East Berry Creek and canals of Mountain View Irrigation District, draining from Belly river, complete Alberta projects.

Thousands Mourn At Bier Of Pope



Bathed in the glow of candles, all that is mortal of Pope Pius XI lies in state in St. Peter's chapel in Rome. Around the roped-off area at centre can be seen some of the half million faithful who waited for hours to see him for a last time. In the background a choir sings hymns of requiem. Picture flown to London and radioed across the Atlantic.

Northern Port's Library Has 3,000 Volumes

SANDWICH BAY, Labrador, Feb. 16—(CP).—Residents of this northern bay and vicinity may find the long winter evenings not quite long enough this year, for the 3,000 volumes of the newly started "Cartwright Public Library" are at their disposal. And these people are ardent readers.

A nucleus for this Labrador library was provided recently when George B. Williams of Farmington, Conn., donated 250 volumes from his personal collection.

Mr. Williams is well known in the North, having made 16 voyages to the coast in his yacht Karluk. This is the latest of a long line of generous gifts to Labrador.

The books give the Cartwright Public Library its first real start as a local source of first-class reading matter. Headed by Rockwell Kent's famous "N, by E," the volumes include sea yarns, books on the North, travel stories, novels—a group highly adaptable to Labrador readers.

The remaining books have been received through various sources, being mainly gifts to the Grenfell Mission. A room in Lockwood Boarding School has been fitted up as a library, and the books have been properly indexed.

The Cartwright Public Library is open each evening in the week from 7 to 9 o'clock. Reading can be done on the spot or the books can be borrowed free of charge.

For miles around Cartwright, the central village of the Bay, book-loving men, women and children have begun the practice of visiting the library regularly to read a magazine or borrow a volume. More than 1,000 books have already been distributed among neighboring community groups.

Girls Get Desperate

BRANTFORD, Ont., Feb. 16 (CP).—A group describing itself as "Desperate Girls" has protested to City Council against retention of married women in employment. The "Desperate Girls" asserted the married women were working to "buy an extra evening gown or an automobile."

Girls' Training Set In Clinics

COLUMBIA, Mo., Feb. 16—(CP)—Stephens College is putting its young women through educational clinics—dealing with everything from ideas about religion to ideas about coiffures.

The clinic plan was President James Madison Wood's. Seventeen years ago he concluded that girls' schools in the United States were using methods based on the system used for men. And women, he thought, needed something different.

"Most institutions where girls are educated," he explains, "are trying to make an evening dress out of a man's business suit. That's impossible. You have to get new cloth and start all over again."

So clinics came to this old school and founded in 1883 as the Columbia Female Academy. They were based on President Wood's theory of "Intelligent Consumption." Girls should know not only what to buy for food, clothing and shelter, he explains, but also how to appreciate life.

"That's why Stephens has obtained for its faculty people like Maude Adams, who rank high in their profession," he says. "She doesn't attempt to teach our girls how to become actresses, but tries to teach them how to be intelligent theatre patrons."

When President Wood and Dr. W. W. Charters, who now divides his educational research activities between Stephens and Ohio State University, put the clinic idea into effect, the enrolment stood at 350. This year it is 1,500. Here are some of the clinics Stephens operates:

Health—besides caring for the sick and injured, it teaches the fundamentals of personal hygiene. Here a fat girl can learn the correct ways to reduce and a thin girl can learn how to gain weight.

Speech—operates to improve ineffective and unpleasant voices.

Clothing—teaches how to dress economically and smartly.

Beauty—shows a girl how to dress her hair to accentuate the better points of her face; the proper application of makeup, and the care of hair, skin and nails.

Guidance—stresses vocational orientation. Intelligence and personality tests are given.

Religion and philosophy—It attempts to guide the students into a workable philosophy along the "golden rule" basis.

Stephens, affiliated with the Baptist Church, isn't all clinics. It conducts courses in the usual college subjects. A federal report in 1936 said Stephens had probably the highest property valuation of any junior college—$4,098,541. But it is best known because it teaches a girl such things as keeping within a budget, how to be an intelligent companion for a future husband, and how not to be a wallflower. There is some proof that Stephens does not graduate wallflowers. Statistics show that 80 per cent of her graduates marry within five years.

Jail For Picture Fraud

SUDBURY, Ont., Feb. 16—(CP)—The trial of five Montrealers on charges of conspiracy arising from a picture contest racket ended abruptly with their conviction and sentence to jail terms of 10 months to three years.

Crown Counsel E. D. Wilkins described the attempt of the men to defraud Northern Ontario residents by promises of big returns in an art contest as a "heartless attempt to rob old and decrepit persons."

Rations Dropped By Parachute

LONDON, Feb. 16—(CP).—An air rationing scheme has been evolved by the British Army so that one place in a single journey can provide sufficient food for 980 men for 24 hours.

This was done by parachuting easily-damaged goods like condensed milk, jam and margarine and dropping other articles unimpeded. Formerly all goods had been dropped in parachutes suspended from bomb racks and this greatly cut down the capacity of supply planes.

Experiments showed that certain foodstuffs like tinned beef, biscuits, tea and sugar could be dropped by low-flying planes with little damage.

Cradle Of Race Believes Sahara

NEW YORK, Feb. 16 — (CP). — Alonzo W. Pond, archaeologist and anthropologist, advances the theory that Central Africa was the cradle of the human race.

His hypothesis is developed on an analysis of stone-age relics uncovered in the great desert. The mass of evidence was collected by Pond on four expeditions to Africa and is presented in a book entitled "Prehistoric Habitation Sites in the Sahara and North Africa."

"All the major phases of the old stone age are represented in our African collections," Pond wrote. "In the heart of the Sahara we found stone tools of the most generalized type, the sort of things known to be 500,000 years old.

"There were coarse stone hatchets which could have been used to kill game at close quarters and for cutting up meat for domestic use. Their presence deep in the Sahara is positive proof that the desert once was once much more suitable for both man and beast than it is today.

"It appears probable from our study that prehistoric man came across the Sahara thousands of years ago and he followed the river valleys which are now dry oueds, or lines of oases. At the time of these 'migrations' there was, of course, much more moisture in the Sahara than now."

From the Mediterranean to the Niger River, Pond and his colleagues examined more than 700,000 pieces of flint. From the location of the discoveries, Pond said, "we are able to state that prehistoric people crossed the Sahara from the south. When they reached the Atlas Mountains in the north they moved east and west until passes were located through the range.

"These natural migration routes led to the more fertile areas of the Barbary States where food was abundant. Eventually, man reached Europe by way of Gibraltar and came to both Europe and Asia by way of the Nile and Asia Minor."

"Do It Yourself"

George Wood, M.P. for Brant riding, professed amazement when he heard Western members asking in the House of Commons if provision had already been made to supply seed grain for the 1939 crop. He said the Ontario farmer would be apt to regard that as a form of "spoon feeding." There had been a crop of grain harvested in the West during 1938 and it should be the duty of a farmer to see to it that he had sufficient grain left in his bin to attend to seeding. Mr. Wood gave his advice this way:

"If I couldn't afford seed of rust-resistant wheat for my farm I would buy one or two bushels one year and grow enough to seed my farm next year. If I can't afford a team of horses I buy colts and let them grow up."

Of course one could start in picking flaws in this philosophy of living and of farming. The Western farmer has been having a rather tough time of it and may need grain. Then it might not be possible to wait until colts grew up if there was much work which required the services of a team.

But having said that there remains a certain degree of solid worth in the view of the member for Brant. There is something in it for the farmer and something too for the man who is not a farmer. In common with people in a number of countries we are developing the habit of asking the government to do things for us and we are becoming rather adept at it. There is a danger that in doing this we are forfeiting the initiative and the persistence of men who face a problem and then work it out in their own way. If they feel a pinch for a season then they know it is going to mean the pinch will be gone by the time next season comes around.

Truth is we cannot ask the government to give us things or do things for us without it costing money, and the government having no money apart from what it takes away from the people, has to tax all the people if it is going to comply with all the requests made for assistance. That is why it is well to see a member of parliament come to the front and restate the old policy of "do it yourself." It is a rugged sort of doctrine, not particularly popular, but it was the only policy known when this young country was in its formative period and those who were then working under it made a rather thorough and respectable job of it.

Nothing Will Happen

It is predicted that the debate on the trade agreement with United States and Britain will be carried on along political lines. The opening address of the Prime Minister had a political touch in it which might well have been admitted. If we get a good and satisfactory trading agreement with any country then we get benefit from it, and if we have a bad one then it is equally bad regardless of which political party did the negotiating.

Trading is business; it is the business of the farmer and of the industrialist; it is also the business of the consumer, but we have not reached the point where we can properly separate politics from business.

Nor do we see how a debate in the House of Commons is going to have the least effect on the trade agreements between Canada, Britain and United States. They have already become effective and the government which made them effective has sufficient majority at its disposal to ratify them even if all the other parties and groups voted the other way.

Prime Minister Is Right . . . .

Premier King threw something which resembled a scare into the House of Commons when he threatened to curtail the time given to private members. Under House rules private members' resolutions have precedence on Monday, Wednesday, and one hour Tuesday and Friday evenings. And private members also have Thursday for the first four weeks of the session. Mr. King recalled that the House had been in session for a month and all that had been done was to make speeches. The criticism is timely but would have been more effective had not Mr. King used two hours to make one near the start. We fear he along with Dr. Manion and his three-hour effort put the House off to a bad start.

But the members protested against Mr. King's proposed change. He had good enough reasons on his side of the argument. The business of the Government is to go ahead with the affairs of government, and yet in the first entire month there had been no government business brought forward.

Mr. King weakened to the extent of a few days about curtailing the time of private members, but it would be better for himself and better for the country if he would take things in hand regardless of the opposition he encountered. He might introduce the railway question and find how many of the members had anything to say about it.

Seems Reasonable

Ald. Dr. Gordon Millen of Toronto has a suggestion which appears to have some common sense attached to it. Just this: That when car drivers in Toronto secure their driving papers for the year they should be asked to pay an extra one dollar to be used for the removal of snow and ice from the city streets.

Service of that kind is of course a benefit to the city generally, but it is distinctly a personal benefit to the individual who wants to drive a car all winter. It is not of equal benefit to the person who relies on a street car or bus for transportation.

Paying a dollar for moving snow is something that motorists ought to be glad enough to donate. There are plenty of homes in Toronto and every other community where there are no cars and snow removal at present is paid for by such folk just the same as the car owner pays. Not very many of today's crop of suggestions appear reasonable, but this one does and it would be reasonable in any community provided the snow removal process could be generally applied.

So Much Secrecy

A train carrying 130 convicts passed through this city on its way to Stony Mountain penitentiary in Manitoba. They seem to have too many people in Kingston and keep shifting them elsewhere.

Some of the officers whose business it was to guard the train and preserve as much secrecy as possible regarding its movements seemed unable to understand how any person might know anything about the train. They seemed under the impression that a train could go puffing and chugging about the country with the same air of mystery as Santa Claus employs when he pops down chimneys a short time before Christmas day begins.

And of course people who work around the stations along the line also become mysterious. They turn out the lights, let the phone ring without answering and do a number of things which make it apparent that something out of the ordinary is taking place.

Then there is always the inmate of the car who scribbles something or other on a piece of paper or the back of a playing card and pokes it out the window telling what it's all about. Apart from that there was the subsequent announcement from Kingston and Ottawa that the special train was making its trip out west. So it might as well be announced in advance that the special is going through so the people could go down to the station and see what is going on. Reporters for instance are rather nosey fellows and in the course of a day they do hear a number of things so that's how it happened it was no news to them that the special train was going to pass through.

These Social Events

The Erieau correspondent of the Blenheim News-Tribune seems to do well when it comes to writing about the social events of her territory. There was quite a party to celebrate the silver wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Feduk. We learn that Mr. Feduk arrived in this country 26 years ago, proceeded to get married and after that went into the business of onion farming. We also know how many children there are in the family and where they are and it looks as though the venture into this new land had indeed been a happy one.

When it came to the point of describing the silver wedding celebration we quote from the writings of this observant correspondent:

"Mrs. Feduk was attired for the occasion in a beautiful veil made by her compatriots, and Mr. Feduk wore a high silk hat."

Just what the weather was like in the onion belt we have no way of knowing, but a kindly disposition probably causes us to entertain the fond hope that it was a bit more balmy than we have been experiencing recently.

Having a Tooth Fixed

There are some rather unusual things taking place in the world today. A dentist demonstrated in Chicago the other day how he took out an abscessed tooth, fixed the thing and put it back in place. He called it replanting the tooth.

Just how it is done we found it difficult to understand. Dentists have changed their technique so much in recent times that experiences of other days have little bearing. We dare say that dentist in Chicago would not resort to the fine old custom of flopping his patient down in a chair as though he was mad at him and then proceed to put one foot on his chest while he tugged at the tooth. He would probably just nod or bow toward the chair and perhaps give a swoop of the arm to indicate the direction to be taken by the man with the sore tooth.

An abscess on a tooth has generally meant losing the thing. Much better to have it out and so on, but it has become different now. This man in Chicago takes the tooth out, puts it on the bench and gets out his kit of tools and goes to work. If there is a hole to be filled up he attends to that. After which he puts in some gutta percha at the bottom, hammers the tooth back in place and puts in a wedge so nothing will slip while the tooth is getting used to its new moorings. In a month's time he knocks the wedge out and there you are with your old tooth back and good for from five to ten years.

Taking a tooth out and fixing it would not be much of a trick, but getting the thing back is where the catch has always come in. Now it looks as though we are on the edge of days when we will leave an old tooth at the dentist's just about the same as we send the old hat over to the cleaner's now and then to be touched up.

NOTE AND COMMENT

Another difficulty about this Bren gun contract is that it seems to have a lot of political recoil.

The Bren gun matter has been shifted to the Public Accounts Committee. That does not mean peace, merely a change in venue.

Many cruel things are said politically but surely the insinuation that Mr. Bennett has gone to England to dodge the succession duties is about the limit.

We notice an advertisement headed "Are you in the right job?" A great many people would think the answer was "yes" if they had any kind of a job.

Canadians entered in the contest for the world's ski championship finished 30th and 33rd. It is evident there are a lot of things we do better than skiing.

Evidence supplied by a dictaphone has been accepted in a Manitoba murder trial. Science continues to make it more difficult for those who stray off the straight and narrow.

Now some one suggests Mr. Bennett as a possible prime minister of Great Britain. We thought the idea was that the former Conservative leader had gone over for a rest.

Lord Tweedsmuir says that he is probably the worst skier in Canada, but we have an idea that His Excellency is covering too much territory in that statement. There are a lot of bad ones.

There are 600 transients housed in the Coliseum at the exhibition grounds in Toronto and they create considerable trouble at times possibly because they have nothing much else to create.

If there are to be any pensions for Canadians who fought for the Spanish government logic suggests that they should be furnished by the Spanish government for which these Canadians fought.

After reading some of the language used in the Bren gun debate in the House of Commons it is not difficult to arrive at the conclusion that a 40-minute limit to speeches in Parliament is far too generous.

Fireman in Detroit is feeling nervous because he carried a boy who had scarlet fever from a burning building. The fireman said he never had scarlet fever himself, and we can think of no particular reason why he should have it now.

Woman in Toronto left her purse in a street car and it contained $600, but she got it back because the conductor had picked it up. Women would have a rough sort of time in this world if there were not some men around to look after them.

Mother's Allowance Commission in Toronto employs single women of past middle age as investigators and they find it possible to catch a number of men who have deserted their wives. It seems rather tough that a woman should have to spend her time pursuing that kind of a man.

BIG MUSIC

¶ Alfalfa's boy friend said one day, he wished that she knew how to play, and likewise how to sing; for he liked music in the home, when they were camped in there alone, 'twas a delightful thing.

¶ Alfalfa took that much to heart, made plans at once so she might start, 'twould please the lad she knew; she got a teacher right next day, found out just what she'd have to pay, found what she'd have to do.

¶ Alfalfa's learning all the scales, and pounds like one who's splitting rails, of what she's learned she's proud; she even knows a little tune, and plays it morning and at noon, and does it very loud.

¶ And when Alfalfa starts to sing, she pours out notes like everything, no trouble in the sound; in fact there is no little note, that ever flutters from her throat, for they're all big and round.

¶ Her teacher's the artistic kind, who seeks to lead Alfalfa's mind, in pastures soft and green; she must not raise her voice so loud, nor play piano for the crowd, but seize some gentle theme.

¶ Alfalfa can't see things that way, she argues with him every day, can't muffle her a bit; Alfalfa sits upon the stool, and works her notes by just one rule—she hits 'em, they stay hit.

MR. SPEAKER—I RISE

Mr. COLDWELL: Mr. Speaker, I rise to a point of order. I want to know what the hon. gentleman means when he says that the Conservatives are linking up with a subversive group in this house.

Mr. HARTIGAN: This afternoon—

Mr. SPEAKER: Order. I would ask the hon. member to withdraw the words, "subversive, group."

Mr. HARTIGAN: Yes, Mr. Speaker, I will withdraw them on the demand of the chair. But I say that so long as that speech of the hon. member for Nanaimo (Mr. Taylor) of February 3, 1938, remains and is available on the pages of Hansard, we are entitled to believe that there are subversive influences in this house.

Some hon. MEMBERS: Order.

Mr. HARTIGAN: I did not say where.

Mr. COLDWELL: On a question of privilege, Mr. Speaker, as a member of this house—and it is a question affecting the privileges of this parliament; the hon. member says that there are subversive influences in this house. I submit that that statement is unparliamentary and should be withdrawn.

Mr. McLEAN (Melfort): On the point of order, Mr. Speaker, I suggest that perhaps the hon. member for Cape Breton South (Mr. Hartigan) was referring to racketeers with whom we were told this government was in alliance.

Mr. SPEAKER: I would ask the hon. member for Cape Breton South to resume his seat please. I do not think the hon. member should use the expression "subversive" as applied to any group or any member of this house.

Some hon. MEMBERS: Withdraw.

Mr. HARTIGAN: I have already said that I withdraw it.

Mr. SPEAKER: The expression "subversive" as applied to members of the house or to any group in the house should not be used by any member.

Mr. HARTIGAN: All right, Mr. Speaker, I have already withdrawn it.

I was going on to say—

Mr. SPEAKER: Order. The hon. member has exhausted his time to speak.

SINGING FLAT.

THE British Air Secretary, Sir Kingsley Wood, quieted a gathering of London Fascists, who were about to take firm apart, by singing "God Save the King" to them. This probably shows that patriotism still has a firmer grip on the average mind than political economy; it certainly shows that a nation is fortunate to possess a national anthem which can be sung by practically anybody. We don't like to think of a similar crisis in this country. An American statesman, beset by hecklers, would be a fool to give them "The Star-Spangled Banner." Even if he knew the words, which he wouldn't, the tune would undo him. He might get as far as "the rockets' red glare," but that would be the end. He'd reach for that impossible G and they'd be at his throat, not so much for his politics as for singing flat.—The New Yorker.

IT MIGHT HAVE BEEN.

WITH the United States appropriating over half a billion dollars for defence, there must be some quiet, serious thinking on the part of those who prevented that country from participating in the League of Nations. Had such a powerful force as the United States been in the League from the beginning there might be peace in the world today and the taxpayers of all nations would not be digging down deep in their pockets to pay for armaments. The U. S. could have won world peace for a long period of time if it had not been so short-sighted on the League of Nations issue.—Lethbridge Herald.

AS A HIRED MAN SEES IT

Editor Examiner:

Sir,—In answer to Clarence Johnston, I have for a number of years been a hired man simply because I could not get any work at my trade. I am a carpenter. During this period I have learned to know and study humanity. I am 38 years old.

Johnston speaks of 4 cents an hour wages for the farmer, but he forgets to tell that the average hired man works for a great deal less as my example, $8.00 per month.. Board, which is highly valued, often is poor and insufficient to give proper strength and the bed—well any place is good enough for the hired man. However I put up with it to keep from relief like many other poor slaves do. As for relief I believe per capita there is as much relief in rural as in urban centres. And Old Age Pensions which are just another form of relief by a different name to help raise the taxes he speaks of, is no where more cleverly manipulated by clever property deals for eligibility to certain persons than in the country. It is such decisions which impress the hired man to think, wonder and study what life is all about.

I have put in 7 years on farms, one a real home which unfortunately broke up after 3 years and then from bad to worse. Every one has been hard run and the farmer is no exception. How many business men in cities, towns or villages are really getting much profit today and who is making any more than the farmer? Let the farmer stop decrying hard times, let him remember that the urban without the rural population and visa versa is utterly impossible. Let him develope a little more sympathetic feeling toward his fellow man even the man on relief (perhaps through no fault of his own.) We are all God's creatures therefore let us unite in living a life of thankfulness, contentment, good will, and good fellowship. Let us thank God that we are living in a country where no one is in desparate need and where we can worship God.

I may say my hours are from 5 a. m. to 8 and 8.30 p. m. And my noon hour in one place was spent carrying wood and water for the house.

Mr. Johnston asked for replies so Mr. Editor please let him have this letter through your valuable space for which I thank you.

HIRED MAN

LIKES THE BAND

Editor Examiner:

Sir,—Your city council ought to give your Salvation Army band more than they did. It is a really good band. It's instruments are in tune and it's music is music. I have heard many bands and if you will let me say as a traveller that this band ought to be supported for the mass of the people who cannot pay for music but love it.

USE OF THE RADIO

Editor Examiner:

Sir,—Having just heard the last and concluding speech of Mr. McCullagh of The Globe and Mail I would like to use your column to point out to your readers the thing that stood out in this speech was the astounding fact that every radio owner in this Dominion has to pay $2.50 for our political friends to use free when and how they like and refuse any free thinking man like Mr. McCullagh to pay for and use the network of the C. B. S.

If this doesn't stink of Nazism what does? The people of Peterborough and Ontario can do themselves a big favor by getting those coupons from The Globe and Mail and mailing them in protest, or better still for every non-political paper in Canada to print the same coupons for their readers, in that way reach every voter in the dominion and also every M. P.

In concluding I wish to thank Mr. McCullagh for his sensible enlightening speeches, which every thinking voter should remember at voting time.

Yours truly

J. B. BUCHAN.

WHAT NEXT? CO-OPERATIVES!

Editor Examiner:

Sir,—May I add to a column of your valuable newspaper which I find very interesting.

There is one thing we are sure of in this world and that is "change."

The Dominion government pays 40% of the relief now and the Provincial government pays 40%. This 80% comes from indirect taxes, such as tax on sugar; and so we find the farmer of Ontario has to help pay a large share of the urban relief. For I don't know any farmer who receives relief.

We as farmers receive anywhere from 1-5 to ½ the hourly wage the urban laborer does. This certainly is not economically sound for Ontario or Canada. The farmers constitute 40% of the population of Canada and only get 10% of the national income. We should use 40% of the goods, but how can we, when we only receive 10% of the income? The result is, a large volume of goods not consumed, so we find unemployment and relief.

We are being taught how to grow two blades of grass where one grew before, but we can't even sell the first blade. From 1929 to 1933 farm implement production dropped 80% and the price only dropped 4%. At the same time farm production dropped 6% and the price dropped 63%. This comparison shows we didn't get a square deal. No wonder the city merchant says "go back to the land all those who will; but I'll go back no more; for I got all that was coming to me when I was there before."

I am not a Socialist, Communist, Red, or anything like that; nor do we as farmers ask for privileges but equity. It does not seem to me we can expect the price of wheat or butter to rise just now. We in Canada grew 27 million acres of wheat in 1937 compared with 9¼ million before 1914. We produced between 2 and 3 times the bushels of wheat we did before 1914. The world expects a surplus carry-over by June 30, 1939 of ¼ the annual world production. The world however imports 20 million bushel less per year. How can we as producers raise the price? The world just won't take our wheat and so we must keep it. We can produce in 1 year 79 pounds of butter from 1 acre. Australia can produce, with her 12 months' pasture, 379 pounds of butter per year. New Zealand does better. She produces 5 times as much as we can (100 cows plus young cattle on 100 acres). We are in open competition with this in the world.

We in Canada produced 200 million more pounds of butter in 1938 than in 1930. We have a surplus of 44,630,000 pounds on hand now. These are two important items for us and other items are similar. How can we raise our price?

Since we can't get more money for our produce we must "teach our dollars to have more cents." We can do this through Co-operatives. They are not a new idea. They exist for the mutual benefit of the members. The first Consumer Co-operative was started in Rochdale, Eng., in 1844 and the idea soon spread. The dividends from the Consumer Co-operatives are given back to the members at the end of the year in the form of "purchase dividends." At present 25% of the people of the world belong to some sort of Co-operative. Denmark and Sweden are extensively Co-operative; over there the farmer gets 63.42 of the consumer's dollar while the processor gets 36.6%. Compare that to here where farmer gets 38.52 and the processor gets 61.52 of the consumer's dollar. It really looks as though the Co-operatives have something for us and I firmly believe they have.

We all know that storekeepers or salesmen get a commission on what they sell (very large on some things). Possibly 25 to 30% on machinery and cars. It costs 3½ cents to manufacture a spark plug and you know what they cost us. The manufacturer keeps some of this. They can be bought for 13 cents in lots of 25,000. Commission on other farm supplies is not as large as spark plugs.

Nova Scotia leads Canada in Co-operatives. With a population about the same as Toronto, she had in 1932, two Co-operative stores, now she has 29 in 1938. There is one Co-operative store in Cape Breton which has a turnover of $1,000,000 per year and pays 82 purchase dividends. The average store there pays 6% purchase dividends.

Co-operative stores are springing up quickly in Ontario and doing good work. I know one young man who started two different ones in the last two years. When a Co-operative store starts up other stores cut prices to force the Co-operative to "close up," but persistence wins. So if we start we must fight and I see no reason why we shouldn't start. I believe "a general farm supply Co-operative" would serve the farmers of Peterborough as well as the urban dwellers to advantage.

The Co-operative creamery pays 8 to 10% dividend on the amount of cream shipped. These dividends mean more money to spend, which means more goods bought; this in turn causes employment and our relief vanishes and gives us lower taxes and more money to spend etc.

I could say more but this letter is too long now. Thank you for the space.

A Bible Message For Today . . . .

Now when he had ended all his sayings in the audience of the people, he entered into Capernaum. And a certain centurion's servant, who was dear unto him, was sick, and ready to die. And when he heard of Jesus, he sent unto him the elders of the Jews, beseeching him that he would come and heal his servant. And when they came to Jesus, they besought him instantly, saying, That he was worthy for whom he should do this. . . .

Then Jesus went with them. And when he was now not far from the house, the centurion sent friends to him, saying unto him, Lord, trouble not thyself: for I am not worthy that thou shouldest enter under my roof: wherefore neither thought I myself worthy to come unto thee: but say in a word, and my servant shall be healed. For I also am a man set under authority, having under me soldiers, and I say unto one, Go, and he goeth; and to another, Come, and he cometh; and to my servant, Do this, and he doeth it.

When Jesus heard these things, he marvelled at him, and turned him about, and said unto the people that followed him, I say unto you, I have not found so great faith, no, not in Israel. And they that were sent, returning to the house, found the servant whole that had been sick.—Luke vii, 1-4, 6-10.

ROLLIN' ALONG.

OL' MAN Detroit River relaxed the other day, took time off and flowed lazily backward toward Lake St. Clair. They say he has done it before. Once in 40 or 50 years the mood comes and he yields to it. Well, why not? Perhaps it is his only way to get recognition for his faithfulness.

Where is there another river of comparable size that can back up for a day or so and not flood a lot of adjacent territory? Come to think of it, what a goof old river we have! Nothing disturbs his serenity. First the ice-bridge forms across Niagara Falls. Then the east wind blows and piles the water up in one end of Lake Erie. And Ol' Man Detroit River very courteously says, "All right; if you've got enough down there, I'll hold off for a while."

And right at the same time Detroit folks, up to their necks in snow, begin to shovel out. Where did they put the snow? In the river. And Ol' Man Detroit River takes it and never bats an eye. He just keeps rollin' along! —(Detroit News)

Canada's Homes Of Interest On Royal Visit

(By The Canadian Press)

It is safe to say that Canadian homes will hold the interest of the King and Queen, when they visit the Dominion next spring, as much as any other aspect of Canadian life. For on the subject of homes and home-making their Majesties are experts.

As occupants of the Throne, the couple have four principal residences —Buckingham Palace, the Royal Lodge at Windsor, Sandringham House in Norfolk and Balmoral Castle in Scotland. In each of these four the Queen's deft touch has succeeded in producing a home despite the formal—even grim—appearance of some of them.

But perhaps this is no miracle for one who served her apprenticeship at housekeeping in the great halls of Glamis Castle, ancestral home of the Queen's family in Forfarshire. In the year just after the Great War, the ill health of her mother, the late Countess of Strathmore, left the Queen virtually chatelaine of the great battlemented pile.

During their brief three-week tour of Canada, their Majesties will live for the most part aboard the royal train that will take them across the continent and back. In only three of Canada's great houses will they stop over briefly—the Citadel of Quebec, Rideau Hall at Ottawa and Government House at Victoria.

Their longest stay will be at Rideau Hall during the four-day visit to the capital and the graceful old mansion is being redecorated for their benefit. The governor-general, Lord Tweedsmuir, will move to temporary quarters when they take up residence.

Their Housekeeping

The first experience of the King and Queen at homemaking came after their marriage in 1923, when as Duke and Duchess of York, they were given quarters at the White Lodge at Windsor. As they assumed more and more of the duties of the royal family and the list of their engagements lengthened, this became inconvenient and the Earl and Countess of Strathmore cooperated by turning over their London house, No. 17 Bruton street, to the young couple.

It was at this house that Princess Elizabeth, heir presumptive to the throne, appeared on the scene on April 21, 1926. The second of their children, Princess Margaret, was born four years later at Glamis, an event of significance to Scots in that she was the first royal baby to be born north of the Tweed in 300 years since Charles I. From this comes her name, which is an ancient one of Scottish royalty.

In due course the Duke and Duchess selected a house of their own and vacated the Strathmore property. They rented No 145 Piccadilly, which stands facing the arch at Hyde Park Corner at the top of Constitution Hill. This house became a landmark for Londoners and small crowds were often to be seen watching the little princesses at play in the abbreviated garden at the back.

It was here that the abdication crisis found them in 1935. The crowds in Piccadilly grew larger and then one day came news that the little family must move to the great, forbidding palace a few blocks away. To a terrified maid the Queen is said to have given her promise that she would made Buckingham Palace every bit as homelike as the Piccadilly house

Italy Rejoices

ROME, Feb. 16—(CP-Havas)—The Italian press today hailed the launching of the 35,000-ton German battleship Bismarck as an event of "capital" importance and a notable strengthening of the Rome-Berlin axis.

The Popolo Di Roma said it foreshadowed Germany's resumption of its "rightful place" in the naval domain and predicted "discussion and alarm" in the French and British press.

The paper declared Germany signed its naval accord with Great Britain in order to keep London calm while it went ahead with construction.

Motorized Corps Beat Sea Attack

NEWCASTLE, Australia, Feb. 16—(CP-Reuters)—In the most extensive manoeuvres since 1914, Australian troops massed in the vicinity of Newcastle repulsed a dawn attack from the sea. The defence exercises were designed to test the vulnerability of Newcastle and the surrounding industrial centre from attack.

The exercises began with a radio message from Newcastle headquarters announcing the sighting of an enemy convoy, estimated to be capable of carry four divisions.

Within an hour of the receipt of the message 4,000 troops of the First Infantry Brigade were speeding in hastily-mobilized civilian vehicles, including 23 motor buses and 43 light lorries, along rough back-country roads leading to the coast.

Artillery emplacements were rapidly prepared on half a dozen sandy beaches, and 11 planes, which arrived suddenly from the air force station at Richmond, roared over the defensive positions, reconnoitering the ground and taking aerial photographs of the massing troops and gun positions.

It was the first time private motorists had co-operated here with the military authorities in carrying out rapid troop movements.

Following a lively "battle," in which the entire mechanized force of 4,000 men had to cross the Hunter River at four points en route to the coastal battlefield on the lonely beaches near Port Stephens, the troops were adjudged to have scored a technical win over the invaders.

Royal Courtship Saw Love Ripen Early

When King George and Queen Elizabeth come to Canada next May they will be at the beginning of the 17th year of their marriage—a union that began in the informality of minor royalty and continued in the fierce glare that spotlights the throne.

On April 26, 1923, crowds lined London streets to see a petite Scots noblewoman, the Lady Elizabeth Bowes-Lyon, drive from Westminster Abbey, the bride of the second son of the King. Fourteen years later the couple passed the same way amid the fanfare of an Empire—the newly-crowned King and Queen.

In their visit to Canada their Majesties will set an Empire precedent for never before have the reigning King and Queen crossed the seas to tour a self-governing dominion. A previous occasion on which the occupants of the throne visited British territory overseas was the trip of King George V and Queen Mary to India for the coronation durbar at Delhi in 1911.

Such things as royal precedents were far from the thoughts of the little Lady Elizabeth and Prince Albert when they first met as children, aged 10 and 15 respectively. The youngest daughter of the Earl and Countess of Strathmore was a childhood friend of Princess Mary, now the Princess Royal, and was often at one or other of the royal residences.

Her meetings with the young prince were brief at that time for "Bertie" was mostly away attending the royal naval college at Dartmouth, getting ready to follow his father in a naval career.

Idol of the future Queen in those days was her young brother David Lyon. The youngest of seven children, the pair were only 15 months apart in age and were generally left to their own devices by their older brothers and sisters. They found plenty to amuse them in the hills around rugged Glamis Castle in Forfarshire or in the lush meadows of St. Paul's Waldenbury, the Hertfordshire seat of the Strathmores.

One of the most charming glimpses of the Queen's childhood is given by the Rev. John Stirton who for years was minister at Crathie Church where the royal family attend when at Balmoral. He tells of looking on at a solemn minuet danced by little Elizabeth and David to an air played by their mother on the piano. It is on record that even in those days a certain demure grace and poise led playmates to nick-name the little girl prophetically—"Princess Elizabeth."

Early Education

The Strathmores held Victorian views on education and Elizabeth, with one short interlude at a school in London, was taught first by her mother and then by governesses who lived with the family. Music was always in favor at Glamis and Elizabeth sang in a glee club organized on the estate. She learned to perform creditably on the piano and harp.

In contrast, the training of the young Prince Albert was designed to cut away every protective privilege of birth and leave him to hold his own against hundreds of other lads in the training schools of the navy. As plain "Mr. Johnston," he attended Osborne with his elder brother, afterwards Edward VIII, then went to Dartmouth and finally to the gunroom of a battleship.

Superior officers found "Johnston" a hard worker. What he lacked in the classroom he strove to make up in keenness on deck and a shipmate recalls that he "always put his back into whatever was going on," even though it was "coaling ship" which meant filling grimy coal bags in the hold of a collier.

At the end of this training period Prince Albert got his first glimpse of Canada when he went on cruise to the Dominion with the other cadets in the training ship Cumberland. The ship visited Halifax and Saint John, Quebec and Montreal and the young prince managed to get a trip to Niagara Falls, of the wonders of which he had heard from his grandfather, King Edward VII.

It was while the Cumberland was in Halifax that the prince's love of tennis got him into a "Jam" with his father and brought him a sharp lesson in the duties of royalty. Dying to strech his limbs on a tennis court, "Johnston" ducked an offical reception in order to get in a few sets with shipmates. Word of this escapade somehow, reached King George and the result was a blistering telegram warning him never to do such a thing again. If he ever did, it is not on the record.

Stirring Days.

Outbreak of the Great War found Midshipman "Johnston" in the gunroom of the battleship Collingwood and two years later at the Battle of Jutland he was second-in-command of the ship's forward turret when she engaged two German cruisers and a handful of destroyers. Admiral Earl Jellicoe cited him for his coolness and courage under fire.

Later in the War the prince's never very robust health broke down under the strain of sea service and, following a serious operation, he was transferred to the royal naval air service. Attached to the headquarters staff at Nancy, France he reached the rank of squadron commander when peace came.

During those stirring days Glamis Castle had become a war hospital. Its great halls were filled with beds occupied by wounded soldiers to whom the Strathmore family and a staff of nurses ministered. Prevented by the war from getting the continental finish considered necessary in those days, Lady Elizabeth completed her education in the hospital wards of Glamis. "Her smile was a refreshment," recalls one war victim who was nursed back to health at the castle.

The future Queen's responsibilities increased soon after the War when an illness to her mother left Lady Elizabeth both housekeeper and hostess at Glamis, and it was not until 1922 that she was able to return to her beloved St. Paul's Waldenbury and resume her London connections. In the same year she served as bridesmaid at the wedding of Princess Mary and Viscount Lascelles.

It was in this peroid that her childhood friendship with the Duke of York, as he had now become, ripened. In the intervals of attending lectures at Cambridge and fulfilling those official duties that earned for him the title of "the industrial prince," the Duke would journey down to Hertfordshire to see her. Report says that he pressed his suit unsuccessfully more than once, but one sunny Sunday morning in January, 1923, he won his Duchess and future Queen.

Canada's Barns Bursting With 1938 Crop

OTTAWA, Feb. 16—(CP)—Opportune rains and fertile lands combined to make 1938 a year of good crops across Canada. The biggest wheat crop since 1932 was harvested, the estimate being 348,100,000 bushels, almost twice the production of 1937.

It was a good year for coarse grains. The estimates in bushels with the figures for 1937 in brackets follow: oats 377,315,000 (268,442,000); barley 102,731,000 (83,124,000); flax 1,358,500 (697,600); rye 11,115,000 (5,711,000).

Had the prices held up farmers would have been able to smile at the returns their crops brought them. However, the prices have shown sharp declines from a year ago and many farmers have received less for larger crops than in 1937.

Bureau of Statistics returns show the grain yields per acre this year exceeded last year with minor exceptions in every province except Manitoba where they were slightly below 1937 due to a splendid crop in that province in 1937. For all Canada yields per acre showed increased yields compared with 1937 for wheat, oats, barley, rye, peas, beans, mixed grains, flax seed and corn for husking. Buckwheat was down, the average yield being 18.7 bushels an acre as compared with 19.6 in 1937.

Nineteen-thirty-eight was a record for milk production. It has been estimated that the 3,873,800 cows in 1937 produced 17,188,617,700 pounds of milk, an all-time record but in 1938 the production based on comparatives will be substantially higher. The increase in consumption of raw milk, ice cream and condensed milks affect the butter and cheese production but the butter production will be 20,000,000 pounds over 1937 while the cheese production will be around 12,000,000 pounds less. It takes approximately twice as much milk to produce a pound of butter as a pound of cheese.

Good Fodder Year

Reports collected by the experimental farms indicate the pastures were better in 1938 than the year before and the open fall made it possible to leave the cattle outdoors later than in many years. In addition there was an increase in hay production and in fodder corn stored in silos and in many parts of Canada this is the principal source of food for milch herds during the winter. Roots were also plentiful and were fed to increase the milk flow in the fall months.

It was a big year for tobacco production. Ontario had a crop of 85,000,000 pounds in 1938 compared with 63,000,000 in 1937 and the total production for Canada is estimated at 96,000,000 as against 72,000,000 the year before. The increase in crop was due more to the jump in acreage under tobacco than to increased yield. The bulk of the crop is harvested in western Ontario.

Contrary to the general trend of greater production, there was a marked falling-off in the potato crop which Bureau of Statistics figures show was 35,774,000 cwt. in 1938 and 42,547,00 cwt. in 1937. The average yield per acre for all Canada dropped from 80 cwt. in 1937 to 69 cwt. in 1938. Prices however are substantially higher than a year ago.

Official sources say the cause of the lower production was a blight which caused rot in many parts of the country. Prince Edward Island with 112 cwt. per acre this year as compared with 97 cwt. last year and Saskatchewan which had 65 cwt. per acre this year and 27 cwt. last year were the only provinces where the 1938 crops were above the year before in potatoes.

Nova Scotia potatoes dropped from 86 cwt. per acre to 72 cwt.; New Brunswick from 115 cwt. to 80; Quebec from 87 to 70; Ontario from 67 to 51; Manitoba 80 to 60; Alberta 90 to 74; British Columbia 121 to 96.

Fruit Crops

Canada's apple crop was estimated at 5,175,000 barrels as compared with 5,149,100 barrels in 1937. Nova Scotia's crop jumped from 2,250,000 barrels last year to 2,400,000 this year and British Columbia reported a loss from 5,798,300 boxes last year to 5,352,000 boxes this year. Crops were lower in New Brunswick and Quebec and up in Ontario.

Hopper damage reduced the production of grapes in Ontario and although the quality was good the crop was 45 per cent less than the year before. Other small fruits showed gains.

Canada's tomato crop in 1938 was unsatisfactory. Raising of tomatoes has become a big industry in this country and officials in horticultural associations estimated the crop brought in $5,000,000. It was a big crop but the dry hot weather injured the quality in many gardens. The prices were also so low that officials estimate hundreds of acres of tomatoes were never harvested.

Turnip growing which has become an important industry in Canada was successful in 1938 with a crop of 37,970,000 cwt. as compared with 36,300,000 in 1937. Canadian turnips are becoming increasingly popular in the United States and final figures will indicate a good export business.

Hay, fodder, corn and sugar beets had better crops in 1938 than in 1937 while there was a slight reduction in alfalfa.

Financiers Cry Balance Budget

WASHINGTON, Feb. 16—(CP)—Taxes are high on the list of headaches forecast for the United States Congress when it meets January 3.

One reason is the talk initiated by Bernard Baruch, chairman of the former War Industries Board, for a special tax to pay for larger armaments. A joint Congressional committee on taxation already is considering a 10-per-cent income-tax boost and other proposals.

Another reason is the continuing cry from many financiers and politicians for an attempt to balance the budget. Not the least cause is the annual plea of various interests for revision of taxes to remove alleged injustices or to shift the burden to someone else.

Since President Roosevelt's administration came to power, taxes on income and estates have been increased and new taxes have been levied on numerous items such as automobiles, gasoline, refrigerators, cosmetics and theatre admissions.

Nevertheless, the current fiscal year will register the ninth consecutive federal deficit, two of which were incurred by the Hoover administration. In that time, the public debt will have risen from $16,000,000,000 to more than $40,000,000,000 (by June 30, 1939).

HOLDER OF ROYAL YORK TROPHY FOR TWO YEARS IS DEFEATED

Hall Is Defeated In Major 'Spiel Upset

TORONTO, Feb. 16.—(CP)—Five undefeated curling rinks, an unusual number for the fourth day according to officials, today awaited third and fourth round matches of the 12th annual Ontario bonspiel's three major competitions.

Yesterday one favorite was eliminated in the Royal York, premier event of the meet and five previously unbeaten quartets were knocked out in the second round play.

Most staggering defeat came late at night when Bert Hall, holder of the Royal York trophy, which he successfully defended last year, went down 10-6 before Ed Young's Toronto Royal Canadians.

The five unbeaten fours, with the number of games won, are: W. J. Drysdale, Kingston, seven; Dr. S. T. White, Orangeville, five; A. E. Dunker, Kitchener, five; R. A. Campbell, Toronto Royal Canadians, six, and C. R. Redfern, Torontos, five.

Drysdale successfully defended his spotless record in three events. After winning 16-10 in the Birks-Ellis-Ryrie second round over Dr. E. C. Watson, Detroit, he won 15-9 from W. H. Karn, Oshawa, in the Seiberling second. At night in the Royal York third round he defeated W. R. Macdonald's Torontos 11-10.

Dr. White also fought off three challengers. In the morning he bested Dr. A. W. Irwin, Wingham, 11-10 in an extra end game. In the afternoon he beat off the bid of a Toronto four 11-10 and at night repelled Judge A. Cochrane, Brampton, 9-8.

Kingston Out.

Two Kingston rinks lost out. H. A. Heagle dropped a 13-6 decision to A. R. Dunker's Kitcheners, and J. G. W. Sands lost 15-7 to H. Walker, Chatsworth.

Four Northern Ontario quartets gained victories. C. A. Huchnegard's Norandas won 15-10 over Cecil Frost, Lindsay; and A. M. Austin, Chapleau, defeated E. F. Goddard, Timagami, 13-10 in an extra end game. Both were Canada Dry Trophy first round matches.

In the Seiberling Trophy J. T. Gauthier, Timmins, put down Dr. E. C. Watson, Detroit, 10-9, while R. L. Graham's Little Current four took a 12-10 verdict over F. Keith Wilson, Brampton, in the Seagram second rpund.

In the North American Life Trophy's second round, Rev. J. S. Shortt, Barrie, counted a six on the 10th end to give him a 12-10 victory over D. E. Kennedy, Guelph. Kennedy was leading 8-5 up to the 10th.

The game between C. F. Rumsey, Meaford, and Bert Kennedy, Toronto Royals, in the Birk's second round, was noteworthy, in that Rumsey scored a six on the fifth end to make the score 11-5, yet lost 12-11. Kennedy's adroit play kept the Meaford four from scoring in the last five ends.

A. E. Dunker's Kitcheners, after winning in the morning round of the Royal York, showed finesse in disposing of H. A. Heagle, Kingston. Dunker's men held the Kingston four scoreless for ends at a time while increasing their own lead.

Sarnia Bumped Off.

R. A. Campbell, Toronto Royals, in counting a 14-12 win against Alex Hayes, Sarnia, also displayed fine manoeuvring. The game hung in doubt until the final end, Campbell holding Hayes to seven points during the seventh, eighth and ninth, while Royals added a five and two. Hayes came back with three on the 10th and two on the 11th, but Campbell's lead was too much.

A. C. Hoffman's Kitcheners gave a strong finish to beat R. J. Macdonald, Locust Hill, in 11 ends. Leading 8-4 at the eighth, Hoffman suffered a setback at the next end when Macdonald came back strong with a five, to lead 9-8. Hoffman's quartet proved equal to the occasion, scoring one in the 10th and four in the 11th to win 13-9.

Trent Jinx Ends, Tumble Albions 3-2

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HAVELOCK, Feb. 16.—After loosing every game during the first half of the East Peterborough Rural League, Trent River finally broke the jinx last evening, when they defeated the Havelock Albions by a close 3-2 score at the local rink. The fastest game of the E.P.R.L. schedule witnessed here this season both squads skated at full speed throughout, giving the opposing goalies plenty of trouble. Five penalties were handed out during the match three of these to the visitors. Jamieson and H. Gordon got the gate in the first session for engaging in a bumping match, while Elliott and Varty went off together for the same reason in the final stanza. Elliott drew the only other penalty of the game for a trip.

Hagerman counted for Havelock early in the first stanza, A. Brown retaliating for Trent River to tie it up. Jim Brown, on a solo effort, placed the visitors one up to conclude the scoring for this period. There was no change in the count during the second frame, both goalies proving unbeatable.

Chaplin opened the scoring in the third on a pass from McLaughlin, notching Trent River's last goal of the night. The Albions pressed the attack during this period keeping the play almost entirely within their opponents' territory. Varty notched the final counter of the game, the match ending with the score standing 3 to 2 for Trent River. The visitors were awarded a penalty shot during this session, when H. Gordon threw his stick. Parcells coasting right in on Hill, local goal-keeper. The shot, taken by F. McLaughlin was easily stopped by Hill.

Goalies Hill and Carnrite were stars of the game, with A. Brown, J. Brown and F. McLaughlin the pick of the winners, while E. Ellis, P. Ellis, and Hagerman were most effective for Havelock. Th teams:

Trent River.—Goal, Carnrite; defence, VanVolkenburg, A. Brown; centre, Chaplin; wings, J. Brown, F. McLaughlin; alternates, Parcels, Ketchen, Jamieson, Wight, Jack Brown, Elliott.

Havelock.—Goal, Hill; defence, Hamilton, Lade; centre, Hagerman; wings, E. Ellis, P. Ellis; alternates, Varty, Pollock, H. Gordon, Williams, E. Gordon, Griffith.

CAMPBELLFORD DEFEATS TWEED IN T.V.L.

Milltown Crew Takes Lead Early In Game

(Examiner Correspondence.)

TWEED, Feb. 16.—In one of the poorest exhibitions of hockey at the local arena on Wednesday evening, the Campbellford Blues trounced the Tweed Red and White Shirts ten to five. Campbellford was the better team in all departments, especially on their passing plays and cover up work.

In the first period Campbellford went into a three goal lead, with Phillips, Blake and Atkinson getting the counters. J. Tummon went to the box for tripping. The Tweed boys were bottled up in their own end of the arena in this canto, having little or no chances of scoring. The Blues checked closely, and had a man or two parked on Reeves in goal nearly all of the period, giving him little opportunity of clearing the puck away from the nets. However, all goals in this period were scored on long shots from inside the blue line.

In the second period a total of eight goals were scored, with the Blues tallying five counters and Tweed three, Courneyea was the marksman for the Tweed boys on all three goals, with Elsbury and Tummon getting assists on the first, and Elsbury getting additional assists on the other two counters. Blake tallied twice for the visitors, and Robins, C. Couch and Wilkes each scoring once. Blake and D. Couch went to the bench in this period for minor infractions. The refereeing was very loose with both teams getting in rough work.

In the last period, both teams tallied twice, with C. Couch and Blake scoring for the visitors, and Elsbury and Meraw for the Tweed boys.

Worst Of The Year

The game can be termed one of the poorest games of the league this season, and soured the fans, a goodly number being on hand for the game of shinny.

For the Campbellford team, practically the whole team starred, with Blake the chief marksmen with four goals the standout. The only two deserving mention for the home forces were Courneyea who tallied three of the five home goals on brilliant passing plays from Elsbury, who in turn scored a counter, to gain himself pour points on the game. Summary:

First Period

1—Campbellford—J. Phillips.
2—Campbellford—Blake.
3—Campbellford—Atkinson.
Penalty—J. Tummon.

Second Period

4—Tweed—Courneyea (Elsbury, J. Tummon).

Third Period

Referee—F. Geraldi.

Everybody Gets In On the Fun Around the Goal

Three Detroit Red Wings try to get the puck past Earl Robertson, New York American goalie, while Earl and four teammates in turn try to get it out of the way and up to the other end of the ice. The puck at the moment is entangled with Earl's feet while the other involved are Gus Gleisbrecht (19), rookie Red Wing centre, at the LEFT; Joe Jerwa, Amerk defenceman, behind the goal, being pushed back by Charlie Conacher, Detroit right wing. Then there's Mr. Robertson, with Eddie Wiseman (10), coming in to clear, and over at the other side of the goal, Herbie Lewis (4), of the Red Wings, and Hooley Smith and Roger Jenkins, extreme RIGHT, of Dutton's doughty crew.

Campbellford High School Hockey Team Defeats Havelock Outfit By 8 To 1

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CAMPBELLFORD, Feb. 16.—Campbellford trimmed Havelock High 8 to 1 in an interscholastic tussle here Wednesday night. The visitors scored their only goal in the third period and for this they can thank Cap Kelly, local goalie, who, by a fluke, drew the disc into his net with his skate after he had already stopped the shot made by Williams. It was an unfortunate accident, which spoiled Cap's perfect record for the evening as he was putting on a great exhibition, stopping them from all angles.

The winners had the edge on the play all evening and outskated the visitors at nearly every stage. Only the effective work of Hill in the nets saved the visitors from a more thorough trouncing. Donan, Kelly and O'Sullivan combined to form a trio which could coast through the visitors defence just about every time they started down the ice. Rowe and Poulton were another combination which formed a constant source of worry to the visitors and although they lacked some of the speed of the other trio made up for this with their stick handling and back checking.

Campbellford opened the scoring with two counters in the first, added another pair in the second and were five up at the beginning of the final canto, when the visitors tallied. Donan and J. Kelly were the principal marksmen for the locals, getting two apiece, while Haggert and Tummon, E. Tummon; wings, Mer-Williams looked best for the railway town.

Summary:

First Period

Campbellford—Donan 5.10
Campbellford—Rowe (O'Sullivan) 17.01
Penalty—O'Sullivan.

Second Period

Campbellford—O'Sullivan (Rowe) 9.56
Campbellford—Kelly (Curle) 19.30
Penalties—Coughlan, McLaughlin, McCutcheon.

Third Period

Havelock—Williams 5.35
Campbellford—Kelly 8.29
Campbellford—Poulton 13.30
Campbellford—O'Sullivan (Poulton) 16.45

Referee, Russel Ayrhart.

Havelock: Goal, Hill; defence, McCutcheon, P. Pollock; centre, Hagerty; wings, Williams, McLaughlin; alternates, C. Pollock, Buchanan, Gordon, Jamieson.

Campbellford: Goal, Cap. Kelly; defence, Donan, Lee; centre, J. Kelly; wings, Poulton, O'Sullivan; alternates, Tinney, Rowe, Curle, Fox, Coughlan.

CURLING

By HERB MARTIN

When George Robertson's rink defeated E. Metcalfe's rink last night, he not only won the "B" group honors but we believe he established an all time record. Playing right through the entire schedule season and winning every one of the 12 schedule games, is a feat that many an old timer woul envy—and what makes this record all the sweeter was the fact that every one of the 12 games were played with a substitute.

We have had the pleasure of watching this rink play all season and can truthfully say that their exhibition of curling was wonderful. Everyone of their games were chucked full of mighty fine curling with the odd piece of luck thrown in. We congratulate "Chatter" and his rink.

Over at Woodville yesterday our lone entry made a good showing, landing home with second prize. Ther were 20 rinks entered from all around the district and each rink played 3 games. D. Richardson of Lindsay won first place. The personnel of the Peterborough rink was: N. Paterson, T. Doughty, V. Currie, N. Hamley, skip. Second place won each a Hudson Bay blanket.

Tomorrow night we expect to finish up the schedule games for the season, unless their happens to be some playoffs.

We will have our usual bonspiel on Saturday afternoon.

Scores:
T. McArthur 18, W. A. Pratten 16
G. Robertson 16, E. Metcalfe 6
D. Carlisle 17, E. Thomas 5
G. Cairns 12, M. Comstock 12
C. Westbrooke won from W. E. Taylor.
W. Widdess won from R. Best.
R. Downey won from J. J. Howden.

Ladies' Section

In a very one-sided game yesterday morning, Mrs. G. Wood won the vice-skips' bonspiel from Mrs. M. Comstock. These two teams met earlier in the season and it was only the last stone that decided the issue, but this time everything went right for the winners and everything wrong for the losers. Such is curling.

The next sompetition in which the ladies take part is the Sturgeon Trophy.

MONARCHS NOSE OUT COBOURG 4 TO 3 IN AN OVERTIME GAME

Junior C Representatives Earn Place In Group Playoffs In A Hard Fought Hockey Game

Monarchs, Peterborough's junior C representatives, earned a place in the group playoffs by nosing out Cobourg 4 goals to 3 in an overtime game at Brock St. rink Wednesday night before a handful of fans. Cobourg had a one-point lead in the battle for third place when they started the fixture and a win or even a tie would have sent them into the playoffs instead of the Monarchs, who had to win to avert elimination.

It was a hard fought battle all the way with no score in the first period, the teams all even at two goals each at the end of the second and tied up again, three all, at the close of the third. Joe Beggs banged in the million dollar goal three minutes after the overtime period started and the Monarchs nursed their slender lead for the balance of the session.

There was little to choose between the teams. Cobourg had a weight advantage over the winners, but Monarchs had every bit as much speed and the territorial play was about as even as the score. Penalties were plentiful and at one stage each team was two men short, but no one was hurt, and it was just good clean fun.

Outstanding in the Monarch win was the steady performance of Morrison, the Lakefield boy in the nets, who made a flock of saves, the dashing rushes of Joe Beggs and the effective work of Farmer Connelly, who never stopped trying. Rochetta could not get going as usual, the centre ice stylist failing to flash his customary form although he came through with a very valuable goal in the closing moments of the third period, sewing up the game when it looked like Monarchs were through for the season.

Haynes, Bambridge and Gallagher, were most effective for Cobourg, with Wilkins and Blastorah playing a lot of defence back of the blue line.

The first period was ragged and neither team had much of a chance to ring the bell; so effective was the checking. Bambridge drew the only penalty, but the Monarchs failed to look dangerous while he was off.

There was plenty of action in the second stanza, however. The teams began to turn it on after Don Vitarelli had put the Monarchs in front three minutes after the period opened. It was a rather soft goal at that, the puck glancing into the nets off Bolderstone's stick. Cobourg put on the pressure and came back with two goals to take the lead. The first was a well-earned counter. Haynes sliding the rubber into the net after taking a neat forward pass from Bambridge, but the second was a gift, Gallagher shot from the side and when Morrison blocked the drive, Connelly knocked the rebound back into his own net.

Connelly got that one back soon after when he took a pass from Royal Clark and fooled Bolderstone with a nice shot from the side. Early in the third session it looked as if penalties would put the Monarchs out of the running. First DeCarlo was waved off and then Beggs got the gate, leaving the homesters two men short and Cobourg cashed in on the numerical advantage to take the lead, Coogan picking up a loose puck and scoring at close range. The visitors stayed in front until the period was nearly over and then, with Bambridge serving a penalty, Rochetta took a pass from the corner by Connelly and back-handed a shot past Bolderstone from straight in front and the game was tied up.

There was no further scoring until the overtime, when Beggs banged in a rebound at close range, Vitarelli drawing an assist on the play. Cobourg fought hard for the balance of the ten minutes, but failed to click, although they came close on seaeral occasions.

Lakefield Girls Defeat 17-0 C.G.E. Outfit

LAKEFIELD, Feb. 16.—The feminine faction of the Lakefield High School hockey players made an impressive debut here Wednesday night when they wrestled with a girls' team from the Canadian General Electric, Peterborough, and came through with the winning points on a 17 to 0 score.

Though this is their first bout without outside talent, the girls from L H S have been doing considerable practising among themselves, and it was a complete and smooth-running squad which Miss Dunn placed on the ice last night.

On the other hand the C G E. team were newly organized and their lack of experience together left many vulnerable points in the layout.

Betty Lampman and Isobel Bullock were outstanding for Lakefield, and, along with Bea Grier were responsible for half of the winning goals.

Marilyn McCarthy put up a valiant struggle for the visiting team and Iris Hopkins, Antoinette DeCarlo and Ruth Thompson also showed strength on the forward lines. Geraldine Riley, in goal, stopped some fast shots and altogether it looked as though, with a little more practice behind them, the C G E. squad might really give the Lakefielders something to worry about when they play them again next week as they are planning.

The teams:

Lakefield High School: Goal, Margaret Hunter; defence, Cubby Lampman and Winifred Blewett; centre, Isobel Bullock; wings, Betty Lampman and Bea Grier; alternates, Nona Whetung, Dorothy Smith, Leon Shearer and Jean Orr.

Canadian General Electric: Goal, Geraldine Riley; defence, Rose Vitarelli and Helen Mongraw; centre, Marilyn McCarthy; wings, Ruth Thompson and Antoinette DeCarlo; alternates, Grace Barnes, Iris Hopkins, Dorothy Byers and Muriel Lacey.

DOC NICHOL

Gord (Doc) Nichol, above, turned in a fine game as the Petes won their group title in Belleville last night over the Fliers. He and Coughlin were the most potent of the Petes' forwards.

Lakefield High Whipped 6-4 By Norwood

HAVELOCK, Feb. 16.— Norwood High cinched first place in the district interscholastic schedule last night, defeating the aggressive Lakefield squad by a 6-4 score, in the fastest school game witnessed at the Norwood arena this season. With the exception of a few occasions in the first session when play grew rather ragged, the teams set a sizzling pace throughout. Heavy body-checking featured the tussle, both sides displaying plenty of weight on the rearguard.

The visitors, unaccustomed to the large ice surface, were at a disadvantage in the first two stanzas, Norwood rounding up a four goal lead in the initial frame, and adding another in the second to make it 5-0. A standout performance by Bongard in the winner's nets kept Lakefield from counting on several occasions. The visitors came back strong in the final period to score four goals.

Yale and Stewart, husky Lakefield defence pair, and Arthur, fast-skating left-winger, were the superior members of the visiting squad, with Stewart picking up two goals and an assist.

Playing a brilliant game in the nets, Bongard was Norwood's shining light, saving time and again on what appeared to be sure goals. "Mickey" Puffer, starry defenseman, and the line composed of Gill, Godin, and Buck led the shock troops, Gill accounting for three goals, Puffer for two and Buck for one, Godin checking up three assists. Baskin was best defenseman on the ice, slowing up his opponents considerably with well timed body checks.

Gill started the scoring for Norwood, ramming the puck past Winsor on a nice pass from Baskin. Gill also started the play for the second goal three minutes later, slipping the puck to Godin, who in turn passed to Buck, uncovered on the right wing. Puffer and Gill tallied from the face-off on a pass-out by Buck.

Puffer notched Norwood's last goal this period, picking up Buck's rebounding shot on Winsor. Lakefield struggled hard to score, having bad luck around the nets, Yale's shot striking the goal post, while Arthur's hit the side of the net.

Both teams began to rough it up going into the second frame, and while Lakefield were one man short, Puffer scored on a solo effort.

Five goals behind going into the final stanza, Lakefield as a last desperate effort played four men up continually. Stewart finally got a break, picking up a loose puck at the Norwood defense to get in alone on Bongard. The latter came out to make the save, but Stewart outguessed him, flipping it over into the cage as he lay on the ice. Gill retaliated for Norwood, Godin breaking away with only Yale back on the defense. Gill and Baskin drew successive penalties and while the latter was off Arthurs counted on a pass from Hurl. With only a few minutes to go Lakefield stormed around the Norwood net ad clicked twice, Clarke and Stewart being the goal getters.

The teams:

Norwood—Goal, Bongard; defense, Puffer, Morris; centre, Stevenson; wings, Petticrew, Sargent; alternates, Gill, Godin, Buck, Baskin, Warr.

Lakefield—Goal, Winsor; defence, Yale, Stewart; centre, Hurl; wings, Shearer, Tanner; alternates, McCracken, Clarke, Arthurs, Kendall.

Referee—J. Sabatino.

Digging up the Local Dirt With the Odd Chuckle or Two

This from the Ottawa Journal: "Bill Cook, winner of the Ontario ski cross-country at Peterborough, is actually a Finn with one of those unpronouncable names carrying about five vowels running into each other. Both he and Celius Skavaas, the runner-up, are close to the 40 mark. Howard Bagguley and George McMartin gave excellent performances in the jumping to lead one of the strongest fields yet gathered for the provincial meet. Bruce Heggveit led in the downhill and placed second in the combined. His brother, Eugene, who really fogs down a course, had the crowd hanging by the ropes as he attempted to negotiate the run at a pace that would have won him the race by a wide margin but for a fall near the finish. A traffic tie-up on the way to the jumping competition compared favorably with one on the Gatineau highway during the running of last year's Dominion meet. Some spectators travelled from Ottawa to see the meet. Dave Hall, who entered in the cross-country, after breaking a pole speeded up till he overtook the runner ahead and then talked him into lending him one of his sticks!"

It'll Be A Peach

Once again, let us remind you of the big ice carnival here tomorrow (Friday) e'en in the Brock St. rink. It will be a streamlined, gilt-edged lallapalooza—which is a Czech term for pure honey! Cream of the crop of Canadian figure skaters, ice dancers, comedians, et al, will be on view, and doing their fancy stuff on gaily-colored ice. Place was packed a year ago for the Winter Sports Committee carnival here, and no doubt it will be again. An artistic and highly-entertaining program.

Canadian champions and North American winners and runners-up are being brought down from Toronto to out-swan the swan for gracefulness. And it is on no small scale, over two dozen performers coming to Peter's borough. Ice will be oke and the whole setup is a money-back-guarantee cinch to please everyone crowding into the arena to see the brilliant show, no fooling.

Petes Win Title

Fairly burning up the ice with their sustained speed, the Petes won the group championship last night in Belleville. Took the Fliers by a 9-4 count to win the series in three straight—and our congrats to 'em. Proved too good for the Airmen in a sizzling encounter, very fast and exciting, wide-open with lots of rough stuff in the middle chukker. Our second line opened up the throttle and stole all the scoring honors from the first trio. Don Coughlin was main sniper, playing the kind of hockey he should be playing all the time—Don being one of the finest skaters in the city, a fast stepper and shifty with the bent stick. Doc Nichol also sparkled with a heady, classy brand of hockey and Red Creighton again turned on the heat to star. Rest of the gang was almost equally good, with Harding tops in the winners' net. A good showing by a team that is clicking on all cylinders the past week or more.

* * * * * *

Down in Belleville, we learned a few things about the game mixup. This year, as in the past, the schedule meeting is held in the Quinte town, the convener is a Belleville gent, and the Petes are outvoted by the Fliers-Belleville combine. And the big stick is waved over 'em that they must make concessions or the Airmen and Redmen might tie up with the Kingston loop. Now that's what we're told. Well, this year the Petes were informed that the Belleville rink must get two of the three-in-five playoff games, anyway, and that if any team won two straight in the first two playoff tilts, the other squad would get the third game—to be assured of that gate. The Petes' delegation agreed to it, not expecting they'd win the first three playoff games (these arrangements being made some time ago), and they neglected to tell the players, fans or press. Took a chance on the occasion not cropping up. Well, that was their big mistake—it did crop up. Local officers fought bitterly with the Belleville rink, the Fliers and the O.H.A., but were forced then to live up to that early agreement and transfer the third tilt to Belleville ice.

* * * * * *

Were On The Level

Proving they were on the level — though odds were offered in town yesterday that the locals would lay down and force a fourth fray — the Petes won in three straight. And it cost them several hundreds of dollars, but they kept faith with the fans. It was still a tough break on the fans, missing that melee; but we can see some excuse for the puck ossifers here, seeing as they were forced into an agreement they bucked — and seeing the players didn't toss a game for another gate, when they knew they could take the R.C.A.F.-ers anytime. Having learned their lesson — by losing dough and by getting the fans hostile at them yesterday around town—the executive of the club will make no more concessions in this senior "B" grouping. And they assure us they never meant to gyp the paying customers—they gave us a stack of their correspondence with the O.H.A. to prove it, and we have it now if anyone cares to check on the point—and that they won't raise the price of ducats for the next senior "B" series, though Belleville raised their prices for the Fliers-Petes' series. Personally, we think it was more poor judgment on the part of the Petes' officers than deliberate "phenagling," and we will string along with the gang.

* * * * * *

Our young Monarchs did it last p.m. at the Brock, by yanking out a tight one over Cobourg—putting the big Lakeshore lads in the garbage can, whilst putting the Monarchs into group semi-finals 'gainst Bowmanville. It may be a sudden-death game. Locals showed a lot of fight, we're told, and may rub out the boys of Bowman Villa yet to meet Lindsay for the group title. A few dozen folks saw the tussle here last night. But the dashing junior "C" lads aren't worrying about gates, they want to win their group. More on their next game again.

Chiefs Hold G-Men Down To 3-3 Tie While Port Colborne Bows To Goodyears By 7-1

(By the Canadian Press.)

Barely able to squeeze into the Ontario Hockey Association Senior "A" playoffs, St. Cathearines Chiefs may yet prove the club to give the vaunted Toronto Goodyears trouble.

Port Colborne Sailors couldn't stop the momentum of Goodyears in Toronto last night as league semi-finals opened and Goodyears, unbeaten in league competition this season, smothered them under a 7-1 count.

But the Chiefs, in the other semi-final bracket, gave one of their best performances of the winter to hold the second-place finishers, Oshawa, to a 3-3 overtime tie at St. Kitts, sounding a new threat to Goodyears, who seek to retain the league title they won last season.

The Chief would have been away to a lead in the best-of-three round but for a desperate Oshawa rally in the last four minutes of regulation play which brought two goals and knotted the count at 3-3. There was no scoring in the extra session.

Next Tilts Friday.

Second games in each bracket will be played in Port Colborne and Oshawa Friday. Oshawa and St. Kitts will play their third game—made necessary through the tie—in Oshawa Monday. If Ports lost Friday they will be pushed in the discard. If they win, a third game will be played in Toronto Monday.

Teddy Lister, a former Toronto junior with St. Catharines scored all their goals. Just when victory appeared within the Chiefs' grasp, Carl Maundrell and Jerry Cooper counted two goals within a minute for Oshawa.

Two of Lister's goals came on neat combination plays with Boyd and the other on a pass from Alvin (Speedy) Groh, former pro and now playing coach of the Chiefs. Roy Covert was the other Oshawa sniper.

Don Metz dominated the Toronto scoring. He snared two goals and two assists against the Sailors. Johnny O'Flaherty and Punchy Imlach each scored twice and Johnny Inglis made up the Goodyear total.

Lloyd Fitzgerald scored the Ports' goal when Goodyears were penalty-short in the final frame.

Meanwhile, in Senior "B" playdowns last night, Niagara Falls, on their home ice, beat Brantford Red Birds 5-1 in the first of a best-of-five game series. The two meet again in Brantford Saturday.

The teams were dropped into a "B" group of their own because they finished fifth and sixth in the "A" series.

Peterborough Redmen advanced in the "B" playdowns with a 9-4 victory over Trenton Flyers at Belleville. It was the Petes' third straight win over the Flyers and gave them the group title. The Redmen now meet either Kingston or Royal Military College.

Kingston took first place in their group in edging out Royal Military College 2-1 in the final scheduled league game last night. The Cadets and Kingston open a best-of-three series for the group title Monday.

The ultimate winner of the "B" crown will try conclusions with the Northern Ontario senior champion, with the winner to meet the Senior "A" titlist in eastern playdowns.

Canada's Clouter

Rolling along the fistic highways accumulating an impressive record is Maxie Berger, Canadian lightweight champion from Montreal and one of the Dominion's best ring performers. He's been fighting lightweights and welterweights around New York, and when he took a decision from Johnny Lucas recently it was his 16th consecutive triumph.

Italy is spending large sums in seeking new oil fields.

PETES WIN GROUP CHAMPIONSHIP IN THREE STRAIGHT GAMES

Locals Easily Earn Decision In Fast, Wide-Open Tilt To Advance Into O.H.A. Series

Flying through the Trenton Fliers in Belleville last night, the speedy Petes won the third game of the playoff series by a 9-4 count before less than a thousand fans. It was the second straight year that Peterborough defeated the R.C.A.F. gang to win the O.H.A. senior "B" title for the Central Ontario group and advance into provincial playdowns.

In winning the group championship in three straight games, the Buckland boys looked most impressive. Through a group misunderstanding and an O.H.A. order, they were forced to play the third tilt of the series on Belleville ice—and many Peterborough fans figured they'd lay down and force a third game—but the Petes stepped out and played their heads off to cop the contest and, probably, meet Kingston in the playdowns.

It was another swell scrap, with both squads turning on the heat throughout and playing for keeps in an exciting tussle. The fans kept roaring most of the way as they battled bitterly—with a rough second period—when the Petes always looked the better club. They outskated their opponents, passed neatly and checked well to earn the decision handily.

Fast And Clean

Aside from a hard second period, it was a clean game with speed aplenty all through. Some fine hockey was dished up, with the winners looking better al laround. The score was 2-1 for the Petes in the first and 6-3 for them as the second heat ended. They flashed lots of foot and some first-rate combination play, while the checking was close and goal-tending good. Next to their last playoff tilt, last night's fray was one of the best of the year turned in by the Peterborough crew. The fans were evenly divided on the cheering, but there was no money bet against the Petes.

While all the winners looked good in this performance, the locals' second forward line sparkled in a grand showing to steal the thunder from the first string crew. Coughlin and Nichol teamed up in masterful style, the former being in on five counters and Nick figuring in on four. Creighton also turned in a nifty game, while Harding shone in the nets. The Fliers' first line, and Johnston and Cook looked good for the losers.

Petes An Edge

The Petes had an edge in the first period, a fast, exciting stanza. Harding robbed Lecompte early and then Tompkins scored from Weir on a nice play inside defence. Johnston pulled a dangerous rush and then Brackenbury tied up the count with a hot angle shot as he rounded defence. McNeely went off for boarding and he just got back when Tompkins and McNab were gated for roughing it. Harding went good, and Creighton pulled a swell solo rush. Nichol scored shortly after on a passout from Creighton to make it 2-1. It was plenty fast toward the end with the Fliers trying hard to sew it up, but the Petes holding their own on fast rushes.

Coughlin got a penalty for holding to start the second and the Airmen zoomed home often but could not drop a bomb that counted. Gardner and McNeely got the official finger later for roughing it but returned before anything happened. It was up and down for a time, later getting rough as the players began laying on the gad and slashing and hooking every chance they had. Gardner came close on a drive, and Brackenbury was waved away for cross-checking. Coughlin scored in close with a hard shot on Kingdon's pass. Half a minute later, Coughlin got another on Creighton's assist and the Petes dominated the play as the fans yelled. Brackenbury got another trip for slashing and the Petes pressed again, but Legris broke away to score. However, Creighton came right back to score from the blue line as Gibson fanned. Harding robbed Todd and the Petes had most of the play in a hot, rough session. Gardner went off for boarding, and he was followed by Todd for slashing. Johnston went around the net to score a nice one near the finish but the visitors made it 6-3 when Nichols took a pass from Coughlin to tally just before the bell.

Ganging Up

The Fliers began ganging up in the third and had an edge for a time but threatened breakaways by the faster Petes bothered them. Gardner got the air for slashing and they made it hot for Harding till all were back. Coughlin took a pass from Nichol in close to count again and make it pretty safe. McNab made Harding hop to save, as the Airmen kept ganging up hard as the crowd kept yelling at the fast action, though play was clean. Kingdon went off for tripping and again the locals were hard-pressed for a few minutes. Tompkins nearly counted, and then Weir and Brackenbury got the thumb for roughing it. Nichol got Coughlin's pass at the defence and banged the biscuit home nicely. Gardner and Brackenbury were gated for roughing it and Lecompte was thefted by Harding in close. McNeeley went over the boards for tripping and Kingdon slipped through defence nicely to count another, but Johnston scored just before the end on a deflected shot off a local defenceman. Nichol apparently scored on a hot shot but it was not counted seconds before before the last gong.

The teams:

RED HORNER ART COULTER

For the umpteenth time it looks as if the National Hockey League season will wind up with Red Horner, Toronto Maple Leaf defenceman, heading the penalty parade. Not the robust, smashing blue line defender he once was, Red is still capable of holding the fort, both with and without acquiring penalties, but in the latter department has accumulated sufficient time to give him a good lead over Art Coulter, Ranger defenceman, and the league's second worst "bad man."

Stirling Oilers Taken 11-3 By Mic-Macs

(Examiner Correspondence.)

STIRLING, Feb. 16.—The Madoc-Marmora Mic-Macs retained their four-point lead in the Trent Valley Hockey League by outclassing the game Stirling Oilers by a score of 11-3 on Madoc ice Wednesday.

The Stirling crew, working under the handicap of only having two substitutes, fought back gamely and at times were a real threat, but were too weak in every department to withstand the powerful rushes and storms of rubber that were hurled at them by their opponents.

Fox in the Stirling net played a brilliant game despite the number of goals scored against him. Half the counts were realized by sloppy clearing and covering by his weak defence, while he literally robbed the homesters on dozens of fine combination plays that were broken up at the net. Incidentally Fox shared the net-minding honors with Hollingsworth, who played a head's up game in the Madoc net.

For Stirling Fox, Fraser and Morton were outstanding.

Hall, Akey, Alexander and Leonard went best for the homesters, although the team worked well together throughout. Leonard, off the team through illness for several games, made his weight felt by chalking up four of the locals' counts, while Akey got the same number.

Jockeying for play-off position has been eliminated through the ruling that the team finishing the league with the most points has the decision, where a third game in the finals will be played if a third game is necessary. As a result, Madoc and Campbellford are battling it out for the top berth, while Trenton, Tweed and Norwood are fighting hard for third and fourth place.

The teams:

Stirling — Goal, Fox; defence, Jones and Fraser; centre, Morton; wings, Reid and Dalnard; alternates —Butler and Potter.

Mic-Macs—Goal, Hollingsworth; defence, Hall and Hailstone; centre, Leonard; wings, Johnston and Kerr; alternates—Akey, Alexander, Heyworth and O'Neil.

Painful Boils
Bad Blood the Cause

When boils start to break out on different parts of the body it is an evidence that the blood is loaded up with impurities.

Just when you think you are rid of one, another crops up to take its place and prolong your misery.

All the lancing and poulticing you may do will not stop more coming.

Why not give that old, reliable, blood purifying medicine Burdock Blood Bitters a chance to banish the boils? Thousands have used it for this purpose during the past 60 years.

Take B.B.B. and get rid of the bad blood and the boils too.

should form a part of the national flag when one is adopted.

"I know the idea of the prime minister is that when and if a flag is adopted for Canada, and this is my own view also, that the Union Jack shall be part of it," said Mr. Lapointe.

This was in reply to Mr. MacNicol, who suggested Mr. Mackenzie King's speech in the same debate last session indicated he was opposed to the inclusion of the Union Jack. Mr. Lapointe said Mr. MacNicol misinterpreted the prime Minister's words.

"Instead of making for union in Canada," the minister said. "I think this obstinate opposition to a flag makes for disunity. Like all other steps which have been taken in our progress towards nationhood this step must be taken in spite of the opposition of those who think we are giving up our connection with the commonwealth. It is just the contrary.

"The British Empire is based on freedom and I cannot see why Canada should act differently than the other countries in the British commonwealth of nations."

Australia and New Zealand had their own flags and Mr. Lapointe said no one would say those dominions were less loyal or less attached to the Empire for that reason.

Mr. Lapointe believed Canada should remain part of the British commonwealth but "for the sake of common sense" should show it is a distinctive part.

General Backing.

The idea of having a distinctive national flag should appeal to "every red-blooded Canadian," Mr. McIntosh declared. He suggested those opposing the idea were taking the "pathway of fear, despair, defeatism and darkness."

Mr. McIntosh proposed that a committee study and report on the principle of a new flag and select a draft design.

In a historical review of the flag question in Canada since Confederation, Mr. McIntosh said in 1870 the Macdonald government authorized use of the blue design of the Canadian coat of arms for government vessels, and shortly after the red ensign was authorized for use ashore.

These remained Canada's flags until 1904 when "the Minister of Public Works was taken into camp by a civil servant, and the red ensign was replaced by the Union Jack. There was a move of Imperialism in Canada at that time, Mr. McIntosh said.

"The Union Jack is not the flag of Empire but the flag of the Motherland and the colonies." In 1911 the Union Jack was officially made the official flag of Canada, but the red ensign, with Canada's new coat of arms, was authorized for use of Canadian legations and public buildings abroad, leaving Canada with one official flag for use at home and another for use outside the Dominion.

Three Hours Wasted

MacNicol declared he was a "Canadian of the fourth generation, just as red-blooded as anyone and a Britisher by conviction."

With 400,000 unemployed in Canada looking for jobs it was unfortunate that three hours of parliament's time was to be wasted discussing such a question. Mr. MacNicol said Mr. McIntosh had been "howled down" when he spoke in Windsor of his proposal.

"That statement that I was howled down is an absolute falsehood," said Mr. McIntosh.

"If the honorable gentleman was not howled down he should have been howled down," retorted Mr. MacNicol.

If the question was considered important the government should take responsibility for the proposal and not evade its responsibility by leaving the matter to a private member.

The main reason he was opposed to the resolution was because it was unlikely a Canadian flag would contain the Union Jack. The Native Sons of Canada were opposed to the Union Jack forming a part of the national flag.

The Union Jack was flown over Canada House in London during the coronation, and not the red ensign as stated by Mr. McIntosh, Mr. MacNicol said.

"On coronation day only," Mr. McIntosh interjected. "The official flag of Canada on Canada House is the red ensign."

R. S. White (Con. St. Antoine-Westmount) said he approved the resolution and wanted Canada to have a distintive flag "but in the present state of world affairs, I think it is inopportune to proceed with this matter now."

Some Other Flags.

T. L. Church (Con., Toronto-Broadview) said the Union Jack had "always been the flag of Ontario and always will be."

Toronto had the "black flag" of unemployment; the "red flag" dispossessing people of their property, and other flags indicative of disunity and distress.

Canada depended upon the Motherland for all it enjoyed. "We may have equality of status but we have not equality of stature."

Mr. Church suggested the Government take the responsibility of submitting a new flag "and then we will have a real Union Jack election." It was a problem the electorate should solve and not one for Parliament.

Instead of having a separate flag for Canadian legations, Mr. Church declared he would "close up the legations altogether." They were unnecessary and did not help relations with the United Kingdom.

Gordon Graydon, Conservative, Peel, opposed the motion, declaring any move to change the flag should come as a Government measure. Canada should preserve "that one Empire tie" the Union Jack, particularly until after the forthcoming royal visit.

"Let us improve the conditions over which our present flag flies before we attempt to change the flag itself," Mr. Graydon said.

Dr. A. B. Hyndman, Conservative Carleton, opposing the resolution, quoted from a long list of opinions gathered from prominent Canadian citizens who opposed any change that would remove the Union Jack as Canada's emblem. There should be unanimous approval before any change was made.

"This is not a time to throw another controversy into the arena of public affairs," Dr. Hyndman said. The Government and Parliament should be occupied with efforts to deal with pressing economic problems.

If a complete design for a new flag were prescribed and it was satisfactory to him, he would not oppose its immediate adoption, but he was opposed to reference to a committe and the controversy which would result.

Man Bound

Then they forced him to go between two cars and lie down on the floor. Producing rope which they had carried with them, they tied his hands and feet. They forced a piece of dirty cloth into his mouth and tied another rope about his face to keep the gag in place.

Frees Himself.

After they left the garage Mr. Peel thought he heard an automobile starting up, but he was not positive. He struggled with the ropes and in a few minutes had freed his hands. As soon as he was completely untied he went to the telephone on the garage wall and telephoned police, who arrived a few minutes afterwards. The entire incident occupied so little time that his daughter, Ethel Peel, did not suspect anything had happened until he came into the house. She had heard no noise during the time the hold-up was going on.

Mr. Peel is convinced the men knew his habits of coming and going, because they were waiting for him at the back door of the garage. Windows on one side would have afforded an excellent view to persons standing outside, while he took all the money from the till. The thugs did not go near the till after they had searched his pockets, as apparently knew that it was empty. It was empty, too, except for a few coppers.

The garageman said he was not frightened, but had dashed into the house and grabbed up a shotgun. He ran back to the street in search of the thugs. "If I'd found them I'd have filled them full of lead," he said.

He believed it was the second attempt of the thugs to rob him. On the previous night he had just returned to his house when someone knocked several times on the door. He did not answer it, however.

He said that when the two thugs were in the garage the smaller man nearly fell into an inspection well in the darkness as he ordered Mr. Peel to lie down on the floor. "I only wish he had fallen down and broken his neck," he said.

In Wake of Terrorists' Bombs

Debris chokes a section of London's Leicester Square tube station after a mysterious blast. This was one of a series of similar explosions in all sections of England. Police believe all to be the work of Irish Republican sympathizers. Six persons were injured in this explosion.

Bride And Groom Given Shower

(Examiner Correspondence.)

SELWYN, Feb. 16.—One of the happiest events of the season took place on Friday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Evans Blewett when the neighboring community gathered at their home to honor their son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Blewett who were married recently.

The bride and groom were asked to occupy the seat of honor when a short address was read to them by Mrs. Howard Bell, and a prettily decorated basket was carried in and set before them by Misses Roleen Fitzgerald and Idell Northey.

The large number of beautiful and useful gifts were unwrapped by Misses Edna Elliott and Verda Northey while the accompanying cards were read by Miss Isabelle Fitzgerald. The bride and groom both voiced their sincere appreciation to all present. Delicious refreshments were then served by those in charge and the remainder of the evening was spent in card playing and dancing.

NORWOOD

Miss Jean Johnson Honored By League

(Examiner Correspondence.)

NORWOOD, Feb. 16. — At regular league meeting of the United Church it was moved by Mr. Robinson and seconded by Ormond Hogg that Rita Ferguson look after the posters for the lecture. Earl Hambin was named to act in Wilfred Buck's place as head of the citizenship group. It was decided to answer the roll-call next week, with someone's name whom you have asked to come to League, and if possible have them with you.

After the business session a poem "The Christ of the Common Folks," was read by Miss Helen Scott, followed by the Scripture lesson by Miss Rita Ferguson. Miss Lola Starke very ably took the topic—a chapter from the study book entitled "Learning to Live Together."

On behalf of the League Miss Starke presented Jean Johnson with a lovely desk clock, in appreciation of her services, as Jean leaves next week for Toronto to enter the Western Hospital. Mr. Robinson spoke briefly wishing Jean every success.

The meeting closed with the hymn, "Hark, the song of jubilee," followed by the League benediction. Several games were played and home-made candy served.

WHERE TO PLAY

Hockey fans up and down the main street today were still discussing the action of the O.H.A. in ordering the Petes to play their third game at Belleville instead of at home as had been first arranged. When the question of who the next opponent would be was raised, a few were heard to remark that the Peterborough manager might as well arrange the play-off series in the outside centres, instead of having any game at all in this city.

WHERE IS PORT HOPE

Theatre patrons in this city chuckled last night as a new-reel showing radium manufacture in Port Hope was flashed and Lowell Thomas, blithely announced that here in the northland radium is refined. A short time before a large sign was shown which read "Port Hope, where radium is refined." The reel still conveys the idea that Port Hope, which is 28 miles south of Peterborough, is close to the Arctic circle.

GET YOUR MARKERS

J. J. Dorris, secretary of the Chamber of Commerce, reports that so far this year only 1064 markers, both commercial and passenger car, have been purchased at the local office. Last year close to 7,000 were sold during the whole year. Rigid enforcement of the law that 1939 markers must be on all cars driven after March 31st. is indicated in a warning from the Dept. of Highways and all motorists are urged to get their markers early and avoid last minute rushes.

Members of the society, which receives a grant from the government for improvement of the livestock of the neighborhood, are quite satisfied with the results of their efforts instead of struggling along with a small fair.

SECRECY EXPLAINED

Reporters who talked with officials in charge of the convict train which passed through the city a few nights ago, say the officials explained that secrecy shrouded the movement of convicts from one institution to another as a safety measure. They claimed that there might be persons who were seeking revenge on a murderer or other offender and would not hesitate or wreck or dynamite a convict train in hope of getting even with the man they hated. Because of this the officials attempted to maintain secrecy on the transfer.

A MONTH'S ADJOURNMENT

Charged with being found in when police raided a poker game over the Service Cigar Store several weeks ago a local man appeared before Magistrate Langley, K.C., in police court this morning and asked for a month's adjournment. The magistrate looked dubious but Crown Attorney McElderry came to the rescue. "I am not opposing this application," he said. "I understand there has been a lot of sickness in this man's family." And journment was granted until March 15.

Car Breaks Down Players Spend Night On Road

(Examiner Correspondence.)

LAKEFIELD, Feb. 16.—A burned out clutch caused considerable inconvenience to a load of Lakefield hockey players returning from the Norwood-Lakefield high school game as they faced what looked for a while the uncomfortable prospect of spending the night in the open spaces with the weather at 10 below zero.

About four miles out of Norwood, the clutch in the car driven by Rev. G. F. Kelly of Lakefield burned out, and left the car stranded on the King's Highway, No. 7. As grim luck would have it Rev. Mr. Kelly's car was the last to leave the village. He was greatly relieved and pleased when a car load of Indians came along after what seemed an age of waiting, and offered to tow them to Peterborough. At the School house turn toward the hamlet of Indian River, the good samaritans proposed that they would drive up there and temporarily dispose of their passengers, then return to the luckless Lakefield lads and take them into Peterborough.

The proposal seemed entirely agreeable, but the Lakefield folks began to doubt their delivery as they sat for what seemed more than an hour in their car whose heater had ceased to function, February weather was rampaging at 10 below and the only sign of human habitation as far as they could see through the swirling snow was the little red school house at the corner of the road, and it didn't look inviting Spend Night In School.

Finally they were stung into action and movement. Deciding that if the Indians had deserted them they might as well break into the school to spend the night there, or risk the possibility of freezing to death or at least getting pneumonia, they scrambled through drifts to the school building, and surveyed the possibilities of forcing an entry. And at that stage of their early morning experience they heard the sound of an approaching car. Christopher Columbus in 1492 could hardly have been more pleased at the sight of the aboriginal Indians than were these half-frozen Lakefield hockey players and their driver when they gazed once more upon the sturdy descendents of a noble race. For their Indian friends had returned. And incidentally the S.D.—sturdy descendents—got them into Peterborough where they were picked up by friends who had gone down from the village to meet them.

Colds Plentiful Changing Weather

Those active microscopic bodies the common cold and influenza germs have been making some advances in their season long battle with the cod liver vitamins and the other forces of resistance in the human constitution.

A marked increase in the number of colds is attributed to the sudden and some times severe changes in the weather, according to a doctor who spoke of the occurrence of new cases that were generally noticed when winter and spring were at odds.

The general precautions if a cold comes on is to go to bed, keep warm and stay there; drink liquids especially the citric fruit juices, and at no time underestimate a cold, which might develop into pneumonia.

Narrow Elastic Band Around Dog's Neck Causes Painful Wound To Animal

An elastic band slipped over the head of a young wire haired terrier by a child almost caused the death of the animal before it was discovered and treatment given by Dr. Harold Worton yesterday.

The terrier, owned by Len Dorie, Sherbrooke street, attracted the attention of Mrs. Dorie, who examined the dog thoroughly as she was bathing it, and found an open wound extending like a collar around the dog's neck. On examination a small tight elastic band was noticed and removed with a forceps. Bill Welch, well known dog fancier, assisted Worton in doctoring the wound, and after the hair was cut back and the wound exposed it was about three-quarters to an inch wide, and quite deep. The elastic had caught over one ear of the dog.

The animal will recover, as no infection had set in when the injury was discovered.

Dr. Worton said it was the second time he had seen this type of injury, but Welch, who has been breeding and handling dogs for 30 years, said it was the first time he had ever seen anything like it, and expressed amasement at the havoc wrought by the narrow band.

Richard Alford Is Laid To Rest

(Examiner Correspondence.)

LAKEFIELD, Feb. 16 — Richard Hamley Alford, aged 73, of Lakefield, was laid to rest in the Lakefield cemetery Wednesday afternoon. He died here suddenly on Saturday night, after a brief illness.

Born in Soarden, England, on December 12, 1865, the deceased was a son of Richard Alford and Grace Hamley. Mr. Alford's family lived in England until 1869, when they migrated to Canada and took up residence in Lakefield. Mr. Alford received his education at the Lakefield Public School, and on November 4, 1891, he married Dorcas Whatley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Whatley, of Douro township.

Mr. Alford is extremely well-known throughout the Lakefield area, where he was much in demand as an auctioneer over a period of thirty-five years.

Many Lakefield people remember him as proprietor of the restaurant on Regent street, now operated by H. J. Brown, and he was, as well, in the real estate business for a time.

The funeral which was under the auspices of the L.O.L. No. 122, of which deceased was a member, was held from the family residence on William street at 2.30 p.m. Rev. H. R. Howden, pastor of St. John's Anglican church, Lakefield, conducted the service. Pall-bearers were four members of the Orange Lodge. Messrs. H. J. Brown, Stanley Higgins, Arthur Bolton, and Fred Rosborough and two friends, Messrs. Bruce Preston and Charles Bickell.

The late Richard Alford is survived by his widow and six children, including four daughter: Mrs. Percy Lloyd (Eva) of Toronto, Mrs. Robert Mackay (Melissa) of Edmonton, Mrs. Ella Bogue of Peterborough and Mrs. L. DeChene (Rhoda), of Toronto; and two sons, Donald of Rochester and Roland of St. Catharines; four granddaughters. Misses Myla Bogue and Dorcas, Rhoda, and Shirley Lloyd, all of Peterborough, and one grandson. Harry Lloyd of Peterborough, also survive.

Coe Hill Youth Is Meningitis Victim

(Examiner Correspondence.)

COE HILL, Feb. 16. — Spinal meningitis is given as the cause of death in the case of 23-year-old Clayton Peacock, who died in the Red Cross Outpost Hospital at Coe Hill this week after a week's illness. The young man was said to have suffered from a bone infection two years ago from which he never fully recovered, and the more serious disease struck him about ten days ago.

He was given treatment by Dr. O. W. Anderson of Bancroft, who enlisted the aid of the Ontario Department of Public Health, and a specialist was sent to the hospital, but they were unable to check the disease. Spinal meningitis is a comparatively rare disease and one in which the mortality rate is still high despite intensive research work to determine suitable treatment. Success has been attained in treating certain types of the disease, but others still baffle the medical profession. It is several years since any cases have been reported in this section of the province.

Peacock is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Peacock, who occupy a farm in Faraday Township, eight miles north of Coe Hill village. The funeral was held this afternoon from the family residence to Lower Faraday Cemetery. The deceased is survived by his parents and three brothers: George, William and Robert, all at home. Coe Hill is 65 miles northeast of Peterborough city in Hastings County.

The Rambling REPORTERS

HUNGRY OWL CHEATED.

A housewife on Stewart street cheated a hungry owl out of two two hours' work and his dinne the other day. About ten-thirty while washing in the cellar she heard a screeching and squawking outside and went out to see what was up. There in the vines trailing up one side of the verandah was an owl trying to pull a wounded starling out of the creepers. She scared it off but was unable to reach the starling.

About twelve o'clock the woman looked outside and there in the yard was the owl with his prey, dragging it along the groud. Out she dashed and rescued the bird, only to find it dead. The owl flew up on a fence and as soon as his "dinner-snatcher" had gone inside flitted down and began a systematic search of the area, the extent of his hunger being demonstrated by the fact he carefully retraced the path along which the bird had been dragged, three times.—McG.

THE REAL McCOY.

Alf Phillips, the weather recorder, should bring his thermometer to the centre of the Hunter street bridge some morning when old Jack Frost goes on the rampage and give the thermometer a chance to set up some new records, according to Ashburnham residents. One man who breezed homeward across the bridge at 1.30 this morning chuckled when he heard the official temperature overnight was 13 below. "On the Hunter street bridge early this morning it was 25 below, my fingers and ears told me so," remarked the man, and added that crossing the bridge one developed a true appreciation of that word "winter."—McG.

Lynn; District Recording Secretary, Brother James Roddy; District Treasurer, Brother Nathaniel Belch; District Marshal, Brother Hugh Blair; District First Lecturer, Brother Wilfrid Fallis; District Second Lecturer, Brother William Francey.

The County L.O.L. will convene at Garden Hill early in March.

Fire Prevention Week

A call to all citizens of the community to assist in the good work of preventing fires has been issued Fire Chief J. J. Clarke, the request being that every householder take time to clean all stove-pipes, and chimneys, since this is the time of year wehn fires of such origin are most likely to occur.

The Fire Chief points out that labor, dirt, and inconvenience will be considerably lessened if householders attend to this matter now, rather than delay until a fire has occurred, making it necessary to call the fire department, and have the chemical engine put in use.

$25,000 Asked In Damages For Broken Leg

Physicians' and hospital bills totalled more than $1,200 since last July for 10-year-old Ronald Payne, Park Street South, it was revealed in court today as a suit for $25,000 damages and $887.05 expenses, and costs, opened before Mr. Justice Ainslie Greene in a civil action in the Supreme Court of Ontario Assizes. The action was brought by the youngster and his father, Maxwell Payne, against the Allin Ice Company, and arose out of an accident last July, when a block of ice fell on the boy's leg and broke it.

W. J. Arthur Fair appeared for the plaintiff and A. L. Elliott, K.C., for the defendant.

Unable To Walk Well.

Dr. J. M. O'Brien testified as to the boy's injuries. At the present time he cannot walk satisfactorily, he said. On admission to hospital his condition was "very bad," and he suffered from a great deal of pain. He was a difficult patient. His leg was fractured and required repeated operations. His fee was entered in the court records for $750.

Joseph Delpellaro, 11, said he and Harold Payne, 11, had seen the accident. No warning was given the boys to keep away from the Allin Ice Company wagon until just before a block of ice dropped from a carrier's shoulder and struck Ronnie Payne's leg, he said. He testified that Ronnie had approached the wagon just as a Mr. Riel, an ice carrier, was getting a block of ice from the vehicle. It had been Ronnie's intention to get a small piece of ice to eat, and he was not told to stand back. Mr. Riel placed the ice on a sack on his shoulder, stepped back and trod on Ronnie's toes. The ice slipped down his back and Mr. Riel shouted to the youngster to stand back, he said. The ice fell on the boy's leg. Then he quoted Riel as calling to a helper in Gosselin's store on Park Street, in front of which the accident occurred, telling him, "Come on out, Tom, I think the kid's leg is broken."

In cross-examination he said he had not been on the street when the wagon arrived, that he himself had not attempted to take any ice. Mr. Riel did not warn anyone before the accident so far as he knew, except as the piece of ice was falling from his shoulder.

Investigated Accident.

Constable Claire McGilen said he had investigated the accident, that Mr. Riel had pointed out to him a piece of ice weighing about 75 pounds, and had told him it dropped on the boy's leg from his shoulder.

In cross-examination he said that Mr. Riel had told him the boys had been warned several times before the accident to stay away from the ice wagon. According to Mr. Riel he had stepped back from the wagon, had stepped on Ronnie Payne's toes, lost his balance, and dropped the ice down his back on the youngster's leg.

Harold Payne, 11, brother of the injured boy, affirmed Delpellaro's evidence, said in cross-examination that the warning had been given before the carrier stepped back from the wagon, reaffirmed his original statement that the warning had been given after Ronnie's toes had been trod upon, when he was re-examined by Mr. Fair.

Mrs. Max Payne, mother of the injured boy, testified she had heard the youngster screaming after the accident, and had come out of her house. She identified physicians' and hospital bills totalling more than $1,200, none of which were paid.

The plaintiffs case was concluded at noon and court adjourned until 2 o'clock.

Radio License Is Sought For Police

The first step toward acquiring Peterborough's two-way police radio system was taken at a special meeting of the board of police commissioners Wednesday afternoon, when it was decided to have the clerk of the commission, City Clerk S. R. Armstrong, apply to the Department of Transport for an experimental station license and to ask that a special frequency be alloted for local police broadcasting. Afterward application will be made for three commercial licenses, one for each radio car, and the third for the station transmitting unit. The services of Constable W. A. Clark will be utilized in the building of the radio system.

Mounties On Convict Train Take No Chances Shoved Gun Before Agent Stopping Train

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HASTINGS, Feb. 16. — When he flagged the convict train which passed through Birdsall's Station about 7.45 Tuesday night, W. A. Thomas of Birdsall's was confronted with a rifle in the hands of a Mountie, he related here yesterday. "The Mounties in charge of the train were apparently taking no chances that the stop was prearranged for the benefit of the convicts," he said.

"Each Mounties was stationed between the coaches and they had their rifles aimed in my direction. A big fellow walked quickly toward me with his rifle aimed ready to fire if everything wasn't in order," he told the Examiner last night. "What sort of feeling did you experience?" he was asked. "Well—I felt just the same as anyone would if they had a rifle poked in their face in the darkness," he replied. He said that he had a good look at the men inside the armoured coaches and that they seemed to be a "happy lot."

Assault Case Is Adjourned

Contrary to expectations the charges against Lloyd Spinks, 17, of indecently assaulting three local women, were not proceeded with in police court this morning.

When the case was called Magistrate Langley asked if the accused had consulted a lawyer and was told that he had not. Prisoner said that he had tried to get into touch with Mr. Gordon's office. W. B. Gordn was in court and consulted with Spinks, after which he said he would like an adjournment and the crown offered no objection to the delay.

Tomorrow was set as the date of the hearing and Mr. Gordon inquired as to bail.

"The crown opposed the idea yesterday," Magistrate Langley pointed out.

"That was the acting crown attorney," Mr. Gordon replied.

Crown Attorney McElderry said that he too was opposed to any bail being granted and Magistrate Langley added that his own opinion was against bail in a case of that kind.

Puck Fans Here Are Indignant

The following letter was sent to The Examiner today for publication, addressed to the Peterborough Hockey Club:

"As supporters of the seniors throughout the season, we are at a loss to understand why this third game had to be played in Belleville. Is it fair to the fans of this district and to the management of the Brock St. rink for the Peterborough team to pull up stakes and go to another town to play their hockey? Why was the O.H.A. consulted in regards to this third game; was it not agreed that the team in first place had the privilege of the first game at home and then alternating till a winner was declared?

The one question that seems to be on everyone's tongue is, why did the Petes play in Belleville? Surely the fans who have supported the team during the schedule deserved this extra game. There seems to be something smelly about the whole thing, and we feel that some kind of an explanation should be given. Why should we or the rest of the fans support a team that it liable to leave the fans and go somewhere else to play their hockey? We are sure that if the team had refused to go to Belleville, the fans would have stuck with them, but as it is now they sure have caused a lot of hard feelings among their followers. Cold Weather Hits Farmers' Meetings

February's combination of high blasty winds and weather that dropped below zero cut down the attendance at last night's co-operative meetings, but the decline was not serious.

At Warsaw there were 32 men and women, and at Ennismore 26, as compared with from 40 to 50 at the four meetings on Tuesday night. Eph. Brown, secertary, hadn't word this morning from the Emily meeting, but he remarked that the Ennismore and Dummer people who turned out last night evidently were serious about their interest in the movement.

Farmer Charged Cutting Trees On Crown Lands

The question of whether or not Calvin Lee, farmer, of Centre Dummer, is guilty of the charge of having cut fifty Christmas trees on Lot 15, Concession 11 in Dummer township, the property of the Crown, will hinge upon what a survey shows.

Lee was charged with the offence in police court this morning, and after the witnesses on both sides had been heard, Magistrate Langley announced his intention of ordering an adjournment to permit of a proper survey of the boundary line being made in order that the exact line might be shown and the location of the spot where the trees were cut definitely established.

Arthur W. Leman of Tweed, assistant forester of the Ontario Forestry branch, was the only witness for the Crown. He testified that he had called at Lee's place on December 30 and informed the accused that there had been complaints about his cutting trees on crown land, and that Lee had amitted cutting 50 trees. Later, he had shown the witness where the trees had been cut, and this was on Lot 15, concession 11, which witness said was crown property. The trees were spruce and had been cut as Christmas trees.

Stanley Lee, son of the accused, called by the defence, swore that the trees in question had been cut on Lot 16, Concession 10, his father's property, and Charlie Head, a son-in-law, testified that when Leman called upon Lee, the latter did not tell him he had cut trees on Lot 15, Concession 11.

Lee himself denied that he had admitted cutting trees on crown property. He thought they were cut on his own land, and declared that Leman had told him that the lines could not be depended upon.

Case Adjourned.

A charge against Fred Miles, 75-year-old farmer of Clarina, Dummer township of stealing trees from Lots 23 and 24, Concession 11, the property of the Crown, was adjourned by consent until March 6, although Magistrate Langley pointed out that the roads might be in bad shape by that time.

W. B. Gordon appeared for the accused.

A case against Charles Lytle, Norwood, of stealing trees from Lot 19, Concession 11, also Crown property, was also on the docket this morning when adjournment came.

Eleven-Year-Old Boy Fails To Satisfy Judge He Knows Meaning Of Taking Oath

When an 11-year-old youngster appeared as a witness in a civil action being heard before Mr. Justice Ainslie Greene today, His Lordship questioned the boy closely on religious training and knowledge and then declined to have the oath put to him.

"Do you go to church?" the boy, Harold Payne, Park street south, was asked by Mr. Justice Greene.

"No," he replied.

"Do you go to Sunday School?"

"No."

"Do you know anything about taking an oath?"

"I don't know what it means."

"When you tell a lie what happens?"

The boy was silent for several seconds, then said, "You shouldn't."

"Do you know anything about God?"

"No."

"Are you taught anything about God?"

"No."

"I don't think we can swear him. He doesn't know anything about an oath," said His Lordship and the youngster's evidence was taken without it.

The evidence was heard in a $25,000 suit for damages brought by the witness' father, Maxwell Payne, and his brother, Ronald Payne, against the Allin Ice Company.

Born of humble parents, shown LEFT, who died in 1934, after living to see their son become a prince of the church, the Cardinal is said to have made up his mind at the age of 12 to enter the priesthood. McDonald, who has taught the class for the past few years, to say a few words, after which Maitland Forsyth and Marguerite Webster, on behalf of the class, presented her with a lovely leather-bound hymnary, with the following address:

"Dear Mrs. McDonald,—We, the members of our Sunday School Class for the last number of years, wish to express our gratitude to you for your unfailing devotion to this class. Yet withal you have been patient, always holding up to us the Christian ideals you hold so dear. Marmora Y.P.S. Hosts To Four Societies

Mrs. E. C. Richards Will Carry On

(Examiner Correspondence.)

MILLBROOK, Feb. 16. — Mrs. E. C. Richards, vice-president of the local branch of the Women's Institute, took the chair for the February meeting on Saturday, the gathering being in the new Community Waiting Room, through courtesy of the donor, Mr. F. C. Scott.

On motion of Mrs. W. H. Armstrong and Mrs. J. Sloan, it was decided to ask Mrs. Richards to continue as president until the annual meeting in March. The recent death of the president, Mrs. R. J. McKnight was mentioned with deep regret, and a card of thanks for sympathy extended was received from Mr. McKnight; also from Mrs. A. Sloan for fruit sent her in her recent illness.

Requests from two mothers in northern Ontario for clothing were read, and contributions may be left with Mrs. E. C. Richards so, if possible, a parcel may be sent.

A letter of sympathy from Mrs. Harcourt, secretary of the Morrish branch, was read by Mrs. J. W. Hilton, mentioning the loss the local society has sustained in the death of its president, and a committee consisting of Mrs. Melville Ball, and Mrs. Hilton, was appointed to purchase needed clothing for a village resident. Mrs. Delbert Olan had the tickets ready for the wall plaque presented by Mrs. W. C. Thorndyke, and all members are expected to take books for sale, the draw to be made at the euchre which the Institute will hold in the Community Waiting Room on March 17; final arrangements for this event will be made at the March meeting early in the month. Each member will be responsible for one table.

Mrs. Hilton brought the thanks of the Girls' Stitch Craft Club for the practical help which the W.I. had given when they had 'Country Store' to raise funds toward sending two of their members to Guelph this summer, and promising similar aid to the Institute for its undertaking along this line on February 25.

Premium Proposed On Special Cheese

TORONTO, Feb. 16—(CP).—The Dominion government was urged in a resolution adopted by the Ontario agricultural council yesterday to provide premiums ranging from one to three cents a pound on cheese which scored high points for quality.

Howard Weese, delegate from Prince Edward County, told the council it should go further and ask the government to fix a price of 18 cents a pound for No. 1 cheese, but his motion was defeated.

Federal tariffs on automobiles virtually determined the price of motor cars in Canada, Mr. Weese argued. He added: "It is about time the farmers got a little protection like the auto industry gets."

In another resolution, the council asked the Ontario Department of labor to exempt rural municipalities from operations of the Industrial Standards Act. Delegates said farmers could not afford "to pay 80 cents an hour for plumbing work."

E. J. Zavitz, provincial forester, told the council that deforestation of Ontario was threatening the basic water supply for agriculture. He appealed for the council's co-operation in initiating reforestation schemes to prevent soil erosion and conserve water supplies.

More than a score of resolutions are scheduled for discussion today, second day of the council's annual convention.

Markets Good.

V. S. Milburn of Peterborough, Eastern field secretary, said: "The markets are in reasonably good shape. We have gone a long way in acquiring knowledge of how to handle our difficulties and in acquiring loyalty, which can only be built upon knowledge of the problems involved, and a realization in the minds of farmers the must assume the responsibility of lifting themselves from the economic quagmire they have slowly drifted into.

DEATH AT THE MANOR

By M. E. CORNE

CHAPTER THIRTY

IN ONE CORNER of the closet of the second room stood a tall wicker cabinet. It housed so many pairs of shoes I could hardly believe my eyes. Thirty pairs, I counted, and every one of them practically new! Some of them were not even soiled on the bottom! Lucky girl, I thought, and wondered if this were Daphne's room.

Although Mac's instructions had called for the investigation of closets only, I could not resist a hasty glance around the room, and here, over to the dressing table and the writing desk. On the blotter of the latter I discovered a letter.

It really was not a letter, just an unsigned note that lay open for everyone to read. The handwriting was bold and masculine. Shamelessly I read it:

Dear Daphne:

Meet me at ten o'clock at the linden tree. Tonight.

That was all, and so far as I could see there was not even an envelope. Of course there was a chance that it did not mean a thing. The note was not dated; the appointment might have been for an evening past. But I had a hunch that it was nothing of the kind. The paper was creased once through the middle, and the crease looked new and fresh, if you know what I mean. Right then and there I made my decision, wise or foolish. Come ten o'clock and there would be a third party to that date, and it would not be Mac McIntyre! Little Elsie, in person, was going to carry on at the linden tree! Then we would see who had a brain or two in her head!

Well, I had wasted ten minutes playing Sherlock Holmes, so I wrote Daphne's name after my count of the shoes and went on about my business.

The third room's closet proved to be of masculine content. A powerful, though not unpleasant, odor of antiseptic ruched out to greet me when I opened the door. The odor came from a rumpled smock that hung by its collar to the back of the door. Mr. Horace's room, I deduced, feeling very professional indeed! And Mr. Horace owned ten pairs of shoes, neatly polished and neatly arranged on a shelf below his suits and coats.

So far I had not discovered anything sensationally startling. Just shoes and more shoes, and one brief note of undecided importance. What Mac hoped to gain by my search was beyond me.

I hesitated a long time before entering the next apartment. Mac had not said anything about skipping this particular room, and so, with my heart in my mouth, I went inside. The shades were tightly drawn. I did my duty in double time and not until I was safely in the corridor did I permit myself so much as a tremble. Not that I believe in ghosts and such! But nevertheless the atmosphere of Mrs. Horace's bedroom had been a trifle too unearthly to suit my taste.

I had now reached the head of the front stairs leading upward to the third story. I made up my mind to visit the servant's quarters before tackling the remainder of those on the second floor.

The stair, though slightly narrower and darker, was a duplicate of that which ran from the first to the second story. I had reached, I think, the third or fourth step of the lower section when I heard a sound that stopped me. Someone was coming down from above—someone whose shoes squeaked!

An eternity passed before the owner of those shoes came into sight. With my eyes popping from my head I wanted. I do not know what I expected to see—some sort of fire-eating monster, I guess—and I burst into helpless, hysterical laughter as a pair of razor-creased trousers followed by an immaculate gray waistcoat emerged from the gloom.

"Beg pardon, miss!" The monster paused beside me. It had a square, anxious face from which blue eyes peered worriedly into mine.

"Oh! Oh!" I could not stop laughing.

"Is there anything wrong, miss?"

I shook my head. With my hand to my mouth, I stiffled my mirth. I took a deep breath. "Thought of something funny!" I gasped idiotically.

"Indeed, miss?" The blue eyes blinked in sudden alarm; the razor-creased trousers edged distantly from me. Why—the man thought I was silly. I swallowed convulsively. The corners of my mouth switched once or twice before I managed to regain complete control of myself.

I said coquettishly: "I haven't seen you around before."

"No?" He regarded me uncertainly.

"Do you belong in the house?"

"Not exactly, miss. I valet one of the gentlemen guests."

"Do you?" I smiled ravishingly, and sidled closer to him. Strangely, this seemed to increase his fright; he moved as far as possible from me. "Mr. Jeffries, perhaps?"

"Count Orsini, miss."

"Oh, the foreign gentleman!" I was properly impressed. "Fancy valeting royalty!"

For the first time my monster smiled. "Royalty, if you'll excuse me, miss, is not all it's cracked up to be."

"No?" I eyed him reproachfully. "You don't mean it! The count looks ever so generous."

"Humph!" The valet snorted. Evidently I had touched a sore spot. "Generous when it pleases him to be, miss; and that's a fact."

I made sympathetic noises. "I supposed gentlemen treated their valets as ladies treat their maids—you know—give them things, like clothes and shoes—"

"Not until they are all wore out, miss. That's why I was howled over, so to speak, when he handed me a brand-new pair of shoes this morning—"

"Shoes!"

"Yes, miss." He glanced at his feet. "A perfect fit, too. I can't understand it!"

"Well!" It was all I could do to hold my voice to the casual note. "They do squeak a little—I daresay you noticed that?"

"Annoying, miss?"

"Oh, nothing to speak of—but you know how gentlemen are! If your count is one with nerves—"

"He has a nasty temper," the valet admitted. "Likely as not the squeak bothered him — but a bit of grease on the soles will fix that."

"Really? Well, I must be getting on."

"Must you, miss?" He sounded regretful.

I nodded. "I have my work to do."

"Will I see you again, miss?"

"Probably; I'll be around." I smiled my sweetest.

"What's your name, by the way?" I added as an afterthought. "Ludwig, miss. And yours?"

"Elsie."

"My mother's name was Elsie," he said mournfully, and my lips began to twitch again.

"So long, Ludwig," I said, and ran down the stairs. At the landing I glanced backward. Ludwig was staring after me, grinning fatuously. I had made a conquest! Impulsively I blew him a kiss. Poor Ludwig! He would not be loving me long! Not after Mac McIntyre got hold of him!

In the housekeeper's dining room Mac and Phil were in the act of rising from the table. They looked smug and well fed. I hated them! I grabbed a roll from the table and gnawed furiously.

"Easy, girl!" cautioned Mac. "Remember your figure. I scorned to reply; my mouth was too full!

The detective patted his protruding stomach. "Best meal I ever ate, Elsie. Too bad your doctor put you on a diet!"

"There are other things in life besides food!" I retorted complacently. "Shoes, for example!"

"Shoes?" He registered mild astonishment. "Shoes?"

"Yes, shoes. Squeaky shoes!"

"Eh? You found them?"

"Of course," I said airily and bit into another roll. "When I detect, gentlemen, I detect."

"Well!" And the admiration in his voice was so gratifying that I found my ill humor vanishing. "Where are they?" he demanded eagerly.

"At the present moment they repose upon the feet of one Ludwig, valet to Count Orsini."

"Orsini!" he exclaimed, and I knew I had rung the bell. Whatever he had been expecting, it was not this. "You're dead certain?"

"Dead! With my own ears I heard them; with my own eyes I saw them. The count presented them to Ludwig this morning."

"So! And let that be a lesson to you, McIntyre," he said ruefully. "It never pays to form theories in murder cases!"

"I"—I began when Mrs. Greely came into the room.

"The police have returned," she said, and we returned to the library.

It's dashing, too, in sharkskin, striped cotton, monotone linen with embroidered linen jacket, etc., for resort or later wear. You can also use the pattern for separate skirts, blouses or jackets.

DOROTHY DIX

DEAR MISS DIX—I am 22. A man of 40, prominent, successful and rich, has asked me to marry him. I greatly respect and admire him, but I do not love him. My mother, who counts with me more than anything else, is not well and has lost almost everything in the stock market. I have a young sister, talented and beautiful, who would profit by the advantages I could give her if I marry this man. I begin to think that perhaps my love for these two and making them happy would make up to me for not loving my husband. My mother does not force me into anything, but gently points out that I might learn to love this man who, I am sure, would be good to me. If I do marry him, shall I tell him beforehand that I do not care for him as he does for me and that I only feel friendship for him? M. P.

ANSWER:

If you are going to marry for the sole purpose of securing a support for your mother and sister it is certainly nothing but common honesty to put your cards on the table and let the man see the deal you are handing him. That will at least give him a chance to withdraw and drop out of the game.

Not many men would marry if they knew beforehand that their wives were merely taking them on for the benefit of their families and regarded them solely as purveyors of comforts and luxuries for their mothers and fathers, their sisters and brothers. Nor would many men be intrigued by the prospect of having their wives lavish their hard-earned dollars on their people.

Yet many otherwise honorable women feel no compunctions of conscience in marrying men for whom they have no affection at all merely to get their money to spend on their families. They even consider they are doing a noble thing in thus sacrificing themselves for their families. They never give a thought to the poor man who is thus being doubly gypped because he is being defrauded of the love he has a right to expect from his wife and also robbed by her of his money.

Many a man, without ever suspecting it, is sold into slavery on his wedding day to his wife's family. All the money he makes the rest of his life goes to paying father's debts, for mother's operations, for brother's college and sister's pretty clothes.

If a man is willing to pay the price of having his wife's people on his back for the sake of getting her, well and good, but certainly it is only fair that he should have warning when he marries the whole family along with the girl.

Of course, the marriage of convenience has its good points. Many contend that it is sane and safe, and that respect and admiration last longer than hot young passion. Also they point to the fact that in those countries where marriages are based on suitability rather than on feeling that there are fewer divorces than there are with us who marry for love.

Much of which is no doubt true, but the trouble is that the heart is an unruly member and refuses to love where it is its duty to. Every young girl is full of romance and dreams of her Fairy Prince coming by.

She keeps her fingers on her pulse to note its thrills and flutters. Because she knows she should be satisfied with a nice, kind husband, who is good to her and provides for mother and sister, doesn't keep her from feeling that she has missed the best thing in life, nor yearning for romance, nor for being on the lookout for some young chap to come riding down her street.

When he does come, thene there is the mischief to pay all around. Wherefore, I shouldn't advise any young girl to sacrifice herself for the sake of her family, or to marry to get money for them. Let them hustle out and support themselves. Besides, it is a rotten trick to play on the good man who loves you.

* * * * * *

DEAR MISS DIX—Do you think a woman is justified in thrusting responsibilities on a man, which he is decidedly reluctant to accept, in the hope that doing so will urge him on to bigger things by making it necessary for him to earn more money? I am married to a man who is kind, considerate, affectionate, but who lacks ambition. I kept on with my job when we were married, but I am thinking of giving it up and forcing my husband to support me and perhaps a child or two, thinking that if he has to make a greater effort he will be more successful. What do you think of the plan? L. G. H.

ANSWER:

It may work. Necessity may be a goad in the side of your husband that will spur him on to putting forth the best that is in him.

Many an extravagant wife has been the secret of her husband's success because he had to hustle so hard to pay her bills that he made enough money to get rich in spite of them. Doubtless many a man who might be a go-getter sits down and takes it easily when he finds out that he has a thrifty wife who can make one dollar do the work of two, or who is satisfied without things. All of us have observed that when George finds out that Mary can bring in the bacon he is mighty likely to let her do it.

Certainly, if there is anything of manhood at all in a man, the knowledge that his wife and children are dependent upon him and look to him for food and shelter will bring it out. Their appeal rouses everything that is fine and gallant in his soul and gives him a strength and courage that enables him to put up the best fight that is possible to him.

But there are men who are born tired, who are just naturally inert, and nothing on earth will ever galvanize them into action. No wife can supply the backbone they lack or put pep into them, so it is useless to try. There are other men who are just born plodders, who have small ability and who can never achieve anything big because nature didn't build them that way. They are no more to be blamed for not having the money-making talent than they are for not having tenor voices or being able to paint masterpieces.

So be sure that you are not asking the impossible of your husband. Perhaps he is doing the best that is in him, and when a woman has a husband who is good and kind and affectionate she has a lot to be thankful for, even if he isn't in the big-time money. DOROTHY DIX.

What Do Dreams Mean—Will They Come True?

If you dream of disaster to some one you love, will the dream come true?

Probably not. Psychologists tell us that dreams deal only with the past and present — not with the future.

If you dream that curly - headed Tommy has been struck by an automobile, don't torment yourself with the idea that he is in actual danger.

Seeing a harrowing movie or reading about an accident to some other child could easily explain such a nightmare.

Strangely enough, the "silly" dreams that you dismiss with a laugh are often the most important. Through symbolic dreams our unconscious minds warn us of personality flaws we should mend.

To dream of being a child again may mean you shirk responsibility. A top hat may indicate that you stand too much on your dignity.

Learn the fascinating language of dreams. Our 32-page booklet tells how to recognize significant dreams, helps you to nip personality problems in the bud.

The Stars Say . . .

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Friday, February 17.

A fine stimulus to all the forces and faculties is assured on this day, according to the lunar and mutual aspects. There is promise of much high pressure salesmanship, with important projects and constructive plans to be put over with energy and initiative. This will attract the solid support of the influential and financially powerful, but in all be alert to some cunning or tricky involvements. Promotion and preferment also react on the social and domestic life, with personal popularity and prestige.

Those whose birthday it is may find themselves working at high tension, with all the faculties and forces keyed up to splendid creative ability, encouraged by the recognition and ready support of those in high places. And while meritorious projects should thrive, at the same time there are loopholes for subtle or clever entanglements to be guarded against. Social and private affiliations partake of the good fortune and enhanced popularity.

A child born on this day may have much ability, force and initiative, and may attract the recognition and friendly support of those in power and influence. Its creative faculties and high ambitions assure it position in social as well as business circles.

GOODNIGHT STORY

By MAX TRELL

Knarf liked Katybelle very much. But there was one thing she did which he didn't like at all. He hoped she would stop doing it. But she never paid any attention to him.

Do you know what it was that she did? She swept the house. Knarf would have given anything in the world if she would only stop sweeping. But, of course, she wouldn't.

The reason the shadow-boy didn't like her to sweep was because she always stuck the broom right in the corners and—whoosh! swept them clean. Like all shadows, Knarf liked the corners of the rooms in the house best of all. When the children went off to bed, he and his sister Hanid would always find a snug little corner somewhere and stay there. And then the broom would come along.

Knarf and Hanid were sleeping.

The other morning the two shadows were in a corner of the parlor. It was early in the morning and the children were still sleeping. Knarf and Hanid were sleeping, too. But all at once Hanid opened her eyes. She spied Katybelle entering the room with a broom.

Watch Out!

"Knarf!" she called to her brother in a loud whisper. "Watch out! Here comes the broom!"

But Knarf didn't feel like waking up. He just squeezed a little closer to his corner.

Poor Knarf! Along came the broom. Katybelle gave it a push. The next instant the shadow-boy went flying across the floor in a cloud of dust.

"Ah-choo!" he sneezed. Then he picked himself up. He was covered with dust. But he shook himself. Then he went into the next room. He still wanted to sleep.

That Broom Again!

But no sooner did he get himself into a comfortable corner than the broom came after him again.

He went to the playroom. "I'm going to fool that old broom," he said to himself. Do you know what he did? Instead of choosing a corner along the floor, he crept up the wall (as shadows can easily do) and fitted himself into a corner of the ceiling.

But, dear me! Knarf didn't fool the broom. For Katybelle, looking up at the corner where Knarf was dozing, thought she spied a cobweb.

Up went the broom. Down came Knarf.

And that was really the end of his nap!

Woman Printer Still Going Strong On Type After Start 70 Years Ago In Toronto

DETROIT, Feb. 16 — (CP). — A career as a printer started more than 70 years ago in Toronto, is continuing here.

Printing may be a trade or a business to some persons, but to Mrs. Jeannie M. Winder Carkeek, of Detroit, it's a pleasure and a hobby as well as a business; and she should know since she's been setting type for the past 70 years. Now, at 78, she still is setting type in Detroit.

Mrs. Carkeek was the guest of honor at the Women's Advertising Club dinner meeting here.

Mrs. Carkeek is the daughter of the late Rev. Daniel K. Winder, who set up a printing press in Toronto to print his tracts and sermons, and his wife, Mary Jane, set the type.

At the age of five, his daughter took proofs for her mother and three years later began to set type. She never has ceased to be interested in her trade.

Looking Back On This Date

Twenty-eight years ago this evening (Feb. 16, 1911) the Toronto board of trade held a banquet. Few knew that anything sensational was to happen, though it was regarded as certain that as business men the speakers would express their opinions upon the Fielding-Taft reciprocity agreement. Yet the occasion turned out to be a landmark in Canadian politics.

Sir Edmund Walker, then president of the Canadian Bank of Commerce; Mr. J. D. Alan, long a Liberal leader, and Mr. R. S. Gourlay, a business leader, turned the banquet into a great demonstration against reciprocity. Sir Edmund created a great demonstration when he said:

"Although I am a Liberal, I am a Canadian first of all, and I can see that this is much more than a trade question. . . . The question is between British connection and what has been called continentalism'."

Four days later a manifesto, signed by 18 prominent Liberals, denounced the trade agreement and concluded with: "Believing as we do that Canadian nationality is now threatened with amore serious blow than any it has heretofore met with and that all Canadians who place the interests of Canada before any party or section or individuals therein should at this crisis state their views openly and fearlessly we who have hitherto supported the Liberal party in Canada subscribe to this statement."

The Liberals at Ontario were dumbfounded at this unexpected attack. They retorted with the cry that "the 'Big Interests' had combined to defeat the desires of the primary producers who wanted larger markets." But the damage done to the Liberal cause was widespread, and it is no wonder that, in his Memoirs, Sir Robert Borden should have written:

"This pronouncement materially strengthened the Liberal-Conservative cause, both in parliament and throughout the country."

HANOVER, Ont., Feb. 16 — (CP). —Mrs. Henry Meuser of Elmwood in Grey County will celebrate tomorrow her 100th birthday anniversary. She was born in Waterloo Count near Kitchener, and 75 years ago, after her marriage, she drove to Elmwood with a team of horses and wagon with a cow tied behind. They were the first horses in Elmwood, and the first Meuser home there was only a bare shack.

WOMEN'S WORK AND INTERESTS

ADD CHARM FOR SPRING

By ALICE ALDEN

As we go towards spring and spring weddings, negligees seem to take on added charm, freshness and beauty. There's an evening dress look about some of the models that makes them just right for dinner for two in soft candlelight. Bonwit Teller uses silk chiffon in two layers for this exquisite negligee. It comes in such delectable colors as clear pink, turquoise and apricot. Pearls are crossed and re-crossed to fill in the neckline when the negligee is worn at dinner. Fulness is concentrated at the back and front.

Valentine Tea Is Held By W.A. Lakefield Church

(Examiner Correspondence.)

LAKEFIELD, Feb. 16—A successful event of St. Valentine's day was the annual Valentine tea and sale of work, held by the Women's Auxiliary of St. John's Anglican church, in the Parish Hall, Lakefield, on Tuesday afternoon.

The hall was nicely decorated with Valentines, and bouquets of red and white, were placed on tables, where fancy work, home cooking, and candy were displayed. A red candle burned on each tea table and the warmth of the glow from these tables was reflected in the crimson hangings in the hall.

Mrs. B. Q. Dench and Mrs. Sanderson, were in charge of the tea tables, with Mesdames Ketchum, Armstrong and Touchburn assisting. Mrs. W. Chappell and Mrs. J. Earnshaw were responsible for the candy table; Mrs. H. Vannamaker and Mrs. Kendall for the home cooking; Mrs. Waldon and Miss Watson for the fancy work and Mrs. Hill for the fish-pond.

The sale was well attended and the receipts were good.

Mrs. (Rev.) H. R. Howden and Mrs. S. E. White, welcomed the guests and everyone present spent an enjoyable afternoon.

Doubtless the wornout method of using up leftover mashed potatoes in potato cakes needs to be shelved. We give you these two delightful variations to take their place.

Potato Hot Cakes

To one cup mashed potatoes add half teaspoon salt, 4 tablespoons butter and 1 well beaten egg. Sift 1 cup flour with 2½ teaspoons baking powder, and mix lightly but thoroughly with the potato, then add sufficient milk to handle it. Turn out on floured board and put into a sheet, and cut in rounds with floured cutter and bake in hot oven of 450 deg. Fahr. until nicely risen and browned. Split and serve with buttery and honey or jam.

Potato Lemon Pie

Heat through 1 cup mashed potatoes with 1 tablespoon butter, ¼ teaspoon cinnamon and 1 teaspoon salt. Beat 2 eggs well, add to half cup rich milk and half cup sugar. Stir till well dissolved, add the potato mixture with the juice and grated rind of half a lemon. Line a square glass baking dish (or pie plate) with rich plain pastry and pour in the mixture and bake at 400 deg. Fahr. standing pie on bottom shelf to bake crust quickly and prevent it soaking. This pie could of course have a meringue, by holding out the whites and adding an extra yolk to the filling. Very delicious—and preferred by many to regular lemon pie.

Home and School Association News

KING GEORGE SCHOOL.

At the Founder's Day meeting held by King George Home and School Association on Tuesday evening, fitting tribute was made to the late Mrs. A. C. Courtice of Toronto, founder of Home and School organizations, by Mrs. T. L. Ashton. Tracing the origin of the movement, she explained the inception of Home and School in an interesting manner stressing the need of more study by the parents of this work.

A candle-lighting ceremony was held in memory of Mrs. Courtice, the original founder, and in honor of the International Home and School Conucil of Great Britain, with Ishbell MacDonald, now Mrs. N. Ridgley, as president, and the Provincial Home and School Council, with Mr. L. A. de Wolfe of Nova Scotia, as president.

The minutes of the first meeting of King George Home and School, held May 4, 1920, were read, and were of great interest to the present members. Tribute was paid to Mrs. S. Couper ,the first president, and those that followed her, and to Mrs. W. R. Morris and the late Mrs. Medd, who organized the association.

The Home and School colors were used to decorate the tea table, which was centred by a large birthday cake topped with 19 candles, which were lighted by past presidents and officers. Mrs. Ada Craig, Mrs. George Groombridge, and Mrs. T. Hendry. The cake was cut by a past officer, Mrs. J. Burgess.

The president, Mrs. M. J. Swanston, occupied the chair ,and the meeting opened by repeating "The School Creed," followed by The Lord's Prayer. It was decided to have open school and spring tea on March 16, and Father's Night on April 4. The banner for the month went to Miss P. Moore's room for the largest attendance of parents.

The program included two lovely piano solos by Mrs. George Nichol, Mrs. E. Wand presented an interesting and instructive talk on her trip to England last summer. She made special mention of her visit to City Temple Church, London, of which Rev. Leslie D. Weatherhead is the head. The meeting closed with "God Save the King," and tea was served by Mrs. M. Cullen and her committee.

Drowsiness May Indicate Poison in System

Sleepiness is a normal and healthy condition when it occurs at the usual bedtime and when not extreme and overpowering.

Some persons in perfect health and excellent sleepers hardly know the meaning of drowsiness; they are active mentally and physically until they are in bed; then sleep comes at once, and when it leaves them in the morning they are again in full mental awakeness.

There are less fortunate persons who never have a complete and satisfactory night's rest who are yet almost constantly droway; they are always nodding, but when the head touches the pillow sleep recedes, and the night is a succession of

Hat Styles With Quill Trimming Giving Trouble to Theatre Goers

Present day theatre goers are hoping managers will revert to the custom in vogue a quarter of a century ago when a request for women to remove their hats while watching the picture, was flashed on the screen. At the time millinery creations had reached a point in grandeur and size that perhaps established an all time record, but advent of the quill trimming this year is causing almost as much inconvenience to theatre patrons.

Last night in the Regent, when a packed house enjoyed one of the finest pictures shown here for some time, "You Can't Take It With You," several women were wearing hats, which, although small in keping with the style, had feathers set at rakish angles and some vertical, which interfered with the view of the screen. One man said that a girl sat five rows in front of him and the quill in her hat split the screen neatly in the middle.

Apparently some of these dagger like feathers may be easily removed from the hat, the manufacturer evidently remembering that they would be crushed when the wearer sat in a car with a low roof. Others, however, are permanently located and the woman would have to remove her hat to satisfy the show patrons sitting behind her.

Another theatre goer remarked last evening that theatre managers are lax in not playing the National Anthem at the start and finish of a performance and this man, in giving his opinion, said it didn't strike him as being just the proper thing. He recalled that years ago, it was definitely a breach of national ethics for such a condition to exist.

We Noticed

....Now that spring is but one short month away, and newspapers and magazines are filled with fashion preview news, fascinating pictures of new ideas in hats—designers never run out of ideas, do they? — and feminine, exciting styles in suits, frocks, evening dresses, etc., it is interesting to note the shades and materials that top-notch the coming season's style ladder.

✧ ✧ ✧

....There is more use of color and white, with less black, than formerly. Henna gamut is important and there is a new green, called "navy," which is very dark. Grey gamuts are important, and flower shades such as pink, mimosa, lilac are used with black and navy.

✧ ✧ ✧

....In fabrics, checks, plaids, dots, and striped woollens are shown. Faille, taffetas and satins are important in silks. Patterned silks of rayons are striped or checked. Much use of silk in suits and coats is noticed, and cotton and linen, especially in embroidered blouses for spring, are important.

Mission Work In Canada Described

Mrs. W. Rose and Miss Jean Rose were guest hostesses to the members of the Jean Wagar Mission Circle for their February meeting at their home on Morrow street when twenty-six girls met for study.

A sing-song of favourite hymns formed a fitting prelude to the splendid program which followed.

A brief devotional service opened the meeting with hymn, prayer and Scripture lesson read by Doreen Elliott, all based upon the theme of the lost sheep.

With Effie Rowe, the president, presiding, the program was carried out with precision and every number enjoyed.

The Study Book, "The church reaches out" was introduced in a few words, suplemented by a very interesting map and poster prepared by the leader, Zetta Wood. As the chapter under study was lengthy the several parts were taken by seven of the girls.

The church in Canada reaches out first to heal, synopsized by Anne Deyell, who told of the twenty-four mission hospitals.

Second, to educate, taken by Jean Rose, giving the work done by the forty Indian day schools and twelve residential schools.

The third, to serve through eleven marine mission boats was the interesting story by Dorothy Drysdale, while the fourth, to train in our eighteen school homes, was given by Vera Leggitt.

May Rosborough had the next topic, 'To interpret,' by means of six foreign language papers, while Nancy Pooley's subject was 'to relieve.' by national relief in western Canada.

The concluding paper on 'to enlist,' dealt with the work done by ministers and missionaries and was read by Gladys Langton.

Christian Stewardship was presented in a fine resume by Mrs. H. T. Thompson's address at the Presbyterial by Zetta Wood. Further echoes of the Presbyterial were brought in fine reports by the delgates, Mrs. Rosborough and Mrs. Rowe, assisted by Jean Hammond and Connie Wagar.

The announcement was made of the World's Day of Prayer for Friday, Feb. 24th in St. James' United church, and the Circle planned to attend in a body.

Mrs. A. Wilson invited the girls to hold their March meeting at her home, 243 Westcott street.

With Mrs. E. Kitney, Mrs. Rosborough and Zetta Wood as social committee, delicious refreshments were served and the social hour enjoyed.

A sincere vote of thanks to Mrs. Rose, Jean Rose for hospitality; the entertaining committee and to all who assisted in making the meeting a success was moved by Jessie Martin and endorsed by all.

Dr. R. W. Frank Outlines Economic System

Dr. R. W. Frank gave an outline of the present economic system Wednesday evening in an address before members of the Business and Professional Women's Club, and prefaced his remarks by urging the women of today to "stand up for their rights and exercise the privileges given them by the franchise."

Dr. Frank explained briefly the banking system from the early ages, tracing its development down through the years. He pointed out the effors of the present monetary system as he saw them, and discussed ways and means of correcting them. He advised the members to study the monetary system seriously, and suggested several informative books, including "Banker's Conspiracy," and Norman Angel's "Book on Finance."

The speaker was introduced by Miss Myra Baird, who is in charge of this season's current events group, than the one "Live and Let Live." Prayer followed by Mrs. McLean.

New Canadian's Viewpoint Is Discussed

The great importance of understanding the viewpoint of the new Canadian was emphasized at Tuesday's meeting of the George Street W.M.S. by Miss E. McKay, who reviewed the fourth chapter of the study book, "The World in Canada," a chapter dealing with the problem of learning to live in harmony with the newcomer to Canada.

Many of the people who have come to this land have brought with them old land prejudices, jealousies and hatreds, some of which have their roots back in the centuries, Miss McKay said. They are not easily dislodged. We must be patient as we try to harmonize the relations of Poles, Ukranians, Russians, Czechoslovaks and Germans. We must be as patient with the antagonisms between this and that group of Europeans as we have often had to be in the face of differences between English and Scottish folk, to say nothing of those between English and Irish.

Mrs. A. I. Brown presided at the meeting, which was held in the board room of the church. Reports of the committees in connection with the recent Presbyterial meeting were given. The correspondence secretary reported five letters written to the bereaved, and Mrs. J. W. Hales, reporting for the sick and visiting committee, stated that eighty calls had been made. Mrs. H. Girven reported eighteen calls made on the hospital, and fourteen on strangers. It was decided, instead of holding a tea this year for the expense fund, to have a birthday box at each meeting for a special contribution to be made on the birthday of the different members. Mrs. A. I. Brown and Mrs. W. H. Morton were appointed to complete arrangements.

The devotional period was conducted by Mrs. E. Wand for Group E. Mrs. F. Merrell read the Bible lesson from the 10th chapter of Luke, calling attention to the motto "Live and Help Live,' 'a worthier one

Mrs. Wand called attention to the fact that February is the month that the W.C.T.U. remembers especially the life and work of their founder, Miss Frances Willard, and asked the W.M.S. members to attend the prayer meeting to be held at the home of Mrs. J. H. Rowe, Bethune street, on Friday of this week.

Announcements were made of the World Day of Prayer, to be observed in St. James' Church on February 24, and of a lecture to be given in George Street Sunday School hall on Trinidad, with slides by Mrs. W. H. Morton, on Wednesday evening, February 22. A collection will be taken from Group E of the W.M.S. The group was dismissed by the benediction.

Thirty Tables I.O.D.E. Bridge

The 57th Regiment Chapter, I.O. D. E. Bridge, held Wednesday afternoon in the Armouries, was an interesting social event. Guests were received by Mrs. R. E. Clark, regent o the Chapter, and by Mrs. V. Tully, tea convener.

Thirty tables of bridge were in play during the afternoon, and prizes were won by Mrs. E. T. Lush, Mrs. L. Stenson, Mrs. Pulkinghorn, Mrs. J. S. Fanning, Mrs. Bearne, and Mrs. W. Davern.

A crystal bowl filled with red tulips and narcissus centred the tea table, which was laid with a mosaic linen cover, and lit with red candles in silver holders. Valentine colors and motifs decorated the rooms. Tea was poured by Mrs. W. E. Conway, Mrs. T. W. H. Young, Mrs. W. Howden, Mrs. C. E. Newman. Tea arrangements were in charge of Mrs. D. Loomis and Mrs. J. S. Fanning, assisted by Mrs. G. H. Cutmore, Mrs. J. Duncan, Mrs. F. Haggart, Mrs. F. J. Frape, Mrs. E. W. Boyer, Mrs. L. Groombridge, Mrs. R. C. WOMEN'S WORK AND INTERESTS

Belgian Cooks Offer Their Delicious Dishes

(By Mary Moore)

The national dishes of Belgium are influenced by French and Dutch cookery, but there are some that are entirely hers and that many who have lived or travelled in Europe will recognize the "Hochepot" and "Carbonnades."

Hochepot (Hotchpotch)

Three-quarters pound each brisket of beef, shoulder or breast of mutton, shoulder of veal, pigs' feet and one or two pigs' tails, 1 small cabbage, ¼ lb. carrots, 2 leeks, 1 small turnip, 2 stalks of celery, 6 onions, a small bunch of mixed herbs (parsley, basil, bay or sage), 6 chipolata sausages (I suppose weiners could be used in place of these), salt and pepper. Prepare all the meat and put in large baking dish (a small roasting pan would do) cover with cold water, bring slowly to boiling point and skim. Add the vegtables which have been sliced or cubed, and the cabbage cut in quarters. Season with salt and pepper, add the herbs, cover and simmer slowly 3 hours. Add the sausages and simmer ½ hour longer. When ready to serve lift out the meat to hot platter, surround with the vegetables to make an attractive border, and pour a little of the stock over all. Serve the stock in the soup tureen and serve as a first course.

Les Carbonnades Flamandes (Flemish Carbonades)

This dish is characterized by the beer that is added to the stock—do not dismiss it without trying for the gravy is so good that plain boiled potatoes invariably accompany the dish for the express purpose of "mopping up" the sauce.

Two and one-half pounds of boned neck meat or flank steak from beef, ¼ lb. bacon, 1 lb. shredded onions, 1 clove garlic, a bouquet of herbs (see above recipe), 2 teaspoons sugar, salt, pepper, flour, butter or lard, vinegar, 1 bottle of beer.

Cut the meat into two-inch lengths and about 1 inch thick. Season with salt and pepper and brown in about ½ cup lard or butter. Add the bacon cut in small cubes and brown them both. When seared remove the meat and pour out most of the melted fat leaving about 2 tablespoons in the pan. Stir in 2 tablespoons flour to make a light brown "roux." Then gradually pour in the bottle of beer stirring until it thickens. Saute the onions in the poured off fat. Put all the ingredients in a large casserole, adding alternately layers of meat and onions and flavorings and cover with the gravy, and simmer very gently in the oven for 2½ to 3 hours It may be necessary to ad da little water from time to time—as the meat should be kept covered with liquid Just before serving about 2 tablespoons vinegar is added, and it is either served in the casserole in which it is baked if it is presentable—or from a deep serving dish—something like a small soup tureen

I have tasted this delicious dish and recommend it highly even though it is not strictly "teetotal."

One of our readers is a Belgian lady who kindly told me her method of serving asparagus years ago—and now I find it quite commonly done in Belgium.

Asperges Oeuf Mollet (Asparagus with Boiled Egg)

Boil stalks of asparagus just long enough to make it tender—remove it from the water before it can turn yellow and drain and place in hot dish. For each person to be served boil a 5-minute egg, chill 1 minute in cold water and carefully peel it. The white should be set, but the yolk should be "runny." Each diner crushes his egg with his fork on his plate beside the asparagus, adds salt and pepper and melted butter and chopped parsley to complete his asparagus sauce. This little ritual is quite interesting and is delicious with the asparagus. It comprises a complete course, and is particularly suitable for lunch or supper.

Gaufres a la Flamande (Flemish Waffles)

Two cups flour, 4 whole eggs, ¼ pint cream, 2 tablespoons butter, ¼ glass brandy, about ¼ oz. yeast, pinch of salt, pinch of sugar.

Put ½ cup flour in bowl and mix with the yeast which has been dissolved in a very small amount of warm water. Work well and set to rise. Then work in the rest of the flour, with the salt and sugar, the eggs, slightly beaten, and the cream, which should have been boiled, to which butter has been added. Work well and let stand for 2½ hours in cool oven. The batter should be sufficiently liquid to spread itself over the well greased waffle iron. When evenly browned sprinkle with powdered sugar and serve very hot.

Next week we will give you Ukrainian recipes.

Miss Greta Giles Reviews Current Books

Speaking at a banquet of the '38 Club in the Y.W.C.A. Green Room Wednesday evening, Miss Greta Giles gave a brief review of current books popular with the reading public. She referred particularly to "With Malice Toward Some," written by Margaret Halsey, the wife of a young Ph.D. who went to England on an exchange professorship. While her husband taught, the author saw life as it was being lived in a small English village, and her observations would certainly lead the reader to believe that she had gone to England with a prejudice.

The keynote to the reason for her disappointment, Miss Giles said, is probably to be found in a remark of her own in which she admitted her lack of imagination, a lack which has colored the whole atmosphere of the book. Miss Giles also read several humorous extracts from this book, and from the "Education of Hyman" by Leonard Q. Ross. Miss Mary Wallace, club president, presented the guest speaker.

The tables were attractive with vases of red tulips, Valentine motifs, and lighted red tapers. Two delightful solos were given by Miss Margaret Wolstenholme, and songs were led by Miss Helen Wootten, with Miss Frances Wells at the piano. Banquet arrangements were convened by Miss May Wilson. Miss D. Ricard will speak on Household Science at the next meeting of the '38 Club on March 1; on March 29 Mr. J. Smith will discuss flower arrangement; a swimming party is to be held in April, and on the 10th of May a lecture on Household Science will be given by Miss Olga Johnston. On May 31 the closing picnic is to be held.

Among those present were the Misses L. Brownscombe, Greta Giles, Mary Wallace, Helen Nixon, Bertha Inch, Frances Wells, Margaret Wolstenholme, Margaret Johnston, May Wilson, Bertha Pammett, Marjorie Delaney, Peg. Russell, Jean Walters, Agnes Purdy, Ida Stanbury, Carolyn Beavis, Beryl Obeyne, Grace Sargent, Doris Swain, Marion Owens, Leona McMillan, Jerry Lasher, Meta Hart, Helen McFadden.

Making Canada Christian Is Aim of W.M.S.

"Making Canada Christian" is the laudable aim of the Woman's Missionary Society for 1939.

To further promote this spirit the February theme for Auxiliaries is "Thou shalt love thy neighbor," and the program was carried out around this text yesterday by St. James' Auxiliary, with a good representative membership in attendance.

For the opening devotional sessions the president, Mrs. W. Rose, presided, and after welcoming her members and visitors, led in silent prayer for our missionaries, and especially our adopted missionaries in Peace River district, all joining in the Lord's prayer. After the routine business, the "groups" for the year were considered. With a leader for each month, and the members divided among them, each leader being asked to get in touch with members of her own special group and to arrange for their donation to the supply department by the close of the first quarter.

The Study class, under the direction of Mrs. A. Davis and Mrs. McAdams, will meet upon invitation of interested members, at their homes and the six chapters covered, three at afternoon meetings and three in the evening, thus giving all members an opportunity to take part.

The World's Day of Prayer was announced for Friday afternoon and evening, Feb. 24th, in St. James' United church.

The reports from departments were given by the secretary and treasurer, while Mrs. Craik presented Christian Stewardship and Finance in a well prepared paper, with a strong appeal for systematic giving. Mrs. A. Davis reported for Strangers' secretary, Mrs. A. Cripps for Supply committee, Mrs. B. Pitchford for Associate Helpers. Mrs. E. L. Woodley spoke of the great need for temperance work, especially along an educational line for winning the youth of our country.

Mrs. W. K. Sloane and Mrs. G. Rowe recorded their work as missionary monthly and literature secretaries respectively, while Mrs. Breadman reported the activities of her Baby Band work.

An invitation was extended for new members and for fees to be gathered in.

After the roll call the chair was taken by Mrs. G. Harris, who opened her part of the program with a "call to worship." The Scripture carrying out the theme was chosen from St. Luke's Gospel, Mrs. W. Fell reading the significant lesson of the 'Good Samaritan,' which answered the query, 'Who is my neighbor?' Mrs. A. W. Clarke offeroing the prayer.

A reading on work being done in Japan, especially in behalf of children in schools and kindergartens was read by Mrs. Sloane and a beautiful sacred solo, 'Every One Should Know," contributed by Mrs. George Wallace.

That the recent Presbyterial meeting was a success, especially in a spiritual sense, was proved by the acid test of the many reports being brought back from it by delegates, each giving the gist of the meetings as they appealed to her own particular self.

Mrs. R. B. English reported for St. James' Auxiliary and gave a clear and concise resume of the day's work, while Mrs. E. Beavis, in her interesting story, gave the details of the splendid address by Miss Coults, the missionary guest of the Presbyterial and of the evening's musical program.

A hymn, "Fight the Good Fight," was sung by request of an absent member, Mrs. P. Solitt, who, with her request sent a generous donation to her Auxiliary.

This very successful and inspiring meeting was concluded with earnest prayer by Mrs. W. H. Buckler.

County Farmers Plan To Form Organization

A final reminder to Peterborough County farmers of the meeting in the Court House Saturday afternoon at 1.30 o'clock, at which it is proposed to organize a branch of the Chamber of Agriculture, recommends mention of a similar movement begun in Essex County last Monday.

The objectives of these two groups, now in process of formation, are identical,—to bring together the members of specialized associations into one body that would have a collective vote in all rural problems. And it is notable that their outcropping at this time has been spontaneous in sections so far apart as Peterborough and Essex.

Twelve farmers met in the town of Essex the members of the county's agricultural committee. They represented the Milk Producers' Association; the Tomato Growers; the Peach Growers; the Ontario Corn Growers' Association; and the Ontario Burley Tobacco Marketing Association.

Other organizations that are expected to join the Essex Chamber include the Potato Growers, Poultry Producers, Hog Producers, Sugar Beet Grower.., Vegetable Growers, Onion Growers, Apple Growers, Horse Breeders, Seed and Crop Improvement Association, Bee Keepers Association, Women's Institute, and so on; altogether more than sixty separate associations that are now plowing lone furrows.

Peterborough's Progress

Apparently the idea germinated in Essex among progressive farmers who, realizing the need of a union of all rural organization, have brought their suggestion to the agricultural committee of the county council. In Peterborough, on the other hand, the same idea has sprang up from the county council, elected representatives of the farming community, and is reaching back to the homes through the present effort of the agricultural committee of which Reeve James Gifford of Ennismore is chairman.

Other counties in Ontario are afoot in the same direction, a fact that should be highly encouraging to the farmers who have already decided to attend Saturday afternoon's meeting. It is a new challenge to farm thought and action, proposing co-ordination of all the established groups into a central body eventually to affiliate with the Ontario and Dominion Chambers of Commerce. Orangization of farm groups that have not yet come into being is another possible development.

Preparations Complete

Peterborough county council's agricultural committee have met several times during the last week outlining a procedure for Saturday afternoon. The Essex farmers are going through the same stage of getting together. They have to tie up the tag ends of their project for presentation to their county council who are going to meet in a special session. Peterborough has already done that, and its county council has already given the proposal its strongest approval in the hope that the farmers as a body will line up in this new effort to make agriculture articulate where its voice has a right to expect a hearing.

"The Court House should be packed," one of the members of the committee said today. "In fact we are worrying about the present Court completing its work before Saturday. At any rate we don't expect it to sit that afternoon. However, we still have the county council chamber to fall back on, but it isn't spacious enough. We are keen about making a sound beginning Saturday. We are not promising a whole lot of things right at the start, but we do need the decision of our county farmers that they are going to line up with one another, make the organization their own, and get somewhere.

We heard Mr. Mayberry at the Holstein Breeders' convention dinner, and we have had various other meetings during recent weeks. The United Farmers have been doing good work, and staying with it, so the ground has been prepared to a considerable extent. We want it known that there is no thought of rivalry with the United Farmers' Club. All we are out for is to get the earnest co-operation of farmers in a body that is on the way to becoming a national institution.

Are our swine growers organized? And what about our cream producers? These are only two questions which indicate how a central body can be of help to the industry as a whole."

Of One Thought

Here's a quotation from the report of the Essex meeting. It was from a speech made by Roy O'Neil of Sandwich South, director of the Burley tobacco men. Substitute for his name that of any one of a score of Peterborough farmers who could be readily mentioned, and note the familiar ring to its sentiment, as if it had been uttered somewhere in this county.

"During the past eight years," said Mr. O'Neill, "a new word depression has been coined; farmers have done very little towards bettering conditions, and the time has come to ask what are we going to do about it.

That we have been drifting along for years is no question at all. We have been divided in our fight for better marketing conditions and more purchasing power for the farmer by party politics, and in the past we have been leaning on them for help, but we certainly have been getting nowhere.

In my opinion we need to appear with some unity when we have a case to present to the government. Until we get together and embrace every phase and line of agricultural products grown in this county we are falling short of our goal."

All Mr. O'Neil said, and the statements of those who followed him, were echoes of similar declarations made to Peterborough farmers and by Peterborough farmers during the last six weeks. The one caution that has been repeatedly expressed here of late is along the thought in Mr. O'Neil's reference to politics. Farmers have got to get together and state their case and their needs to the government, but party politics must be left out of the organization. Experience has surely taught that lesson beyond need of further mention, it has been said, and if they can't act unitedly as farmers and not clashingly as Grits and Tories and so on then the case is hopeless.

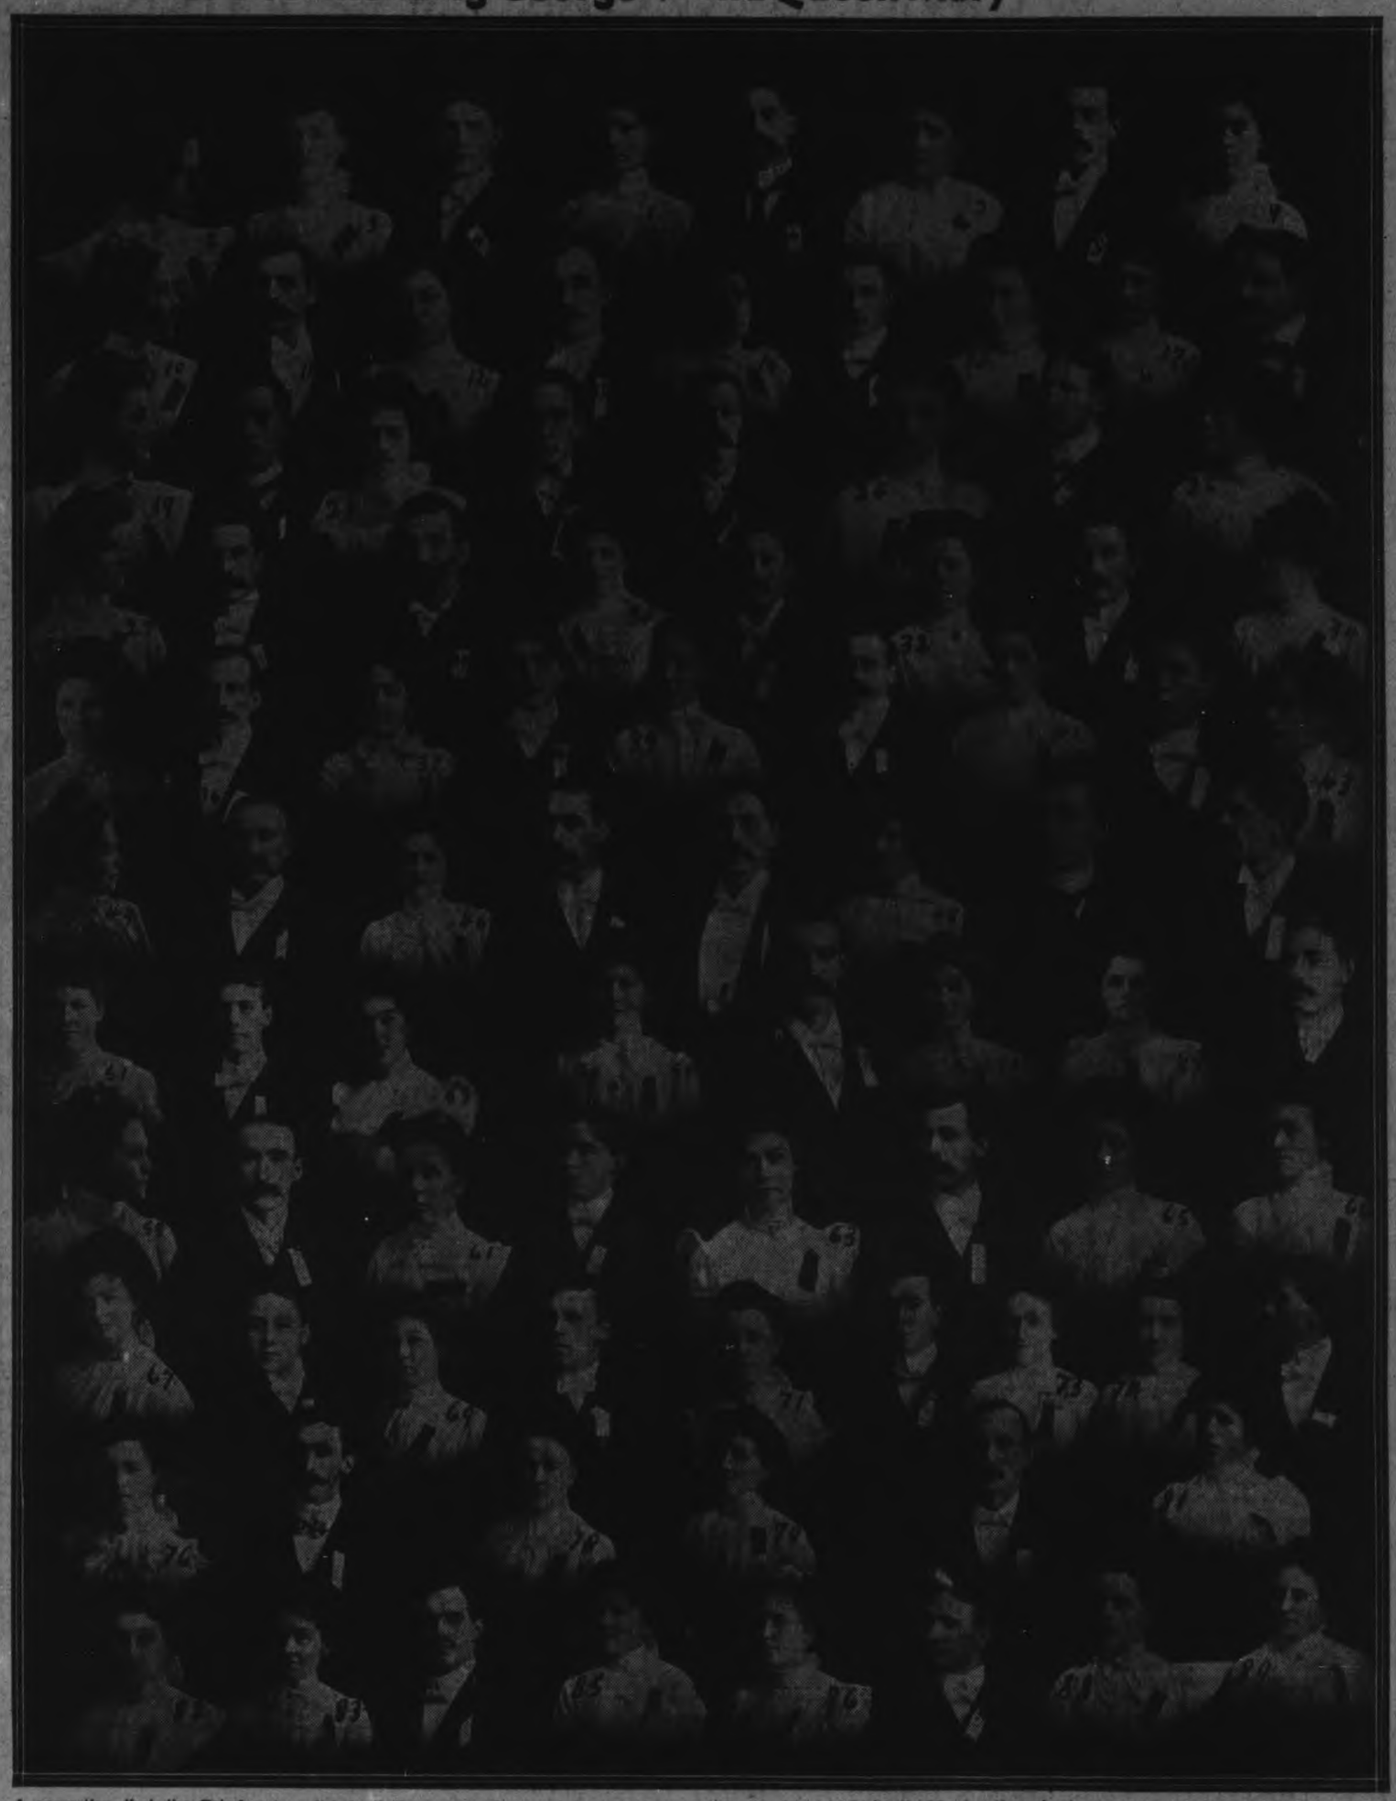
Peterborough Choir Which Sang Before Duke and Duchess Of Kent Who Later Became King George V and Queen Mary



A suggestion that the Peterborough Male Voice choir should travel to Toronto to sing before King George and Queen Elizabeth when they make their appearance in the Queen City next summer, was voiced today by George W. Mulligan, 804 George street.

Mr. Mulligan's plan sprang from the memories he has of a choir of ninety voices that went from this city to Toronto to sing before King George V, when he was Duke of Cornwall and York, in the year 1901. That was a glorious time, Mr. Mulligan recalled, and Peterborough won honor through her singers. Mr. Mulligan was conductor of that choir.

The Peterborough Male Voice choir might well represent the city, would do it only honor, Mr. Mulligan believed. He suggested that the funds of the city council might be tapped to cover some of the expenses at least.

In Mr. Mulligan's possession is a picture that undoubtedly many people will remember. It is of that choir of years ago and below it are listed all the names of members, the ink now fading so that it is difficult to read some of them.

It took Walter Stocker, who was a member of the choir, to identify the choir of thirty-seven years ago. But even Walter could not recall some of the ninety members, did not know what had become of others. His remarkable memory did a far better job, however, than would have been possible for most men.

The members were Miss M. Bullen, now Mrs. Herb McCannan; Miss A. Tucker, whereabouts unknown; Jimmy Bell, whereabouts unknown; Miss Daisy Yenny, now Mrs. C. Turner; John Miller, deceased; Mrs. Seward, whose husband was organist at St. John's church, whereabouts unknown; Ed. Walton of the Quaker Oats company, who lives on Stewart street; Miss B. Injuries Fatal To Small Boy Sleigh Riding

CAMPBELLFORD, Feb. 16. — Seven-year-old Ross Holmes, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Holmes, Queen Street, Campbellford, died at four o'clock this morning in Kingston General Hospital, from type six meningitis which followed a head injury received while sleigh riding.

A week ago the youngster was sleigh riding in the town when his sled jumped a concrete culvert, throwing him off and his head smashed against the hard concrete. He did not complain of any serious injury until last Sunday, when he became ill and a doctor was called. The condition was then diagnosed as inflammation of the brain and he was given only a slight chance of recovery. Rushed to Kingston, he was immediately placed in an oxygen tent and an appeal for serum to be sent from Toronto by aeroplane was sent. Doctors held to the belief that an injury to the bridge of the nose received while sleigh-riding was responsible for the complications.

Another 37 Million Voted For Defence

LONDON, Feb. 16—(CP Cable).—Supplementary estimates for the war office totalling £8,024,900 ($37,631,700) were announced today. This brought to £15,976,570 the total net supplementaries for the year for the three defence departments, but the drain on the budget will be only £5,976,570 because of the inclusion of a vote of £10,000,000 which could be applied against them.

Slightly more than half of the army supplementaries are earmarked for "acceleration of certain works and other services" Improvements in conditions in the army meant £1,107,000, emergency measures in the September crisis £901,000, emergency measures in Palestine £865,000, and the territorial army, due to the increase of its strength, £140,000.

Yesterday's announcement of a vast increase for 1939-40 in Britain's rearmament drive was welcomed here but in Germany it produced a sharp thrust at the United States. Chancellor Hitler's own newspaper, Voelkischer Beobachter, scored the United States for "increasing international tension" by selling war materials to European countries, presumbably the newspaper referred to the sale of airplanes to Great Britain and France.

$9,500 STOLEN IN 20 YEARS BY 'PERFECT POSTMISTRESS'

Husband's Life Savings Gone to Make Partial Restitution for Her

FAINTS IN DOCK

Long Crendon, Bucks.—The "perfect postmistress" of this 13th century village—the villagers called her that for over 20 years — has gone to prison.

And the villagers today are wondering what so quiet and industrious a woman has done with the $9,500 she stole from their hard-earned savings.

Everyone in this village trusted 53-year-old Mrs. Beatrice Shrimpton. Her tastes were simple. People often said, "what a pity that she spends so much time working."

But their "perfect postmistress" was carried fainting from the dock at Northamptonshire assizes to serve a year in prison for forgery and defalcations.

Her husband, it was stated, had made retribution to the extent of $2,775, (representing his life savings). There was other money available which made a total restitution of $3,040.

The village finds it hard to believe. Every week for years they went to Mrs. Shrimpton with their money—the young farm laborer with his marriage savings; the older inhabitants with their "nest eggs."

She encouraged them all to save. "Put it aside for a rainy day," was her favorite saying. More than one mother here has told her son to "do what Mrs. Shrimpton says."

She led a simple, almost Spartan life with her husband and their two sons and a daughter. Every morning she rose at 5.30 a.m. and did the housework before opening the post-office.

Her husband has been ill for the last few years so she did most of the work.

The village seldom saw her—except from behind the post-office counter. She rarely went out of doors; looked upon films or the theatre as a "sheer waste of money." She did not drink and she did not gamble.

She was trusted, so scores of the villagers gave their bank books into her keeping. Some occasionally asked for their return, but they did not question her word when she said they were "away in London."

Today Mrs. Shrimpton's relatives held a family conference. They determined to pay all the money back.

"The Shrimptons have had a worthy name in the village for years," a sister said. "We are determined to clear that name.

"We have no idea what she has done with the money, but we mean to do all we can to pay it back. It's a mystery even to her husband."

HARD TO TELL CADI QUARREL HAS ENDED

Man Interrupted Every Time He Speaks Up in Court

Hull—Time and time again a husband summoned by his wife at Hull on a maintenance order tried to speak, but every time the stipendiary magistrate, J. R. MacDonald, cut him short.

"But I want to say something," protested the man.

Mr. MacDonald: "I dare say you do, yet you must not say it in this court. Your chance may come in another court."

Still the man persisted that he wanted to say something really urgent.

Mr. MacDonald: "We are only concerned with your earnings today."

With that the man was quiet and listened to his wife giving evidence of his earnings.

Then Mr. MacDonald asked the man if he wished to go into the witness box and say something.

He replied with alacrity: "I do want to say something."

But when he began to speak Mr. MacDonald again interrupted him.

"I admit earning as much as my wife," began the man.—"Well, that settles the matter," cut in Mr. MacDonald.

"But it doesn't," he burst out. . . . "I have been talking it over with her, and we have agreed to go back home together."

Mr. MacDonald then walked along the bench and said to the smiling couple: "Come here, you two. Shake hands, all the best of luck, and do make a go of it this time."

SAILORS CAN'T SPEND NEW ZEALAND MONEY

Currency Export Ban Bothers Crew of British Warship

Portsmouth—The crew of H.M.S. Achilles, which reached Portsmouth from New Zealand, came ashore and tried to change their New Zealand money into English currency.

The local branch of a bank refused at first to change the money as the New Zealand government had, since the men left New Zealand, prohibited the export of currency.

Appreciating the seamen's difficulties the officials of the bank got into touch with London, and with the assistance of the high commissioner arrangements were made for the notes to be exchanged.

UNDERGROUND GARAGE TO BE RAID SHELTER

Croydon Approves $1,750,000 for Dual-Purpose Project

Croydon—The town council approved a £350,000 ($1,750,000) scheme for the building of an underground car park in the centre of the town which in peace time would hold 810 cars and in the event of an air raid provide shelter for 30,000 people.

The scheme was passed despite contentions that it was too expensive.

FIANCE IS DIETITIAN SO IS BRIDE'S FATHER

But Girl Takes Course in Cooking to Prepare for Marriage

Aberdeen—Food troubles should never cloud the happiness of a couple who announced their engagement at Aberdeen.

Miss Helen Boyd Orr, youngest daughter of the authority on nutrition Sir John Boyd Orr, is to marry D. M. Lubbock, another expert on nutrition and collaborator with Sir John.

It was suggested to Miss Orr that brides and wives would be grateful for her "ideal menu."

"My favorite meal," she replied, "is a boiled egg or perhaps a scrambled egg, but, in general, meals will include plenty of fresh vegetables, fruit, and milk. We are agreed about that."

Added Lady Orr:

"Neither Mr. Lubbock nor my daughter is over-exacting in diet."

Mr. Lubbock, younger son of the late Major Geoffrey Lubbock, of Surrey, is working at the Rowett Institute at Aberdeen under the direction of Sir John on a survey of the British appetite in an effort to find out how Britain's health could be improved by different feeding, especially in poor homes.

Miss Orr, however, is taking a domestic science course, including cooking.

BILLPOSTER RESCUED CLINGS OVER STREET

Hung on for 20 Minutes When Ladder Blown

Leeds.—Firemen rescued a billposter in Woodhouse Lane after he had clung for 20 minutes to a hoarding 40 feet above the street.

Stranded when his ladder was blown sideways, Thomas Ogden, 38, of Ashton-under-Lyne, was on the point of collapse when rescued. He was taken to hospital with severe shock.

Rush-hour traffic was held up while a crowd watched the rescue. During his ordeal a workman talked to him all the time, encouraging him to hang on.

LEFT WITHOUT ROOF

Biggleswade, Eng.—Mr. and Mrs. F. Milton, returning home, were astonished to find their roof gone. Men demolishing condemned cottages in the same street had stripped theirs by mistake.

FORMER MINE LAYER HIGH AND DRY

Breaking away from a tug towing her, the Media, formerly a mine layer, was wrecked on these rocks near Padstow, Cornwall, England, recently. Seven members of the St. Ives lifeboat crew lost their lives attempting to reach the ship in a northwesterly gale.

ONLY 10 PIGS LEFT SO CLUB BREAKS UP

Villagers Used to Have 106, Insured Under 50-Year-Old Plan

Rugby.—Southam Pig club, near Rugby, which is more than 50 years old, has come to an end—for it has only 10 members and 10 pigs, compared with 106 of each a few years ago.

G. H. King, secretary for 12 years, said: "There is not much use carrying on, for the membership may drop to six in the near future."

C. W. E. Webb, clerk of the Southam rural council, who audited the books of the Pig club, says:

"It's just a sign of the times. The young folk won't be bothered with keeping pigs."

The Pig club was an insurance association for the cottagers of the district, Mr. Webb added. If a member's pig fell sick and died, the member could claim compensation.

MUSEUM TO STAY

London.—One of Britain's greatest treasures, the British Museum library of nearly 5,000,000 volumes, will have to remain in London and run the risk of air bombardment in the event of war, A.R.P. officials say.

BEER BEAT FIRE

Vienna.—When fire broke out in a brewery at Naabeck, firemen found the water hydrants frozen and put out the blaze with beer.

2 GIRLS KILLED, 12 ESCAPE 70-MILE GALE WRECKS HOME

Blows Out Wall, Lets Ceiling Collapse on Sleeping Occupants

OTHERS BURIED

Devonport—Two small sisters were killed when a house in Queen St. collapsed during a 70-mile-an-hour gale.

The victims were Beryl and Barbara Bassett. Beryl was seven and her sister eight.

Another sister, Asenith, aged 16, and G. Smale, 45, were sent to hospital, the girl with cuts and shock and Mr. Smale with head injuries.

Twelve people were asleep in the house when the south wall caved in and the roof and top floor crashed.

On the ground floor lived R. Bassett, a naval stoker, with his wife and five children. Above them were Mr. and Mrs. Smale and their five children.

Mr. Bassett told a reporter: "It was a night of horror. First Asenith called out 'Mother, a picture has fallen.' My wife replied: 'It's nothing, Zennie; perhaps the string has broken.'

"About 15 minutes later there was a thump, and the children screamed. I could not get into their room so ran downstairs, but the fallen ceiling blocked the way.

"I got through a window and shouted for help."

Fire brigade and ambulance men, after moving tons of debris, succeeded in freeing most of the trapped occupants. The two sisters, however, were dead.

Leading - Seaman Gilmour, of H.M.S. Basilisk, was among the rescuers.

Twelve-year-old Mervyn Bassett, sobbing at the loss of his sisters, said: "The sailor saved my life."

HITLER SLOWS HYMN

Berlin.—Deutschland Uber Alles, the German national anthem, will be played in slow time in future, Adolph Hitler declaring fast tempo "represented a massacre of the hymn."

LONDON PRIDES SELF IN WINDOW BOXES

London.—Last year the London Gardens society judged 5,000 London gardens and 1,000 window boxes.

These facts appear in the statement of the society, published recently, and it is added that the aims are:

"To make a permanent contribution toward beautifying London by the growing of flowers; to provide a healthy and civilizing interest for those who have little opportunity for self-expression; and to give the humblest citizen the opportunity of performing a civic function by improving his surroundings."

ST. HELENA SERVANTS MAY WORK IN BRITAIN

Girls To Be Given Chance to Leave Distressed Island

London—Girls from St. Helena — the lone British island in the southern Atantic—who have a mixture of British, Dutch-Portuguese, East Indian and African blood in their veins, may shortly be working as domestic servants in English homes.

As part of the British government's scheme to alleviate the economic and social distress in the island to which Napoleon was banished and where he died, officials of the colonial office and the ministry of labor are preparing a scheme for employment over here.

As a port of call the island, whose flax industry has fallen into decay, lost its importance with the opening of the Suez Canal. Rice and fish are the main food of its 4,000 people, many of whom are suffering from malnutrition.

Some of the girls are descended from Englishmen who went to live on the island after their homes were destroyed in the Great Fire of London, 1666.

WHALE HITCH-HIKES

Shanghai.—A 30-foot whale, hit by the steamship Lochgoil, bent around the bow below the waterline and the ship had to be stopped to detach it. The whale came to the surface, blew heartily and dived out of sight.

'COME ON OUT AND FIGHT' BRIDGET HOGAN BIDS SCOTS

But Father of Lad Who Got Black Eye Seeks Damages

TEACHER REPROVED

Paisley.—When two boys at the back of her class started fighting Miss Bridget Hogan, of St. Catherine's school, Paisley, told them to come forward and "fight it out" in front of the class.

They did not fight, and Miss Hogan then asked the class, "Can anyone fight these two boys?"

She chose one boy, who hit one of the fighters twice, blacking his eye and making his nose bleed.

This was the story told by the Paisley sheriff, giving judgment in an action for $300 damages brought against Renfrew county council. The case was brought by Mr. Gavin Haveron, father of 9-year-old David Haveron, whose eye was blacked.

"By calling for volunteers to fight, Miss Hogan might have had some notion of giving boys who ventured to fight in her class their fill of fighting," said Sheriff Hamilton.

"It was an unhappy impulse which, in my judgment, went beyond reasonable contemplation of those who gave Miss Hogan her authority.

"In my opinion the appropriate damages would come well within the scope of the small debts court."

The sheriff found Miss Hogan "went beyond her duty and authority as a teacher, but that in law Renfrew county council are not responsible for her actions, and therefore not liable to Mr. Haveron for damages."

"If small boys can at times be brought to a more subdued state by punishment, that is surely for the good of discipline," the sheriff added.

"That is all, in my opinion, that Miss Hogan set out to do."

THIEVES GET $7,500 IN GEMS AND FURS

Maid Fails to Halt Movie Magnate's Loss

Farnham Common, Bucks.—A maid who went upstairs to put a hot water bottle in a bed is believed to have surprised thieves who entered the country house of Mrs. Harold Huth at Farnham Common and stole jewelry and furs worth £1,500 (nearly $7,500).

Mrs. Huth and her husband, who is casting director at Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studios, were attending a ball at Aylesbury.

GLOVE PLANT RAIDED TAKE LOOT IN AUTOS

Thousands of Pairs Removed by Expert Gang

Yeovil, Dorset.—Several thousands of pairs of gloves were stolen from a Yeovil glove factory. The theft is believed to be the work of an expert gang of London thieves.

This is the third haul of gloves made at Yeovil. The gang are believed to have escaped in cars stolen from Yeovil and Sherbourne, which were found abandoned on the road to London.

HENS DO DATING

Canberra.—Australian hens date their own eggs nowadays, a device fastened to each bird stamping day, date and breed.

SAID DISAPPOINTED IN 'COURTESY COPS'

London. — The "courtesy cops" experiment—a policy of persuasion as opposed to prosecution—has disappointed Sir Philip Game, commissioner of police.

The results of both experimental work and general policy were admittedly disappointing, he stated in a survey of London courtesy cops' work since last April.

But, he added, they afforded some justification for hoping that it was possible to reduce materially the road accidents rate if every road user practised and preached the highway code.

JOBLESS STRANDED IN NORTH SCOTLAND

Went to Work on Orkney Roads, But Got Dissatisfied

Thurso — Forty-two unemployed became stranded in the little town of Thurso, on the extreme north coast of Scotland, with no money to pay their fares to their homes, which are mainly in Warwickshire, Staffordshire, Leicestershire and Derbyshire.

The men came north to work as laborers at Lyness, on the island of Hoy in the Orkneys, but after six days they became dissatisfied with conditions and rates of pay.

They spent the last of their money to cross the Pentland Firth from Scapa to Scrabster, near Thurso.

Inspector Donald McLeod, of Thurso police, provided supper, bed, and breakfast. Beds were made up for 25 in the police station, and accommodation was found in the town for the others.

The men's spokesman told a reporter:

"At our local labor exchanges we saw men were wanted in the Orkney Islands for road work. We were accepted for the jobs and we were assembled in buses and travelled for 40 hours to Scrabster. From there a steamer took us to the Orkneys."

Most of the men are married. There are still 16 single men working at Lyness.

EXTORTION ATTEMPT ON LADY MAYORESS

English Lad Who Wrote Demanding Letters Now on Probation

Airdrie, Lanarkshire—Letters demanding thousands of pounds, said to have been written by a 15-year-old boy to Lady Bowater, the Lady Mayoress of London, and to Mrs. Karen Ostrer, wife of Mr. Mark Ostrer, were read at a juvenile court at Airdrie.

The boy, it was alleged, attempted to extort £5,000 ($25,000) and 4,000 American dollars from the lord mayor and lady mayoress of London, while Mrs. Ostrer was alleged to have received a letter demanding £5,000 and 3,000 American dollars for the return of stolen jewellery.

The charges related to two letters posted in Coatbridge, Lanarkshire. In both cases the writer signed himself "The Burglar."

The accused boy was placed on probation for one year.

A. G. Anderson (prosecuting) said the case had its origin in the appearance of highly colored and lurid newspaper accounts of a burglary at Mrs. Ostrer's house.

Hugh Gallacher, for the boy, said his employer considered him reliable and was anxious to retain his services. The boy had suffered from meningitis and that trouble might have left mental disorder.

FLASHES SAVE PILOT 15,000-MILE VOYAGE

Plymouth. — Flashlight signals through the fury of a Channel gale saved Louis le Sage, a Cherbourg pilot, from a two-months separation from his wife and ten children.

He had taken a German liner, bound for Chile, out from Cherbourg, but the storm made it impossible for the pilot cutter to take him off.

He had resigned himself to a 15,000-mile voyage when the Plymouth pilot cutter came in sight, and after being hailed by flashlamp, succeeded in getting him aboard.

FOX HUNT IN PARK OF LONDON SUBURB

London.—The serenity of Lammas Park, Ealing—a quiet residential area—was shattered recently by a fox hunt.

But there were no riders in pink. The meet was at the home of Mrs. G. Robinson, who lives near the park. She found the fox in her garden and telephoned the police.

The animal evaded the officers who dashed to the house, and made for the park. Pedestrians, nursemaids, children and police joined in the hunt, but the fox disappeared.

EXPANDING NAVY

Melbourne.—A £60,000 ($226,200) extension of the Flinders (Melbourne) naval depot, enabling expansion of the Royal Australian navy personnel by 800 recruits a year, has been announced.

NEWS AND VIEWS FROM ALL CORNERS OF THE WORLD

RICH WIDOW TO WED WAITER BUT HE'LL KEEP ON WORKING

Hungarian Going to Australia With Agencies for Imports

WAITED TWO YEARS

Budapest.—A wealthy Australian widow, aged 29, is to marry a Hungarian waiter with whom she fell in love when he waited at her table two years ago at Lake Balaton, Hungary's fashionable summer resort.

The waiter, 34-year-old Joseph Nagy, is the son of a bricklayer.

The widow, Mrs. Molly Barton, came to Hungary after the death of her husband, a surgeon in Melbourne. She now owns a flourishing beauty parlor in Melbourne.

Nagy said: "We became interested in each other because I could talk to her in English. After I had cleared her table and was off duty at the hotel we used to go for walks together.

"Before she returned to Australia after six weeks' holiday we were engaged.

"Since then she has written to me regularly, and sent me cables asking me to go to Australia, but I did not want to live upon her fortune. So for two years I worked on as a waiter, and organized connections in Hungary so that I could act as a trading agent for importing Hungarian goods into Australia.

"Now I have sent her a cable saying I am ready to leave. I shall sail from Naples soon and we shall be married immediately after I arrive in Melbourne."

CZECH CRISIS 'FELT' AS FAR AS ALASKA

Client Hits Lunchroom Owner in Eye With Crockery

Juneau, Alaska. — Post-mortem repercussions of the Czech crisis which threatened European peace accounted for one "casualty" and one "political imprisonment" in Juneau recently. Mrs. Albert S. Glover, lunchroom owner, sympathized with the Czechs. Jack Ayres threw his support—and crockery—to Hitler. Mrs. Glover ended up in the hospital, suffering from two black eyes. Ayres was lodged in the federal jail, charged with assault.

FAKE PRIEST GETS $435,000 IN RAID

Paris.—Wearing a long black soutane of a priest, a thief took £87,000 ($435,000) worth of securities from the seminary at St. Sulpice.

The raid was carried out while the Abbe Labouche was breakfasting. False keys were used on the safe.

The securities were the property of priests, who had left them in the abbey for safe keeping while abroad.

On Sundays the students receive visitors from other colleges, and the thief apparently mingled with them and carried off the securities under the folds of his gown.

MICROPHONE USED AGAINST ANTI-NAZIS

Danes "Listened In" on Conversations of Refugees From Germany

Copenhagen. — Denmark's "Nazi spy case," has begun to develop on the lines of a gangster film.

It is alleged that an arrested barrister, Pontoppidan, listened in to German refugees in Copenhagen by means of microphones.

Several years ago a committee of Danish people collected money and founded an emigrants' club where exiled Germans could gather.

It happened that a flat was empty in the town hall square, in the same building as the office of the barrister.

This was rented for the refugees, and here they used to meet, discuss their problems, and talk about the families they had left in Germany and their treatment by the Nazis.

While they talked the barrister and his friends, it is alleged, took turns to listen through a loudspeaker.

The instrument was attached to secret microphones, which the barrister had placed in the club's common room, and much information to trap the anti-Nazis was collected in this manner.

CHINA FIGHTS OPIUM

Chungking, China.—The Chinese government has unanimously decided that, despite the present war, every effort must be made to exterminate the opium evil throughout China. The spokesman of the executive Yuan revealed the cabinet approved a program for the complete suppression of opium in Szechuen province during 1939.

'MANILA SWEETHEART' FIGHTS INVESTIGATION

Faces Possible Dismissal Unless She Can Substantiate Charges

Manila—Carmen Planas, Manila's pretty councillor, is facing possible dismissal unless she can substantiate charges she made against President Quezon and the administration. She is now fighting to ward off an administrative investigation and to take her case to court.

Miss Planas is the first and only woman member of Manila's municipal board and by political affiliation an oppositionist. She charged the president with violating the constitution by taking part in politics. She also charged the administration with frauds and violations of civil service rules during the recent legislative elections.

President Quezon, angered by the criticism of "Manila's Sweetheart," ordered her charges investigated by Civil Service Commissioner Jose Gil.

Miss Planas, however, has refused to submit to any administrative investigation. Through her attorneys, she filed a memorandum challenging the jurisdiction of the civil service to investigate an elective official.

GAS MASKS FOR FRANCE

Paris—Under the new decree laws, the national defense services of France are authorized to sell gasmasks to the public today—but heaven help the Frenchman who fails to take care of his mask.

Gasmasks will be distributed throughout the country. A fine of $3 plus a short jail sentence will be slapped on every Frenhman who lets his mask deteriorate.

ONLY 6 WHITES AT FUNERAL OF PEER'S KIN IN E. AFRICA

Rest of 6,000 Shun Rites for Friend of Indians, Africans

CHAMPIONED CAUSE

Nairobi, Kenya.—Captain Dermot FitzGerald, old Etonian who, after the war, cut himself off from European society and came to live among the natives of Kenya, has died at Nairobi at the age of 47.

He died while reading a book in his modest bed-sitting room on the fringe of the Indian quarter.

Son of Lord Henry FitzGerald (of Stanstead, Essex), he had lived in Nairobi for nearly 20 years, making friends with Africans and Indians, never mixing with European society. Only six of the town's 6,000 white population attended his funeral.

He was greatly interested in native problems, and, in letters to the press and other ways, particularly championed the cause of the rickshaw boys.

He was often unkempt; at times he went so far native as to drink the intoxicating African "tembo."

His manners remained polished; he would speak to a withered old native woman with as much courtesy as he showed in his rare meetings with European wives

He once said outside Nairobi magistrate's court, which he sometimes attended on behalf of native political associations: "The Europeans are too grand for this country. Why don't they leave it to the natives who own it? They like making the natives nice, obedient people.

649 JAP AIRPLANES SHOT, CHINESE CLAIM

Estimate Total Casualties of Invaders at 700,000

Chungking.—The Chungking National Military council estimates that total Japanese casualties since the war began have mounted to 700,000.

Other estimates: Japanese planes destroyed or shot down, 649; Japanese pilots killed or captured, 736; Japanese warships sunk or damaged, 580; Japanese tanks and armored cars destroyed or captured, 1,200; Japanese artillery destroyed or captured, 342; Japanese machine guns captured, 4,968; Japanese rifles captured, 72,592.

It was believed by correspondents that the damaged warship figures were greatly exaggerated.

FIGHT FLOODS, ROWS FINALLY GET CENSUS

25,000 Succeed in Difficult Philippines Task

Manila, P.I. — Twenty-five thousand enumerators — harassed by floods, belligerent provincials, religious disputes and language difficulties—have taken the Philippines' third and most complete census.

Their count has not been tabulated, but preliminary estimates indicate there are more than 15,000,000 people on the 3,500 inhabited islands of the archipelago. This is more than double the estimated population in 1899 when the United States took over the islands from Spain.

Dies Of Injuries

BELLEVILLE, Ont., Feb. 16—(CP)—Alexander Young, 60, Trenton, injured a week ago when he was hit by a Canadian National Railways yard engine at Trenton, died Wednesday in Belleville hospital. Dr. J. J. Robertson, coroner, has ordered an inquest.

Young was walking to his home across the tracks. Believing the train to be on another track, stepped directly into the path of the on-coming engine. He lost his left leg and part of his right foot.

Edgar Simmons President Of Poultry Men

A bombshell was thrown in the smooth working machinery of the Peterborough Poultry Association at the annual meeting held last night in the Chamber of Commerce when Fred Holmes, veteran member of the board of directors and secretary-treasurer for the past two years anonunced he was retiring.

Holmes is one of the originals who formed the association more than thirty years ago. He has continued his active interest in the organization althongh he discontinued raising chickens fifteen years ago. Pressure of other business was given as the reason for the resignation, but he offered to retain the position until the next meeting of the Association, when another member will be apointed to the position.

Edgar Simmons President

Edgar Simmons, one of the most active members of the Association in recent years and a young man was elected president for 1939, and Fred Robson, retiring president was named honorary president. George Paxman and R. M. Brown, two veterans and outstanding chicken fanciers, were elected first and second vice-presidents respectively. The board of directors is composed of Elric White, R. D. Robson, E. M. Wall, Harry VanAllen H. Black George Ferguson, S. E. Moncrief, Harry Lush and C. E. Barton.

Financial statement for 1938 reveals a very successful and satisfactory condition. There was an increase of more than 100 birds at the show last month as against the number entered a year ago which makes the local poultry show, the largest independent winter show held in the province. $100 additional prize money was paid out but even with this increase the directors were able to show a favorable balance of $18.24. Dates for the annual show in 1940 are January 2, 3 and 4th.

Had Dizzy Spells For 3 Years

Result of Acid Indigestion

"Before taking Kruschen," a woman writes, "I had very bad dizzy spells and hot flushes, bad spells of acid indigestion, and I was so nervous at times that the least thing would upset me. I was about three years in that condition.

"I could not tell you in words how happy and glad I am today that I gave Kruschen Salts a trial. I have now taken them for 18 months. I would not miss them one day. They are a great help to anyone who suffers as I did. I feel in better health today than I have for years. After taking Kruschen for three weeks the dizzy faints and hot flushes left me. I now feel so bright and cheerful. Kruschen Salts assist to keep you fit and fine."—(Mrs.) J.M.

Kruschen Salts is an excellent recipe for maintaining a condition of internal cleanliness. The numerous salts in Kruschen stimulate your internal organs to smooth, regular action. Your inside is thus kept clear of those impurities which, when allowed to accumulate, lower the whole tone of the system.—advt.

CAMPBELLFORD

Line Alterations On Hydro Completed

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CAMPBELLFORD, Feb. 16.—Alterations to the power lines on the English Line district have been completed Manager P. C. Deynes informed members of the Water and Light Commission at their monthly meeting held here Wednesday. Chairman Benor suggested that the Board should purchase a copy of the Municipal Law and Public Utilities Act. "We are dealing with large companies all the time and I think it would be of considerable value for us to have the information at hand." At the suggestion of the clerk a copy of the Revised Statutes of Ontario for 1937 was placed on order. A letter regarding an option for power already held was read and on motion of P. C. Denyes was renewed as requested until June 1st, 1939.

Harwood's Young Hunters Go After Foxes Turn Out To Be Two Big Jack Rabbits

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HARWOOD, Feb. 16.—Some of Harwood's young hunters got quite a thrill on Monday morning as Mr. Neil Corkery went out to cut ice, he noticed what he thought were foxes sunning themselves peacefully about a mile out on Rice Lake.

Men, guns and a hound were soon gathered together and with plans made as to how they would spent the money for their pelts, they started off to surround the pair. Closer and closer they came and still no move but, alas, up jumped two husky jack rabbits and tried to get past the hunters, but in vain, they were both captured. Although they were not foxes it was a great thrill for the hunters and those who watched the excitement from shore.

No, they were not foxes, but the jacks weighed over eleven pounds each.

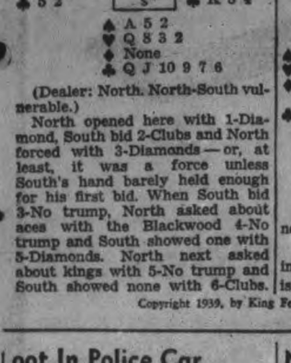
BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

WRITTEN FOR THE EXAMINER
By SHEPARD BARCLAY
"The Authority on Authorities"

READ THE ROAD SIGNS

ANY EFFICIENT automobile driver reads the road signs, in order to keep out of trouble. It is the same in selecting the opening lead against the opponents' contract. Sometimes the lead which is indicated as the best will not defeat the contract, whereas the apparently worst possible lead will. But in the long run it will pay to observe the logic of the situation as pointed by the bidding and by the cards you hold yourself.



(Dealer: North. North-South vulnerable.)

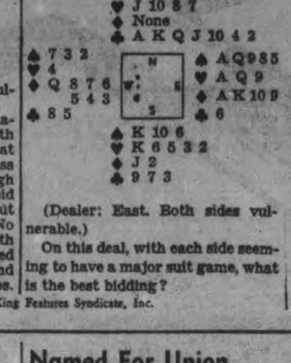
North opened here with 1-Diamond, South bid 2-Clubs and North forced with 3-Diamonds — or, at least, it was a force unless South's hand barely held enough for his first bid. When South bid 3-No trump, North asked about aces with the Blackwood 4-No trump and South showed one with 5-Diamonds. North next asked about kings with 5-No trump and South showed none with 6-Clubs. North thereupon put South into 6-No trump.

Sound logic for West would be about as follows: My own hand is worthless, so I should lead what figures to be the best help to my partner in setting this contract. The opponents' suits of diamonds and clubs are out of the question. My own spades are hopeless. I must lead a heart.

Had West done that the contract would have been set. For East would have taken one trick in hearts and one in clubs. But West didn't. He led the fourth-best of his own suit, spades. The declarer won it in dummy, led a club, and so lost only one trick, to the club K, as the diamond suit set up on a lucky break.

* * *

Tomorrow's Problem



(Dealer: East. Both sides vulnerable.)

On this deal, with each side seeming to have a major suit game, what is the best bidding?

WINDSOR, Ont., Feb. 16—(CP)—E. Donne of Fort William, attending the Canadian Seamen's Union convention here, told delegates today that naming of his daughter, born during the C.S.U. strike last April, had been easy. He named her C. S. U. Donne and chose names to fit the initials, Colleen Shirley Una Donne.

PILE SUFFERERS

Can You Answer These Questions?

Do you know the real cause of piles is on the inside?

Do you know they can be doctored from the inside?

Do you know you must get at and remove the cause of Piles, to get rid of them?

The real cause of piles is poor circulation—a congestion of blood in the veins of the lower bowel. This makes the veins flabby, full of impure congested blood, and weakens the rectal membranes.

So if you would have relief from piles you should use an internal medicine like HEM-ROID, a prescription written by Dr. J. S. Leonhardt. HEM-ROID banishes piles by relieving the cause. It stimulates circulation, eases the pressure of blood in the veins of the lower bowel and helps to heal and restore the sore, tender parts.

HEM-ROID is so successful in even the most stubborn cases that McDermid & Jury and Bond's Drug Stores or any other good druggist is authorized to make good our promise to you that if you are not completely satisfied with the results from one bottle, you may have your money back.

Where Cardinals Will Meet To Select New Pope

The eyes of the entire Catholic world are turned toward the Vatican as preparations for the interment of Pope Pius and the selection of a new Pope are being made. A view of the beautiful interior of the Sistine chapel, decorated by the master hand of the great Michaelangelo, where the Sacred College of Cardinals will convene to elect a new Pope, is seen, LEFT. After the ballots are cast by the Cardinals they are burned. If an agreement on a new Pontiff is not reached the ballots are burned with damp straw to produce a black smoke. This black smoke issuing from a special pipe, erected for the occasion, UPPER RIGHT, informs the world that the Cardinals have been unable to decide on a new vicar of Christ. If white smoke issues from the pipe it indicates that a new Pope has been chosen. Before casting their ballots the Cardinals meditate in cell-like rooms in the Vatican, LOWER RIGHT. These cells are plainly furnished and there is one such chamber for each Cardinal. Morning and evening they convene in the Sisten chapel to take a ballot.

Fiery, Itching Toes and Feet

Here is a clean, stainless antiseptic oil now dispensed by chemists at trifling cost, that will do more to help you get rid of your trouble than anything you've ever used.

Its action is so powerfully penetrating that the itching is instantly stopped; and in a short time you are rid of that bothersome, fiery eczema. The same is true of Barber's Itch, Salt Rheum, Itching Toes and Feet—other irritating unsightly skin troubles.

You can obtain Moone's Emerald Oil in the original bottles at any modern drug store. It is safe to use—and failure in any of the ailments noted above is rare indeed.

Women Swing To Poker, Even Wildcat Brand Card Makers See It Ousting Bridge

NEW YORK, Feb. 16. — (AP).— As if there weren't enough for men to worry about these hectic days there now comes the disturbing information of an astounding gain in the number of women poker players and the growth of mixed . . co-ed poker.

The people who keep track of such things, in this case the playing card manufacturers, say that more and more women are playing poker and that there are indications that poker may supplant contract bridge as the number one card game of the country.

It would be fairly easy to mobilize a small army of males who would swear that wherever woman's place is, it certainly is not sitting behind five cards looking for a pair of Jacks or better to open a poker pot.

Yet, the playing card people say that's just where a lot of women may be found these days and nights. For example a country club in an unnamed Montana town reported that "an average of 60 ladies attend a weekly luncheon and play wildcat poker."

Most confirmed poker players (male) would rathe be caught with an extra ace up their sleeves than playing in a "wild" poker game.

Straight draw is still the most popular of the poker games with stud running second.

Winnipeg Relief Major Problem

WINNIPEG, Feb. 16 — (CP). — Financing of Winnipeg's relief costs is the major problem before the Manitoba legislature in its 1938 session and is expected to ocupy a similar position in business of the 1939 session opening Monday.

The Legislature last year empowered the city to raise additional revenues through new taxation to meet a financial crisis precipitated in July, 1937, when the Bank of Montreal refused to loan the city further money for relief.

The assembly also gave authority for a Royal Commission to investigate the Winnipeg financial set-up.

Given broad powers of inquiry and authorized to make recommendations to the government, the commission heard representations from many organizations and is now preparing a report for submission to the present legislature session. Revision of the city charter is considered probable.

The legislature in 1938 empowered Winnipeg for a two-year term to levy a five per cent tax on domestic and a 10 per cent tax on commercial light and power bills; increase the business tax rate; and impose a two per cent sales tax on hard liquor sold in the city. Increased taxation was estimated to yield $765,000 in 1938.

The city's sinking fund trustees agreed to buy up $1,200,000 of 15-year four per cent city debentures to finance Winnipeg's share of its 1938 ordinary relief expenditures.

Canada Ends Wheat Bonusing

Need And Acreage To Form Basis Of All Future Aid

OTTAWA, Feb. 17.—(CP).—Assistance to wheat marketing through operation of a fixed guaranteed minimum price was condemned last night by Agriculture Minister Gardiner as an "unsound policy which gives to those who have—and gives nothing to those who have not." It will be discontinued.

Announcement of the decision to abandon this policy which will cost Canadian taxpayers an estimated $48,000,000 in the current crop year, ending next July 31, and of the government's intention of following the Turgeon Royal Commission's recommendations on wheat marketing, were highlights of yesterday's proceedings in the House of Commons.

Future assistance to the wheat growers will be given in proportion to need and will be calculated on an acreage basis "so adjusted to encourage home building and maintenance rather than increased production."

Mr. Gardiner said also that in drafting legislation, soon to be presented to the House, "we will be mindful of the fact the same principle might be applied to marketing other natural products. It was the government's intention, he said, to bring in legislation having to do with co-operative marketing of all farm products.

The Commission Ideas

Chief recommendations of the commission headed by Chief Justice W. F. A. Turgeon of Saskatchewan, who investigated wheat marketing, and which the government will adopt "as far as possible" were summarized by Mr. Gardiner as follows:

"1. That the government should remain out of the grain trade and our wheat should be marketed by means of the futures market system.

"2. That the grain exchange should be placed under proper supervision.

"3. That encouragement be given to the creation of co-operative mar-

Thinks Railway Road, Loses Car

LONDON, Ont., Feb. 17 — (CP). —After jolting for nearly a mile over the ties of the Canadian National Railways main line right-of-way, and then across an overhead bridge, in the path of an oncoming freight train, an automobile was almost totally demolished by the freight near Komoka early to-day.

The car was struck only a minute or tw oafter it was apparently abandoned by occupants who had been trying to use the tracks as a highway.

A five-hour hunt by Provincial and railway police for occupants of the car resulted in the arrest of George Caverhill, 32-year-old Ilderton farmer. Before he was taken into custody, the police trailed footprints three miles through bush and across fields.

His face was streaked with blood, and his nose badly cut, Caverhill appeared later before County Magistrate Hawkshaw, on charges of leaving the scene of an accident and obstructing a railway track. He was released on his own bail of $500 to reappear on February 24.

Agent Gets a Start.

An astounded station agent momentarily expecting the arrival of an east-bound freight, watched the car swing on to the C.N.R. right-of-way at the Komoka Station, at 12.54 a.m., and go bounding along the right-of-way.

Far down the tracks, the agent, C. A. Fisher, saw the car lights suddenly disappear. He believed the automobile had gone over the embankment.

Four minutes later the freight came along and crashed into the car standing between the double track, badly wrecking it, and throwing it foul of both tracks.

Million Asylum Fire Leaves 3,000 Homeless

QUEBEC, Feb. 17 (CP)—In the wake of one of the most destructive fires in the history of old Quebec city, a great blackened ruin spread out today where 24 hours ago stood St. Michel L'Archange Hospital for the Insane.

Hot, hissing wreckage remained in place of the $1,000,000 institution whose long, five-storey buildings sprawled at the northern outskirts of Quebec in the form of a crooked letter "W".

Believed to have been started by a victim of pyromania, one of the hospital's 3,000 incurable patients, the fire was discovered yesterday at the end of a big ball in a brown brick wing which had housed the quarters of 1,700 men.

Despite a long, hard-fought battle by fire-fighting forces the blaze cut its way through one hospital section after another.

Men's Wings Go First

First the entire men's section was burned down, then directly behind, the hospital chapel and infirmary. A strong northwest wind drove the flames on to the women's quarters while firemen half-frozen by the icy temperature fought vainly.

After the long women's block began to fall before the assault of the flames, the wind as if guided by a powerful hand of destruction, swung around to drive the fire back to a long block at the hospital's extremity which the fire-fighters had held the greatest hope of saving.

The northern wing was the last to go sometime after midnight when the hospital's tall dome came crushing down. Only then was the announcement made that there was no "chance" of saving any part of the institution.

Long before all hope was given up, evacuation of the patients, some of them violently insane, had been started. When the fire broke, systematically and quickly hospital attendants drove the male patients from their menaced quarters away down long corridors to the north of the buildings.

Relentlessly, the fire was whipped on by the wind sweeping down the board plains at the edge of which the hospital stood. As the blaze bored deeper into the heart of the gray-stone and brick block. Hospital authorities ordered removal of the physically ill.

Only One Death

When attendants came to the bedside of one aged male patient who had been ill for days, he was found dead. That death was the only one which accompanied the fire. There were no injuries.

With the fire's steady progress hospital authorities with more than 200 city and provincial police at their disposal, along with Royal Canadian Mounted Police, members of the Legion of Frontiersmen and the Royal 22nd Regiment, carried out a methodical evacuation.

The women patients were removed after the sick and then the 1,700 men, who had been placed temporarily in the northern wing, the last to fall, were taken out.

Today the 3,000 patients were in temporary quarters in city hospitals, sanatorium and two barracks made available in the emergency.

Duce's Guard Said Shot By Madman

Unconfirmed Rumors Also Involve Jealous Woman

ROME, Feb. 17 (AP) — Rumors that a demented man had shot a guard at Premier Mussolini's home, the Villa Torlona, in an apparent attempt on Il Duce's life last Wednesday spread in Rome tonight.

Officials first denied there was any truth to the rumors, then said they could neither confirm nor deny them.

The most persistent version of the several rumors was that a man loitering outside Il Duce's estate was asked by a guard to identify himself. Thereupon, the report said, the man drew a pistol from his trousers pocket, said "take this to your master," and shot the guard in the groin.

According to this version the shooting occurred shortly after the Fascist grand council meeting Wednesday night at the Palazzo Venezia, where Mussolini has his offices. The premier had presided over the council meeting.

The rumor said that the man was arrested immediately by other guards on duty outside the grounds of the villa and that he was found to be a recently-released inmate of an insane asylum.

Uniformed guards and detectives in plain clothes are constantly on duty a short distance from the park around the Villa Torlona, which occupies an entire block surrounded by a high stone wall. Closely spaced lamps along the wall flood the surrounding streets with brilliant light at night.

Another rumor was that a woman shot a guard at the villa for reasons of personal jealousy. A third said simply that a man loitering near the villa had been arrested.

Seven attempts have been made against Mussolini's life since he became head of the Italian government in 1922.

First Plot Fails

The first of these occurred Nov 4, 1925, when General Zaniboni, a crack shot, set up a rifle with telescopic sights opposite the Palazzo Chigi where Mussolini was to speak. Secret police discovered the plot just before Mussolini appeared and the General was sentenced to 30 years in the penal islands.

Violet Albina Gibson, an Irishwoman, fired at Mussolini during a ceremony April 7, 1926, at the capitol and the bullet chipped Il Duce's nose. She was deported to England.

The same year, on Sept. 11, Gino Lucetti, an anarchist, threw a bomb at Mussolini's car Eight persons were injured but Il Duce was unharmed. Lucetti was sentenced to 30 years in the penal islands.

On October 31, 1926, Mussolini's gold-encrusted sash of the Royal Order of Saints Maurice and Lazarus was severed by a bullet from the gun of 18-year-old Antea Zamboni in Bologna. Zamboni was killed on the spot.

Michele Schirru, 32, a naturalized American of Italian birth, whipped out a pistol and wounded three policemen and himself while being questioned on Feb. 3, 1931, on suspicious activities. He was executed May 28, 1931, for plotting against the life of the premier.

Later in 1931, on June 4, Angelo Sbardellotto was arrested in Piazza Venezia and charged with plotting to bomb or shoot Il Duce. He and an accomplice, Domeico Bovone, were executed 13 days later.

Last Minute News Flashes

TORONTO.—"In my opinion, any bonus paid to Western farmers on an acreage basis for wheat or a pegged price for wheat, should be paid equally to Ontario wheat growers," declared acting premier Nixon today.

"In the past the Ontario wheat grower has had to sell his wheat in a depressed market because of the pegging of wheat prices in the west, without himself being given any assistance. I consider that bonus on an acreage basis is at least a little more fair than the previous pegged price, but I would like to see Ottawa treat our farmers, and, in fact, the wheat growers of all provinces equally."

LONDON.—Great Britain today decided against sending a warship to the Chinese island of Hainan, occupied several days ago by Japan. Consideration was given the matter after the United States ordered a destroyer to proceed there. One of the reasons for Great Britain's decision not to follow suit was the absence of British nationals on the island.

LONDON.—General Franco has refused to accept British mediation in the civil war in Spain, since he wants the unconditional surrender of the Spanish government, it was reported in insurgent quarters here today.

Robbing, Tying Farmer In Barn Cost Pair Five Years

ST. THOMAS, Ont., Feb. 17 — (CP). — Kenneth Hooper, 19, of Komoka, near London, and William Shannon, London, to-day were sentenced to five years in Kingston Penitentiary for the kidnap-robbery on February 8 of Louis Foris, Corinth tobacco grower.

Defence counsel asked short terms and lashes for the pair of unemployed youths who after getting a ride with Foris, robbed him, trussed him up, took his car, left him in an old barn near Thamesford, and then were arrested a few hours later for a traffic violation in Galt.

Hooper and Shannon pleaded guilty a week ago to charges laid following the holdup and kidnapping of Foris. Thumbing their way east of Aylmer at night they were given a life by Foris on his way home after seeing a movie in Aylmer. Flourishing a gun they tied Foris' hands. Then they drove through Tillsonburg and Ingersoll to the Eighth Concession of East Nissouri where after tying Foris' feet and robbing him of $8.50 they left him in an old cattle barn.

Caught in One-way Street.

They were arrested the next morning by Galt police who hailed them as they endeavored to drive the wrong way on a one-way street. Foris was rescued by Middlesex police after being four and a half hours in the cold barn.

E. S. Livermore, on behalf of the boys, appealed against a penitentiary term, declaring incarceration there would start them on a life of crime. A short term in the reformatory and a whipping would, he argued, act as more of a deterrent.

Magistrate McCrimmon told Mr. Livermore first offenders were sent to Collins Bay, where they could learn a trade. Crown Counsel Haines remarked that for the offence the youths had committed life imprisonment with lashes could be imposed.

Mr. Haines argued for a penitentiary term of five to eight years with lashes.

The magistrate said he thought five years at Kingston without lashes would be a fit punishment in the present case.

Women's Pyjama Chase Sends Trio To Reformatory

Chatham, Ont., Feb. 17 (CP)

THEIR arrest brought about by the courage and prompt action of two pyjama-clad women who chased them 9 miles in a car over ice-covered roads two weeks ago, three men were sentenced today to the reformatory for chicken stealing by Magistrate Arnold.

Clarence Tiffin, 38, of Camden was given nine months determinate and six months indeterminate. Charles Lagford, 18, of near Thamesville and Percy Clements, 21, of Chatham township, were given three months determinate and three months indeterminate.

Mussolini 'Buys' Red Sea Isles

LODON, Feb. 17—(CP-Havas).—The diplomatic correspondent of the Daily Herald (Labor) wrote today that Premier Mussolini is shipping large "gift" supplies of arms to the Imam Yahya of Yemen in return for virtual control of several strategic islands along the southern Red Sea coast.

Only yesterday, observers noted, Imam Yahyas son, Prince Seif El Islam El Husseini, who is his country's chief delegate to the Palestine parley here, was received in audience by the king.

The Daily Herald correspondent pointed out that one of the London-Rome pact's most vital clauses was Rome's pledge "not to seek to obtain a privileged position of a political character in Yemen."

Japanese Edge In Grab Land Near Hong Kong

Hong Kong, Feb. 17 (CP-Havas)

JAPANESE FORCES today occupied the Namtao Peninsula, three miles from Knowloon leased territory, adjacent to Hong Kong, without prior notification to the British authorities.

Thousands of Chinese refugees streamed into the colony as word spread of the unheralded Japanese move. The British authorities had previously been assured they would be notified in advance of any military moves in the vicinity of British territory.

Navy Tightening Up On Secrets

LONDON, Feb. 17.—(AP).—The Admiralty, it was disclosed to-day, has tightened its safeguards on secrets of the greatest peace-time warship program in history following publication in Germany of details of Britain new battleship, the King George V.

A government spokesman indicated that little concern was felt concerning these particular details, given recently in the German "pocketbook of war fleets." But Geoffrey Shakespeare, financial secretary to the Admiralty would "take such steps as are practicable to ascertain whether any unauthorized leakage occurred."

Mr. Shakespeare said that much of the information published in Germany was inaccurate, and an Admiralty spokesman added that some of the accurate details given were common knowledge in Britain.

The 1935 naval treay between Great Britain and Germany provides for the exchange of building information, which however, must be treated as confidential until published by the power supplying it.

The King George V, first British capital ship to be launched in 14 years, is scheduled to slide down the ways at Newcastle Feb. 1 with King George VI presiding at the ceremony.

Landmark Burns

BRANTFORD, Ont., Feb. 17 — (CP). — One of the oldest buildings in Villa Nova, a familiar landmark on the Waterford Road, was destroyed yesterday by fire of unknown origin which broke out in Harold Risdill's grist mill and blacksmith shop. The large two-storey frame structure was destroyed along with its contents.

Prisoners Are Remanded Week For Sentence; $218 Of Loot Recovered

Quick Work On Part Of Two Manvers Men Results In Arrest

Arraigned before Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., in police court this morning Harold Peters, 29, of Shelburne, N.S., and Joseph Champagne, 33, of Winnipeg, Man., pleaded guilty to armed robbery in connection with the holdup of Wilbert H. Peel in his Park street garage on Wednesday night and were remanded for sentence.

The proceedings, followed with intense interest by a crowded court room were very brief.

The charge against the prisoners was that being armed with an offensive weapon, to wit a revolver, they did unlawfully steal $218 from Wilbert H. Peel.

Peters, arraigned first, elected trial by the magistrate and was then asked to plead.

"I guess I'm guilty," he said slowly.

"I cannot accept a guess," said Magistrate Langley. "You will have to plead either guilty or not guilty."

For nearly a minute there was a dead silence while Peters stood stolidly in the dock.

"I'm guilty," he said finally.

"Have you anything to say?" asked the magistrate and the prisoner merely shook his head.

No Hesitation

Champagne also elected summary trial and in his case there was no hesitation when he was asked to plead.

"Guilty," he said promptly.

"Have you anything to say?" asked the court.

"Nothing," was the laconic reply of the older of the two prisoners.

"I am asking for a week's remand for sentence," Crown Attorney McElderry said. The request was granted, and the court proceedings were over.

Although the men maintained for some time after their arrest that they did not use a revolver in the holdup, they later admitted a gun had been used and that it was hidden between here and Manvers. After the court session this morning Champagne accompanied Detective Sergeant Meagher and Constable Piercey to look for the place where the weapon had been cached.

Thank Two Farmers

Quickness of thought on the part of John Bradley and his father Norman Bradley, Manvers farmers, and equally quick action by members of the Peterborough police department, assisted by Provincial Traffic Officer Lloyd A. McClure, resulted Thursday afternoon in the clearing up of the garage holdup, the recovery of $218 of stolen money and the arrest of two men on a charge of armed robbery.

Young Bradley had driven into Manvers station with milk shortly before noon Thursday, noticed the two suspects there and, having heard of the local robbery and the descriptions of the men wanted, decided the transients he had seen closely resembled the alleged holdup pair. When he got home he told his father Norman Bradley and the latter at once got into touch with Peterborough police.

No time was lost at this end. Within a few minutes two police cars, the first carrying Sergeant John Thompson and Traffic Officer McClure and the second manned by Detective Sergeant W. E. Meagher and Constable Leo Murphy, were ploughing along the snow-filled roads in the direction of Manvers. The police had been informed that the road into Manvers station was impassable so far as motor traffic

Asks Class Peace

PARIS, Feb. 17—(CP-Havas).—The Count of Paris, pretender to the throne of France, today published an appeal for class peace in France as the only hope for the salvation of the country.

In an article in L'Ordre, organ of the aristocracy, the Count adopted notions hitherto not a common feature of royalist propaganda. He said the present rulers of France were doing an injury to the nation "by confounding the nationalist cause with the capitalist cause."

King, Mussolini Attend Mass For Pope

ROME, Feb. 17.—(AP)—Premier Mussolini and his minister and King Victor Emmanuel and Queen Elena attended a special funeral mass for Pope Pius XI today—the first such tribute by the Italian state.

The day was one of official mourning. The mass, attended by 2,000 persons, was celebrated in the 340-year-old church of Santa Andrea Della Valle.

The king, clad in grey-green army uniform, and the queen in black with a long lace veil, sat on a dais draped with gold-trimmed, crimson tapestries. At front of the dias was a prayer bench where they knelt from time to time.

Premier Mussolino sat alone, opposite and below the sovereigns. His ministers were arrayed behind him. He wore a grey uniform and overcoat of the fascist militia.

The premier sat almost immobile throughout the ceremony. He stared intently at the altar, watching the movement of the mass and listening to the mellow music of the choir.

The king and queen were flanked by the diplomatic corps. In the front row was the British ambassador, the Earl of Perth.

The Catafalque, beneath the church's gilded dome, was draped in gold and purple silk and surmounted by a copy of the pope's golden tiara.

The papal nuncio to Italy, Monsignor Borgongini, celebrated the mass which lasted more than an hour. A penetrating chill pervaded the church. One woman wrapped her legs in newspapers.

Britain To Probe Reich Affairs

LONDON, Feb. 17 — (CP Cable). —The British Government is sending its ace economic observer, Frank Ashton-Gwatkin, to Germany to study general business conditions in the Reich. He will leave for Berlin next week.

His trip is significant because it will preface a visit to Germany of a delegation of the British Federation of Industries next month in an attempt to sign price and market agreements between British and German industries patterned after the one already operating in the coal trade.

Speaking in the House of Commons last night, Oliver Stanley, president of the Board of Trade, made no attempt to hide the fact that Great Britain would like a general trade agreement with Germany, but because of the centralized economic control in the Reich, it must be mode than a mere tariff treaty.

The totalitarian governments, through complete control of exchange quotas, licences and the whole economic fabric of the country, could render nugatory any tariff agreement.

KIRKLAND LAKE, Ont., Feb. 17 (CP)—Michael Whiteduck, 3½ years of age, was burned to desth and his father suffered serious injuries in an attempt to save the child when fire razed their log cabin home near Federal early today.

Michael Whiteduck, the father, was burned about the head and face. His wife was carried, unconscious, from the flaming cabin by Desmond Newton, who was living with the Whiteducks. The child was sleeping in bed with its parents when the fire broke out.

Firemen were obliged to use a bush trail leading to the cabin and the only equipment they were able to carry were shovels. They shovelled snow onto the embers to recover the child's body.

Sanctioning New Rink To Get Mayor Beaten Says Note From Tax Sale Victim

KITCHENER, Ont., Feb. 17. — (CP).—Mayor Wes McKenzie has received a note from an anonymous writer who threatens violence if he signs the debenture for $50,000 for the erection of a Waterloo rink.

The note, partly printed and partly written, is as follows: "If you sign the paper which will add another $50,000 to Waterloo's debenture debt, you and your wife will be beaten up. We will get you somewhere in the dark. The rink is no necessity." The note was signed:

"A hard working man whose house is going to be listed for 1939 tax sale."

The Mayor has his suspicions as to the writer. He has not referred the letter to police for action, however.

Dunning Fights Any Ties On Our Dollar

OTTAWA, Feb. 17—(CP).—Canadian currency is not and should not be tied to any other world currency, Finance Minister Dunning told the House of Commons yesterday as he denied a suggestion it was tied to the United States dollar, and rejected a proposal it should be tied to the pound sterling.

The minister, showing the effects of his recent illness, as he carried on a discussion with opposition members on monetary policy, put off until another day further consideration of his bill to authorize the government to borrow $750,000,000 for refunding and general governmental purposes.

"The government does not believe under the conditions now prevailing or the conditions which have prevailed sice we came into office in tieing the Canadian dollar to any other currency anywhere, whether it be the pound sterling or the American dollar," he said.

"The moment we do so we abdicate the function which the Canadian people have entrusted us with—of managing our own currency. We immediately cease to manage it ourselves the moment we tie it up to any other currency. At the present time the Canadian dollar rides on the tide of trade. It is not tied to any other currency."

Not Followed Sterling

Hon. H. H. Stevens (Con. Kootnay East) said exchange rates in recent months indicated the Canadian dollar was tied to the American. It had not declined with the decline in the pound sterling. As Canadian producers suffered from the decline of the pound sterling he suggested the dollar should be tied to that currency.

Challenged by Mr. Dunning to state whether he was enunciating the policy of the Conservative party in making that suggestion, Mr. Stevens declared he was speaking only for himself.

He also revealed that in 1931 when Great Britain went off the gold standard he had favored allowing the Canadian dollar to drop with the pound but as a member of the Conservative government of the day he had to stand with the cabinet or get out. "Eventually I did get out," he added.

Mr. Dunning said there was a great difference between a $4.70 pound now and a $3.20 pound as in 1931. If the pound declined again as in 1931 the government would have to take account of the situation.

But to tie the dollar to the pound would raise a new protective barrier around Canada and increase the cost of all consumer goods.

The Minister confirmed his earlier

Hitler Cracks Down

BERLIN, Feb. 17 — (AP).—Chancellor Hitler to-day branded reckless driving a "crime against the nation" and declared "the state is determined to exterminate without mercy all road gangsters, highway bandits, car stealers, and murderers."

Belgians Spoil Rebel Coup

BRUSSELS, Feb. 1 — (AP). — Belgian police and firemen to-day stormed the Spanish Government Consulate building and ejected insurgent sympathizers who had seized it in an early morning coup.

Police climbed fire ladders to get into the building after the invaders had defied attempts of authorities to oust them.

Eight men surrendered to police and were taken to the Palace of Justice.

They had seized the building from its caretakers and, shouting "Viva Franco!" had raised the colors of General Franco to its flagstaff.

The Belgian Government broke relations with the Madrid Government some weeks ago and decided to send a commercial agent to Burgos, capital of insurgent Spain. The Spanish policy of former Premier Paul Spaak ,the source of much dissension, was a cause of the resignation of his government last week. No new Cabinet has been formed.

Seek To Set Aside Bill Of Sale

CAMPBELLFORD, Feb. 17—His Honor Judge L. V. O'Connor presided at the Division Court here on Wednesday, when the case of H. M. Fowlds and Son vs. William McCubbin, of Norham, was heard. Although the plaintiffs had already seized McCubbin's car to satisfy a judgment for $168.15, the question arose of setting aside a bill of sale which Mrs. Mildred McCubbin, the accused's wife, had to prove her ownership of the car.

In her testimony Mrs. McCubbin stated she had purchased the car under a bill of sale dated November 14, 1936, executed before proceedings had been instituted by plaintiffs. She claimed she had purchased the car from her husband for $500.00, subject to a lien of $426.00 due to the Industrial Acceptance Corporation, and denied knowing anything of the plaintiff's claim when the sale of the car was affected.

His Honor questioned the power of the Division Court to set aside the document (bill of sale) stating that this was a very important point. He reserved judgment for ten days.

Syrian-French Dispute Grows Serious

DAMASCUS, Syria, Feb. 17 — (AP). — The Syrian Cabinet was reported to have decided to resign today as the quarrel between the mandated state and the French Government over Syrian independence assumed serious proportions.

Excitement was mounting throughout the country, particularly in the northern centres of Homs and Hama where riots and general strikes have occurred in recent weeks.

The government's decision to resign was said to have been made when the French High Commissioner informed Premier Jamil Mardam Bey that France had rejected a Syrian request for immediate control of key state services.

The High Commissioner demanded unconditional withdrawal of the Syrian government's request. The Cabinet, which until now had been committed to a policy of co-operation with France, was caught between two fires. It had hoped to conciliate determined Nationalist groups by obtaining some concessions from France.

The French refusal was regarded as having made the Premier's position untenable.

See Open Revolt.

Some observers in Damascus feared the situation might flare into an open revolt against France. There were disquieting reports that unofficial German and Italian aid had been promised to Syrian Nationalists of they took up arms.

The quarrel revolves about France's refusal to ratify the treaty of September, 1936, changing Syria from a mandated state to an independent nation. France already had turned over much of the control of the country to elected native leaders before international developments last year caused the Paris Government to halt the independence plans.

French officials were said to feel they must hold on to the startegic area at the eastern end of the Mediterranean at all costs as a base of operations in case of war.

Madrid Moving Children Out

PERPIGNAN, France, Feb. 17 (AP)—The Spanish government started evacuation of children from Madrid today under a rain of shells from Insurgent guns.

Government reports said six persons were killed and 20 wounded yesterday in bombardments, inflicted daily on the city since Premier Juan Negrin installed his cabinet there Feb. 12.

One hundred children were sent into Albacete province, southeast of Madrid, and many more were to follow as soon as their transfer could be arranged.

There have been several attempts to evacuate the capital during critical moments of the war, but its population remains about the peacetime level of 1,000,000, with troops coming in to replace civilian residents who have reluctantly left their homes.

Large scale reorganization of both government and Insurgent lines continued on the Madrid-Valencia front.

While Insurgent forces were moving down from the conquered province of Catalonia, the government's most cerebrated leaders like Lieutenant Colonel Enrique Lister were returning from the north to resume their commands in the central zone.

General Jose Miaja, supreme commander of the government's land, sea and air forces, visited Cartagena for his first inspection of the naval base since the sea forces were put under his command.

Four-Year-Old Murder Revived By Arrest

SHERBROOKE, Que., Feb. 17. — (CP).—Conrad Audy, who once was held for the fatal shooting of Saul Gregoire, was arraigned today on a charge of murdering the backwoods farmer four years ago.

Appearing in magistrate's court, Audy was remanded to February 21 for further hearing on the charge, arising from the death of the 55-year-old Gregoire, who was shot in the back on a lonely Wolf County road near South Ham, about 20 miles from this eastern townships centre.

The 37-year-old farmer, who lives with his wife and four children at South Ham in a house once owned by Gregoire, was arrested in a dramatic re-opening of the case by Sergeant-Detective Donat Mayer, who travelled 20 miles in an open sleigh in sub-zero temperatures to reach Audy's home.

Export sales of Canadian wheat were placed around 100,000 bushels. Most of the trading in the pit consisted of intermarket spreading, although mills and exporters were credited with minor purchases.

Market Review

TORONTO, Feb. 17 — (CP). — The Toronto market lumbered through a sluggish session to-day and at the close prices were little changed from Thursday's final level. Industrials were up slightly while the mining issues were inclined to forfeit the narrow gains posted earlier in the day. Moderate weakness ruled the western oil group. Volume was down to about 425,000 shares.

Following fair action in the first hour trading turned dull and only 267,000 shares had changed hands by 1 p.m. At noon industrial and gold shares were slightly higher.

Trading was confined mainly to a few of the penny golds, including Stadacona, Gillies Lake, Augite and Broulan and these showed little net change at early afternoon.

In the base metal group Smelters and Nickel posted gains. Noranda lost ⅛.

Steel, senior oil, food and miscellaneous industrials boarded more gains than losses.

NEW YORK, Feb. 17 (AP). — Stocks made some progress in today's market but the rallying vigor of Thursday was lacking.

Opening gains of fractions to more than a point were later reduced or cancelled in many instances. Selling was light throughout. Near the final hour small advances predominated. Transfers were about 700,000 shares.

Damage Action For $25,000 Is Dismissed

An action for $25,000 damages, $887.05 expenses, and costs, was dismissed today in its entirety by Mr. Justice Ainslie Greene of Ottawa, who heard the case in a non-jury sitting of the Supreme Court of Ontario Assizes. The action was brought by Ronald Payne, 10, and his father, Maxwell Payne, Park Street South, against the Allin Ice Company as a result of a fractured leg the boy suffered when a 75-pound block of ice fell on him last July.

Mr. Justice Greene ruled that the action be dismissed with costs against the adult plaintiff, Maxwell Payne, and he assessed damages at $2,400 in event an appeal reversed his decision. Should an appeal court find that the plaintiff should have won the case, he would be awarded $2,400. The plaintiff might, however, appeal against those damages if he thought they were too little.

W. J. A. Fair appeared for the plaintiff and A. L. Elliott, K.C., for the defendant. Mr. Fair said this morning he will in all probability appeal against the finding. He said the claim of $25,000 was made some time ago when it was believed the youngster would be permanently crippled as a result of the accident.

That explained why the suit was for such a large sum, he said.

Doctors Differ.

Physicians' services over a six-months' period for which Dr. J. M. O'Brien submitted a bill for $750, would have been done for $75 by Dr. S. Y. Walsh, according to evidence heard Thursday afternoon. Dr. O'Brien was called by the plaintiff; Dr. Walsh by the defendant.

Dr. O'Brien's testimony was heard during the morning's session, and he described complications that had set in, and said the boy's leg had only about 75 per cent. of its ordinary flexibility at the present time. He expressed the opinion that another two years should see a return to normal.

At the afternoon session, Dr. Walsh testified that he would have followed a different method of procedure than had been carried out by Dr. O'Brien had he been assigned the case.

He also expressed the opinion that in cases of fracture it was usually safe to move a patient from hospital within ten days after the operation had been performed, if home conditions were satisfactory. The youngster was in hospital under Dr. O'Brien's care for several months.

He believed the youngster's leg will be returned to normal strength and ability within two months should proper care and encouragement be given it. The boy is walking again now, and is able to flex his knee properly, he said.

When Defence Counsel A. L. Elliott, K.C., asked the witness whether he understood him to say he did not approve of the method of treatment used by Dr. O'Brien, Mr. Justice Greene ruled the question out, said that Dr. Walsh had made no such statement, but merely that he would have done differently.

Mr. Elliott asked Dr. Walsh if there was any fair tariff established in such cases.

"Yes, sir, there is a tariff set by the compensation board," replied Dr. Walsh. Medical men think it a reasonably fair tariff, although possibly a little below the tariff set by the Medical Association, he told the court.

"What do you think would be allowed in a fracture of this kind?" asked Mr. Elliott.

Compensation Board, $225.

Dr. Walsh said he thought the board might allow in the neighborhood of $100 for a fracture and an additional 50 per cent. for a troublesome case. He estimated other fees for assistants at operations in addition.

"What would be the total fees allowed in this case by the compensation board?" Mr. Elliott asked.

Dr. Walsh was not prepared to say what the figure would be, then estimated that at the outside they would be from $200 to $225.

Mr. Elliott said Dr. O'Brien's fee had been $750. "I won't ask you to comment on that," he said.

In cross-examination by W. J. A. Fair, Dr. Walsh told the court that in his own practice, in the main, he abided by the schedule set by the compensation board. The compensation board tariffs are a little lower than those of the Medical Association, he said.

He admitted he had only examined Ronald Payne once and made one examination of X-rays taken.

"And you have come to your conclusions regarding the boy's condition from that examination?" asked Mr. Fair. Dr. Walsh admitted such to be the case.

He was asked whether he considered Dr. O'Brien had overcharged and said he could not say anything of the kind. He admitted he was not in a position to know what Dr. O'Brien's charge should have been.

Not Criticizing.

In reply to a question he said he was not criticizing Dr. O'Brien's method of treatment, but only revealing what he would have done.

Mr. Justice Greene asked him if the fee schedules cited were not a minimum for people who might reasonably be expected to be able to pay for medical service. The schedule would not be applicable to a millionaire, he agreed with a smile, admitting that a physician's fees are based to a certain degree on a patient's earning power.

"What sort of a fee would you charge a man of Payne's condition, judging him to be a laborer?" asked His Lordship.

"I would not send in a bill for more than $75," replied Dr. Walsh.

In re-examination it was revealed that the patient's hospital bill had been at the rate of 2.25 a day. Dr. Walsh was asked whether that would indicate that the boy had been a ward patient. He said he was not sure of the cost of rooms but believed a public ward room to cost $1.50 a day.

143 Days' of Treatment.

Mr. Fair cross-examined again with reference to the fee charged. He pointed out that the youngster had undergone four operations, including two major operations, repeated attendance from July 11 on into December, and asked Dr. Walsh to tell him just how he arrived at a fee of $75 in view of that knowledge.

Dr. Walsh said that Mr. Payne is a man who is "anything but affluent," and that in his (Dr. Walsh's) practice he was in the custom of establishing fixed charges for work such as attending fracture cases. "It doesn't matter to me if I see a man ten times or forty times, my fee would be the same." The Workmen's Compensation Board only allows a fee of $75 for attending a fracture, he said, adding that if it is shown that there has been a great deal of extra attendance required, the physician would receive an addition al 10%. He reiterated that for attendance at the case in point he would not have charged more than $75.

Mr. Fair pointed out that Dr. H. N. Young, as assistant at one operation and attendance in another capacity at three others had submitted a bill for $55. "What do you think of that?" asked Mr. Fair.

"I think that is very fair," was the answer.

"Then you are going to tell me that you think Dr. O'Brien is entitled to only $20 more for taking charge of these operations, and attending him constantly for 143 days?" Mr. Fair asked.

"I am not saying his services are not worth more. I am just telling what I would charge," was the answer.

Asked if he wanted to retract his statement that he would care for a man through four operations and 143 days of treatment as well as difficult treatment for a fee of $75. Dr. Walsh said he would not retract it. He was not criticizing any doctor's fee, but merely stating that for such a case and for a poor man he would look after him for $75.

Workers Testify.

Both Thomas Westlake and Leonard Riel, employees of the Allin Ice Company, who had been taking ice into a store when the accident occurred last July, said they had warned the boys three times to keep away from the wagon before the ice dropped on young Payne's leg. The children moved back each time, they said, returning to get pieces of ice to eat.

Both agreed that carrying ice with tongs was an "obsolete" method, not as safe as on a bag on one's shoulder because the ice was apt to break with tongs.

Mr. Riel said that he had told the youngsters to keep away from the wagon when he returned to his wagon to take a block of ice into the store. They moved back and he picked up a block, placed it on his shoulder, and stepped back. He stepped on young Payne's toes, and lost his balance, he said. He had not known the youngster was in the vicinity. He made a half turn, attempting to let the block of ice drop on the wagon and it fell against the side of the wagon, bounced to the road, bounced again upon the youngster's leg, he said. He denied the ice had fallen directly to the boy's leg from his back.

Both Robert Allin and John Allin said that carrying ice on one's shoulder was a safer method than with tongs, that tongs were fast becoming things of the past. They are known to be unsafe, they both claimed.

Australian Stevedores Refuse To Load Iron

Wharf laborers at Wollongong, a New South Wales seaport, are quite definite about their refusal to load iron on a steamer bound for Japan. Their objection was based on the feeling that the iron would be used for munitions. After the refusal had lasted several weeks, R. Menzies, atorney-general of the Australian federal government, met at a conference to discuss the situation but the conference proved futile. This picture was made as the laborers waited the arrival of Mr. Menzies at Wollongong.

Ads Produce Results When Store Manager Writes What He Really Thinks

TOLEDO, Feb. 17.—The customers laughed at Gernard Kaser's "ads" at Wooster, Ohio, but stayed to buy his leftovers.

Kaser, advertising manager for a department store, said it was the first time "I really said what I wanted to say about certain items of merchandise."

Among his offerings were:

Women's hats: Why the women passed these up for lots crazier ones last fall we don't know. Are they worth 25 cents?

Sewing kits: Not big enough to hold your mending, and the patterns will make you dizzy—50 cents.

Women's panties: In Easter egg colors—blue, yellow, pink, white. One of those gems born to blush unseen—47 cents.

Part wool panties for girls 2 to 4 years old: Little girls probably don't get as cold as big girls, because these didn't sell—29 cents.

Children's Coughs Quickly Relieved

It is hard to keep the children from taking cold; they will run out of doors not properly clad; have on too much clothing and get overheated and cool off too suddenly; they get their feet wet; kick off the bed clothes at night. The mother cannot watch them all the time, so what is she going to do?

Mothers should never neglect the child's cough or cold, but on its inception should procure a bottle of Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup. It is so pleasant to the taste the youngsters take it without any fuss.

Floradora Will Stirs Squabble Left $600,000

TRENTON, N.J., Feb. 17 — (AP). —A contest over the will of an original Floradora Girl who amassed a $600,000 fortune, mostly from race track holdings, to-day was before the Court of Errors and Appeals, New Jersey's highest tribunal.

Mrs. Matilda Bryan of Margate City, the former Tillie Foreman of Floradora sextette fame, died last June 23 at her winter home in Miami Beach, Fla., at the age of "about 70." Which of two wills should be honored in distributing the estate was the question for decision by the High Court.

Mrs. Helen Boyle, a niece of Mrs. Bryan, was sole beneficiary under a 1934 will, but 14 other relatives sought a share of the estate under a "lost will" purported to have been made in 1937.

Mrs. Boyle's husband, Joseph Boyle, is manager of the Bowie and Marlborough Race Tracks in Maryland, in which Mrs. Bryan held financial interest.

A prerogative court ruling held that Mrs. Bryan had destroyed the 1937 will, and awarded the estate to Mrs. Boyle.

The other relatives contended that Mrs. Bryan "began to develop a growing and increasing animosity towards Helen Boyle" after making the earlier will.

The relatives declared Mrs. Bryan kept her valuable papers in an "old black bag" which she had near her constantly, and that the 1937 will disappeared when the bag was removed from Mrs. Bryan's bedroom by Mrs. Boyle shortly after the former showgirl suffered the stroke that led to her death.

Backing Is Given Azana On Peace

PARIS, Feb. 17.—(AP).— President Manuel Azana of Government Spain won strong support to-day for his efforts to end the Spanish civil war, with Great Britain reported aiding in peace negotiations with the insurgent General Franco.

The Provincial Government of Catalonia, latest to fall to the insurgents, as well as many leaders of the Central Madrid Government, was understood to be backing the president.

Azana, after two days of conferences with the Madrid foreign minister, Julio Alvarez Del Vayo, at the Spanish Embassy in Paris, appeared still convinced that further resistance to the insurgents was futile and that peace should be made on the best possible terms.

British agents, diplomatic quarters said, were negotiating for Azana both at insurgent headquarters at Burgos and through Jose Marie Quinones De Leon, inurgent representative in Paris.

Success or failure appeared to hinge on whether General Franco, who has insisted on unconditional surrender, would give assurances of leniency to the men who have fought him for 2½ years.

Insurgent assurancees to Britain, diplomats said, seemed to have satisfied the Madrid government on demands for dismissal of foreign soldiers from Spain and for a regime free of foreign influence.

In the case of failure of these negotiations and in the event of British and French recognition of Franco as legal ruler of Spain, Azana was reported ready to announce his resignation with an appeal to his people to lay down their arms.

More Operating Deficits

Those who are so keen on the principle of public ownership might find something to shake their faith in the history of the Bessborough Hotel in Saskatoon. It is the property of the Canadian National Railways. According to returns submitted in the House of Commons the cost of the place was $3,567,459.

In the year 1937 the gross receipts were $226,819, and the operating expenses were $244,951, so that meant an operating deficit of $18,131.

In 1938 the gross receipts were a little less than in the opening year, $224,206, and the operating expenses were a little more, $246,970, and of course there could be only one result—the operating deficit was greater, $22,763.

And those figures have no bearing on the interest which will have to be paid on the money invested, and they make no provision for paying off any part of the cost of the premises out of the earnings.

We are quite certain no group of practical hotel operators, seeking opportunity to go into business to the extent of three and one-half millions would have selected Saskatoon as the place where they could safely invest their money and secure adequate returns on it.

And yet that was the deliberate decision of our publicly-owned railway system. Before they proceeded with their plans they must have had reports showing in some way the extent of business which could be anticipated. They would have known the general business trend in that province which has been hard hit by crop failures for a number of years. Whatever surveys may have been made, the result is before us today, and each year shows an operating deficit. And that operating deficit will become part of the total C.N.R. deficit of the railway. It looks like a case of poor judgment where government ownership had gone into a business which would not have appealed at all to experienced men who would have had to spend their own money.

It's a Widespread Fault

During the year 1938 there were almost 7,000 car markers sold at the issuing office at the Chamber of Commerce in Peterborough. So far this year the number of markers disposed of has been 1,064.

The reason is the official ruling that the 1938 markers—miserable things at best—would be accepted as legal and all right until the 31st of March, 1939.

They will not be good after that, not even for a day. But people are apparently waiting until the last so they can have the sensation of standing in a line and waiting, and at the same time complaining about the inadequacy of the staff on hand to take care of the rush of business.

A good many of us are like that. We never get the lawn mower sharpened until the grass begins to look rank; we never get the furnace grates fixed until we feel cold in the house and want a fire; we seldom have anything kind or good to say about people until we hear of their death, and we seldom tell a man he is a good and useful citizen until we hear he is going to leave town.

Some of those traits of character may appear a long way removed from getting car markers in plenty of time, but actually they all spring from the same root—putting things off.

Not a Pleasant Welcome

The death of Pius XI. is credited with having caused a cessation of war talk in Europe—for a few days at least. The new Pontiff, yet to be named, will come upon a burden of office the full weight of which he may not at the moment realize, and not the least of these will be the sharp difference of opinion between the Catholic church and the Fascist state in Italy.

The Jewish question broke in Italy last July when Fascism proclaimed its doctrine of race, thereby following the lead of the Nazi government in urging the superiority of the Aryans and decreeing against marriage with Jews. The church declined to subscribe to any theory of barriers between races, and it had taken the same stand toward Hitler's similar philosophy.

Last fall Fascist laws made marriages between Jews and Italian Aryans illegal. The Vatican claimed at once this could not be recognized, as a church marriage had the same force and effect as a civil ceremony, and the church insisted it had the rignt to marry whom it would.

Then there was the Fascist government opposition to Catholic Action, a layman's organization aimed at educating the social, civil, moral and religious life of the Italian nation. The government said the organization was dabbling in politics.

The Fascist Youth Movement is another. The Vatican claims it has the agreed-upon right, according to the Concordat of 1929, to look after youth's moral instruction in school. The Youth Movement inculcates into the young mind all the principles of Fascism. It is similar to the Hitler plan to Nazify every young man in Germany.

None of these questions has been settled and they are all there waiting for the new Pontiff. Pius XI. lived with them all for months and none of them could have been good company.

Put First Things First

Private members had their innings at Ottawa and an afternoon was given over to a debate on a new Canadian flag, the principal reason being that Cameron McIntosh of North Battleford had placed notice long in advance that he wanted to discuss it. He has discussed it before.

It does seem that parliament loses its sense of proportion. There are a number of items which could much better have taken up the attention of the House. We name here a few of the outstanding conditions which the country faces:

We have not a balanced budget.

We have a railway problem which will not cure itself.

We have the question of deciding how long the country's finances can stand the drain of paying a bonus for producing wheat in Western Canada.

We know well enough that we have an agricultural problem in Ontario because prices of produce are seriously depressed and have been for months.

We have thousands of young men and older men who want a chance to go to work.

We have a relief problem with which every council in an incorporated community across the Dominion is struggling, and which shows little sign of improving.

When we face so many serious questions then we have a right to expect that our members of parliament will reflect in their actions that they are fully cognizant of the conditions under which the people are living. If they changed the flag of the Dominion tomorrow all these problems would be left in exactly the same position.

Saying Very Little

When a man makes an address it is reasonable to suppose he is going to say something; he will argue a point or try to convince his audience that something is either right or wrong. C. A. Magrath spoke to the Enginering Institute of Canada and his subject matter had much to do with the railway situation. Mr. Magrath was once a member of parliament, of the War Trade Board, fuel controller for Canada and chairman of Ontario Hydro-Electric Commission, so he ought to be in a position to say something helpful on the railway question.

Reading such sections of the address as were reported we find that Mr. Magrath is "absolutely against not only our buying the Canadian Pacific Railway, but am equally opposed to our selling to that company our national railways because it would be utter madness to attempt the former and nothing short of disgraceful to do the latter without obtaining for it some reasonable measure of the cost, which is well beyond the horison of the present generation."

Mr. Magrath of course said other things as well, but the quotation provides his text and he did not wander too far from it. It looks as though he had followed the lines of least resistance and employed his time telling of things which he would not do. We do not single Mr. Magrath out particularly because there are so many others who do exactly the same thing. Expounding the idea that a person is not in favor of selling the C.N.R. to the C.P.R., and is not in favor of having the government buy up the C.P.R. and unite it with the C.N.R. is not giving us a new bone on which to bite. It is merely turning the old one over.

Avoid The Old Mistakes

Hon. Eric Cross announces a plan for putting relief families on the land. Care will be taken, we are assured to try and select the right families, those with some previous land experience getting the preference. The families will be equipped with stock and implements to the extent of $600 and seed will be supplied for the first year's planting. Finances will be arranged by federal and provincial governments paying 40 per cent. each and 20 per cent. charged against the community from which the family is taken.

The location will be "vacant farms of 10 to 50 acres in southern Ontario," and right there is a question which we hope Mr. Cross has not overlooked. The farm lands which he finds vacant today have become that way for some particular reason. If the people who had last been operating them had been making a success of farming it is not likely they would have left. They must have pulled out because they could not make it go.

We believe there should be something found out about this before the government tries its present plan. Experts could determine in advance if the fault was in the land itself, and they could also tell what should be done to make it right. At least a casual survey of market possibilities in the district would tell what sort of produce would give the new farmer the best opportunity of success. He should not be expected to go on the land and grow anything he desired apart from what he needed for his own living. He would have a better chance if he were told to keep away from this and that and try something else.

We hope for success for any scheme which will take a family off relief and make it self-sustaining, but at best the chances for this plan succeeding are none too bright. Similar plans have shown a decided falling off within too short a time. For that reason the government should seek to profit by past experience and bring all its expert knowledge to the assistance of those whom it seeks to place under its newest scheme.

He Was a Thrifty Man

Of government publications there are many. In some of the blue books there are so many figures that one could not possibly read them all. If he did we do not know what he could do with the information. We doubt if there are many newspaper offices where they are carefully stored away and kept year after year. One may put aside the one on public accounts believing it will be necessary to refer to it again, but it would need considerable shelving to deal kindly with them all.

We recall the days of the village printing office and the method of disposing of the blue books from the government. The boss found that by putting them in the paper cutter and nipping off the backs he had a supply of sheets which were all right for wrapping single copies of the paper going through the mail but his circulation that way was somewhat limited and the blue books continued to mount.

He was a man from some spot not far from Aberdeen and he knew the village barber was in need of pieces of paper on which to lay the shorn whiskers of the community. A government blue book when cut in two made the right size bit of paper, so the boss undertook to keep the village barber supplied with such paper and in return he paid nothing at all on the occasions when his whiskers were trimmed and after that mutual trade agreement had been negotiated it appeared that the whiskers were more frequently trimmed than previously.

Saturday was a busy day in the barber shop, and there the whiskers of the concessions and the side roads and the whiskers of the village merchants, tradesmen and all such were laid amidst all the studied statistical wealth which government employees could find to fill the pages of their blue books. So we remember the boss in the village printing office on that account. He was one man who always looked pleased when he received another consignment of blue books from the government.

NOTE AND COMMENT

Robbers held up a hotel in Miami and took about $200,000. They had with them a machine gun, but whether it was a made-in-Canada Bren the story did not say.

Scientists have worked out a plan by which farmers can grow a poor quality of soft coal on their land. It would be remarkable if there were any demand for a poor quality of soft coal.

It is claimed that a strike of 500 painters has been averted in Toronto. There may be beautiful parts of Toronto one never sees, but we had no idea there were 500 painters in the place.

New kind of scales have been invented which, if placed on top of a mine, will weigh the amount of or in it. Up in the attic we believe there are share certificates in several mines where these clever scales would have registered at the zero mark.

Loretta Ecclestone of Hamilton went to New York by thumb, and then crossed the Atlantic on the Queen Mary and now she is in jail and will be sent home. The young lady is said to be fond of travelling and has selected a method which does not leave many lumps on the family purse.

FOOLED

(By A.R.K.)

¶ The almanac by which I swear, has left me stranded high and bare, it's fooled me rather bad; it spoke of days when sun would shine, that Spring would come ahead of time, and I was powerful glad.

¶ I started figuring what I'd grow, when we got rid of all the snow, some posies by the door; instead of that the wind turned east, I felt much like a ten-horned beast, and then it snowed some more.

¶ I closed the door that's on my shack, and read again the almanac, my faith grew up some more; for there it said it would be mild, I trusted that like simple child, grew colder than before.

¶ And later on I read 'twould freeze, and then I'd shiver round the knees, and hug the kitchen range; but on that day we had some rain, the almanac, 'twas very plain, had somehow missed the change.

¶ He's fooled me many times this year, to truth he doesn't draw half near, I'd like to tell him so; and yesterday the stuff I read, found not a word where he had said, of fifteen down below.

¶ If what he says about his pills, that cure all kinds of creeping chills, comes from his weather pen; why then I think when I am sick, to things I know I'll have to stick—take salts and senna then.

Just Where Will We Start On This

(From Hansard)

Mr. ROSS: (Moose Jaw): Did he say "or" or "and"?

Mr. STEWART: "Or."

An hon. MEMBER: "Or" means and."

Mr. STEWART: It does not mean "and," in that connection.

Mr. ROSS (Moose Jaw): Did the Prime Minister say "the Department of National Revenue, the Department of Agriculture or the Department of public Works"?

Mr. STEWART: He said ".... take the estimates for the Department of Agriculture, Public Works or National Revenue." That means one department, if it means anything.

An hon. MEMBER: Two.

Mr. STEWART: We have admitted two.

Mr. ROSS (Moose Jaw): What is the matter with three?

Mr. STEWART: I think two is enough.

Mr. LAWSON: We can easily stop it by discussing the item which has just been called.

Mr. STEWART: We ought to go into two departments, according to the understanding, and no more. That is enough to keep us going.

Mr. McLEAN (Melfort): Is there a desire on the part of the acting leader of the opposition to take four departments tonight?

Mr. STEWART: I do not think that question requires an answer at all. If the hon. member was listening he would know I said that the Prime Minister's statement meant one department. Why should I say four departments?

Mr. McLEAN (Melfort): It seems so foolish, when the department is available and when members are willing, that the hon. member who is acting as leader of the opposition should try to delay those departments getting into supply.

The CHAIRMAN: Item 202.

Mr. STEWART: What is that?

The CHAIRMAN: Public works, page 31 of the estimates.

Mr. LAWSON: We have not disposed of item 218 yet?

The CHAIRMAN: Item 218 was to stand.

Mr. STEWART: Are we going to follow out the understanding, or are we going to violate it? There is no desire to hold up the business, but the two departments taken will meet the requirements of the government to have something to deal with and something to discuss.

Mr. LAPOINTE (Quebec East): If the hon. member thinks there is a breach of any understanding, we certainly will not proceed. But really I do not see why we should not go into those departments, in order to be ready to go on with them when the times comes. No hon. member is losing any privilege or any right by permitting that. But if the hon. member insists—

Mr. LAWSON: We are losing the opportunity of discussing matters we want to discuss on going into supply.

Mr. ILSLEY: Do I understand, then, that the Department of National Revenue is before the committee, and that item 218 has been called?

Mr. LAWSON: Yes.

Mr. ILSLEY: And the question is whether items may be called in the Department of Public Works.

Mr. STEWART: Yes.

Mr. ILSLEY: I presume the Prime Minister thought he had intimated that he wanted to go into the three departments named, but I do not know.

The CHAIRMAN: Item 202.

Mr. STEWART: Mr. Chairman, I renew my objection to the taking up of item 202, and say we should go back to the item in the Department of National Revenue. Surely these two departments will furnish ample material for discussion.

Mr. LAPOINTE (Quebec East): All right, then.

The CHAIRMAN: Did the minister call another item in the Department of National Revenue?

Mr. ILSLEY: No.

Mr. LAWSON: The minister can go back to item 218.

Mr. ILSLEY: We can discuss item 218, then, if hon. members wish.

Some hon. MEMBERS: Carried.

SONS OF THE MANSE.

The third reunion dinner of the London Society of Sons of the Scottish Manse was held at the Waldorf Hotel, London. The Rt. Hon. Lord Aimess presided over a representative gathering. The Society continues to grow in number, and now reaches a membership of 64. The toast of "The Manse" was proposed by Vice-Admiral J. A. G. Troup, C. B., and was responded to by the Rev. Joseph Moffat, while that of the "Glasgow Society" was proposed by the chairman who, in eloquent language, told of the birth of the Glasgow Society in 1790 with a very few members, and how it had grown to be a beneficial institution to the widows and orphans of ministers of the Church of Scotland. The Rev. Dr. Archibald Fleming (a past president of the Glasgow Society) adequately replied. The Rt. Hon. Lord Macmillan, president elect, proposed the toast of "The Guests," to which Sir Robert Archibald replied.—(Edinburgh Scotsman)

A GAS TAX EXPERIENCE.

JUST THE OTHER DAY Saskatchewan began an interesting experiment in the collection of the gasoline tax. As in Manitoba, farmers in Saskatchewan are allowed to obtain gasoline tax-free for use in farm operations. Hitherto both provinces have required the farmer to pay the tax on buying any gasoline and then to apply for a rebate on the portion used in farm work.

Complaints have been frequent that this tax-free gasoline is used illegally for other than farm purposes. To check such abuses, Saskatchewan now is allowing farmers to buy a special purple-colored gasoline without paying the tax at all.

If motorists or truck drivers are found using this purple gasoline for other than farm purposes, their cars and trucks may be impounded for six weeks or two months.—(Winnipeg Tribune)

Correspondents Discuss Various Topics

DOES PETERBOROUGH NEED A HOSPITAL?

Editor Examiner:

Sir,—The City Council are to be congratulated on their vision at this time in deciding to acquiesce in the request of the Nicholls Hospital Board to present a bylaw to the people interested for an appropriation for an extension to our hospital.

Think of the needs of our city!

We need a new city hall, a new post office building, a new city market, a civic community centre and ice arena. When are we going to begin to get these things? And the addition to the hospital is most necessary of all! Are we hoping that someone will give us some of these necessities?

We are told that we cannot have a new Post Office and Customs building because of lack of unanimity on a site. Possibly a more real reason is that we have so far shown no desire or ambition to go out after the things we need ourselves! Our vision is narrow and shortsighted; our initiative is a negative quantity. Getting along with things as they are, we have become almost decrepit and out-of-date.

The proposed extension is to cost an extra mill on the dollar. Four dollars on a four thousand dollar home, or eight on one of more pretentious type; the whole to be paid up in thirty years. Yet we balk at such heavy (?) expenditure! Just about what we would spend on a weekend visit to see the Maple Leafs play at the Toronto Arena, or an afternoon tea or bridge!

When are we going to waken up!

If we are content to live under present conditions, the future of our city is uncertain. Our civic pride will soon disappear. We will become a city in the backwoods, and known as such throughout the Dominion, instead of being one of the most progressive industrial centres in all Canada. Yet we have it in our power to make the future glorious. All that is needed is a little vision.

Yours for a finer civic spirit, a more cooperative attitude, and a nobler civic pride.

ALFRED T. BARR.

BUYING AT HOME

Editor Examiner:

Sir,—Now and then there is something said about dealing with the merchants in your own community. We are suffering right here in this city because a number of people do not follow that plan. I know of homes which have been largely furnished by purchases made outside of Peterborough, and I also know of women who will go to Toronto to do their personal shopping.

Let me give a few examples of what the people at home will do for you. I happened to be in the butcher shop where we deal and the telephone rang. It was easy enough to hear the conversation and know just what it meant. A customer had ordered a roast and it has not been delivered in time for the noon meal, although I found it had been ordered too late in the morning. The butcher at once suggested he would send for it and at the same time provide chops, steak or tenderloin which could be prepared in time for dinner. And he attended to that at once.

A friend of mine had an overcoat the lining of which did not seem to be wearing as well as he had reason to hope for. He took it to his tailor to have it fixed, and was informed that he had come to the right place and the repairs would be made at once. They were and when he went to call for his coat he asked what the charges were, and was informed there was no charge at all. The lining should have lasted longer.

I know a man not far from my home who had some plumbing changes made in his house which he was remodelling. Yes, have your joke if you will about the plumber always forgetting his tools and then charging you for the time he takes to go and get them, but listen to this one. It had not been an easy job as the house was old and called for a lot of work. About six weeks after something went wrong with the works and there was a hurried call for the plumber. He went over the situation thoroughly and started to work. It took him quite a while on two days to get the thing the way he wanted it. When it was all through the owner of the place was told there would be no charge as the new system should have worked right from the start and kept on working that way.

Where else would people get service of the kind I have been telling about? I think it is time more people woke up to the fact that the home merchant is square and honorable and ready to stand behind each deal he makes.

• The Jews Wish to Live Together

IN a recent news bulletin published in your paper, writes a Jew in the Montreal Star, you quoted Rosenberg, a Nazi, as stating that Madagascar could easily hold a Jewish population of sixteen million people. Although Rosenberg did not give this idea with the view of helping the Jews, as a Jew I am naturally interested, and recognize some of the potentialities of such a plan. While the place itself is unimportant, the idea of all Jews being together as a united race for once, is certainly very appealing.

In regard to the fact that most Jews are not farmers it appears that they are able to adapt themselves to such a situation very quickly, as shown in Palestine, while much has been said to the contrary we did do much to improve it and we should be able to do the same in any other country.

When in pursuit of the above idea, I looked up Madagascar to find out as much as possible about it, I found that it is situated in a belt in which white men could exist then too I found that it is famous for its vanilla, in which growth, it leads the world. This seems to indicate fairly good soil, but as I am not a geologist, I am unable to say whether or not this would prove a suitable home for the Jews. While not stating the above island specifically as the home for the Jews, the idea itself is good for at last the Jews would be together and our ageless wandering would be terminated, and after all unity with hardship is far better than hardships, separated from our fellow people.

A HOPEFUL JEW.

• Using Snares Is Dangerous

HOW few people realize the terrific loss of "small" wild-animal life" caused by the neglect of the amateur and of most professional trappers in leaving their wire snares set after the proper seasons have come to their close. That question is asked by H. A. Yeo in the Montreal Star.

These snares remain in position during the following closed season and until they are covered over by future snow, they remain a distructive snare, and no doubt millions of partridges, hares, foxes, et ceters, have been caught by the neglect to remove or unsetting these wire snares at the proper time. Many a time I've come across the ravages of these wire snares and many a time I've removed or hooked them up, out of position. As many of us are aware there are also the large size wire snares left set, for deer and in former years caribou were often captured by this method. One of my friends once walked right into one of one of these large looped wire snares, that had been set for deer—with the result, that he was hoisted some eight feet from the ground by the spring pole to which had been attached this wire snare and it was just a case of luck that he had a companion close-by to free him from his close call to a terrible death.

Poachers are still setting these wire snares along the deer trails especially where they travel through swampy moss sections, and in many cases in September, deer so captured are generally found in a decomposed state.

No doubt improvements could be made in educating our politicians and poachers in the essentials of brains governing our game protective service — too much attention and expenses towards zoological affairs while our forests and streams are being depleted through defective protection.

A Bible Message For Today . . . .

Let us choose to us judgment: let us know among ourselves what is good. . . . Therefore hearken unto me, ye men of understanding: far be it from God, that he should do wickedness; and from the Almighty, that he should commit iniquity. For the work of a man shall he render unto him, and cause every man to find according to his ways. Yes, surely God will not do wickedly, neither will the Almighty pervert judgment.—Job xxxiv, 4, 10-12.

✧ ✧ ✧

I speak after the manner of men because of the infirmity of your flesh: for as ye have yielded your members servants to uncleanness and to iniquity unto iniquity; even so now yield your members servants to righteousness unto holiness. For when ye were the servants of sin, ye were free from righteousness. What fruit had ye then in those things whereof ye are now ashamed? for the end of those things is death. But now being made free from sin, and become the servants to God, ye have your fruit unto holiness, and the end everlasting life.—Rom. vi, 19-22.

"JUST ANOTHER."

Sessions of the Alberta Assembly, from the news-writers' point of view, are as drab and dismal things nowadays as the sessions of legislatures usually are. It wasn't that way two years ago—and the year before when the newspapers of all Canada and some of the States were represented in the Press Gallery and some of the English newspapers had their correspondents there.

They are still represented, of course, but only by the watchers to whose nets all news is fish. In other words the Alberta Assembly is just news, its sessions are just sessions and its government is just another government, as good as most and better than some.—Calgary Albertan.

SHORT SERMONS.

ROYALTY in general has never cared for the long sermon. Queen Victoria is a case in point. She issued no orders, but she presented the Savoy chapel with a pulpit glass whose sands were timed to run out in 18 minutes. Many a preacher must have eyed that glass with considerable nervousness in the course of his sermon.—Manchester Guardian.

Rev. P. L. Jull Nominated ConferenceHead

Peterborough Presbytery of the United Church of Canada held its first quarterly session for 1939 in Knox church on Thursday. Rev. M. C. Parr presided as chairman of the Presbytery and Rev. V. E. Zufelt acted in the place of the secretary, Rev. J. R. Trumpour of Cavan, who is sick with the flu. Rev. H. McConnell of Richardson, Sask., who is visiting the city, and William McLauchlin of Havelock, were made corresponding members and introduced

Three address on evangelism were given at the morning session, under the direction of Rev. E. W. Young, D.D., chairman of the committee of social service and evangelism. A series of recommendations from Edmonton presbytery, designed to meet modern conditions with an aggressive and vital evangel, were used as a basis. Rev. J. R. Wilkinson of Bridgenorth spoke on "The Need of an Evangel" and described the many needy evangelising; the unchanged, the indifferent, even the church, the unemployed and scholars in school, were fields fo revangelism. A vital passion for the redemption of the lost, was his closing plea.

"The Content of the Message," was the subject assigned to Rev. M. I. Robinson of Norwood. It must always be a glad tidings of hope; but do not ignore the awful tragedy of sin. Where sin appears the Christian must rally to the attack. The way out was through "Repentance" through faith; being sorry enough for our sins to quit them. Rev. Andrew McLauchlin of Havelock closed the series with a resume of methods to meet the changed conditions of today. The method must be one that would reach the people. Religion must go out of doors. We need "evangelistic men" more than any evangelistic "method," he said. Ultimately the beginning must be with the individual and the group in the church; and with the even widening social implications of the Kingdom, the evangelistic method will include a new technique to achieve the mind of the Master to supplement older methods of effort. He cited successful use of mass evangelism, which had added 40 converts in small area; and the method of quiet, individual appeal, which has added 32 to the communion roll at one time. He believed the church was ready to respond to vigorous evangelistic effort.

The Presbytery's nominee for the office of president of next annual conference, to be held at Kingston in May, was Rev. F. L. Jull, B.A., 13 years minister of Brooklin United church, and secretary of Oshawa Presbytery. Rev. Andrew McLauchlin made the nomination and was supported by Revs. E. W. Rowland and M. I. Robinson.

Report On Remits

A very important report was presented by Rev. G. S. Easton, M.A., for the committee which has studied the three Remits sent down to all Presbyteries on proposed changes in the "Manual," or constitution of the United Church. The remit on the term of office of the Moderator, which would elect two moderators, each to serve one year, instead of one to serve two years, and which would enable ministers in the pastorate, missionaries on furlough, and other types of leaders to hold office, was unanimously endorsed upon recommendation of the committee.

The second remit was also endorsed by the committee and Presbytery unanimously, and will permit more expeditious settlement of ministers between annual conference meetings. The words "the settlement committee shall have authority to effect settlement in an emergency during the year will be added. At present ministers changing between conference are only "stated supplies" until the annual meeting of the settlement committee of conference.

The third remit has occasioned great comment and debate. It arose out of a request of the Home Mission Board for legislation to give the transfer committee power to transfer candidates out of their own conferences into missionary areas, where there was need. . . for two years after ordination. The students in the church colleges had objected that it gave too much power to the transfer committee, though Emmanuel College students were favorable to the principle if it were provided that a return to the home area was guaranteed after the two years. Others in favor, thought it only right that every ordinand should serve for a time in a missionary area, and the beginning of his ministry was the best time to do it. The committee was of the opinion that the students lacked neither courage nor consecration. On its recommendation agreement was recorded with the principle of the remit but unanimously voted against its adoption in its present form, because of the lack of provision for return of the men to home areas after two years.

Guests of Ladies of Church

Members were guests of the ladies of Knox church at the noon meal, after which Rev. M. I. Robinson conveyed the thanks of the brethren. Mrs. John Allan, president of the W.A., replied. During the meal, Rev. G. S. Easton presented the report of the missionary and maintenance committee, which will be printed and sent out to all charges In the Dominion only $17,384 remains to be raised to balance the budget for 1938. Peterborough Presbytery, for the second year, was the only one in the Bay of Quinte Conftrence to record an increase. Committees all met during a recess and reports were considered at the afternoon session, which was opened with prayer by Rev. H. McConnell of Saskatchewan.

An attempt will be made to secure one of the eastern delegates, now visiting Canada after the Madras conference, to be followed by an exchange of pulpits in the interest of Missions.

In the absence of Rev. Andrew McLauchlin at a funeral Rev. A. L. Sico presented the report on Evangelism and social service. All Christian people were called upon to show by their action their appreciation of of the value the Lord's Day as a day of worship. Strong approval was given of the Lord's Day Act in its present form; and the attorney general of the province and the Dominion Department of Justice will be urged to enforce it, especially the section 6 relating to Sunday amusements and commercialized sports.

Opposition was again recorded to the new attempt to legalize sweepstakes in Canada for hospital purposes.

Lenten Services

Special Lenten services, preferably co-operatively with other denominations, were recommended to all charges, and pre-Easter preparatory classes endorsed.

The home mission report, presented by Rev. H. Wilkinson, recommended grants to Apsley, Hiawatha and Wesley, which were approved.

The church property report, presented by H. G. Walker of Peterborough, sent back for more information the request of the managers of Mount Pleasant United church on Cavan charge, for permission to sell the brick and site of the old Methodist church, burned down.

Presbytery will promote actively the new church paper, "The United Church Observer," which begins March first; and will co-operate with its new editor, Rev. A. J. Wilson, an ex-president of the Bay of Quinte Conference.

Notifications of applications to enter the ministry of the United Church of Canada were received from Vancouver presbytery for Rev. Frederick W. Norwood, the celebrated English congregationalist; from Winnipeg for Rev. W. C. Graham, D.D., of Chicago University, to return to the United Church, as he is principal-elect of the United College at Winnipeg, and from Guelph Presbytery for the Rev. Earle G. Dale, B.A., B.Th., of the Ontario Baptist Convention.

Cavan and St. James' invited the Presbytery for next session in May, and the executive will decide.

R. J. Kidd moved a vote of thanks to the minister and officials of Knox church and thanks to the organist of the church.

Millbrook W.M. Society Honors Juniors

(Examiner Correspondence.)

MILLBROOK, Feb. 17.—Mrs. R. J. McMahon was hostess for the February meeting of the W.M.S. of Grace Presbyterian Church, at her new apartment, King street centre, on Wednesday at 3 p.m., the attendance being most encouraging, and the president, Mrs. S. E. Eakins, in the chair.

Following the call to worship, Mrs. J. R. Thompson read the lesson and prayer was offered by Mrs. H. Seaton, after which the program committee, Mrs. Thompson and Miss Ruth Thorndyke, took charge. A questionnaire on the books of Genesis and Exodus preceded the passing of the Surprise Box, for the loose change offering, and the presiding officer followed with two readings, "Articles Telling Tales," and "Good Saint Valentine."

The new study book, on India, was introduced by a talk on the chief geographical features of that country by Miss Thorndyke, who, in conjunction with the president, covered the first chapter. Miss Agnes Johnston ,treasurer, made her report, and followed this with a talk on "They first gave themselves to the Lord," and the meeting proceeded to arrange for the Auxiliary's part in the World's Day of Prayer to be held in St. Andrew's church on Friday, February 24. A quilting will be held at the home of Mrs. McMahon on February 28. An unusual feature in Wednesday's meeting, the Junior Girls' Auxiliary, arrived in a body, when the certificates purchased by the seniors at $5 each, were presented two charter members, Mary Eakins and Ada Peers, by Miss Johnston and Mrs. McMahon, the president, Miss Muriel Ball, expressing the junior's gratitude for this practical help, which is to be continued each year until $25 has been paid in, when a gold seal will be attached to each certificate purchased, and presented to a junior member.

The In Memorian certificate, arranged for at a previous meeting was presented to Miss Johnston by Mrs. Seaton ,and it was announced that the girls will hold a work meeting at the home of Helen Ellsworth on Wednesday, February 22, at 8 p.m., when a dainty quilt top for a crib, given the girls by the hostess, will be proceeded with to its completion.

A talk on hospital work in Formosa was given by Betty Smith, and the secretary, Colleen Blair, read a letter from the Presbyterian officer, telling the girls what they are expected to provide for their bale: a complete layette, three towels, stockings, toys, games, etc.

The Auxiliary will hold a baking sale in the community waiting room on March 4, and the program committee for the next meeting is Mrs. J. N. McGill, Mrs. R. J. McMahon and Mrs. L. W. Larmer. During the social hour at the close ,the hostess served homemade candy, the making of this confection being something for which she has established a well-deserved reputation, and the vote of thanks was sponsored by Mrs. Eakins and Mrs. Seaton.

Postal Activities Are Reviewed In Illustrated Booklet

As a means of developing goodwill in its public relations, the Post Office Department of Canada has issued an illustrated review of postal activities in this country, entitled "A Modern Mercury". It explains and traces the business of receiving and delivering letters and parcels, the production of postage stamps, the recent expansion of the Department's service by the establishment of the air mail wing, and outlines its financial branches represented by money orders, postal notes and its savings bank, with further information regarding the special delivery service, rural directories and advice in avoiding common errors that tend to obstruct the Department's efficiency.

In the foreword written by Hon. J. C. Elliott, recently retired Postmaster General he refers to the relations between the Department and the public as follows: "For some time past the Post Office Department has endeavored to make known to its ten million shareholders throughout the country, the varied and widespread postal facilities provided for their use. It has been gratifying to observe that there has been an awakening of the public realization of the particularly intimate relationship existing between the Post Office and the people in their daily contacts.

Not Complete Story

"A Modern Mercury" is not intended to be a complete story of every phase of postal activity, but it does depict some interesting aspects of the various stages of mail handling and other details of the public service established and operated for public benefit. It is hoped the reader will gain a wider knowledge and appreciation of the workings and problems of the Post Office in providing a Postal Service."

First copies of "A Modern Mercury" have been received by Postmaster Lacheur. It provides such incidental information that more than 14,000,000 money orders were issued last year with an aggregate value of approximately $144,000,000; also 7,000,000 postal notes amounted to more than $12,000,000; and the Post Office Savings Bank has more than $22,000,000 on deposit, and to the credit of thrifty Canadians providing for their future.

LOCAL ACES WIND UP DISTRICT PUCK SCHEDULE WITH A 6-5 WIN

Beat Omemee Blacks Hawks In O's Arena

Peterborough Aces wound up their District Hockey League schedule in first place last night with a 6-5 win over Omemee Black Hawks on the latter's ice. The O's were minus T. Parson and Gilbert, while the Aces were without O'Leary and A. Cournyea. These same teams clash in loop playoffs in Omemee Monday and Wednesday, goals counting, winner to go into O.H.A. intermediate "B" playdowns.

It was a fast, even tussle most of the route on good ice, before a small crowd of rooters. It was 1-0 for Aces in the first and 5-4 for them going into the third. A goal was awarded Omemee when Vitarelli threw his stick to stop one in the second. Most of the action came in an open middle chukker, but the third heat was a hard-fought one also, with Omemee scoring the only goal as they ganged up.

Game Stars

Fisher, F. Parsons, Weir, Jamieson and Prete all turned in a good performance for the homesters; with Currie and Heal sparkling for the Williams' gang. Play was hard but not exceptionally rough as these squads battled it out on even terms over most of the route. The Aces maintained their unbroken string of victories as the schedule for the season finished up. Millbrook and Lindsay had previously been eliminated.

The teams:

Aces: Goal, Currie; defence, Vitarelli and White; centre, Cournyea; wings, Heal and Wright; alternates, Hill, Mortimer, Connelly.

Omemee: Goal, Fisher; defence, J. Williams and Prete; centre, F. Parsons; wings, Weir and Jamieson; alternates, Brockley, Ellis and Brooks.

Referee—Lou LeBarr.

Fan Starts To Berate Frank Calder Of N.H.L., Prexy Takes Off Glasses And Ready To Fight

MONTREAL, Feb. 17.—(CP). — Frank Calder, president of the National Hockey League, almost came to blows with a fan here last night as Boston Bruins trounced Montreal Canadiens 5-1. The incident happened at a particularly stormy part of the third period.

Four fans gained the ice and started to stalk Referee Norm Lamport when the official banished Toe Blake for a minor penalty and Stew Evans with a 10-minute misconduct for protesting the penalty to Blake. Another fan started to berate Calder and threatened the N.H.L. president with bodily harm.

Whereupon, Calder stripped off his glasses and prepared for action. Intervention of ushers prevented materialization of the battle.

Monopoly On Chicago's Scoring Held By Thompson, Gottselig

By Central Press Canadian

At the top or near the top in goal scoring in the National league throughout the present season has been Johnny Gottselig, usually referred to as the "hungry-looking Russian." Johnny has been patrolling a left wing post for Chicago Black Hawks for a good many years now, and a glance at the record discloses the fact that if he should top his team again in flashing the red light it will mark the fifth time he has turned this handy trick.

Leading a team in scoring five times is not an unprecedented feat in the N.H.L., but it's not happened so often that the league is overrun with players who've turned the trick. In fact there are just three now in active service who have accomplished it, Johnny's teammate with the Hawks, now also his manager, Paul Thompson, the perennial record-breaker, Nels Stewart of the Americans, and Charlie Conacher of Detroit.

JOHNNY GOTTSELIG
...headed for his fifth year of goal-scoring leadership with Chicago Black Hawks...maybe.

The Gottselig-Thompson angle brings out an interesting point. Since the 1929-30 season either one of these two great left wings has topped Black Hawk scorers. Beginning with that year, Gottselig took it for three in a row, then Thompson took it twice, then Johnny got it one more year, and for the past three season it's been Thompson. With managerial cares resting on his shoulders it appears as if Paul's days of showing the Hawks the way to the enemy goal are over, but unless Mush March or Diz Desilets, his closest pursuers, put on a spurt, Calgary Johnny should make it an even 10 years of Gottselif-Thompson monopoly.

That Record-Breaker Again!

Among the many records that cling to the large person of "Old Poison" Nels Stewart is his feat of being leading goal-getter with three different National league teams. As everyone knows by now, after the reams of cop that have been tossed off about this remarkable centre ice star, Nelson broke in with Maroons in the 1925-26 season, led them to a Stanley cup triumph, secured the most valuable player award, and led the circuit in scoring...all in one and the same season. His goal total that year was 34, and for the next five years he paced that boisterous crew in getting the necessaries for winning games.

NELS STEWART
...he's been with three N.H.L. teams and led them all in punching home goals.

Trade winds, ill winds for Montreal, blew and "Big Sam" another cognomen applied to this high-scoring perpetual, found himself with Boston Bruins. He stayed with the Hub team three seasons and as a parting gesture, in his last year in Beantown, 1934-35, he sank the puck behind enemy goal-keepers 21 times to tie Dit Clapper, now a defence star, for team leadership.

For the past two years this same Mr. Stewart has been Red Dutton's best sniper. And the end is not yet. When the figures are run up at the close of the present campaign there's every indication that "Old Poison" will be the No 1 Amerk. Outside of the fact that Red Dutton will probably keep a tight hold on him until old age overtakes him, Stewart could probably add another club to the list of those he's led in his illustrious career.

Stewart's feat of leading one team, the Maroons, six times in succession, is another near-record. In the same 1925-26 season that the Maroon centre began his string the late Howie Morenz took over the scoring leadership with Canadiens and the two kept pace until 1931-32, when Stewart with 22 goals was four behind his teammate Dave Trottier, while Morenz established the record of seven seasons in a row of team leadership in sniping

Great Leafian Days

Charlie Conacher, making a great attempt to scale the heights again with Detroit Red Wings this year, asserted his team leadership five times while with the Maple Leafs as a member of the famous "Kid Line," one of the most potent trios in hockey history. In five of the six season between 1930-31 and 1935-36 Chuck led the rest of the Leafs in sagging the twine, missing only in 1923-33 when his left wing partner on the high-scoring line, Harvey Jackson, took over.

CHARLIE CONACHER
...used to set his sights on at least 30 goals a season, and showed the Maple Leafs how.

The last year of his supremacy Conacher was forced to share honors with Bill Thoms, now with Chicago. Standout feature of the Big Bomber's leadership was the fact that in his first four team-leading years he was credited with more than 30 goals a season, a mark even Stewart or Morenz were unable to match. They applied the Big Bomber tag to Charlie with good reason.

Another famous team leader in sniping was Bill Cook, former Ranger right wing, acclaimed by many the best man ever to play that position, now managing Cleveland Barons in the International-American league. For five years in a row, 1928-29 through 1932-33, Bill set the example for the Patrick pucksters, as well as turning the trick in 1926-27. He was prevented from adding the latter to his five consecutive years by Frank Boucher, centre on the great Cooks-Boucher line, who took the honors in 1927-28. Bill's string of five was stopped by his brother and left wing on the line, Bun Cook.

Fans In Toronto Paying $10 To See Squash

By Sydney Gruson
(Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

TORONTO, Feb. 17 — (CP). — Squash racquets, almost unknown to the average Canadian sports follower, goes on view at its best before a favored few this week-end when the Toronto Badminton and Racquet club stages the first Canadian open squash championships.

It is too bad from the standpoint of the A.C.S.P. (average Canadian sports follower) that it's necessary to charge as high as $10 a ticket admission. But spectator accommodation is so scarce that this top was needed to gather expenses. Otherwise a lot of people could get their first look at a game combining all the ingredients of a swift, crowd-pleasing sport.

Because the game is so strenuous and because of a lack of seating accommodation and the high cost of building courts, the game has not grown in public esteem as rapidly as its addicts believe it should. Inauguration of an open tourney, brainchild of Tim Gray, professional at the Badminton and Racquet club, has been taken as a step in the right direction to make it better known.

Squash players rate the game tops. Played on a four-sided court, which cost an average of $4,000 each, it requires speed, condition and a good eye with the general idea being to get a small rubber ball back to the front wall without letting it bounce more than one. A small-surfaced racquet with a long, thin handle is the player's only weapon.

The ball, after hitting the front wall, can be played off either of the other three, making for a variety of shots probably unequalled in any other game. Being double-jointed probably helps.

Started Back in 1905

Developed out of racquets, an even more expensive sport to start, squash was started in Toronto in 1905, with the first Canadian amateur championships in 1912. There are 16 courts in Toronto now but until somebody figures a way to allow more people to see it, squash is unlikely to draw the general public.

In England, where the game is extremely popular, experiments have been carried out with a "transparent" court—built, with the back wall of glass, opaque from one side and transparent from the other. With the brick wall back to the courts here, the galleries must sit above and to the rear of the court.

Les Cummings, U.S. national pro champion, Al Ramsay, the open champion, Gray and Charley Cutts of Toronto head the professionals who will compete for cash and the title. The amateurs, topped by Hamilton's Hubert Martin, Canadian champion, and Cam Radcliffe and Jack McCausland of Toronto, will play for the experience and love of it.

The prices have been scaled at $10 for the first row, $5 for the second and $2 from the third back. The tournament has been assurred of a sellout house, even at these prices.

CURLING

By HERB MARTIN

Eight o'clock to-night is the zero hour for accepting entries for the "Neill Trophy" bonspiel. At the time of writing this article we have 35 rinks entered. It would not surprise us if before night it would reach the all-time record of 40 entries.

We believe a number of mixed rinks from Bobcaygeon are coming down to-morrow night.

To-night will finish up our schedule games and maybe, we use that one very carefully, we will be able to then announce the group winners.

For some years past several of our lady curlers take in the annual bonspiel (irons only) for the "Sewell" Trophy played at the Seigniory Club, Que., and this year will be no exception. The party leaves on Wednesday and will return the following Monday morning. The three rinks entered are:

Miss M. Patterson, Mrs. C. Westbrocke, Miss C. Littlefield, Mrs. R. M. Waddell, skip.

Mrs. M. Rishor, Mrs. R. Turner, Miss H. Munroe, Miss H. Fanning, skip

Miss L. Lyle, Mrs. D. Lawrie, Mrs. G. Wood, Mrs. O. DeGraw, skip

We noticed the other evening a report stating that Jimmy Richmond, Howard Clegg and Alex Archibald took first place in a carpet ball competition We're afraid any further comments by us would be censored, so we'll skip it.

Digging Up the Local Dirt With the Odd Chuckle or Two

By CEC. PERDUE

Benny Swartz has just returned from a visit to Miami, and he saw plenty of Jim Ellis and Mick Magee, local puckists in the Grapefruit League. Says they're tanned like cow hides and playing good hockey, though not drawing too much dough—there being too many counter attractions in that popular resort. But Mick and Jim, with a few other players there, have a racket to pick up a few bucks on the side. They teach skating at a buck an hour—and Benny declares it is amazing how many of their students turn out to be beauteous belles! Hockey fans there drop around to a game in the evening wearing white flannels and open shirt—whereas we luckless ones at home must done red flannels and four shirts to weather a tussle.

And an item from a Baltimore sheet: "Norm Calladine, Oriole centreman, is doing an excellent job of paddling his own canoe in the Eastern League race. With a goal and two assists in the Birds' 6-4 triumph over Hershey, the clever pivotman snared the lead in the point-making derby. Ned Vitarelli, midget winger, pulled a fast one on Tony Graboski, Hershey skater. Shifty Ned side-stepped as Tony attempted a vicious bodycheck and allowed the Cub to sail into the boards with a thud that must have been heard in Pikesville."

Just Gobs Of Color

All is in readiness for the colorful ice carnival at the Brock St. winter gardens tonight, and the pageant should pack the people in. It was a great success last year, and should be better this time. Big troupe of gaily-bedecked ice artists (the best in the country) will be swinging it on painted ice to music in a breath-taking panorama—the affair being sponsored by the Peterborough Winter Sports Committee. Sonja Henie has drawn thousands to every performance of figure skating she puts on across the U.S. and Canada, so the flock of classy femmes and fellows who will show here tonight should draw many hundreds. It's the ice event of the year in this town.

An exhibition puck tilt of interest will be put on at 8.15 tonight in Lakefield, the local Aces playing the Legionnaires, with a return joust here later. The Aces finished atop the District Puck Loop schedule up around Omemee, while the Legros' gang copped a playoff berth in their O.H.A. grouping. Both clubs hope to go somewhere in the intermediate "B" race this year, and both squads — which played as the Southenders and Lakefield in our Senior City League last year—have bolstered this season. Lakefield plays good orthodox hockey whilst the Aces stage a streamlined ganging-up style. Beaverton's tilt in Lakefield was postponed till Feb. 23rd.

Don't Worry About Eddie

Last few times we were in Belleville, the rumor reached us that Skipper Eddie Thomas of the Redmen was through as puck pilot in the town of Bella Villa—that he wouldn't have the club next year. Hockey interests there planned to oust him, so 'twas said. They felt he could have lined up a better team and that the Redmen (highly thought of at the start of the season) should have made group playoffs. The Redmen were an odd outfit, a mixture of kids and veterans from all over the district, raking in so much a performance, and they seldom practiced or seldom iced the same club twice in a row. But they were battlers. And somehow we suspect very strongly that the canny Mister Thomas—who generally gets the best of the Petes in schedule meeting arrangements—will still be parked in the driving seat for the Redmen when another cold spell rolls around.

* * * * * *

Quinte columnist writes the fix was not on as the Petes earned their 9-4 group final o'er the Fliers. Believes the locals can take the Kingston winner too and go into Ontario finals. Boosts the work of our second line, strong defence and starry goaltender. "Some person," says he, "surely gummed up the works and instead of having over 2,500, less than 900 witnessed the tussle, which was a thriller from gong to gong. However, as a team and for the most part individualy the Petes were undoubtedly the class of the group. The Fliers were completely and hopelessly outclassed." He goes on to say the three-team setup didn't pan out too well and that the Airmen next year will seek a berth in the Kingston loop while the Petes may return to senior "A" competition—leaving Belleville, the scribe wonders, sitting where?

* * * * * *

Forgive And Forget

Much of the fans' indignation at seeing the Petes' third game switched to Belleville seems to be subsiding—from what peeved folks of Wednesday were saying last night and today. Knowing the Petes took a financial beating, that they were partly pushed into the agreement, and that they didn't lay down at any time in their playoffs, the Petes were more or less forgiven by the real puck followers here. Attitude of the paying customers seems to be: "Don't do it again, regardless of the Belleville pressure," and the Petes' slant appears to be: "Don't worry, we lost plenty on that mistake!" Since the locals will now meet the Kingston-R.M.C. winnah in senior "B" playdowns (and since that series in Kingston will run all next week) the locals have lined up an exhibition fray with Toronto Post Office team. It will be here Monday evening.

* * * * * *

Prince of Wales and King Edward made the playoffs in the School Hockey League. Former club won four and tied one for nine points, whilst the K.E. chaps lost one to get eight points. Central had three wins and a draw—with a loss—to garner seven points in a tight finish. As Queen Mary and Queen Alex tied with a win and tie each, but three reverses. King George didn't yank out a victory in the schedule. The home-and-home playoffs start tomorrow morn at 10 in All Saints' rink, return being at the Brock next week sometime.

Dese, dem and dose: Local Aces ended their schedule with a 6-5 win in Omemee last night; loop playoffs are Monday and Wednesday nights in Omemee between these teams....Winner goes into the O.H.A. intermediate "B" playdowns....Some church hockey dope in tonight....At six Monday eve, St. Peter's and Canucks have a southend bantam semi-final, a sudden-death game; and at seven that night, Westenders end their schedule 'gainst King Edward Midgets....Three men's senior cage games billed for the "Y" gym tomorrow in the gloaming....Cobourg gal cagers insist they're intermediate "B" and have written the L.O.B.A. about it....Lindsay scribe, after their 4-4 tie, says Marlboros failed to show why they're junior "A" calibre; could it be that the Midgets might also be of the "A" class?.. Falls and Brantford have just started a three-in-five senior "B" series—after playing senior "A" all season!....Yep, the O.H.A. idea is odd in more places than this....Newmarket is at Sutton tonight in an intermediate tilt....Our Colts go to Oshawa Tuesday....And annual O.R.F.U. meeting is slated for Saturday in Toronto...."The most rabid sports fans anywhere are in Peterborough," a traveller told us the other day..That's oke, so long as they remain sports fans....S'long.

Young's Point Wins

LAKEFIELD, Feb. 17.—Young's Point hockeyists defeated a Haultain squad in the Lakefield rink on Thursday evening, February 16, when they played a rough and ready variety of hockey to cop a 3 to 1 victory.

Squash Champion

The man who can officialy style himself men's national singles squash racquets champion of United States is Donald Strachan, of Philadelphia, who earned the right in Chicago by defeating Stanley Galowin in straight games. Strachan also held the title in 1935.

Hearts' Battle With Celtic Soccer Feature

LONDON, Feb. 17 (CP Cable) — H. W. (Bunny) Austin's campaign for "moral rearmament" is being carried to England's football crowds. When Arsenal and Chelsea meet Saturday at Highbury in the feature attraction of the English football league the huge crowd will hear a broadcast by the famous tennis player.

Austin's appeal will be backed up by Capt. George Eyston, holder of the world's land speed record and Len Harvey, popular English boxer. In the opinion of the Davis Cup star world unrest is caused by selfishness and to combat this he is calling for the strengthening of moral principles.

While English teams are battling for league points, cup soccer is expected to draw big crowds up in Scotland. Six third round contests are on the week-end card involving nine first and two second division clubs with Buckie Thistle, sole minor-league survivor. Queen of the South and Hibernians drew byes and pass into the quarter-finals without opposition.

Glasgow Rangers are expected to take Clyde's measure at Ibrox Park but the toughest match of the day is likely to be that at Tynecastle Park, Edinburgh, where Hearts and Celtic will draw a capacity crowd. Ground advantage may prove a deciding factor in the tussle between the closely matched squads.

Falkirk Hopeful

Defeated twice this season by Aberdeen, Falkirk is hoping to turn the tables when the teams meet at Brockville Park and Motherwell with a home game at Fir Park is favored to qualify for the fourth round at the expense of St. Mirren.

The two second division squads—Dunfermline Athletic and Allos—are in opposition on the former's ground and the list is completed by the Buckie-Third Lanark contest at Buckie. It will be the first time the minor-leaguers have run up against first-class opposition in the current competition.

Gunning for the English Cup and the league championship, Everton, pacemaker through a superior goal average and the advantage of two games in hand over Derby County, is engaged in a Lancashire duel with Bolton Wanderers at the week-end. Following its defeat by Brentford a week ago, critics are wary over predicting the result of Derby's match with Birmingham, cellar occupant.

In second division play, chief interest attaches to the doings of Blackburn Rovers and Sheffield United, co-leaders in the race for promotion. The Rovers, still deadlocked with Sunderland in the fifth round of the cup, have a home match with Burnley. The United go to London to play Millwall.

Remember When—

John J. McGraw signed his first contract to manage New York Giants 36 years ago today. McGraw went on to pilot the National League club for 29 years, retiring in June, 1932. Under his management Giants ended in the World Series nine times, winning the title three times.

Northey Rink Captures Casement Cup

(Examiner Correspondence.)

LAKEFIELD, Feb. 17.—E. H. Northey's rink, composed of E. Waldon, E. Pearson, R. Murduff and E. H. Northey, skip, carried off the honors in the Casement cup competition which finished Wednesday evening. The competition was run on a "wins plus" basis and the winning rink chalked up three wins plus 41 points, in the three games played. D. H. Charlton's rink, including J. R. Hull, J. Knox, J. McGowan and D. Charlton, skip, stood second with three wins and 35 points to their credit.

Play in the vice-skips' knock-out bonspiel for the Tanner Cup commenced on Thursday evening, February 16 and should be completed by the early part of next week.

Teams Fail To Score

LONDON, Feb. 17.—(CP Cable.)—A third game will be necessary to settle the English Football Cup argument between Sunderland and Blackburn Rovers. In a fifth-round re-play that went into overtime at Blackburn to-day the teams played to a scoreless draw. Last Saturday at Sunderland the teams drew 1-1.

Swansea Town, playing at home, defeated West Ham United 3-2 in a second division, English League fixture.

CHURCH HOCKEY.

George St. and Trinity Juveniles have a Church Hockey League fixture tonight at seven at All Saints' rink, while Knox Bantams play George St. there tomorrow evening at seven.

Campbell Rink Tumbles To Sarnians

TORONTO, Feb. 17. — (CP)— Semi-finals reached in one event, the Seagram trophy, the 12th annual Ontario bonspiel to-day entered its final stages. Officials said 367 games had been run off in the four days of the curling meet and only 39 remained to be played.

Last night players reached eights, one round before semi-final in the main Royal York trophy and also in the Selberling, Birks-Ellis-Ryrie and North American Life events.

Feature of fourth round play in the Royal York last night was the elimination of the last undefeated rink, R. A. Campbell's Toronto Royal Canadians, 12-11, by Alex Hayes' Sarnians in a close contest that went an extra end.

Hayes' victory climaxed a day that saw five previously unbeaten quartets go down in spirited competition. Rinks skipped by C. R. Redfern, Toronto; Dr. S. T.White, Orangeville; W. J. Drysdale, Kingston, and A. E. Dunker, Kitchener, were the others to suffer initial losses.

Drysdale was defeated 14-11 by H.' Forbes of Forest in the morning third round of the Birks-Ellis-Ryrie and Dunker went down 12-10 before George Stronach's Toronto Granites in the same event.

Dr. White lost 12-6 to F. H. Sproule's Toronto High Parks in afternoon play of the Selberling, while Redfern was beaten 13-12 in a close Royal York third round match.

9 in the Running.

Yesterday's results, officials said, left nine rinks in the running for the grand aggregate prize, awarded to the four with most victories.

Two of these, H. Walker of Chatsworth and D. P. J. Kelly, Toronto Granites, have only a remote chance, being on the lesser side of the tourney after losing first round Royal York matches. Each has won seven games with three more to go.

Campbell's Royal Canadians have the best opportunity, with eight games won, one lost and five to go. Redfern has eight wins and four to play; J. A. Cheriton's Hamilton Thistles seven with two to go; Dunker's Kitcheners seven wins with five to go; C. F. Mason's Toronto Granites seven wins with five to play and H. Sproule's Toronto High Parks have won six with three to go.

Westerners Good

Western Ontario crews brought off a number of successes, and will play off in eights in every trophy event.

Walker's Chatsworths meet George Robinson, Penetanguishene, in the Seagram semi-final after beating V. G. Phillips, Shelburne, 10-9 in the fourth round. Walker is also in the North American Life eights.

W. A. Watson's Sarnia quartet also reached the North American Life eights, while Alex Hayes' Sarnians play off in the main Royal York Trophy after reaching the eights.

P. Gilbert, Chatham, skipped his four to an 11-8 victory in the Canada Dry Trophy third round to enter eights in that event.

Gar Reddon's London quartet defeated F. R. Sproule, Toronto High Park, to enter semi-finals of the Birks-Ellis-Ryrie Trophy and also a place in the Royal York eights. Defeating W. J. Drysdale, Kingston, 14-11 in the Birks third round, H. Forbes, of Forest gained the eights in the Birks.

Dunker In There

A. E. Dunker of Kitchener, besides defeating J. T. Gauthier, Timmins, 15-4 to go into the Selberling eights, also holds a position in the Royal York 16's. Another quartet to reach the Birks eights was Dr. S. T. White, Orangeville, while on the lesser portion of the tourney, P. G. Deitrich, Galt, won into the eights of the Canada Dry Trophy.

J. A. Cheriton's Hamilton Thistles have good chances in two major events. Defeating H. C. Nelson, Bala, 9-7, in the Selberling third round, they entered eights in that competition. Last night they advanced into the eights of the Royal York, besting Dr. S. T. White, Orangeville, 13-12.

Percy Skitch of Lindsay was another to go into the fifth round of the Royal York. He eliminated Ed Young's Toronto Royal Canadians 9-3 in the fourth.

Best On Continent In Speed Skating Realm

Champions of all they survey in North American speed skating circles are Charles Leighton, of Minneapolis and Mandy Horn of Beaver Dam, Wisconsin, after they had captured the official championships run off at Lake Placid, N.Y. Leighton replaced Vic Rochetti as men's titleholder, and will line up with Uncle Sam's 1940 Olympic team.

Warsaw Wins Over Locals

(Examiner Correspondence.)

WARSAW, Feb. 17—In the best played game of hockey to be seen on local ice this season, Warsaw nosed out Wallace Point Canoe club, of Peterborough, by 9 to 8, after a ten-minute overtime session. The visitors, owing to a car accident, were forced to play the entire 70 minutes without substitutes, but they gave the locals a stiff battle every minute of the game and only the first class work of Digweed in the Warsaw nets and the sharpshooting of Ivan Watts saved the village boys from a trimming.

Prete, Mortimer and Connelly did the scoring for the paddlers. Gilbert played the entire game with an injured knee, but was unable to continue in the overtime, so both teams took the ice minus a man and the local fans were treated to their first glimpse of the new 5-man streamlined game. The teams:

Warsaw: Goal, Digweed; defence, P. Drain, I. Payne; centre, I. Watts; wings, J. Watts, A. Watts; subs, Cooper, Bell, B. Payne, Sharpe, Bowen.

Wallace Point: Goal Harding; defence, Prete, Wilson; centre, Gilbert; wings, Connelly, Mortimer.

Referee H. Darling.

Jimmy Ward Be Out Of Game Rest Of Season

By Robert Clarke
(Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

Where Montreal Canadiens are concerned it never rains but it pours.

All season long the Flying Frenchmen have worked desperately to climb from the National Hockey League cellar, but the best they have been able to do was a long ago tie with Detroit Red Wings for the sixth and last playoff berth.

To-day, the Habitants are a full five points away from the sixth place Wings with their chances of gaining the post season series almost at the vanishing point. To make things worse they have a club riddled with injuries and likely will have to call, as they have before this season, on replacements from their New Haven farm club in the International American League.

Jimmy Ward

Canadiens fell 5-1 in Montreal last night before the league leading Bruins, but the defeat, although seriously affecting their play-off chances, was costly in other ways. They lost the services of the veteran right winger, Jimmy Ward, for the balance of the season.

Only recently their brilliant George Mantha, leading scorer of the club last season, suffered a leg injury that pushed him out of play for th remainder of the schedule.

Siebert Out, Too.

In addition, burly Albert (Babe) Siebert, their sparkling defenceman, was injured in the first period and missed the remainder of the game. It was not known immediately just how serious his back injury would be, and there seemed the possibility that he might miss the game on Saturday in Montreal against New York Americans.

While Bruins were trouncing the Montrealers, the Rangers topped the Americans 2-1 in another of their intra-city struggles to consolidate their hold on second place 10 points behind the Bruins. Chicago Black Hawks and the Wings played through 70 minutes to a 1-1 draw, leaving the Hawks in fifth place one point thead of the Wings.

The Bruins showed the perfect balance that has kept them in front of the race almost from the start, and each of their five goals was scored by a different performer. Bobby Bauer got one in the first period and Mel Hill another in the second. Rod Lorrain came through with the only Montreal score midway through the third chapter, but the Bruins rallied for goals by Roy Conacher, Jack Portland, and Dit Clapper.

All the goals came in the third period in the game at New York, with Neil Colville bagging the two for Rangers before Johnny Sorrell robbed Davie Kerr of a shutout with a tally in the next to last minute of play.

Baldy Northcott

The Hawks broke in with a score by Lawrence (Baldy) Northcott in the 13th minute of the opening period, but only two minutes and one second later Charlie Conacher evened it up.

The Chicago-Detroit and Montreal-Boston tilts produced plenty of action. At Detroit, in the overtime period, Conacher and Carl Liscombe of the Wings and Joffre Desilets and Earl Seibert of the Hawks drew major penalties for fighting. At Montreal, Stew Evans drew a 10-minute misconduct in the third period for protesting about a penalty to Toe Blake. Shortly afterwards Johnny Gagnon received a match misconduct for arguing when Des Smith was tripped and no penalty was given.

Ward suffeerd a fractured shoulder in the first period when he hit a Bruin. In the dressing room after the game, he said the check had not been hard and that he did not even know the man he had hit. In the second period Walter Buswell, Montreal defenceman, crashed head on into the boards and missed the balance of the game.

Trenton Misnames Tweed Squad

(Examiner Correspondence.)

TWEED, Feb. 17.—Tweed Hockey Club have been dubbed by a Trenton sports writer, "The Bulldogs." The reporter did not say whether they are the English or Boston type. Up to date, they have been to hometown fans, just the plain Tweed pluggers. However, the new moniker is somewhat of a misnomer, as tenacity, which is one of the outstanding features of the bulldog, expressed in the old British tradition, "What we have we hold," does not appear to be altogether true of the local puck chasers, who have lost at least a dozen games after accumulating a comfortable margin.

However, so long as the Trentonites feel that the name suits the Tweed players, it will probably suit the northern fans of the circuit, but it is hoped that in future "The Bulldogs" will hold what they have.

Powerful Trio

The old experimenter and rookie-bringer-upper, Art Ross, of Boston Bruins, has juggled his line-up considerably this year despite the great record his team has maintained, but one unit that has remained intact from the first is the justly famed "Kraut Line," the member of which are shown here, reading from TOP to BOTTOM, Porky Dumart, left wing; Milt Schmidt, centre and Bobby Bauer, right wing. All three hail from around Kitchener, Ont., and although their amateur ice paths took them separate ways they often look as if they started crawling around the nursery floor in formation. Each has counted 10 goals so far this season to make this line one of the two or three highest scoring in the N.H.L.

Petes Beaten By Campbellford

CAMPBELLFORD, Feb. 17.—Taking a 5 to 2 victory from Peterborough Campbellford retained their position in the Juvenile O.H.A. series game here last night. The locals had the edge on play during most of the contest outnumbering the visitors' shots on goal with Puffer, Farrell and Kelly leading the attack. Both teams played a clean brand of hockey until Webb and Mason mixed it up for a little private battle during the third frame while the play was going on at the other end of the ice. The locals started their scoring half way through the opener when Kelly picked up a pass from Webb to beat O'Toole with a red hot shot into the net. Henwood and O'Hearn were active around the Campbellford net giving Donald plenty of moving around to do while O'Brien, Mason and Eason also formed a fast combination for the visitors. Eason and Webb were gated during the second period and though the locals turned on the pressure they failed to tally.

The third period opened with the locals two up and the visitors pressed hard in an endeavour to even up the score, missing several chances when Davis cruised in to miss the net.

The teams:

Campbellford: Goal, Donald; defense, Puffer, Nicholos; centre, Farrell; wings, Kelly, Web; alternates, Jamieson, Pollock, McCutcheon, Tinney, Glenn.

Peterborough: Goal O'Toole; defense, Davis, L. Prete; centre, O'Brien; wings, Mason, Eason; alternates, Garvey, Henwood, Lewis, Scriver, O'Hearn, Crary.

Referees—D. Free, F. Free.

Summary:

First Period

Campbellford—J. Kelly (Webb) 10.15
Campbellford—Puffer 15.10
Penalties—None.

Second Period

Campbellford—Puffer (Pollock) 19.45

Third Period

Campbellford—Kelly 16.05
